The doctors and nurses of Chicago's newest trauma center tackle the city's most challenging cases and ethical dilemmas in the premiere of "Chicago Med," airing Tuesday, Nov. 17, on NBC. The drama from Dick Wolf and Matt Olmstead — the same creative team that brought "Chicago Fire" and "Chicago P.D." to the small screen — features an ensemble cast that includes Oliver Platt ("The C Word") and S. Epatha Merkerson ("Law & Order").

'Med' makes three

NBC adds 'Chicago Med' to the Windy City series family

By Kyla Brewer
TV Media

Yaya DaCosta as seen in "Chicago Med"

The TV spinoff isn't exactly a new concept — "The Lucy-Desi Comedy Hour" spun off of "I Love Lucy" way back in 1957. When producers find a formula that works, they tend to capitalize on it, and who can blame them? CBS has been wildly successful with several CSI and NCIS series in recent years.

The peacock network has also had its fair share of spinoff hits thanks to the Law & Order franchise, but the network is breaking the mold with the new medical drama "Chicago Med," which is slated to premiere Tuesday, Nov. 17, on NBC. Set in a Chicago hospital, the show is a spinoff of the hit drama "Chicago Fire," which also spawned "Chicago P.D." in 2014.

Billed as "an emotional thrill ride through the day-to-day chaos of the city's newest state-of-the-art trauma center," "Chicago Med" features an ensemble cast that will, from time to time, mingle with the characters from the already established Windy City shows. It presents a unique opportunity to explore a storyline from several angles at once, something "Chicago Med" star Oliver Platt ("The Big C") told "ET Canada" he was excited about.

"A lot of franchises have spun off shows before, but never into an active sort of living matrix of shows where we all get to visit the other shows," said Platt. "Sometimes we'll just sort of guest, and other times there'll be big story crossovers, and that's exciting to me. It's a new idea."

As in the other Chicago series, "Chicago Med's" ensemble cast will tell the kinds of stories that plague today's society, this time from the perspective of the health-care workers. Platt has nothing but praise for prolific television producer Dick Wolf's ("Law & Order") ripped-from-the-headlines style.

"Ultimately it's entertainment, but I think Dick's always had a social conscience, Dick's interested in talking about what's going on in our daily life," said the actor.

With Wolf at the helm as executive producer, alongside co-creator Matt Olmstead, it should come as no surprise that "Chicago Med" is poised to break new ground. The show has an impressive pedigree: not only is it on the network that brought viewers the iconic medical drama "ER," its Windy City predecessors also consistently pull in millions of viewers. This will — with any luck — give "Chicago Med" a head start in the ratings department as fans of "Fire" and "P.D." will likely want to check out the new members of the "Chicago" drama family.

Nick Gehlfuss ("Shameless") serves as a link between "P.D." and "Med" as Dr. Will Halstead, a trauma surgeon and brother of Det. Jay Halstead (Jesse Lee Soffer, "The Mob Doctor"). Dr. Halstead has recently returned to the Windy City after practicing medicine for 10 years in New York. He joins new trauma fellow Dr. Connor Rhodes (Colin Donnell, "Arrow"). The hospital's brilliant chief of psychiatry, Dr. Daniel Charles (Platt), may possess remarkable insight into his patients' minds but lacks the same kind of perspective when it comes to his own personal life. Dr. Ethan Choi (Brian Tee, "Jurassic World," 2015) is a Navy flight surgeon who knows a lot about infectious diseases.

Former "Law & Order" star S. Epatha Merkerson oversees the staff as Sharon Goodwin, the head of Chicago Med. She is but one of the show's fierce female characters. Despite being in the third trimester of her pregnancy, Dr. Natalie Manning (Torrey DeVitto, "The Vampire Diaries") remains committed to her patients. Dr. Sarah Reese (Rachel DiPillo, "Jane the Virgin") is an overachieving fourth-year medical student who may find herself in over her head. Yaya DaCosta ("Whitney," 2015) rounds out the cast as savvy ER nurse April Sexton, the "lifeblood" of the emergency room.

Viewers were introduced to some of these characters in the season 3 episode of "Chicago Fire" entitled "I Am the Apocalypse," in which the members of Firehouse 51 raced to the scene of a gas leak and transported the victims to Chicago Med. There, one of the patients claimed to be the carrier of a deadly airborne disease, and the ensuing four-episode storyline introduced Dr. Halstead, Goodwin and Sexton. It turns out that Sexton is an old acquaintance of "Fire's" Lt. Kelly Severide (Taylor Kinney, "Zero Dark Thirty," 2012). She made it clear in the episode "Forgive You Anything" that he was not the greatest of friends, so he may have his work cut out for him if he's hoping to woo her. "The Walking Dead" alum Laurie Holden was also introduced as surgeon Dr. Hannah Tramble in the backdoor pilot, but she backed out of the series, citing family reasons.

Strong ensemble casts is something all three series have in common, and together the Chicago trio have the potential to explore all kinds of social issues. NBC has big plans for prime time, especially in the New Year. Viewers can expect a three-way crossover with "Chicago Med," "Chicago Fire" and "Chicago P.D." in January and another big crossover event between all three series plus "Law & Order: Special Victims Unit" in February. Catch all of the "Chicago Med" drama from the beginning starting Tuesday, Nov. 17, on NBC.

Hollywood Q&A

By Adam Thomlison
TV Media

Q: I'd like to know if "Taxi Brooklyn" is coming back.

A: It looks like "Taxi Brooklyn" is off the road for good, though we don't know for sure — and according to the show's executive producer, we probably never will.

The show's first season aired in full on NBC in the spring of 2014, but the network hasn't really mentioned it since. Fans were left hoping and campaigning for a second season.

Much of that campaigning took place on Twitter, where fans were constantly expressing support for executive producer Gary Scott Thompson, as well as asking for updates. He promised to keep fans in the loop, but told one fan back in January that, "if history is any indication, we will probably never have official word."

As he points out, such things are rarely made official. Instead, we look for signs.

One such sign came in February, when series star Chyler Leigh got a new full-time job. She plays Alex Danvers, sister to the title character in CBS's "Supergirl" series, which debuted last month.

"Taxi Brooklyn" was actually an import, produced by France's EuropaCorp (hence the fact that the taxi driver was from Marseilles), and was based on a series of four films the company produced, called "Taxi." However, they were produced mostly for a domestic audience, in French.

That's not to say that EuropaCorp didn't already have a strong foothold in the English-language business. The company was also behind the hugely successful Transporter and Taken film franchises.

The fact that it wasn't satisfied with "Taxi Brooklyn" hasn't scared NBC away from doing business with EuropaCorp, though. The two recently inked a deal for a TV-series version of the Taken movies, which starred Liam Neeson as

Gotham

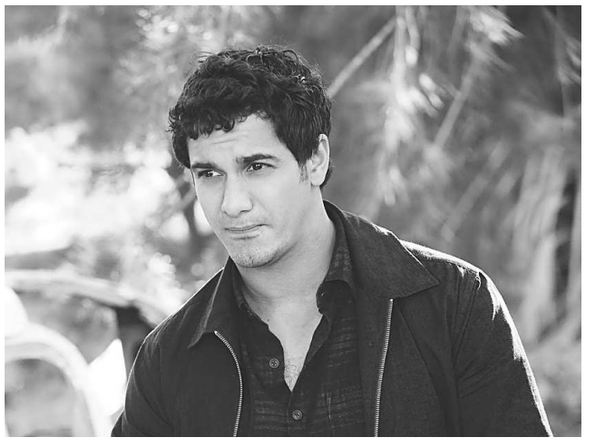

25 8:00 p.m.

While cleaning up Gotham, Gordon (Ben McKenzie) encounters one of the city's most notorious hitmen, Eduardo Flamingo (Raúl Castillo). Meanwhile, Nygma (Corey Michael Smith) crosses paths with Penguin (Robin Lord Taylor) once again.

Scorpion

4 9:00 p.m.

High-tech threats are no match for Walter O'Brien (Elyes Gabel) and his elite team of brilliant misfits in this new episode. Robert Patrick stars as Cabe Gallo, a federal agent who oversees group's activities as the nerds deal with the nation's crises.

Elyes Gabel stars in "Scorpion"

Blindspot

7 10:00 p.m.

Hoping to keep deadly information out of the wrong hands, Jane (Jaimie Alexander) and Weller (Sullivan Stapleton) go undercover as a world-class assassin couple in this new episode. Elsewhere, David (Joe Dinicol) sets out on a solo mission.

Fargo

FX 10:00 p.m.

Lou (Patrick Wilson) and Hank (Ted Danson) do their best to prevent an altercation in this new episode. Also, Peggy (Kirsten Dunst) and Ed (Jesse Plemons) defend their choices, and the Gerhardt family tries to retrieve one of their own.

Thanksgiving holiday brings out the spirit of competition in Rev Run

By Andrew Warren
TV Media

The Simmons family as seen in "Rev Run's Thanksgiving Supper"

Thanksgiving, Thanksgiving, it's almost Thanksgiving! Ah yes, the day that marks the start of the holiday season. A day of food, friends, family and, of course, a healthy dose of arguing.

OK, so maybe that's being a bit cynical. Maybe there are families out there that never have a cross word or a dirty look for each other during the Thanksgiving holiday. For most of us, though, there's going to be some tension, but once our bellies are full of turkey and dessert, we let bygones be bygones and just bask in each other's company.

Well, Rev Run and his family seem a bit like my own when it comes to holidays — they get competitive. Cooking Channel's "Rev Run's Sunday Supper" has been inviting viewers into the Simmons home for Sunday night dinners for a while now, and audiences are invited again for "Rev Run's Thanksgiving Supper" airing Sunday, Nov. 15.

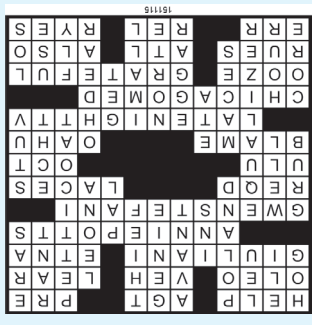

It's a peek inside the planning for the big Thanksgiving meal, but there's trouble a-brewing in this house. Rev Run's wife, Justine, has been planning the menu for months, but when the reverend decides that he wants to make his crispy, deep-fried turkey, the two decide to throw down and see who can make the best Thanksgiving meal.

On Justine's menu: a juicy, oven-roasted turkey with quick-pan gravy; roasted asparagus with bacon; tangy, homemade cranberry sauce; and a pumpkin pie with gingerbread crust for dessert.

From Rev's corner, to serve alongside his fried turkey, he'll have savory individual stuffing muffin cups and mini apple pie bites.

It's a throwdown between the spouses, a dose of healthy competition for the big day. The real winners, though, are the members of their family who get not one, but two mouth-watering Thanksgiving dinners served side by side.

Of course, it's all in good fun, and, at the end of the day, we viewers are also winners in this contest. After all, we get to watch two fantastic meals lovingly prepared by the lovely couple.

The Man from U.N.C.L.E.

The hit 1960s TV show finally hits the big screen in this Cold War-era spy flick. CIA agent Napoleon Solo (Cavill) is forced by his superiors to team up with the enemy, KGB agent Illya Kuryakin (Hammer), to accomplish a mutually beneficial goal: stopping an international criminal syndicate from building a deadly nuclear device and shattering the delicate political balance between the East and West. Along with the beautiful daughter (Vikander) of a missing nuclear scientist, the pair of spies must set aside their animosity and track down the Nazi sympathizers in order to stop a global catastrophe. Director: Guy Ritchie. Stars: Henry Cavill, Armie Hammer, Alicia Vikander, Elizabeth Debicki, Luca Calvani. 2015. 116 min. Adventure.

Jimmy's Hall

The aftermath of the Irish Civil War serves as the backdrop for this drama loosely based on historical events. After living for 10 years in the United States, Jimmy Gralton (Ward) returns to his native Ireland and reopens the dance hall that he built as a place for young people to learn, to socialize and, above all, to dance. The hall becomes immensely popular with the local youth who use it as an escape for the many problems plaguing the country, but the free-thinking ways and American jazz music that Jimmy has imported draws the attention of the omnipresent Catholic church. Director: Ken Loach. Stars: Barry Ward, Francis Magee, Aileen Henry, Simone Kirby. 2014. 109 min. Drama.

Henry Cavill and Armie Hammer star in "The Man from U.N.C.L.E."

Bizarre Foods

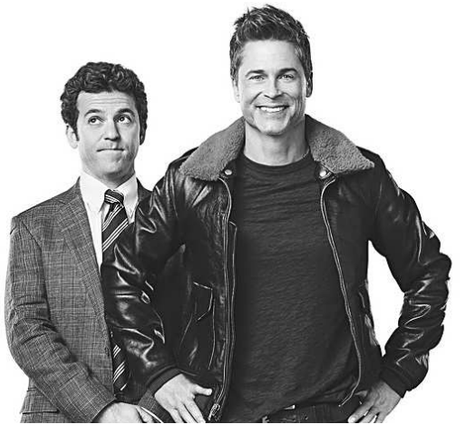

TRAV 8:00 p.m.

Host Andrew Zimmern heads to Amsterdam in this new episode. He samples unique reinventions of traditional Dutch recipes, from invasive goose krokets and insect-filled nuggets to smoked local eel and hollow pig head.

The Grinder

25 8:30 p.m.

All Dean (Rob Lowe) wants is to be a "regular guy," but he keeps using his celebrity to get ahead. Stewart (Fred Savage) convinces Dean to stop, but when the brothers find themselves in a serious predicament, it may be Dean's fame that bails them out.

Fred Savage and Rob Lowe star in "The Grinder"

iZombie

56 9:00 p.m.

After an illusionist is murdered in cold blood at a magicians' convention, Liz (Rose McIver) consumes the victim's brains to learn more about him. As she and Det. Babineaux (Malcolm Goodwin) investigate, Blaine (David Anders) gives Liv some news.

Limitless

4 10:00 p.m.

Jake McDorman stars as a man who uses a mysterious drug to unlock extraordinary cognitive abilities in this freshman series. One of the top performers in the ratings so far this season, the drama recently earned a full-season order from CBS.

MasterChef Junior

25 8:00 p.m.

Astronaut Tracy Dyson makes a special guest appearance as the top 20 junior home cooks tackle an out-of-this-world Mystery Box challenge in this new episode. The youngsters will be asked to prepare a unique dish that highlights a stellar ingredient.

Truth Be Told

7 8:30 p.m.

When Mitch (Mark-Paul Gosselaar) accidentally texts Angie (Bresha Webb) to set up a date, they find out they have a lot in common in this new episode. Also, Tracy (Vanessa Lachey) offers to let Russell (Tone Bell) work in an empty cubicle in her office.

Will Estes stars in "Blue Bloods"

Grimm

7 9:00 p.m.

In this new episode, three young men embark on a quest to win the hand of a mobster's daughter, Elena (Madeline Zima). As they work toward their goal, the bodies begin to pile up, prompting Nick (David Giuntoli) and Hank (Russell Hornsby) get involved.

Blue Bloods

4 10:00 p.m.

The Reagan family keeps the citizens of New York City safe, enforcing the law in the streets and in the courtrooms in a new episode. The popular crime drama's cast includes TV veteran Tom Selleck and up-and-comer Will Estes.

Hollywood Q&A

a retired CIA operative whose loved ones keep getting kidnapped.

Q: I remember a Don Knotts movie from back in the '70s that had a great cemetery scene — I never laughed so hard in my life. Can you tell me the name of the movie?

A: Don Knotts did a lot of movies in his time, but it's hard to get laughs in a cemetery, so I can tell you pretty certainly that the movie you're thinking of is 1971's "How to Frame a Figg."

In it, Knotts plays Hollis Figg, a fairly unintelligent bookkeeper for a small township. The crooked city councilors try to cover up some shady financial dealings by replacing all of the accountants at city hall with a computer — all, that is, except Figg, who they deem too dumb to catch on to them.

In a series of plot developments too complicated to relay here (and which only make sense in a slapstick comedy), a prominent local businessman dies and the crooked politicians try to further cover their trail by burying the computer in his coffin. Figg figures it out and exhumes the computer, plugs it in with a hilariously long extension cord, and tries to run it. Of course this doesn't work, and instead the computer explodes, spraying punch cards everywhere (this was the '70s, when computers still ran on punch cards).

Figg, flanked by his sidekick, played by longtime voice actor Frank Welker, delivers an impromptu eulogy for their computational comrade. "There is no finer thing that a machine can do than to give his last transistor for his friends, and for his township."

The legendary comedian deserves more than the usual amount of credit for this one: "How to Frame a Figg" is the only movie Knotts starred in that he also helped to write. It's also one of only two writing credits he ever got, the other being for a one-hour variety special he hosted in 1970.

But with his shrill voice and elastic face, best remembered in such roles as Deputy Barney Fife in "The Andy Griffith Show" and Mr. Furley in "Three's Company," Knotts was always destined to be a performer first.

Late laughs

Conan: Conan O'Brien

According to a new study, more and more gay Americans are coming out on Facebook. Apparently, gay women come out by introducing their female partner, and gay men come out by recapping "Scream Queens." There should be a "we've known for years" button.

A high school student hacked the AOL email account of John Brennan, the director of the CIA. In other words, the student correctly guessed that the password of anyone still using AOL is "password."

Jeb Bush is trying very hard to get some traction — his campaign has a contest now where someone will be flown to Houston to meet him, his dad and his brother. No word on what the winner gets.

The Tonight Show Starring Jimmy Fallon: Jimmy Fallon

I heard about a new trend where people make marijuana-infused wine. They say it's the first wine that pairs well with EVERY food.

Vin Diesel recently said that he plans to end the Fast and Furious franchise with three more movies. Just three more and that's it. I don't want to say they're running out of ideas, but in the next one, he just spends two hours looking for a parking spot at Costco.

Whole Foods announced that it is cutting 1,500 jobs. Although Whole Foods doesn't want to call them "unemployed." They're calling them "free-range employees."

Jimmy Kimmel Live: Jimmy Kimmel

I was born in Brooklyn. I grew up in Mill Basin, and I have to say, Brooklyn really hasn't changed. It's still the same collection of mom-and-pop, gluten-free, artisanal mayonnaise shops that made this borough what it is.

They say you can never go home again, and turns out they're right. This morning, I tried to go back to my old house and walked in on a lady taking a shower. Sorry, Renee.

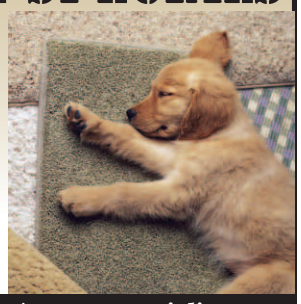

I have been soaking up the local culture. I'm eating all the food, drinking all the drinks — we even brought my baby into a bar like real Brooklynites do.

Late Night With Seth Meyers: Seth Meyers

Oscar Mayer has come out with a new dating app which promises to pair up singles who love bacon. It's called Sizzl. Which is way better than their original name, eHam-ony.

There is a new model of Roomba robotic vacuum out that can connect to Wi-Fi and uses cameras and sensors to create a map of your house. So if you hear something go bump in the night, don't worry, it's just a robot that has a map of your house.

Researchers in Singapore are trying to develop a robot that can put together Ikea furniture. But so far it's been unsuccessful because the robot hasn't been able to find its way out of the store yet.
