

Racritia,

I thank God for you every day. I am so proud of the things you have been able to accomplish, whether it be graduating with your bachelor's degree, striving for higher education by completing your master's degree or educating the youth of our community. I look at you in awe and can't believe that this delicate, young woman has the strength and determination to achieve anything she sets her mind to.

You have worked so hard to earn the success you have today. You are a bright light that shines on anyone you meet. The eternal love that you have for others is matched only by your eternal beauty. The examples you set each day make our world a better place. You are an intelligent, hardworking, kind, loving, beautiful, funny and talented person, who is a true blessing in my life. In my wildest dreams, I could have never imagined a woman more perfect than you, and I couldn't imagine spending the rest of my life with anyone else.

I am so happy for the memories we have made together and cannot wait to make new memories with you for the rest of my life. I am fortunate to have you in my life, and I know our family and loved ones feel the same way. Neither of us would be where we are without our family and friends, so I would like to sincerely thank them for the love and support they have so generously given to us.

Racritia, thank you for being my rock, my voice of reason and my best friend. FINALLY, Will You Marry Me?

Love,
Philip