Even when you need more care, it still feels like yours.

When something goes wrong — a stroke, a 2 a.m. chest pain, a scare you didn't see coming — the last thing you need is to feel small in a place that's far too big. Our Certified Primary Stroke Center at Newark-Wayne Community Hospital has earned national recognition, minutes away when minutes are exactly what matter. And if your treatment calls for more, you're already part of a network that can take you there. Our care is big enough to handle the worst day of your life. And small enough to hold your hand all the way through it.
