John C. Fremont Days parade

Concert in the Park

Many of MainStreet of Fremont's efforts can be seen and experienced throughout the summer months as the organization will again hang baskets of pink petunias on light poles throughout the district on Memorial Day, and host its annual Concert In The Park Series which brings thousands to John C. Fremont

Park to enjoy music, food and fun every Thursday throughout the month of June.

The park—at 9th and Broad Street—also serves as the home of John C. Fremont Days which celebrates the city's founding with a weekend of music, history, food and an annual parade. This festival takes place annually during the second full weekend in July at various locations throughout the city.

Throughout the summer the area also hosts the Fremont Artisan Market and the weekly Memory Farmers Market which supports the Fremont Area Alzheimer's Collaboration and provides local farmers an opportunity to sell their produce every Thursday in the parking lot at Fifth and Park Avenue behind the May Brothers Building.

While summer festivals like JCF Days have been engrained in the community's consciousness, local residents have recently brought new life to old traditions and endeavored to start a few new ones over the past several years.
