There goes 'The Neighborhood'

The cast of "The Neighborhood"

When Dave Johnson (Max Greenfield, "New Girl") and his wife, Gemma (Beth Behr, "2 Broke Girls"), move their family across the country to a primarily black community, they rub their new neighbor the wrong way in the premiere of "The Neighborhood," airing Monday, Oct. 1, on CBS. Cedric the Entertainer ("The Steve Harvey Show") returns to prime time as the Johnson's cantankerous neighbor, Calvin, in the freshman sitcom.

Comedy with a purpose: It's a beautiful day in 'The Neighborhood'

By Kyla Brewer
TV Media

At the end of the day, it's nice to kick back and enjoy a few laughs. Watching a TV comedy is a great way to unwind, but some sitcoms are more than just a string of snappy one-liners. A new series takes a humorous look at a serious issue as it tackles racism in America.

Max Greenfield ("New Girl") stars as Dave Johnson, a friendly conflict negotiator from the Midwest who cheerily moves his family to a primarily black neighborhood in L.A. when his wife gets a new job as a school principal in "The Neighborhood," premiering Monday, Oct. 1, on CBS. Unfortunately, his new neighbor Calvin, played by comedy legend Cedric the Entertainer ("The Steve Harvey Show"), isn't happy to see a white family move in next door.

Luckily for Dave, not everyone shares Calvin's point of view. Calvin's gracious wife, Tina (Tichina Arnold, "Everybody Hates Chris"), welcomes the Johnsons to the community. Calvin's young son, Marty (Marcel Spears, "The Mayor"), is happy to see Dave, his wife, Gemma (Beth Behrs, "2 Broke Girls"), and their young son, Grover (Hank Greenspan, "13 Reasons Why"). Meanwhile, Calvin's older unemployed son, Malcolm (Sheaun McKinney, "Great News"), finds it entertaining to watch his frustrated father interact with their new neighbors.

Despite his efforts, Dave just can't seem to ingratiate himself to Calvin, who is convinced that the white family's presence will disrupt the culture of their beloved neighborhood. While "The Neighborhood" could easily rely on the odd-couple banter between Calvin and Dave for predictable laughs and gags, series creator and showrunner Jim Reynolds ("The Big Bang Theory") has said the series has a deeper message. During this year's Television Critics Association summer press tour, he explained that he hoped the sitcom would open a dialogue about race relations.

"This is a traditional sitcom," Reynolds went on to say, "a comfortable and welcoming vehicle to bring people into a safe space and then talk about some difficult issues."

Sheaun McKinney stars in "The Neighborhood"

Loosely based on Reynolds' own experience moving his family to a historically black neighborhood in Pasadena, Calif., "The Neighborhood" chronicles Dave's efforts to break through Calvin's gruff exterior to become his friend. Dave may be the friendliest guy in the Midwest, but Calvin is having none of it. Similar to Norman Lear's groundbreaking TV classic "All in the Family," the new comedy isn't afraid to explore hot button issues such as racism and reverse racism.

Cedric the Entertainer has had a huge influence on the show's direction since signing on to the project in March, and Reynolds has given him a lot of credit and praise for his contributions to the show's development. The dialogue between the two men reverberates through the show as the stories are told from the perspectives of both the black and the white families. In a July interview with Variety, the creator said he welcomed the comedian's input.

"He gave us the benefit of having an authentic African-American point of view," Reynolds said. He later added: "Cedric and my relationship is kind of a metaphor for the show. He's been instrumental to it."

With a huge star and a noble objective, the comedy shows a lot of promise, but there have been some bumps on the road to prime time. After undergoing a few title changes from "Here Comes the Neighborhood" to "Welcome to the Neighborhood" to its current incarnation, the cast was changed up. In May, it was announced that Greenfield replaced Australian actor Josh Lawson ("House of Lies"), who was originally cast in the role of Dave back in March. Then, in June, reports surfaced that Behrs would take over the role of Gemma Johnson for Dreama Walker ("Don't Trust the B—— in Apartment 23"), who had been originally cast in April. No definitive reason was given for the recastings other than the fact that CBS wanted to work with Greenfield.

The cast shuffling meant the pilot had to be reshot, and luckily the cast and crew had an industry veteran at the helm. Legendary television director James Burrows, best known for co-creating the TV classic "Cheers," directed both pilots for "The Neighborhood." A Hollywood icon, he's directed more than 50 television pilots, and he reached a significant milestone when he directed his 1,000th TV episode in 2016 with an installment of NBC's "Crowded."

It's clear the network has high hopes for "The Neighborhood." CBS gave the show a series order back in May, and it was featured at the 12th annual PaleyFest Fall Television Previews event in September. In addition to Reynolds and series star Cedric the Entertainer, the show's executive producers include Aaron Kaplan ("The Chi"), Dana Honor ("Me, Myself and I"), Wendi Trilling ("9JKL") and Eric Rhone ("The Honeyymooners," 2005).

Just like Calvin's precious neighborhood, Monday nights may never be the same as the Johnson family settles in and adjusts to a new life in the big city. Dave may never win Calvin over, but it should be entertaining to watch him try. Don't miss the premiere of "The Neighborhood," airing Monday, Oct. 1, on CBS.

Extra treats

Food Network's 'Halloween Wars' is bigger than ever

By Andrew Warren
TV Media

A Halloween tradition is back for even more scares, and this year it's brought friends. Every fall, "Halloween Wars" spooks audiences with its incredibly sugary creations, and this year's competition, which premieres Sunday, Sept. 30, on Food Network, promises to deliver.

Actor Jonathan Bennett ("Mean Girls," 2004) is back to host the competition that sees six teams building incredibly elaborate, detailed and spooky edible displays that definitely put the "treat" in "trick or treat." Each team is made up of a cake artist, a sugar master and an expert pumpkin carver, and over the series' five episodes they're tasked with making more and more displays that have to taste as good as they look.

Of course, every competition needs some judges, and this year's panel is comprised of horror film special effects master Todd Tucker and celebrated cake decorator Shinmin Li. A rotating panel of guest judges rounds out the panel, with Sean Gunn ("Gilmore Girls"), Gaten Matarazzo ("Stranger Things") and director Mick Garris ("The Stand") all taking a turn.

This year, the trick-or-treating has managed to snag some extra treats. Immediately before Sunday's premiere, "Road to Halloween Wars" goes behind the scenes to give audiences a look at just what goes on in the lead-up to the series. From around the globe, some of the most skilled cake, pumpkin and sugar artists hone their ghoulish genius in hopes of wowing the judges and scaring off the competition.

Then, following Sunday's premiere, there's even more sweet treats with "Halloween Wars: Even More Monstrous Scares." The special takes a look back at some of the most memorable displays in the show's history, revisiting the terrifying witches, ghosts, werewolves and vampires that have graced the series since its first competition back in 2011.

That's three hours of Halloween trickery in one night, and there's a reason that "Halloween Wars" is such a seasonal favorite. The edible displays really are visual masterpieces, and with $50,000 up for grabs for the winning team, the competition is fierce. "Halloween Wars" premieres Sunday, Sept. 30, on Food Network.

Hollywood Q&A

By Adam Thomlison
TV Media

Q: Can you please find out if Animal Planet plans to have new episodes of "Animal Cops: Houston"?

A: I can tell you that they haven't announced any plans, but that doesn't mean much in this case — "Animal Cops" can sneak up on you.

The Houston edition is just one of many in the "Animal Cops" franchise, which has also included shows in Philadelphia, Detroit and, just for a change, South Africa.

The Houston show last released a new installment in 2015, as part of a brief spate of episodes (too disorganized to call a "season") that brought the show back nearly a decade after its last new episode in 2006. Whether another revival could come is anyone's guess, but nothing of the sort has been announced so far — the network announced its slate of shows for the 2018-19 season back in the spring, and there wasn't an animal cop among them.

But that could change. The reason the "Animal Cops" shows are able to come back is because the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals isn't going anywhere and, unfortunately, there's never a shortage of animal-cruelty cases for it to investigate.

Q: Who did "True Detective's" theme song? I loved it and thought it was perfect for the show.

A: It depends which season you mean. Given that each season follows a completely different cast of characters in a completely different setting, it makes sense that each one has had a different theme.

The first season's horn-accompanied country ballad was a song called "Far From Any Road" by The Handsome Family, a husband-and-wife alt-country duo. It appears on their 2003 album "Singing Bones."

Season 2's theme was by a somewhat more famous artist — it's "Nevermind" by legendary folk poet Leonard Cohen, from his 2014 record "Popular Problems."

The husband half of "The Handsome Family," who writes all their music (while his wife writes the lyrics) said that their song was written with deserts and scorpions in mind — far from the lush bayou setting of the first season of "True Detective."

"But that's what's so wonderful about it" being selected as the show's theme, he said in an interview on National Public Radio. "A song should have space that it can take on many meanings and take on many lives and can be put in different contexts and fit perfectly."

The second season's theme has a little more urban cool — Cohen, the patron saint of Montreal, can't help but exude it — which makes it a better match to its setting, since season 2 is about city politics rather than rural crime.

Interestingly, as with many of Cohen's songs, "Nevermind" began life as a poem. It was published in his 2006 poetry collection "Book of Longing."

A third season of the HBO series has now wrapped filming, but no premiere date has been released. Nor has the theme song.

Last Man Standing
 Mike (Tim Allen) finally shows some emotion about his father's death by having the heart-to-heart with him that they never share in life in a new episode of "Last Man Standing," airing Friday, Oct. 5, on Fox. Also, Kristin (Amanda Fuller) comes up with a new business idea that she's eager to propose.

Nancy Travis and Tim Allen in "Last Man Standing"

Late laughs

The Tonight Show With Jimmy Fallon
I read that DJ Khaled just launched his own furniture line that includes gold couches, gold lion statues and even a throne. You can find it at Pier One in the "Drug Lord" section.

I heard that the Pumpkin Spice Latte is already on sale at Starbucks. Because when it's 95 degrees outside, nothing's more refreshing than some hot gourd juice.

The Late Late Show With James Corden
In other shocking food news, according to another study, chocolate chip cookie addiction shares many similarities with cocaine addiction. Truly, yes. Researchers say sugar can give you some of the same cravings that cocaine can give. And I say, it is actually worse for you. Like, believe me, try getting an entire chocolate chip cookie up your nose.
