Perilous pursuit: The hunt is on for The Prince in season 2 of 'Six'

By K.A. Taylor
TV Media

Olivia Munn as seen in "SIX"

For much of the western world, war is either something of the past or something happening far away. Acts of wartime heroism and sacrifice are honored periodically throughout the year, but seldom are they deeply reflected upon.

Television and films have long tried to bring the realities of war to those who will never experience it themselves. Notable small-screen attempts include "M*A*S*H" and "Band of Brothers," but these seldom possess the grit found in big-screen depictions. 2017 saw the exception to this, with the premiere of History's "SIX," which has its season 2 premiere appropriately airing on Monday, May 28: Memorial Day.

"SIX" is a high-intensity, high-stakes drama that takes its inspiration from the real-life SEAL Team Six, a prominent component of the U.S. Armed Forces military division focused on counterterrorism. Each episode delves into the split-second decisions that members of SEAL Team must make, and how those decisions have a lasting effect both for the team members involved and for the surrounding community. Although the team isn't adverse to providing aid if possible, the mission at hand is always top of mind, with the nation's security of primary importance.

SEAL Team Six is comprised of quite a diverse cast. Barry Sloane ("Longmire") is Joe "Bear" Graves, the team's senior chief special warfare operator. Providing support are Kyle Schmid ("Being Human") as Alex Caulder and Juan Pablo Raba ("Narcos") as Ricky "Buddha" Ortiz. Rounding out the cast are Jaylen Moore ("Bad Moms," 2016) as Armin Khan and Edwin Hodge ("Sleepy Hollow") as Robert Chase III, fellow special warfare operators. After the events of season 1, SEAL Team Six required a new member, found in Eric Ladin's ("Bosch") role as special warfare operator first class, Trevor.

Season 1 of "SIX" wasted little time wading into the moral grey zone of war, with senior chief special warfare operator Richard "Rip" Taggart (Walton Goggins, "The Hateful Eight," 2015) quickly reduced to former senior chief special warfare operator after shooting a man who had claimed to have American citizenship. A few years later, while earning a living working in private security at a Nigerian school for girls, Rip was taken hostage, prompting his former team to find and rescue him. The team's relentless hunt did not go unrewarded, but a betrayal ultimately resulted in a violent assault on Rip, filling fans with unease as they desperately longed to know the character's fate.

If the trailers and promos are any indication, it does appear that Rip is still alive — for now, at least, as he appears to be comatose. Season 2 finds the team on the hunt for the man behind Rip's shooter, a powerful figure known as "The Prince" (Nikolai Nikolaeff, "Daredevil"). The Prince is fully aware of SEAL Team's quest for vengeance, but he will not hold back or compromise on his own personal desires, seemingly fearless in the face of the six.

While Trevor may be the latest member of the SEAL team, Laden isn't the only fresh face in season 2. Olivia Munn ("Miles from Tomorrowland") plays the role of CIA operations officer Gina Cline, who seemingly has a tense past with some members of the team. While little is known about Gina pre-premiere, she appears to be a means of communication for the team, able to press captive terrorists into providing the information required to help locate and take down The Prince. Her fearless, determined spirit makes her a formidable ally for the team, but for them to truly succeed together, trust must be established.

Much of the show's success thus far stems from its gritty and authentic portrayal of covert military operations, particularly in terms of how the characters battle with their own sense of duty and morality. Rip's actions right at the start of the series exemplifies this. During a promo spot for "SIX," Goggins noted that Rip's decision to shoot was merely him "reacting to the trauma he's been under over the course of his time in the service." Additionally, "SIX" doesn't shy away from complicating traditional notions of friend and foe.

Even those initially seen as villainous can have understandable motives, and for Goggins this is essential. Viewers may have wanted to side with Rip, but Goggins believes that it was "as important to him to tell [his captor's] story as it was to tell [his own] story." Fleshing out both the terrorists and the SEAL Team members may put some at odds with the show, but such an act holds much significance in times like ours, when hero and villain are often simply a matter of circumstance and perspective.

In humanizing warfare and conflict, "SIX" challenges viewers not to forgive the violent actions of others, but to perhaps consider the trauma that may have led to someone committing such acts. The story always keeps SEAL Team Six at the forefront, but in doing so, it also reveals that even the toughest of soldiers battle internal emotions and are weighed down by the endless onslaught of despair, doubt and aggression. Redeeming moments are found when the team can conquer its tasked mission, validating the uncertainty of actions past and promising a more rewarding future.

Discover if the team has what it takes to locate and take out The Prince — in honor of Rip — when "SIX" returns for its second season on Monday, May 28, on History.

Annihilation

One year after her husband, Kane (Isaac), an Army Special Forces soldier, went missing while on a mission, biology professor Lena (Portman) is shocked to find him at home with his health rapidly worsening. She learns that he'd been sent to investigate an anomalous electromagnetic field called The Shimmer, which appeared without explanation three years prior, and he was the only survivor from among a number of military teams sent into the anomaly. Due to her expertise in cellular biology, Lena is recruited for an expedition into The Shimmer, but once they are inside the anomalous bubble, the members of the team find themselves forgetting pieces of time and come under attack by animals with bizarre and dangerous mutations. As the members of the team push towards the lighthouse where the growing anomaly first appeared, the level of danger escalates, putting them all at extreme risk.

Director: Alex Garland. Stars: Natalie Portman, Oscar Isaac, Jennifer Jason Leigh, Gina Rodriguez, Tessa Thompson, Tuva Novotny, Benedict Wong, Sonoya Mizuno. 2018. 115 min. Adventure.

Bastianich's back: Fan-favorite judge returns for a new season of 'MasterChef'

By Andrew Warren
TV Media

There's no shortage of cooking competitions on television, but there aren't any others that are quite like "MasterChef." It's been a summertime staple on Fox for eight years now, and all the Mystery Boxes, Pressure Tests and wow-worthy dishes return for a ninth season on Wednesday, May 30.

This season finds another change in the judges lineup, albeit one that's bringing back a familiar face. Chef Christina Tosi took over as the competition's third judge in season 6, following the departure of restaurateur Joe Bastianich, and after three seasons of witnessing both inspired culinary genius and spectacular kitchen disasters, she's bowed out herself.

Tosi's replacement is none other than Bastianich himself, returning to the job that made him famous. He joins returning judge chef Aarón Sánchez, who first joined as a permanent judge last season, and chef Gordon Ramsay, who's been the series' faceman since the very beginning.

"MasterChef" is an amateur cooking competition like no other. Every year, thousands of talented home cooks try out for the chance to impress Ramsay and the other judges, but only the best cooks (and the best for TV — this is reality television, after all) get invited to actually compete. Unlike in, say, "Hell's Kitchen," another series with Ramsay at the helm, in "MasterChef," the notoriously foul-mouthed culinary icon is far more toned down and quite a bit more helpful.

It makes sense; the challenges here are grueling, and the competitors aren't culinary professionals by any stretch of the imagination. They're everyday people with a zest for cooking and dreams of turning that passion into a career. Ramsay and the other judges definitely ride them hard and expect superb, restaurant-quality dishes, but at the end of the day, it isn't surprising when the contestants struggle to run a restaurant kitchen for a busy dinner service — after all, none of them have ever done this sort of thing before.

But that right there is a big part of what makes "MasterChef" so special: it's just ordinary people with extraordinary cooking skills being given their first taste of life in the culinary world. Joe Bastianich joins Aarón Sánchez and Gordon Ramsay for a new season on Wednesday, May 30, on Fox.

"MasterChef" judge Aarón Sánchez

Hollywood Q&A

By Adam Thomlison
TV Media

Q: Why are we seeing so little of Scott Caan in "Hawaii Five-0" these days?

A: There's actually a surprisingly simple answer to this question: Because he asked for it.

Scott Caan has chosen to continue living in L.A. even though his hit series "Hawaii Five-0" shoots on location in the distant island paradise. Because of this, he felt a little stretched.

"I do five episodes less than Alex," he told the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette, referring to series lead Alex O'Loughlin. "I just do a couple of episodes less so I can come home to see my family and stuff."

The producers have been surprisingly indulgent, considering he's one of the show's two main stars. "They were cool about it so we just all came to that."

There's a lot contained in the statement "see my family and stuff."

The family part is pretty straightforward — he and his girlfriend, Kacy Byxbee, had a daughter in 2014.

But the "and stuff" part seems to contain the range of other theatrical and film work he's pursuing on the side. He's a fixture on the L.A. stage scene, and not just as an actor — he's also a playwright with a number of productions to his name.

He also likes to keep his hand in the big-screen business, too, (as the son of Hollywood great James Caan, he must certainly have a soft spot for it). He's had roles in a number of films since "Hawaii Five-0" debuted in 2010. And, in fact, he said in an interview with the Hollywood Reporter that his hectic Hawaii shooting schedule has caused him to miss out on film roles — such as a spot in the 2015 "Entourage" movie.

Q: I saw the movie "Southpaw," and the boxing commentator in that movie was the same guy I saw in "Creed," another boxing movie that came out the same year. Is he a former boxer or something?

A: Both of those movies — 2015's "Southpaw" and "Creed" — were aiming for authenticity in their representations of the boxing world, and there are few easier ways to boost your boxing bona fides than hiring legendary commentator Jim Lampley.

Lampley has been calling boxing matches for HBO since 1988, and that job has created an inseparable link between his voice and boxing for the modern-day fan.

And so it shouldn't be surprising that he often gets called on to add a little realism to boxing movies. Other instances include 2010's "The Fighter," 2006's "Rocky Balboa" and 2001's "Ocean's Eleven."

He wasn't the only real-life boxing personality to get the call for "Southpaw" and "Creed," though. In "Southpaw," he appeared alongside his current HBO on-air partner Roy Jones Jr. (a former fighter himself). And in "Creed," Lampley appeared alongside a number of real pro boxers, such as British heavyweight Tony Bellew.
