 "For the People"

Legal eagles

Sandra's (Britt Robertson, "Tomorrowland," 2015) confidence is shaken when she defends a scientist accused of spying for the Chinese government in the season finale of "For the People," airing Tuesday, May 22, on ABC. Elsewhere, Adams (Jasmin Savoy Brown, "The Leftovers") receives a compelling offer. Chief Judge Nicholas Byrne (Vondie Curtis-Hall, "Chicago Hope") presides over the Southern District of New York Federal Court in this legal drama, which wraps up a successful freshman season.

Case closed: ABC's 'For the People' wraps rookie season

By Kyla Brewer
TV Media

There's something about courtroom drama that has fascinated TV viewers for decades. Such shows often rank among the most popular prime-time programs, even among today's fickle audiences. As one legal drama wraps up for the season, ambitious young lawyers argue their cases in the high-profile "Mother Court" of the United States.

Attorneys are put to the test as they face off in the Southern District of New York Federal Court in the season finale of "For the People," airing Tuesday, May 22, on ABC. All eyes are on the lawyers as they tackle some of the most controversial cases in the nation, but they refuse to back down until justice is served.

Created by Paul William Davies ("Scandal"), the 10-episode Shondaland production stars Vondie Curtis-Hall ("Chicago Hope") as Chief Judge Nicholas Byrne, Hope Davis ("About Schmidt," 2002) as lead public defender Jill Carlan, and Ben Shenkman ("Royal Pains") as Assistant U.S. Attorney Roger Gunn. The talented group of young lawyers includes Jasmin Savoy Brown ("The Leftovers") as Allison Adams, Susannah Flood ("Law & Order: Special Victims Unit") as Kate Littlejohn, Wesam Keesh ("Awkward") as Jay Simmons, Regé-Jean Page ("Roots") as Leonard Knox, Ben Rappaport ("Mr. Robot") as Seth Oliver, and Britt Robertson ("Tomorrowland," 2015) as Sandra Bell. Anna Deavere Smith ("The West Wing") rounds out the cast as no-nonsense court clerk Tina Krissman.

The cast of the ensemble drama is now part of the Shondaland dynasty, which includes hits "Grey's Anatomy," "Scandal" and "How to Get Away With Murder." The distinction was not lost on Rappaport, who spoke with tvinsider.com in early April about landing a role in "For the People."

"I would describe getting into Shondaland like getting an acceptance letter to an Ivy League school," Rappaport explained. "You feel like you're a part of a very special group and club. The whole company, top to bottom — I mean everybody — it's just a great culture of respect."

Hope Davis as seen in "For the People"

Rappaport plays one half of the show's will-they-won't-they couple, Seth and Allison, who broke up after she used information gleaned from a private conversation to win a case against him. The tension between them is just one example of how the show delves into both the professional and personal lives of the characters. It's a formula familiar to fans of Shonda Rhimes, who's an executive producer of "For the People," along with Davies, Betsy Beers ("Grey's Anatomy"), Donald Todd ("This Is Us") and Tom Verica ("How to Get Away With Murder").

"For the People" has continued the Shondaland tradition of prime-time winners. It showed promise right out of the gate as the series debut pulled in ABC's highest ratings in its Tuesday night time-slot in the key 18-to-29-year-old demographic in five months, with more than 3.2 million viewers in the U.S. In fact, the show is now part of a Tuesday night lineup that's earned ABC its longest winning streak in 11 years, thanks to a lead-in from comedies "Roseanne," "The Middle," "Black-ish" and "Splitting Up Together."

A cut above other legal dramas, "For the People" has plenty to offer viewers in addition to the romantic tension between Oliver and Adams. There are stereotypical overconfident attorneys such as Adams and Knox, who need a healthy slice of humble pie, but there are also a couple of underdogs viewers can't help but root for in Bell and Simmons. Wise leaders Carlan and Gunn offer audiences a look at both sides of the court cases as they attempt to inspire and motivate their charges in the wake of pressure from above. Meanwhile, brash clerk Krissman keeps everyone in line, and no-nonsense judge Byrne serves as the voice of reason.

One of the reasons the series works so well is the chemistry between the performers. Even viewers who might not be inclined to indulge in legal dramas may enjoy the richly developed relationships between the characters. In fact, the chemistry between the actors is so critical to the cast and crew, production shut down when two of the roles were recast within the first two episodes so writers could adjust dialogue and storylines to reflect the new on-screen personalities. Britne Oldford ("Skins") was originally cast as Sandra and Lyndon Smith ("Parenthood") played Allison, but both left the show early on.

While there's no shortage of personal drama in "For the People," there's just as much excitement inside the courtroom as the lawyers argue cases and defend clients in controversial trials. Each episode tracks the lawyers as they debate such topics as mandatory minimums, whistleblowers, the opioid crisis and white supremacy.

In the season finale, Bell defends a scientist who's been accused of spying for the Chinese government, but memories of a similar case from her past haunts her. At the same time, Simmons and Littlejohn go head to head in the courtroom in a case involving a drug-dealing PTA president whose clientele was comprised of students. Elsewhere, Adams receives a tempting offer, and Knox asks Littlejohn for advice.

Don't miss the season finale of "For the People," airing Tuesday, May 22, on ABC.

Game Night

Husband and wife Max (Bateman) and Annie (McAdams) have a regular game night with some friends of theirs, including Ryan (Magnussen), Michelle (Bunbury) and Kevin (Morris). When Max's brother Brooks (Chandler) shows up in town and invites the gang to his own game night, they arrive at his place to discover that he's set up an elaborate whodunnit mystery, complete with actors to make the game as realistic as possible. As the game continues, though, the players begin to realize that not all of the people involved are actors, and that the game and real life are intersecting in unpredictable and highly dangerous ways.

Directors: John Francis Daley, Jonathan Goldstein. Stars: Jason Bateman, Rachel McAdams, Kyle Chandler, Sharon Horgan, Billy Magnussen, Lamorne Morris, Kylie Bunbury, Jesse Plemons. 2018. 100 min. Comedy.

Early Man

When his peaceful Stone Age tribe is driven out of its idyllic valley by a Bronze Age civilization led by Lord Nooth (Hiddleston), caveman Dug (Redmayne) challenges the "civilized" people to a high-stakes game of soccer, with ownership of the valley at stake. When he tries to whip his tribe into shape and teach them the game, though, Dug fears that Nooth's highly competitive team will effortlessly wipe the floor with them, leaving them exiled from their home valley until the end of time.

Director: Nick Park. Stars: Eddie Redmayne, Tom Hiddleston, Maisie Williams, Richard Ayoade, Timothy Spall, Miriam Margolyes. 2018. 89 min. Animation.

'Iron Chef America' returns to its classic formula

By Andrew Warren
TV Media

Two chefs enter the kitchen, and only one emerges a culinary champion — a classic format for a contest, to be sure, but when one of those competitors is an Iron Chef ... well, let's just say that the lack of a home-field advantage is the least of the challenger's hurdles.

"Iron Chef America" returns to Food Network on Sunday, May 20, with new challengers, a new floor reporter and all sorts of new secret ingredients. That spiffy freshness, though, is tempered by a return to what made the series great and oh-so popular in the first place.

After new episodes failed to materialize for several years despite the show never officially being canceled, "Iron Chef" burst back onto the culinary scene last year with "Iron Chef Gauntlet," a spinoff series that saw Chicago chef Stephanie Izard earn a coveted Iron Chef's jacket. Not long after that, "Iron Chef Showdown" entered the fray: it was more or less the same show as the original "Iron Chef America," but with the addition of a showdown between two non-Iron Chef hopefuls in the first half of each episode, battling each other for the right to challenge the Iron Chef.

Well, "Iron Chef Showdown" is no more — long live "Iron Chef America." Alton Brown ("Cut-throat Kitchen") is back as the competition's host, spinning his vast culinary knowledge into play-by-play commentary for those of us watching from home. The Chairman, played by "Hawaii Five-0" actor Mark Dacascos, also returns, overseeing the competition and revealing each battle's secret ingredient. Jet Tila ("Chopped") takes over as the floor reporter, getting up close and personal with the chefs as they cook.

In this week's premiere, chef Brittany Anderson of Richmond, Virginia, enters Kitchen Stadium to challenge Iron Chef Alex Guarnaschelli. In classic "Iron Chef America" style, the Chairman will reveal the battle's secret ingredient, and both the Iron Chef and the challenger then get 60 minutes to prepare five stunning dishes — and, of course, the secret ingredient must be the star in all of them.

It certainly isn't an easy cooking competition, but it sure is riveting to watch. "Iron Chef America" returns to its roots on Sunday, May 20, on Food Network.

Q: Has "Too Close to Home" been canceled? The cliffhanger at the end of last season left me expecting more.

don't know if they'll get another season when they're writing. They hang you out on the cliff intentionally, with the hope they'll be allowed to rescue you in six or seven months.

That extended explanation is my way of letting you down easy, before telling you that the "Too Close to Home" writers weren't allowed to rescue you from the cliff: the show's been canceled.

tween the first lady of the United States (played by Heather Locklear) and the disgraced former White House staffer exiled to her home state of Alabama. None of these plots will be resolved now that the show's been canceled by TBS.

The cancellation left a significant hole in creator/producer/writer/director Tyler Perry's schedule, because, as star Danielle Savre told "Entertainment Tonight," he was very "hands-on" with the show.

Q: Are there any laws or rules around using the words "based on a true story"? Is there a certain amount of truth that has to be incorporated in order to use that teaser?

A: The only rule regarding saying something's "based on a true story" is the old rule about not getting caught.

be a problem. But not an insurmountable problem.

"If it's 'based on a true story,' you are often representing real people and therefore clearances may be required," said Christos Michaels, a partner at the media law firm Lee & Thompson LLP, adding, "There are different laws in different countries about this."

That, backed up by a particular type of insurance covering "errors and omissions," means you can inject quite a bit of fiction into your truth.

on," and it gets more vague from there. Consider "inspired by" — using it means your story doesn't need any direct connection to the truth.

"If a film is 'inspired by a true story,' then it tends to be the case that it's just a concept for the idea rather than a factual account," Michaels said. "In terms of characters, such a film would generally not try and portray anyone from the real story."

Conan
 There's a new royal baby. That's exciting. Bookmakers are giving odds on the royal baby's new name, and the name that came in dead last is "Wayne." Which is too bad, because I'd love to hear the royal guards say, "Please rise for his royal highness, Lil Wayne."

President Trump tweeted that he may pardon someone because Sylvester Stallone asked him to. The pardon is for the guy who wrote "Rocky V." He was sentenced to death!

The Tonight Show With Jimmy Fallon
 Today, Americans celebrated "National Take Our Sons and Daughters to Work Day." And tomorrow, kids will celebrate "New Appreciation for Going to School Day."

Today is World Book Day! People were going to celebrate, then they said, "Eh — I'll just wait for World Movie Day."

At this weekend's London Marathon, a man proposed to his girlfriend while dressed as a T-Rex. Which backfired when his arms were too short to open the ring box.
