Emilio Rivera in
"Mayans M.C."

Fresh out of state prison, Ezekiel "EZ" Reyes (JD Pardo, "Twilight: Breaking Dawn — Part 2," 2012) sets his sights on being initiated into the Mayans Motorcycle Club. A long road lies ahead as he begins to climb the success ladder in a world of drug smuggling and gang violence, and navigates his own personal need for vengeance and his dangerous desire for an old flame, Emily (Sarah Bolger, "The Tudors"), in "Mayans M.C.," premiering Tuesday, Sept. 4, on FX.

Driving into the action: 'Sons of Anarchy' universe revived with new spinoff

By Joy Doonan
TV Media

Fans of the wildly popular FX production "Sons of Anarchy," which premiered in 2008, have deeply felt the show's absence since it ended in 2015. It was one of the network's most successful series to date, pulling fans in with its gritty premise — it followed the internal politics of an arms-dealing biker gang in the fictional town of Charming, California — and making them stay with its surprisingly enduring human stories. Now, the show's much-anticipated spinoff, "Mayans M.C.," will revive this rich fictional world when it premieres Tuesday, Sept. 4, on FX.

The new series, featuring a fresh batch of characters, exists within the same universe as its predecessor but tells a completely new and independent story, creator Kurt Sutter revealed at a Television Critics Association press tour. Fans who are hungry for a crossover won't be disappointed, however, as Sutter also revealed there will be cameos from familiar faces and flashbacks that clearly establish the two mythologies as part of the same world.

Notably, Emilio Rivera, who plays Marcus Alvarez, leader of a rival gang to the titular Sons of Anarchy, will be a recurring presence in "Mayans M.C." In an interview with Entertainment Tonight at Comic Con 2018, "Mayans" cast members agreed that Rivera's character "is the glue that cements the Sons of Anarchy with the Mayans." Adding to the fanfare, Sutter also teased that the premiere of "Mayans M.C." would feature an appearance from "Sons of Anarchy" character Gemma Teller Morrow (Katey Sagal, "Married... with Children"), whose reputation as a ruthless gang matriarch made her both a loved and hated fan favorite.

Sarah Bolger ("The Tudors") is a new face, infusing the plot with some scintillating drama as the high-profile wife of a cartel boss, as well as a love interest to protagonist Ezekiel "EZ" Reyes (JD Pardo, "The Twilight Saga: Breaking Dawn — Part 2," 2012). As the series opens, EZ, a young Chicano man, is a new prospect looking to join the Mayans Motorcycle Club. Flashbacks reveal that he was once a successful student looking forward to a promising future, but his vision for the road ahead was torn away from him by cartel violence on the California-Mexico border.

Having lost his former potential, he now seeks revenge, redemption and the respect of his childhood sweetheart, Emily (Bolger), by way of becoming a full-fledged Mayan, smuggling heroin for the Galdino cartel from the cover of his family's butcher shop business. EZ faces the pressure of family legacy to boot, as his older brother is already a prized member of the Mayans at the show's outset.

The "Sons of Anarchy" storyline ended with the death of Jax Teller, the Sons' leader whose character arch was defined by his gradual descent into ruthless violence and loss of a moral compass. While this plot has been laid to rest, EZ's beginnings as a naive young man on the brink of darkness gives fans a fresh context to invest in the same themes of redemption and loss of humanity that they loved in the original series.

In the season 1 trailer recently released by FX, EZ's father, Felipe Reyes (Edward James Olmos, "Battlestar Gallactica"), is seen in the butcher shop, bathed in shadow and removing a gun from its case. "You're in this now, son," he then says to EZ, "there's no getting out." Viewers can expect Pardo to take on this challenge with the same fervor as his eager-to-please character. On a Comic Con panel, he regaled the audience with how he convinced Sutter to cast him for the lead role by pitching his passion. "How about you give me 45 minutes, I'll go outside, I'll memorize these lines and just kick some [butt]," he recalled telling Sutter, according to CinemaBlend.

In an interview with Deadline, Sutter also explained that the new mythology and characters provide an important opportunity for "Mayans M.C." to exist in a context of political relevance. "Trump's been elected and all this stuff with the border is going on," he said. "There are these [...] vigilante groups on this side that have felt empowered to go hunting immigrants jumping the wall. So we have a whole episode about this group of [...] yahoos that are going out and picking people off hopping the fence." He also noted that, as a tongue-in-cheek nod to the current racial crises at the border, the message that characters are seen stamping on packages of smuggled heroin translates to "tiny hands." With this in mind, viewers can be sure to expect that "Mayans M.C." will step up to the challenge of not just reproducing the testosterone-fueled action of its predecessor, but also grappling with more complex and hard-hitting undertones.

While "Sons of Anarchy" is a thing of the past, show creators have expanded the fictional universe, giving fans a fresh perspective to explore. The cast of the new "Sons" spinoff, "Mayans M.C." is pumped to delve into the action and intrigue of the new story. Watch the premiere episode when it airs Tuesday, Sept. 4, on FX.

Hereditary

Artist Annie (Collette) fears that her family's history of mental illness has caught up with her when she begins catching glimpses of her recently deceased mother in her workshop. After another horrific tragedy strikes her family, she joins a support group where she's befriended by another woman, who advises Annie to perform a seance to make contact with her dead loved ones. As Annie continues to descend into the madness of grief, she becomes increasingly haunted by her family's long-buried and dark secrets, pulling her husband and child along with her on a journey that blurs the line between what is real and what is madness.

Director: Ari Aster. Stars: Toni Collette, Gabriel Byrne, Alex Wolff, Milly Shapiro, Ann Dowd. 2018. 127 min. Horror.

Won't You Be My Neighbor?

Fred Rogers' life and legacy are explored in this heart-warming documentary about the beloved entertainer who made an abrupt career change when he saw the state of children's television, and whose on-screen persona still resonates with the generation that grew up watching his warm smiles and colorful cardigans. Through archival footage and interviews with those who knew him best, the truth behind the man is revealed to be little different from the person that he showed on screen. Director: Morgan Neville. Stars: Joanne Rogers. 2018. 94 min. Documentary.

Comedy and carbs collide in new Food Network series 'Baked'

By Andrew Warren
TV Media

Tom Papa ("The Informant!," 2009) may be a comedian, but the mission that he's set for himself is no laughing matter. The head writer of nationally syndicated radio show "Live From Here" is traveling from coast to coast to find the best breads and pastries that the country has to offer, and while it may be serious business, that doesn't mean it has to be stale.

Papa's "Baked" premieres with back-to-back episodes on Monday, Sept. 3, on Food Network, and as the name suggests, the new series is focused entirely on carb-heavy baked goods. Sour-dough is the comedian's specialty, but his passion for baked fare transcends yeast and flour types as he shines a light on local bakeries and the hoops that they jump through to make life sweeter for their customers.

In the premiere, the host is in New York City, where he hooks up with fellow comedian Jim Gaffigan ("The Jim Gaffigan Show") at a doughnut shop for the ultimate Big Apple treat: a glazed doughnut that's smothered in everything bagel topping. On the hunt for more carbs, he then heads to Gian Piero Bakery, where he helps make Italian American rainbow cookies before swinging by another local bakery for a bread boat filled with butter, eggs and cheese — a Georgian specialty (the country, not the state).

As if that isn't enough, Papa tops off his New York visit with a master class in old-world breads and mouthwatering croissants before he's off to Michigan for the night's second episode. His first stop is in Detroit, where he fills up on tasty chicken and red velvet waffles served by a former NFL player before heading to Dearborn, where Middle Eastern pastries and breads are on the menu, including freshly made pita stuffed with roasted lamb. Finally, the host enjoys a little taste of Poland when he learns how to make rich, filled doughnuts called paczki.

Comedy and carbs go together so well, and "Baked" is packed full of both. Join host Tom Papa as he brings two of life's greatest joys together starting Monday, Sept. 3, on Food Network.

Hollywood Q&A

By Adam Thomlison
TV Media

Q: Laugh tracks added to comedy series, old and new, are annoying and insulting to viewers, who don't need to be cued when to laugh. Who is responsible for adding them and why?

A: People have been sounding the death knell of the laugh track for ages — at least since NBC's

"The Office" premiered in 2005 and became the most critically acclaimed sitcom of recent years, without the aid of recorded revelry. And they may be right — these days laugh tracks are a rarity in comedies. An article on AdAge.com points out that though they were once an absolute necessity in sitcom production, only seven of the top 20 broadcast comedies in 2017 used canned laughs. However, they are still being used, and you can boil that down to one big reason: "The Big Bang Theory."

While "The Office" may have gotten all the critical acclaim in the late 2000s and early 2010s, "The Big Bang Theory" got all the viewers. Featuring a laugh track that seems to play every time Sheldon (Jim Parsons, "Judging Amy") opens his mouth, it has been not only one of the biggest comedies of the past 15 years, but one of the biggest shows period. While the critics agree with you that laugh tracks feel like laughing instructions being issued by your television, the historical view is a bit more generous. Encyclopedia Britannica points out that they originated in TV's earliest days, as an attempt to replicate the more familiar theater-going experience. "Adding a laugh track to a television show makes the viewers at home feel much less like they're sitting on a couch staring at the television screen and much more like they're in a room full of laughing, happy people."

Q: Do we know anything yet about the next season of

"Colony"? I love that show.

A: This is awkward. The one thing we know about the next season of "Colony" is that there won't be one. USA canceled the sci-fi thriller just ahead of its third-season finale. Unfortunately, that means the show's series finale is also a pretty serious cliffhanger. Indeed, a number of new storylines seemed to open up in the episode (the creators said in an interview that they already had two more seasons planned out). However, critic Michael Bibbins, a columnist for HiddenRemote.com, actually found a bright side on the other side of the cliff. "If there is one bright spot to this ending, it's that it does signify new beginnings for all of our characters in some way."

Basically, the characters were left at a point where we could imagine a better future for them. Which is good, since imagining is all we have left.

Fox

MasterChef

The home cooks split into teams and take over dinner service at Los Angeles’ Providence restaurant in a new episode of “MasterChef,” airing Wednesday, Sept. 5, on Fox. With 48 hungry guests looking for nothing less than perfection on their plates, no one is safe from the judging eyes of Gordon Ramsay, Aarón Sánchez and Joe Bastianich.
