AMY LEE HUNTER

REGIONAL ADVERTISING MULTIMEDIA CONSULTANT

As a journalism major, Amy had dreams of being a hard-hitting news reporter. However, after her first year in a newsroom in St. Louis, where she was the Entertainment and Home & Garden editor, she was giving leads to the sales department every week and kept coming up with ideas for how to help the business needs of the subjects in her stories. Eventually, she switched to the sales side of the business.

Amy has worked at more than nine newspapers in six states and remains passionate about helping businesses grow through smart advertising.

As the Regional Account Executive for Wick Communications, Amy sells advertising into any of the newspapers published in Southern Arizona but she is based out of the Green Valley News office.

"Whether in print or online, the Arizona Regional Media products we produce give the best news and information in Southern Arizona!" she says.

When not at work, Amy enjoys spending time with her husband, stepson, chihuahua and two newly acquired guinea pigs.
