Please Contact the School of Journalism and Mass Communications with any questions.

2. To get your internship approved, prepare an application as explained here, and submitted to the JMC office.
3. Wait to be contacted via email.
4. If your internship is approved you will be given an add code for MCOM 111 for the current semester as soon as they become available.
5. If your internship is not approved, we will notify you via email.
6. Your internship MUST BE started during the semester in which you register for MCOM 111. For example, you cannot complete your internship in the Summer and enroll in MCOM 111 in the Fall.

Notes:

1. MCOM 111 is now THREE units. (It was four, previously.)
2. The School of Journalism & Mass Communications does not allow late adds under any circumstances. If you are dropped from MCOM 111 for any reason you will have to enroll in the next semester's section.
3. The dates that you actually work at your internship will not necessarily (and not likely) coincide with the first and last dates of the semester's schedule for regular classes. Don't worry about that.

What to do before you look for an internship

1. Meet with your faculty advisor or professors in your major to discuss your career goals and the type of internship that will be most valuable in helping you achieve your career goals.
2. Read the School of Journalism & Mass Communications Internship Policies.
3. Make sure you have met the prerequisites.

How to find an internship

Finding a job is a job in itself—and an internship is a job. If you plan to do a summer internship, the time to start looking for it is during the fall semester. The deadline for applications for summer internships at the San Francisco Chronicle, for example is October 31 of the previous year. Where do you start? Here are some suggestions:

1. Bookmark the JMC website <http://jmc.sjsu.edu> and check it frequently for internship opportunities. (Even better, subscribe to the RSS feed so that new postings are sent to you via email.)
 2. Check the binders in the JMC office. Look through the papers to see what companies have recruited SJSU interns in the past. Contact them.
 3. Visit the SJSU Career Center to take advantage of its job-hunting advice, resume workshops and job boards.
 4. Bookmark, and keep your eye on, the internships section of major companies' website—like Apple, Google, Yahoo! and Cisco.
 5. Make a list of companies you'd like to work for, and then research their websites for contact information. Contact them and ask if they offer internships. Remember, your internship can be anywhere in the country—of anywhere in the world!

What to do once you have found your internship

Apply: To apply for academic credit for your internship (i.e. MCOM 111), prepare your internship application documentation as explained here and submit it to the main office (DBH 105.)

Wait: When your paperwork has been approved by the faculty supervisor, you will be contacted and given the permission code to register for your internship.

Register: You must register for your internship under MCOM 111. Registration is through the use of a permission code, which will be assigned to you by the JMC office when your internship is approved.

What to do once your internship begins

Reports: You must submit 40-hour "Weekly" report six reports describing the progress of your internship after each 40-hour period worked. You must use the Internship Weekly Report Form to submit your reports. If you are working in a remote location and do not have Internet access, please contact the faculty supervisor to make arrangements for submitting your reports.

Progress Meetings: We recommend that you and your employer supervisor establish regular weekly meetings for the purpose of discussing your performance during the internship.

Faculty Supervision: The faculty supervisor is always available to you. You should feel free to contact him or her if you have any questions or concerns about your internship as it progresses. The faculty supervisor will read your reports and comment on them or email you with comments of questions. The faculty supervisor may call and/or visit your place of employment to discuss your progress with your employer.

What to do after your internship is finished

Complete the Student Questionnaire: This is your evaluation of your internship. You must use the Student Internship Questionnaire in order to submit it.

Letter from your place of internship: At the end of your internship, your employer supervisor must write a formal letter, on letterhead to the school, stating that you have satisfactorily completed 240 hours of internship under his or her supervision. Academic credit for the internship will not be given until this letter is received.

Grade: The grade for MCOM 111 is Credit (CR) or No Credit (NC) or Incomplete (I). Your grade will be submitted once all your final paperwork has been received.

How to Apply for an MCOM 111 Internship

Download the Internship Agreement here. It is a World Document. Save it to your computer, fill it out on your computer (not in ink!), then print it (make sure it prints on one page), sign it, and get your employer to sign it.

Return the signed form with the supporting paperwork (see below) to the JMC office.

Supporting Paperwork:

1. A current transcript, showing that you have completed the prerequisite courses for the type of internship you wish to do. Unofficial transcripts printed from MySJSU are acceptable.
2. A letter from the prospective internship employer. See important notes, below.

Important Notes:

1. The letter must be on company letterhead, and must be signed by someone of authority at the organization.
2. The letter must include a history/description of the organization, so as to establish its credibility as an employer of interns in advertising, public relations, or journalism.
3. The letter must describe the organization's internship program if they have one, and should specifically mention whether they have had interns from SJSU or other schools in the past.
4. The letter must include a detailed description of the internship including location of work, expected tasks, and the name of the supervising manager.
5. The letter must state whether the student will be paid a salary, hourly wage, or stipend. Please note that, barring certain exemptions (for example, media companies that have a history of hiring SJSU interns; non-profit organizations; certain small newspapers), we require internship jobs to be paid. Companies that have no previous history with our School and simply do not want to pay their interns may not be accepted as intern employers.

MAKE SURE YOUR PAPERWORK IS FILLED OUT PROPERLY AND IS COMPLETE! INCOMPLETE PAPERWORK WILL RESULT IN A DELAY IN YOUR INTERNSHIP BEING APPROVED.
