The heart and spirit of Wharton

By BILLIE JONES

Wharton is spirit. Like the wind, it cannot be seen but there is a refreshing spirit blowing for all.

Visitors and newcomers are welcome, we love an opportunity to share small town life with you.

I recently asked my daughter, who grew up here, to give me one word describing her hometown. She immediately said “heart.” It is with a warm spirit and friendly heart, we invite you to be part of this community.

The heart of an early community was the county courthouse. Today we share the beautifully restored Wharton County Courthouse sitting in the middle of historic Monterey Square. Stroll the streets and enjoy shops, antiques, churches, restaurants or a short rest at the Milam Street Coffee Shop. Yes, if it happens to be on certain Friday night, you just might find toe-tapping music.

Don’t miss the Plaza Theatre where live performances are presented through the year. The Foot-liters, named for native son, Horton Foote, present a large variety of Broadway shows, mostly musicals which are fantastic. Yes, we have been host to world known Houston Grand Opera. Yes, the Wharton spirit reaches far and wide as we love small town Texas living.

The Wharton spirit has extended to the international marketplace. We are home to Taiwan’s Nan Ya Plastics and JM Eagle Pipe, Dorian Tool and Lamberti of Italy and numerous large international and longtime family ranches.

Located less than an hour from a famed medical center and large shopping malls, Wharton is the destination for safe neighbors, fine schools, Wharton County Junior College, medical care and a smile as we pass on the streets.

Yes, the spirit of Wharton is like the wind. It’s difficult to explain but come, we will enjoy the warm heart together.

Billie Jones is a longtime Wharton resident who is one of our city’s unofficial ambassadors. She is a former executive director of the Wharton Chamber of Commerce & Agriculture, and she writes a weekly column in the Wharton Journal-Spectator on items of interest about the Wharton community. The annual Freedom Fest is an “old-fashioned, family friendly good time.”

The festival was previously held the weekend prior to the Fourth of July, but beginning last year, committee members decided to move the event to the spring to beat the heat. May was chosen for the new date since it’s a cooler time of the year and can coincide with Memorial Day. The 2015 festival has been set for Saturday, May 16.

The one-day event in downtown Wharton features dozens of vendors, live music, a bocce ball tournament, a barbecue cookoff and, if you are willing to get your hands dirty, lots of boiled crawfish hosted by H-E-B.

For the comfort of guests, new additions to the festival setup last year was an outdoor dining area, hands-free hand washing stations, not to mention restrooms trailers with air-conditioning.

Fulton Street hosts an area just for kids featuring bouncy houses provided by Moonwalks-N-More, a rock wall for climbing and more.

Just a block from the action, the Open Car Show at Guffey Park features 34 categories and gives 55 awards to the most impressive cars, trucks, motorcycles or practically anything on wheels.

The focal point of the festival — the Veterans’ Salute — commences as veterans march into the square and gather at the monument for a brief ceremony.

The finale of last year’s festival featured the Patriotic Laser Show, a first for the city of Wharton. Presented by Laser Spectacles Inc., the show featured patriotic music with smoke machines and 16 lasers set up to project graphics on the courthouse and audience.

“We are just trying to do something different and bring something new,” organizer Susan Freese said.

Though Freedom Fest promises fun, it’s still for the same great cause. Every year, proceeds from Freedom Fest go to charitable organizations such as the Disabled American Veterans Van Club in El Campo, a free transportation service for area veterans.

“It’s just one day when we try to get the family to come out and enjoy downtown Wharton and honor our veterans,” Freese said. “Get to know your neighbors and salute a veteran.”

Music is a big part of the James Simmons Jr. Wharton County Juneteeth Festival.

The James Simmons Jr. Wharton County Juneteeth Festival became the largest festival in Wharton County when it was born five years ago.

Last year’s festival attracted an estimated 15,000 people at the event, and festival-goers keep wondering how the event will be topped the next year.

With the drive of Paul Kearney and the support of James Simmons Jr., the event is coordinated by Kearney and supported by Simmons’ Total Premier Service and J. Simmons Group Inc.

The event was the reconnecting of lifelong friends for the revival observances, celebrating June 19, 1865 when the former slaves of Texas found they had been declared free through President Abraham Lincoln’s Emancipation Proclamation signed on Jan. 1, 1863.

Celebrated in Texas on or near June 19, each year afterward, the celebration began to wane in the 1950s here.

Now the James Simmons Jr. Wharton County Juneteeth Festival will be the place to be on Saturday, June 13 on Monterey Square in downtown Wharton.

The event opens at 9 a.m. and runs until midnight. Admission is free.

The festival features plenty of activities for children, including carnival rides. And as always, there is plenty of live music, as well as a Hometown Heroes Program that honors local citizens for their accomplishments.

For more information about the Juneteenth Festival, call 532-1468.
Doc Blakely & the Java Jam Band

The Java Jam, one of Wharton’s most unique entertainment events, has been growing in popularity since the first show in September 2010.

Headed up by popular Wharton musician and professional speaker, Doc Blakely, and the Java Jam Band, the monthly show also features a guest artist, along with food and drink at the Milam Street Coffee Shop on Monterey Square in downtown Wharton.

Each month, the guest performers will play the first set at 6 p.m., and after a break at 7 p.m. for the buffet, the guest artists will join the Java Jam Band at 8 p.m. for an hour-long jam session.

Members of the Java Jam Band are as varied as their talents. They include: Doc Blakely, fiddle, professional speaker; Bill Havins, guitar, retired from Santa Fe Railroad; Ron Sanders, drums, executive director, Wharton Chamber of Commerce; Rick Quijas, bass guitar, a state employee; and Mickey Reynolds, guitar/vocals, pastor of Caney Creek Church. Several other local musicians sit in with the band whenever the spirit moves them.

Those who attend the event are asked to bring a covered dish to share for the buffet, along with a $15 cover charge to help pay for the guest musicians.

Java Jam is normally held on the fourth Friday of each month, but sometimes the date may vary.

For example, the January show will be on the third Friday of the month, while the November show may be moved to avoid the Thanksgiving holiday.

Acts lined up so far for 2015 are:

• Jan 16: The Austin Colony Band, 5 piece, Bluegrass
• Feb 27: Todd Janik, solo, from The Washers
• March 27: Duke Davis and The Pep Steppers, trio, western and jazz
• April 24: Mike Gallo, solo, light rock
• May 22: Dave Roland Duo, Western & Fiddle Tunes
• June 26: Pat Gavin & The Buckaroos, 5 piece, Old West
• July 24, Aug. 28, Sept. 25, Oct. 23, Nov. 27: to be announced

There usually isn’t a regular show planned in December, but the Java Jam Band normally has a New Year’s Eve show at 7 p.m. Dec. 31.

For more information, call the Milam Street Coffee Shop at 282-9771 or visit milamstcoffee.com.
Culture is on every corner of downtown Wharton at the Monterey Square Wine and Arts Fair, held each year on the second Saturday of October. The event is a fantastic night of sipping, strolling and shopping.

Begun in 2009, the event is sponsored by the downtown merchants, Wharton Chamber of Commerce & Agriculture and Plaza’s Monterey Square Committee and is a wonderful way to highlight stores while offering some unique opportunities to the public.

Each year, different Texas wineries provide the samples, in both whites and reds. Wine is also for sale by the glass or bottle. Participating merchants offer the various vintages.

Art is another feature of the festival. Local artists display their work in several sites, with the Parsons Art Group usually exhibiting dozens of paintings and sketches.

The art doesn’t just sit on an easel, though — it drives down the streets.

Members of the Houston Art Car Klub set up their unusual vehicles on Fulton Street, near the Wharton County District Court Building. Cars have included one with a fighter jet on the roof and one decorated with hundreds of glass bottles.

No festival is complete without music, and there’s a full venue to check out at the fair. Musicians set up shop in front of several businesses, playing acoustic favorites, while the local favorite, the Java Jam Band, takes its familiar stage inside Milam Street Coffee.

There is no charge to attend the fair, though anyone wishing to participate in the wine sampling must pay a minimal admission fee.

The Tee Pee Motel

One of Wharton’s most eye-catching historic locations is not only designed to be looked at, but it is also designed to be lived in.

The Tee Pee Motel, one of Wharton’s famous landmarks, is a throwback to the 1940s and ’50s before interstate highways, when family car trips were an adventure and part of the appeal was visiting new communities and finding a unique place to stay. Among the more eye-catching of those were motels where the units were built not as square boxes but in the shape of a Native American dwelling, the teepee. Today, there is only one in Texas and only four in the U.S.

The motel rooms were originally designed in 1942 by George and Toppie Belcher but construction was delayed until 1947 due to World War II.

Once a destination location for travelers, the motel began a slow slide as the highway system routed traffic away from the Tee Pee’s location. It closed in the 1980s and remained that way until it was purchased by Bryon Woods, who refurbished and reopened the hotel.

A lottery winner, Woods bought the hotel at the urging of his wife Barbara, a Wharton County native. She said that as a little girl, she’d always wanted to stay in one of the rooms but never had the opportunity. When Bryon pointed out it was closed, Barbara reportedly pointed out that it was for sale.

“She told me she wanted to stay there,” Woods said in an earlier interview. He saw it as a bad investment but being able to “afford” to keep peace in the family, he relented and took on the project, purchasing the motel in 2004 and reopening it on Oct. 30, 2006.

Woods has been able to capitalize on that investment. In addition to the national attention the project has brought, Woods installed about 50 recreational vehicle pads as well as a laundry area.

“We’ve also had people call up and book the rooms and grounds for family reunions,” he said. “We’ve got a lot of space and people enjoy the added feature of being able to stay in a unique location.”

And while the location and original construction date back to the 1940s, the rooms have been modernized and include a number of the amenities the modern guest would expect, including high speed Internet and cable television.

The Tee Pee Motel, located on Business 59/Texas 60, is one of Wharton’s unique landmarks.
The Plaza Theatre

Debbie Cenko, left, and Russell Kacer act out a scene during A Tuna Christmas, the first production of the 2014-15 season at the Plaza Theatre.

The Plaza Theatre on Monterey Square in downtown Wharton will kick off the 2015 calendar year with I Love You, You’re Perfect, Now Change, a musical comedy. It’s the second of five productions from the 2014-15 season.

The 2015-16 season, which will kick off in the fall, will be announced later this year. Performances are normally at 7:30 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays and 2:30 p.m. Sundays.

Here’s synopses of the productions:

- I Love You, You’re Perfect, Now Change (Feb. 13 to Feb. 22): This celebration of the mating game takes on the truths and myths behind that contemporary conundrum known as “the relationship.” Act I explores the journey from dating and waiting to love and marriage, while Act II reveals the agonies and triumphs of in-laws and newborns, trips in the family car and pick-up techniques of the geriatric set. This hilarious revue pays tribute to those who have loved and lost, to those who have fallen on their faces at the portal of romance, and to those who have dared to ask, “Say, what are you doing Saturday night?”

- Picnic (April 24 to May 3): The play takes place on Labor Day weekend in the backyards of two middle-aged widows. One house belongs to Flo Owens, who lives there with her daughters, Madge and Millie, and a boarder who is a spinster schoolteacher. The other belongs to Helen Potts, who lives with her elderly, invalid mother. Into this female atmosphere comes a young man named Hal Carter, whose animal vitality seriously upsets the entire group. Hal, a child of parents who ignored him, is self-conscious about his failings. Flo is wary of temptations for her daughters. Madge, bored with being only a beauty, sacrifices her chances for a wealthy marriage for the excitement Hal promises. Teenaged Millie finds her balance for the first time through the stranger’s brief attention. And the spinster is stirred to make changes in the dangling courtship that has brightened her life.

- Litefooter Summer Youth Production (June 25 to June 28): Every summer, basic stagecraft and theatre discipline is taught to youngsters age 5 through 16 during the Litefooter Summer Youth Workshop. The workshop culminates in a major production on the Plaza’s main stage during the last weekend in June. Performance dates vary from the usual schedule and are at 7:30 p.m. Thursday and Friday and 2:30 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

• Annie Get Your Gun (July 31 to Aug. 16): Annie Oakley is the best shot around, and she manages to support her little brother and sisters by selling the game she hunts. When she’s discovered by Col. Buffalo Bill Cody, he persuades this novel sharpshooter to join his Wild West Show. It only takes one glance for her to fall head over heels for the show’s headliner, dashing shooting ace Frank Butler. She soon eclipses Butler as the main attraction, which, while good for business, is bad for romance. Butler hightails it off to join a rival show, his bruised male ego leading the way, but is ultimately pitted against Annie in a final shoot-out.

The theater is owned and operated by Plaza Theatre Inc., a non-profit organization dedicated to the renovation and restoration of the building, as well as fostering the performing arts. Originally founded as The Community Theatre of Wharton, its performers are dubbed the “Footeliters” in recognition of famed theater and film writer Horton Foote, a native Whartonian.

The mainstay entertainment at the Plaza is live theater, with the Footeliters putting on several live productions each season. In addition, the group’s youth organization, The Litefooters, annually puts on a production during the last weekend in June.

The Plaza is part of the continuing history of the west side of Monterey Square, being the city’s entertainment focus, although some of that history is less than savory.

Like most cities in Texas and the rest of the west, the early settlers built churches, dry goods stores and homes. They also built saloons and bawdy houses, and Wharton was no different. While three sides of the square were mainly composed of professional and retail businesses, the west side was made up of saloons and other unsavory businesses. In 1890, the good ladies of Wharton had had enough and torched the wood frame buildings, burning them to the ground.

Learning the dangers of building with wood, the west side of the square was rebuilt in brick and included the Plaza Hotel. A section of the building was sold in 1941 to the Long-Griffith Theaters. After being gutted and converted into a movie theater, it reopened in March of 1942 and continued to operate until the 1970s, when the doors were closed for good. Or so many thought.

The then Community Theatre group bought the building in 1991 and what followed has been a remarkable effort of the heart and shining example of volunteerism.

“Because the floor of the theater is below ground level, there was a tremendous amount of seepage and there were leaks in the roof and other problems and it was just a sad thing to see,” Board President Candye Byrne said.

However, through fundraisers, grants and donations, the group was able to restore the first floor to the point it could stand up to performance. They were even able to reproduce a portion of the original mural decorating the walls of the auditorium through the work of artist Dana Steinheimer.

But the present only offers a glimpse of the future. The group has purchased an adjacent building and last year opened much-needed additional restrooms. Plans also include adding an elevator to meet ADA guidelines, as the group is literally renovating from the ground up.

The future includes converting the second floor into a 1940s-style lounge that can be used for small individual, group or business gatherings, as well as opened up to provide balcony seating for live productions. The third floor will be converted into a “Black Box” theater for productions of original material created by the group’s members or productions for small groups.

“Complete renovation requires a lot of structural work, in addition to adding an elevator,” Byrne said. “That’s the expensive part.”

Wharton County museums

What do a Pulitzer Prize winning playwright, a Medal of Honor recipient and a one-of-a-kind airplane all have in common? They can be found right here in Wharton — under the same roof.

The Wharton County Historical Museum and the 20th Century Technology Museum merged recently to offer a host of fascinating exhibits for the benefit of the public. Both museums are housed at a facility on North Richmond Road, on the edge of town near the Tee Pee Motel.

The historical museum traces the careers and lives of such local notables as Horton Foote, a Wharton native who would win a Pulitzer Prize and a pair of Academy Awards for his plays; and Roy P. Benavidez, an El Campo native who was awarded the nation’s highest honor for heroic deeds performed during his tour with the Green Berets in Vietnam.

Other interesting individuals featured at the museum include world-renowned journalist and Wharton native Dan Rather and polka disc jockey Bobby Jones, who, several years ago, mysteriously disappeared from Wharton County and has never been heard from since.

The museum further contains exhibits on the area’s rich law enforcement history, agriculture, medicine, churches, the Texas Gulf Sulphur company and other area veterans. There are also rotating exhibits featuring artwork from area students and seasonal displays.

One of the most popular areas is the trophy game room, which displays an impressive collection of giraffes, tigers, bears and other trophies obtained by Marshall Johnson during his lifespan. The building at one time was inhabited by Johnson and his wife, Lillie, and was donated to the museum in 1990.

Outside the building is an exquisite cactus garden and the house where Dan Rather was born.

In October 2012, an addition was built to accommodate the 20th Century Technology Museum. Founded and operated by Wharton residents Art and Sharon Schulze, the technology museum contains artifacts that trace technological advancement through the last century.

There are currently more than 1,000 pieces on display. These include antique radios, phones, kitchen appliances, arcade games, toys, computers and many other items of interest. Some of the more notable include original aircraft built by aviation pioneers. One of these — the Ornithopter — is suspended by cables from the museum’s roof.

Both museums are free of charge and are open to the public from 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday and from 1 to 5 p.m. on Saturdays and Sundays. The location is 3615 N. Richmond Road.

It’s only been a few generations back that horse-drawn carriages were in vogue and traveled in and around the area.

While the use of carriages declined with the advent of the automobile, memories of their importance is kept alive by collectors. A local family has devoted a lifetime to collecting and restoring the transportation of another century alive. The love of a more gentle time and quiet means of transportation is the passion of carriage collectors Stewart Morris Sr. and his son Stewart Morris Jr.

Numerous carriages in their large collection are gathered together in the Morris Carriage House just east of Wharton on CR 117.

Want to see the carriage that carried Vivien Leigh in the movie Gone With the Wind? How about the carriage known as “The Traveling Government of Mexico?” It was used by then popular Mexican President Benito Juarez.

Carriages in the facility span several hundred years of history and include carriages from around the world as well as from the U.S. Each carriage and wagon is collected and shown for its historical significance and the craftsmanship of those who built them.

But what is in the carriage house is only a small portion of those collected by the father and son over the years.

In their restored, pristine condition they look like and could go from the showroom to roadway at any time, which some of them sometimes do.

But it takes horses for this means of transportation, so there are trained carriage horses stabled at the facility.

The carriage horses are cared for at the site and all the tack needed is there also. Carriage horses are worked with and groomed daily and all tack is hung with fittings polished and leather oiled ready for use.

When being taken out for special occasions, the drivers and passengers often don period costumes which go along with the years the vehicles were in use.

Interesting pieces in the collection include the carriage used by Vivien Leigh in the movie Gone With the Wind.

The 1939 film adapted from Margaret Mitchell’s 1936 novel of the same name won 10 Academy Awards. It has been named the fourth in the top 100 American films of the 20th Century. The cast also included Clark Gable, Leslie Howard and Olivia De Havilland.

To get to the Morris Ranch & Carriage House, head east for about four miles on FM 1301 toward Boling. Turn left on CR 117 and travel two miles. The carriage house is on the right just before crossing the bridge on the West Bernard River.

It is a perfect setting for not only tours, but weddings, proms and other special occasions. The carriage house is available to visit by appointment only.

The Wharton County Courthouse does not resemble what people remember from the 1950s. In the 1930s and 1940s, the courthouse was remodeled to gain needed space. Wings were added on each side. The bell, bell tower and mansard roof had been removed. Its original red bricks covered in stucco and painted yellow. It was redesigned in an art deco look of the time period.

Famous playwright Horton Foote, who was a Wharton native, was upset with the changes and he referred to it as “the Sulphur Block” because it was painted yellow.

By the 1980s the added wings were pulling on the center structure and causing major engineering concerns.

The question was, “Do we raze it or save it through restoration?”

That question was asked of Wharton County voters in the late 1990s. For a while it looked like the 1889 Wharton County Courthouse would be no more. Structural issues became the focal points of the emotional issue.

Restoration of the Wharton County Courthouse caused divisions among residents of the county.

Preservationists said save it at all cost, others were for replacing with a more modern structure a third group thought it could not be restored. Local preservationists quickly organized and looked for ways to save the building. They considered the courthouse to be “the heart and soul of Wharton County.”

The preservationists won, and courthouse history was researched by Wharton native and architect David Bueck Jr.

After four years of planning, trips to Austin’s Texas Historical Commission and fundraising, the task of restoring the historic courthouse began — and it would be restored to its Victorian style.

The Wharton County Courthouse was designed by Eugene T. Heiner, who arrived in Houston from Dallas in 1878. Between 1878 and his death in 1901, he designed 12 courthouses of which only six survive.

Wharton’s courthouse was built in a classic Victorian design and overlooked the Wharton countryside and the Colorado River. Its design was a combination of two popular Victorian styles of the 1880s — the Second Empire style and the Italianate style. It was a three-story masonry building with limestone trimmings topped with a mansard roof and a central clock tower. Its bricks were made from clay gleaned from the Colorado River.

By the 1950s, the Heiner-designed courthouse looked nothing like it originally did.

But cost and time to restore the structure were underestimated. The Wharton County Courthouse had an original estimate of $2.9 million but ended up costing $7.4 million. The restoration began in July of 2003 and was supposed to be completed in December of 2005, but was actually completed in July 2007.

Finally, in August of 2005, Wharton residents gathered on the courthouse square to watch as the massive clock tower was lifted to the top of the building. The tower is an exact replica of the original. The courthouse bell, which had been saved by First Baptist Church, was returned to the county and placed in the tower.

Today, with the restoration complete, the Wharton County Courthouse as it looked in its 1889 glory is the gem of Wharton’s downtown Monterey Square. It joins Hallettsville as the only two Heiner works that are as the architect originally designed them.

The Wharton County Courthouse is featured in the PBS television documentary, The Golden Age of Texas Courthouses.
Wharton area one-day trips

There's plenty of ways to spend a day right here in Wharton. Here are three different day trips, each designed to highlight the area's sites in a matter of hours.

TRIP A
9:30 a.m. - Downtown Wharton
Visit Monterey Square, with its antique shops, coffee house, gift stores and the exquisite, historically-restored Wharton County Courthouse. Built in 1889, the courthouse was designed by noted architect Eugene Heiner and was brought back to its original glory in 2007 at a cost of $7.4 million.

The east side of the square is called the Burger Block, and includes the Burger and Robertson Building, constructed in 1909, and the W. Roberts Building, constructed in 1919.

Don't miss the murals. There's 9 of them gracing the sides of many downtown buildings. Completed by Texas artist Dayton Wodrich, they detail the county's rich agricultural, religious and medicinal history.

Noon - Lunch Time
There's a host of restaurants in the city, including some in the downtown area. For those craving some Tex-Mex, try Cuevos Mexican Restaurant, Los Cucos Mexican Restaurant or Larry's Mexican Restaurant, all in the downtown area or nearby.

1:30 p.m. - Morris Ranch Carriage House Museum
Among the meticulously restored and maintained carriages is the one that carried Vivien Leigh in the movie, Gone With the Wind. Call ahead to make an appointment: 979-532-0101. The museum is located at 2110 CR 117, east of the city.

3 p.m. - Back to town
For a late afternoon pick-me-up, try a specialty frappe or an iced tea at Milam Street Coffee (the kids might enjoy a scoop of Blue Bell Ice Cream). There's plenty of benches around Monterey Square to enjoy the scenery; or, if the weather is uncooperative, stay inside at the coffee house and visit with friends and strangers alike while enjoying their flat screen TV or using their WiFi to get online.

TRIP B
9:30 a.m. - Southern Pacific Railroad Depot
Located at Sunset and Milam streets, the depot was recently restored at a cost of more than $1 million. Originally built in 1912, it served as a social and transportation center for Wharton. The depot sits on the “Macaroni Line,” named in honor of the 1,200 Italians who helped build the track for the New York, Texas & Mexican Railroad in 1882.

While in the area, check out Moses Gin and a mural entitled “Cotton - From Pickin to Ginnin.” To arrange a tour of the still operational gin, call 979-532-3522.

Noon - Lunch Time
Take your pick. If you’re in the mood for Texas barbecue, try Hinze’s on Richmond Road or Taste Woods off FM 102, near the hospital. For seafood, there’s Wharton Seafood on Richmond Road. For a little of everything (including delicious homestyle hamburgers), visit 9er’s Restaurant at the corner of Boling Highway and Fulton Street.

1:30 p.m. - Wharton County Historical Museum/20th Century Technology Museum
Recently combined, these two museums display a treasure trove of artifacts detailing not only the county’s history but the development of technology over the last century. At the historical museum, check out exhibits on Pulitzer Prize winning playwright Horton Foote, newsman Dan Rather, and Medal of Honor recipient and El Campo native Roy Benavidez. Don’t forget to check out the trophy game room, which displays a dazzling array of mounted animals from across the globe, and an elaborate doll display.

At the technology museum check out the aviation displays as well as exhibits on radios, computers, toys, cameras and a host of other items. The museum is the creation of Wharton residents Art and Sharon Schulze.

3 p.m. - Rest Stop
While at the museum, venture outdoors for a relaxing stroll around the facility’s grounds, including a look at the cactus garden.

TRIP C
9:30 a.m. - Cattle Country
Check out the countryside and the unique Brahman cattle that graze in these parts by taking a drive on Texas 60 north of Hungerford, or FM 1161 east of Hungerford. The trip on Texas 60 will bring you to East Bernard, which has shops and sites of its own.

11 a.m. - Glen Flora
Visit the antique shops on the main drag, off FM 102, north of Wharton. A few more miles down FM 102 brings you to Egypt, home of the Northington Plantation.

Noon - Lunch Time
Take U.S. 59 and drive 20 minutes south to El Campo. Lots of restaurants there and plenty of new sites to see.

1:30 p.m. - El Campo museums
There’s the El Campo Museum of Natural History (located in the El Campo Civic Center, 2350 N. Mechanic) and the Danevang Cultural Center, Texas 71 at CR 426.

3 p.m. - Rest Period
There are several parks in El Campo in which to kick up your feet, sit back and watch the clouds pass by overhead.
Need to plan a big event like a wedding reception, anniversary bash or a corporate retreat and training session but unwilling to fight the traffic or pay the high prices found in bigger cities? Then check out the Wharton Civic Center, the perfect location for your event, large or small.

The center is conveniently located away from heavily-traveled main roads but still easy to find at 1924 N. Fulton St. It offers a main hall with a seating capacity of 800 when arranged for auditorium style seating or 700 for banquet style. It also includes the O’Quinn room seating 100, the Duncan Auditorium, with seating for 60, Meeting Rooms A and B, 30 each, and a pre-function area with seating for 150. Other features include a caterer’s kitchen, ice machines, tables and chairs, a sound system, stage lighting and other necessities for your chosen function.

The center started out as the original home of Gulf Coast Medical Center. The hospital gave the facility to the city of Wharton in 1992, and it was renovated into the building that exists today. Other portions of the hospital were converted into the Wharton County Library and the Wharton EMS Department. The initial renovation costs totaled $1.2 million.

Jo Knesek, who has been the civic center’s director for 23 years, said the building has hosted all kinds of events — even one that included George W. Bush when he was governor — to such celebrities as Frank Sinatra Jr. and Nancy Sinatra. But Knesek said all events are treated the same.

The effort to convert the facility from hospital building to a regional convention center was undertaken during the administration of then Mayor Garland Novosad.

“I went to bed each night with the blueprints in my arms,” Novosad said. “We had this empty building and through the incredible vision of many people, we built something special the community can be proud of and the public can enjoy.”

The redesign of the building was handled by the Austin-based architectural firm of Holt and Fetter, which also designed the current City of Austin Police Department building.

For information or to book an event, contact the city of Wharton at 979-532-2491, Ext. 600, visit cityofwharton.com or e-mail convention@cityofwharton.com.
Nostalgia has bolstered the collecting of items from yesteryear. Antiquing has also become big business in small towns. Wharton is no exception with a handful of antique, resale and flea market businesses here.

And lots of collectibles can be found in abundance in Wharton’s antique stores at Wharton’s downtown Monterey Square, and just off the square. Wharton’s downtown area features shops with antiques from museum quality to everyday items in six stores all within walking distance of each other.

That makes the area an antique hunter’s delight. All of the stores are filled wall-to-wall with antiques, which can meet the taste and pocketbooks of antique collectors. Local dealers have a networking system which allows them to help shoppers to find just what they are looking for — even though it might mean sending the shopper to another business.

Feel free to stop in any of the shops around the square, browse or just visit with the owners. They are loaded with antique information for their customers. Miss Hattie’s Place is located at 129 S. Fulton Street on Monterey Square. Walk over to 134 W. Milam Street and visit Bohemian Rhapsody.

A turn south on Houston Street will lead to Blue Moon Antiques at 138 S. Houston. Head back to Milam Street, turn left and stroll down to 232 W. Milam to J.T.’s This and That or visit Judy’s Resale Shop across the street at 235 W. Milam. Within driving distance of the square are Lee’s Flea Market at 622 E. Milam and Village Antique Retail & Resale Shop at 604 N. Fulton.

Plan to spend some time in each business because of the diversity and abundance of items in each. Have a question or want information? Feel free to visit with each of the knowledgeable owners.
The Wharton County Junior College Adult Education and Literacy program has made its new year’s resolution for 2015: enroll more than 1,200 students in its GED and ESL classes.

If that sounds like a lofty goal, consider this: This past year, nearly 900 students from four southeast Texas counties — Wharton, Fort Bend, Colorado and Matagorda — were enrolled in the program. In 2015, two additional counties – Waller and Austin – will be added to the program’s service area.

Dr. Cyrus Johnson, director of WCJC’s AEL program, couldn’t be happier about the expanded service area. He is a firm believer in the benefits of education — for all.

“We believe everyone is capable of learning,” Johnson said. “We want to provide them with the option to come back into the learning process in order to be successful.”

The AEL program will begin offering orientation classes in January of 2015, with sessions held in Sugar Land, Wharton, El Campo, Richmond and Bay City as well as in the two newest service areas, Waller and Austin counties.

The orientations offer an overview of WCJC’s General Educational Development (GED) and English as a Second Language (ESL) classes and provide “locator” testing aimed at determining where each student stands as far as language acquisition and basic learning skills.

Students can then begin taking the regularly scheduled GED and ESL classes. The program is offered at no cost to the student.

“We work on their strengths and upgrade their weaknesses,” Johnson said. “All they need to bring is an open mind and a willingness to learn.”

In addition to Johnson, the AEL staff includes Tara Zekavat, instructional supervisor; Holly Eisel, testing technician; Maria Guevera, secretary; Maria Alvarado, data technician; Jackie Fields, distance learning; and Roweena Britton, evening receptionist.

Registration is required prior to attending an orientation session. Registration forms can be found by visiting the AEL program tab on the college’s website, www.wcjc.edu. For more information, call 979-532-6301 or email ael@wcjc.edu.

Wharton County Junior College is a Texas public, two-year, comprehensive community college offering a wide range of postsecondary educational programs and services including associate degrees, certificates, continuing education courses, cultural affairs and leisure-time activities for the benefit of the community and a population of students that varies in age, background and ability. Historic Homes of Wharton

Editor’s note: The historic homes driving tour is designed to give those staying in Wharton some views of early architecture around the city. The homes have been grouped for ease of finding them on the map. Many of the homes are private residences and not accessible for tours.

Bolton-Outlar House,
517 N. Richmond Road

The Bolton-Outlar House, built in 1893, is a two-story frame Pyramidal-roof dwelling Queen Anne influence modified around 1910 with a classical Revival pediment portico and porches. It rests on brick piers and is covered by an asphalt shingle tripped roof with lower cross gable on the principal and side elevations. An exterior brick chimney with a corbeled cap rises from the top ridge of the hipped roof.

It is one of Wharton’s most impressive late-19th and early-20th century residential dwellings. It was substantially remodeled around 1910.

H.J. Bolton acquired this property in 1893 from A.H. Purviance for $300 and probably built the house soon afterwards. Bolton was a local merchant and first president of the newly organized Wharton National Bank in 1903. In 1919, Dr. L.B. Outlar purchased the dwelling for $7,500. Dr. Outlar established a clinic in partnership with Dr. William Blair called the Outlar-Blair Clinic. The Outlar family owned the house until 1973.

E. Clyde and Mary Elliott House,
707 N. Walnut Street

E. Clyde and Mary Elliott acquired three lots in 1919 from W.B. Barbee in the Barbee subdivision. The Elliotts erected a one-story bungalow home for $2,697. Mr. Elliott was a farmer with land near the small community of Glen Flora. The couple owned the house until 1960. The E. Clyde and May Elliott House is a one-and one-half story frame bungalow facing east. The Elliott house is one of the best examples of the bungalow form and the only example of the “airplane” subtype in Wharton.

Nettie Elkins House,
109 E. Alabama Street

The Elkins House was built for Nettie Elkins after receiving the undivided land from the heirs of Mrs. D.A. Hobbs. The house was built in 1874. The Elkins House is significant as the best extant example of the pyramid roof house in its most basic form in Wharton. A full-width open porch supported by three evenly-spaced columns dominates the principal façade.
Merrill–Roten House,
520 Avenue A

James F. and Lena Merrill had this brick veneer house built soon after their acquisition of the property in 1930. In 1932, John L. Roten purchased the house. Roten was one of Wharton’s most successful businessmen during the mid-20th century. He began his career in 1922 when he opened a dry goods store in the community. The Tudor Revival style was popular among professionals in the community during the late 1920s and 1930s. Its full brick veneer exterior is rarely seen on local dwellings.

Wiley J. Croom House,
205 E Milam Street

This is a two-story frame house designed by Eugene T. Heiner, who also designed the 1888 jail and courthouse in Wharton. It was built in typical Victorian Queen Anne style with heavy use of decorative embellishments. Wiley J. Croom came to Wharton in 1868 to practice law and sell real estate. He was elected county judge in 1886 and met Heiner during the construction of the courthouse which led him to select the architect as designer of his new home.

The house is a two-story frame dwelling facing south on East Milam Street. The house retains a high degree of integrity and is the best example in Wharton of the Queen Anne style.

John and Sophie Garrett House,
401 E. Alabama Street

The John G. and Sophie Garrett House is a one-and-one-half story frame dwelling facing south on East Alabama Street. Its appearance is typical of the late 19th century dwellings in a modified L-plan form. Jig sawn balusters and brackets, and turned columns and frieze indicate a strong Victorian Queen Anne influence.
Judge Edwin Hawes House,
309 N. Resident Street

Rosa E. McCamly had this home built in 1896. In 1897 she sold it to Edwin Hawes (b. 1852), Wharton County judge in the 1870s and 1880s. Hawes had returned to this area after temporarily residency in Kerrville where he was mayor. Here he was a large landowner and a political leader. The double galleried home was purchased in 1944 by George Rust Hawes and his wife Emily Prasifka Hawes, the son and daughter-in-law of Edwin and Uzzie Milburn Rust Hawes. This two-story frame house is an example of center-passage, with Victorian and Classical Revival features.

O. Brooks-Foote House,
505 N. Houston Street

Located directly behind the Tom Brooks home on Houston street is the Brooks-Foote home. Tom, son of P.C. and Daisy Speed Brooks, built this house in 1917 and gave it to their daughter, Harriet and her husband A.H. Foote. It is a good example of 20th Century bungalow style, two-bay L-shaped porch. The house is owned by the children of the late Horton Foote, who grew up in the house behind his grandparents’ home on Richmond Road.

J.H. Speaker House,
414 E. Alabama Street

Susan Speaker purchased this lot and the adjoining lot in 1893 for $550. This low cost indicates that the house was not present at that time. In 1907, J.H. Speaker acquired the western lot and is believed to have built the house. The property remained in the Speaker family until 1976. J.H. Speaker was a local black educator who taught in the segregated school in Wharton. At the time of construction, this house was in one of the two primary African-American neighborhoods. The J.H. Speaker House is a one-story frame L-plan dwelling.

Hamilton House,
325 N. Richmond Road

A native of Ohio, Joseph Andrew Hamilton served in the Union army during the Civil War. In 1866 he settled in Wharton and held a variety of local political offices. Hamilton purchased this property in 1885 and moved his family into the existing one-story frame house. In 1907 the home was enlarged by raising the original structure and building a new addition underneath. The house features influences of the neo-classical style of architecture. The new addition is brick, and upper wooden floor is thought to have been constructed circa 1875.
Tom N. Brooks home, 516 N. Richmond Road

This eclectic dwelling with five-bay porch was constructed circa 1915 by Tom Brooks, dry goods merchant. The house faces Richmond Road which carried traffic between Houston and Victoria through Wharton. The home, its residents and the daily events inspired the writings of Brooks’ grandson, Horton Foote. The house sold in 1948 to Brandl family. In 1998, Charles E. and Paulette Brandl-Roades restored the home to its former grandeur.

T.M. Neal home, 225 N. Richmond Road

Now the site housing the Wharton Chamber of Commerce and Agriculture, the home was built in 1912 by Dr. Thurman McCloud (T.M.) Neal and Mae Vineyard Neal. A doctor, farmer and rancher and civic leader and philanthropist, as a tribute to his wife, he donated the home to the chamber when he died in 1962.

Another native son of Wharton is Dan Rather, the former news anchor for the CBS Evening News. He is now managing editor and anchor of the television news magazine Dan Rather Reports on the cable channel AXS TV.

Daniel Irvin “Dan” Rather, Jr. was born here on Oct. 31, 1931 to Daniel Irvin Rather Sr. and his wife, the former Byrl Veda Page. His dad was working here in “the oil patch” when he was born. He spent the first six months of his life here and refers to Wharton as his home.

The home where Rather spent those first days of his life has been saved and restored. It sits on the grounds of the Wharton County Historical Museum, 3615 North Richmond Road, and is available for tours.

Rather began his career in 1950 as an Associated Press reporter in Huntsville. Later, he was a reporter for United Press International from 1950-52, several Texas radio stations, and the Houston Chronicle from 1954 to 1955.

In 1959, he entered television as a reporter for KTRK-TV in Houston and was later promoted to director for KHOU-TV.

In early September of 1961, Rather reported live from the Galveston Sea-wall as Hurricane Carla threatened the Texas coastline. This action, which has been imitated by countless other reporters, impressed the network executives at CBS, and they hired him as a CBS News correspondent in 1962.

After serving as a foreign correspondent, he served as primary anchor for the CBS Sunday Night News while serving as White House correspondent during the Richard Nixon presidency.

After Nixon’s resignation, Rather took the assignment of chief correspondent for CBS News Special Reports. He later became a correspondent of the long-running Sunday night news show 60 Minutes.

There is also an exhibit set at the museum which recounts events in Rather’s life.
Horton Foote

An Academy Award winner and Pulitzer Prize recipient, Foote immortalized Wharton and loved the community until the day he died on March 7, 2009 at age 92. He is buried in Wharton City Cemetery.

Known to work best during the night, he wrote his plays with a pencil on notebook paper to be transcribed later. The playwright left a legacy and body of works which may never be duplicated.

Foote was reared in a middle class, hard working family. He was born here on March 14, 1916, the son of Wharton haberdasher Albert Horton Foote and the former Hallie Brooks.

His writing captures a unique era in the life of a small Texas town. His subject matter is those in that era trying to cope with everyday life and the twists and turns life brings.

Writers, it is said, are supposed to write about what they know. Foote drew upon everyday occurrences he heard as a child listening to his parents and grandparents talk.

When asked about his writing style, Foote is quoted to have said, “But I don’t really write to honor the past. I write to investigate, to try to figure out what happened and why it happened, knowing I’ll never really know. I think all the writers that I admire have this same desire, the desire to bring order out of chaos.”

Foote left Wharton by train headed for Dallas at age 16 to pursue an acting career, but he carried with him the memories of his home. Wharton, with its pecan trees, its Victorian homes and the character of its residents, would become part of his plays and films.

He spent two years studying acting at Pasadena Playhouse in California. Then he headed to New York City “to make a name for himself as a Broadway star.” He continued his studies there with Tamara Daykarhanova and joined Mary Hunter’s American Actors Company.

One of his assignments was to perform a one-act improvisational play based on the actor’s hometown. After performing his, Agnes DeMille, a choreographer, asked if he had ever written anything.

His response was “No, what on earth would I write about?”

DeMille, who would become a lifelong friend, then gave him his best advice: “Write what you know about.”

The budding playwright went home and wrote a one-act play called Wharton Dance that night. It was about the Friday-night dances in his hometown. He wrote himself into the lead. The company performed the play in an evening of one-acts. Foote appeared in other plays he wrote and pursued his acting career.

During a visit home, he wrote another play. This time it was a three-act play, a drama set in a small-town drugstore. It was called Texas Town. The American Actors Company staged it in 1941. Foote again played the lead.

Brooks Atkinson, a critic for The New York Times, came to see it. He called it an “engrossing portrait of small-town life.”

His The Trip to Bountiful starred his friend Lillian Gish in live theater. In 1965, the movie was made and Geraldine Page received an Academy Award for best actress and Foote was nominated for the screenplay.

Another film success was Baby, the Rain Must Fall (1965), a reworking of Foote’s play The Traveling Lady. The film starred Steve McQueen and much of it was shot in and around Wharton.

Foote wrote more than 60 plays, most of which are set in the fictional Texas town called Harrison. It’s a place where everybody knows everybody else’s name and business — just as they did when Foote was growing up in Wharton. His career spanned six decades.

He wrote The Young Man From Atlanta in the 1950s. It won him the Pulitzer Prize in 1995.

His home in Wharton still stands at 505 N. Houston Street. It is part of the driving home tour offered in Wharton.
