YORK — Zac Holoch now has a seat at the desk of the experience which he has been a part of since he was 10 years old. Holoch, who will turn 30 this month, recently took over as president and CEO of Cornerstone Bank.

The York-based bank’s board of directors approved Holoch’s appointment to replace his mother, Kris Holoch, who retired from day-to-day operations on Dec. 11. Kris Holoch, who took over leadership of her father and Zac’s grandfather, Kelly Holohan, in 2011, will continue to serve on the bank’s board. The bank’s board, Holoch said, wanted her to serve in this capacity for his grandfather for every day. Both of them have been and will continue to be great mentors to him.

A native of York, Holoch graduated from the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, where he competed on the Husker track and field. He started his career at Cornerstone Bank in 2010 and most recently was executive vice president, overseeing management of the bank’s branches.

The bank, which was co-founded with Cornerstone Bank in 2000, served as chair of the Nebraska Bankers Association in 2017 and was on the Board of Directors for the American Banker’s Association from 2009-2010.

Cornerstone, with $327 million in total assets, operates in 17 Nebraska communities.
