Listen to UNK Wind Ensemble — inside

April 8 concert will have break for mitigation protocols

By RICK BROWN
Yard Light Media

KEARNEY — Duane Bierman, associate professor of music at the University of Nebraska at Kearney and director of the UNK Wind Ensemble, considers the ensemble's next concert an improvement — but with some caveats.

"We're doing it with some control," he said in an interview from his office at the UNK Music Department. "We're only allowing 60 people in the audience. For our students, we're allowing each student to give us names of guests they want in the live audience. They can invite their folks or their families or their friends first."

Once that list is filled, the remaining seats will be open to community members.

"We probably won't fill all 60 seats so people can come and check at the door," Bierman said. "If they can't get in or are unable to attend in person, they can watch the livestream of the performance on the website."

Bierman organized the first UNK Wind Ensemble concert in the fall, before COVID-19 infections spiked.

"It worked out OK, but we also gave an entire concert within half an hour," he said. "This time we're taking a break in between, which will be a little awkward for the in-person audience. We need to take a 22-minute break at intermission for the HVAC to run and to meet our goals for following the mitigation protocols."

Regardless of the obstacles, Bierman will direct a concert featuring the UNK Wind Ensemble at 7:30 p.m. April 8 at the Fine Arts Recital Hall. Online patrons can watch the concert at UNK.edu. Admission is free for both the live and the streaming performance.

Bierman split the band into two smaller groups.

"That way we can fit on the stage, properly distanced," he said. "Each group will play what is called 'flex music.' Instead of individual parts written for each instrument, it's more like a choral S-A-T-B arrangement."

Most of the music is divided into four parts, available for any instrument. Several pieces es are arranged in eight parts, which creates more of a musical texture.

"It sounds a little different," Bierman said. "This is what a lot of smaller schools do anyway so there's plenty of literature out there for that. It's a different thing but it still allows us to make music and get some work done while waiting for the pandemic to get over."

The concert features some standard concert band pieces as well as a piece by American composer Julie Giroux.

Despite the challenges of making music during a pandemic, Bierman feels that the students have learned many lessons — including the art of flexibility.

"This has been a remarkably positive experience, overall," he said. "Anytime the students get a little bogged down in the mitigations and all the steps we have to take in order to be together for half an hour, they will remember

"Our students are just thankful and happy to make music at any level. It's very special."

Duane Bierman

that so many of their colleagues across the nation are not even attending school in person. Our students are just thankful and happy to make music at any level. It's very special."

Bierman feels the same for himself.

"It's been a great year to reset expectations and routines," he said.

Since the concert band won't be performing for graduation ceremonies in May because of the pandemic, Bierman is planning a final concert at 4:30 p.m. April

BraveHearts fundraiser teams up with cowboy poets Smith, Potter

Glatter will provide music, Duncan the desserts April 8

By RICK BROWN
Yard Light Media

KEARNEY — R.P. Smith woke in the middle of the night with the start of a poem in his head.

“I had the idea for this about 2:30 this morning,” he said in a phone interview from his home in Custer County. “It was kind of a short night. I don’t know if I’ll have it smoothed up enough to use it by then or not. I hope so, because I think it would work OK.”

The rancher and cowboy poet referred to his next performance, Cowboy Social Fundraiser, at 7 p.m. April 8 at The Coop Banquet Hall in Kearney. The event will raise funds for BraveHearts Equine Assisted Psychotherapy and Learning, an organization that uses guided interactions with horses to help children dealing with emotional and behavioral issues. The organization is in the process of changing its name to LyonHeart Equine Assisted Learning.

The Cowboy Social Fundraiser will feature cowboy poetry by R.P. Smith and Bill Potter. Dave Glatter will perform music for the event and Vaughn Duncan will cook Dutch oven desserts.

Admission is by donation. Seating is limited. Obtain a free ticket at EventBrite.com.

Smith writes about everyday events on his ranch. His poetry has been featured at many cowboy poetry gatherings, including his role as a featured performer at the National Cowboy Poetry Gathering at the Western Folklife Center in Elko, Nevada.

Smith admires the work of BraveHearts and the director, Nancy Lyon.

“It’s a neat deal that she puts on and I try to tie in things that have to do with horses,” the poet said. “I have quite a bit of material that goes in that direction. What she does and how she uses the horses to teach is kinda what the Lord does with me with the stuff I have

Cowboy poet R.P. Smith will perform as part of the Cowboy Social Fundraiser at 7 p.m. April 8 at The Coop Banquet Hall. Known for his poetry that connects the land and his labors, Smith finds inspiration from his ranch work where he lives near Broken Bow. “There’s a lesson in everything if you know where to look,” he said.

Lightning Bugs bring jazz, pop to Live! In Lincoln April 8

LINCOLN — Specializing in “Moonbeam Swing,” the Lightning Bugs, a jazz trio based in Lincoln, will present a livestream concert at 7 p.m. April 8 on Facebook as part of the Live! In Lincoln: Thursday Night Music Series.

The band features Jim Pipher, bass; Reynold Peterson, drums; and Steve Hanson, guitar. With strong vocal harmonies in the tradition of the Mills Brother, the Lightning Bugs will play jazz and pop standards from the 1930s and 1940s. Peterson formed the band in 1987 when he was asked to put together a concert performance for the Lincoln Association of Traditional Arts.

The band has released four recordings: “The Lightning Bugs,” “Bugology,” “Stretchin’ Out” and “Glow.”

For more information call 402-477-8008 or email tnms@artsincorporated.org.

New season of beloved ‘Backyard Farmer’ starts tonight

LINCOLN — The popular lawn and garden series “Backyard Farmer” begins its new season at 7 p.m. today on NET, Nebraska’s PBS & NPR Stations.

Every year from spring to fall, host Kim Todd, Nebraska Extension landscape horticulture specialist, and a panel of Nebraska Extension experts help viewers answer questions about insect pests and disease, turf, and fruits and vegetables, as well as landscape design and general horticulture topics.

Several features being planned this season will emphasize growing your own food. Since the pandemic began, more people are experimenting with cultivating fresh produce in their own green spaces, resulting in millions of new gardeners nationwide.

This season, viewers will get weekly updates from the Backyard Farmer garden and can submit their lawn and garden questions and photos via email or Facebook messages. To submit a question or photo for the experts, email byf@unl.edu or visit Facebook at facebook.com/backyardfarmernebraska.

The “Backyard Farmer” website at byf.unl.edu/ features more about the series and the Facebook page also includes announcements and other garden information. In addition, past features and episodes are available for viewing on the program’s YouTube channel at youtube.com/backyardfarmer and as a free podcast on iTunes.

The longest-running, locally-produced television series in the nation, “Backyard Farmer” airs Thursdays on NET through Sept. 30. “Backyard Farmer” repeats Saturdays at 10 a.m. on NET and Sundays at 3 p.m. and Mondays at 5 p.m. on NET Create.

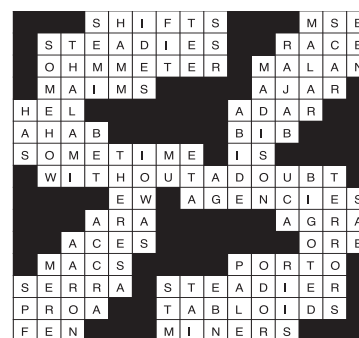

Backyard Farmer is a co-production of NET, Nebraska’s PBS & NPR Stations, and Nebraska Extension.

Oscar Isaac stars in “The Letter Room,” a 32-minute film that explores the world of a lonely corrections officer. The film will be shown at 7:30 p.m. Friday as part of the Oscar Nominated Short Films at The World Theatre. Admission is $5.

“If Anything Happens I Love You,” 12 minutes, directed by Will McCormick and Micheal Govier. Bryce Jensen, executive director of The World Theatre, said about the series of films, “I love short films. The stories are concentrated in one little tiny nugget. If you don’t like it, you can just wait for the next one.”

KEARNEY — For most audiences, Oscar-nominated films mean feature-length movies filled with well-known stars and legendary directors.

The annual celebration of the movie industry also includes other types of films.

“These films don’t get much exposure in theaters,” Bryce Jensen said of the Oscar-nominated short movies. “These entries tour the film festivals to get recognition and nominations, but they are rarely seen by large audiences.”

The Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences will honor the best films of 2020 with Oscar awards on April 25. The World Theatre will present three categories of short films, including live action, documentary and animation, Friday through Sunday. Admission to each showing is $5.

“In the past we’ve just shown one category and toyed around with the idea of showing all three,” said Jensen, executive director of The World Theatre. “This year, since we’re back up and going after the pandemic, we wanted to try all three and see how audiences will respond.”

Showings include:

- Friday – 7:30 p.m. — Live action films, rated R, 130 minutes
- Saturday – 7:30 p.m. —

Documentary films, rated R, 136 minutes

■ Sunday – 2 p.m. — Animated films, rated PG-13, 99 minutes

“I love short films,” Jensen said. “The stories are concentrated in one little tiny nugget. If you don’t like it, you can just wait for the next one. Watching a bunch of films in a series is very enjoyable. Some of them might take you to a weird place and others might uplift you, taking you to all kinds of emotions.”

“The Letter Room,” 32 minutes, directed by Elvira Lind, features a lonely corrections officer who gets assigned to screen mail intended for inmates in a prison. He connects with the deeply personal letters for a prisoner on death row and finds himself intertwined with the personal lives of the prisoner and the letter writer. The comedy includes performances by Oscar Isaac (“Inside Llewyn Davis”) and Alia Shawkat (“Arrested Development”).

The documentary category includes films that focus on a member of the French Resistance during World War II, the lineage of a Black family struggling against prejudice from the Jim Crow South, the Hong Kong protests in 2019, therapeutic feeding centers in conflict-ridden Yemen and the shooting of a 15-year-old girl in South Central L.A.

Jensen understands the contrast between short films and feature-length movies.

“When you watch a single feature in a theater, you have that tone that brings you through the arc of the story,” he said. “Watching a series of shorts lets you go through a whole gamut of emotions. It’s quite an experience.”

Will McCormick, who wrote the script for “Toy Story 4,” makes his directorial debut, along with Micheal Govier, in “If Anything Happens I Love You.” The action in the 12-minute animated film follows grieving parents who become estranged after the death of their daughter at a school shooting.

The directors, who met at acting school, wanted to make a film where shadows represent emotions that people found difficult to express. In “If Anything Happens I Love You,” the shadow of their daughter represents a force that brings the adults together to confront their grief.

Face masks and social distancing are required at The World Theatre at this time. Patrons can purchase tickets online in advance to choose their seats. Tickets purchased at the door will be assigned seats with distance between other parties. Masks should be worn when moving about the theater. New boot camp for chefs on Food Network

By MICHELLE ROSE
TV Media

Ready for a new round of culinary boot camp on Food Network?

Surprisingly, it has nothing to do with “Worst Cooks in America.” This particular boot camp is for the pros, the chefs working in restaurants across the country — and it’s not “Restaurant Impossible,” either (or any Gordon Ramsay-led project, for that matter).

“Chef Boot Camp” premieres April 8 on Food Network. And you know that old saying about how “location, location, location” is key to a restaurant’s success? Forget that; at least for the restaurants involved here (forget about decor, too). With “Chef Boot Camp,” the problem is entirely inside the kitchen — specifically, the chef running it.

The series stars Cliff Crooks, a former “Top Chef” contestant (he was infamously sent home in Season 2) and guest judge on shows such as “Hell’s Kitchen,” “Tournament of Champions” and “Chopped Junior.” A trained chef with plenty of experience in New York eateries, Crooks holds the title of culinary director at BLT Restaurant Group, meaning it’s his job to ensure smooth operations in every kitchen — even if it means firing and hiring the chefs. Clearly, he knows a struggling chef when he sees one.

Each episode revolves around three underperforming chefs who each were nominated by a restaurant owner. After a brief introduction, Crooks assesses their current level by asking them to prepare their signature dish for a taste test. Then come the challenges: first, the chefs have to demonstrate a fundamental technique by preparing a classic dish on time (and to Crooks' satisfaction); after that, it's a trial by fire as they work a live dinner service at one of the BLT Restaurant Group's eateries. For the final challenge, the chefs are asked to whip up a new dish for their respective restaurant owners.

With their jobs on the line, these participants have to prove to Crooks and the restaurant owners that they truly have what it takes to succeed — not only in this boot camp but in the real world, too.

Participants have to prove they can succeed - not just in boot camp but in the real world, too.

to do. There's a lesson in everything if you know where to look."

Smith finished the poem, "The Place where the Steadfast and Faithful Shall Meet, Psalms 85." The first two stanzas explore his connection with the land, his work and his faith:

*"Thank you dear Lord for the length of my days,
for labor and the work of my hand,*

May it be for your glory to teach me your ways while I'm watching your flocks and tending your land.

Strengthen me Lord for the tasks in my care, lift me up when my plans go awry,

And when failure and folly drive me to despair

Wipe the sweat from my brow and the tear from my eye."

The events of the previous year have caused Smith to thoughtfully examine his life.

"When I look back at what I've written in the last year, you would definitely come to the conclusion that I've been looking inward," he said. "I've written a little humorous stuff but with humor, it's so easy to turn acidic with the way our country is right now. It's way easier to make a joke at someone else's expense than to do something genuinely funny. I sure struggle with that. I've had a lot more time so I should have gotten more written down in this last year."

As a rancher, Smith felt frustrated that he accomplished so little in the past 12 months.

"I get the opportunity to be outside and away from people most of the time," he said. "But it's been more so this year and it's frustrating because I was home with the cattle and thought things should go better. It kinda proved to me again that I just get in their way. And when I show up, I don't make things better, I just make them worse. That lesson was driven home quite a few times during calving season. I guess I'm not cut out to be a micromanager."

While he takes inspiration for his writing from his work, Smith takes guidance from his faith.

"The stuff I think that turned out pretty good is stuff where the Lord planted the seed and I ran with it a little bit," he said. "What I think turned out pretty good has a spiritual vein to it."

After a year of canceled festivals and cowboy poetry gatherings, Smith has several bookings for early summer.

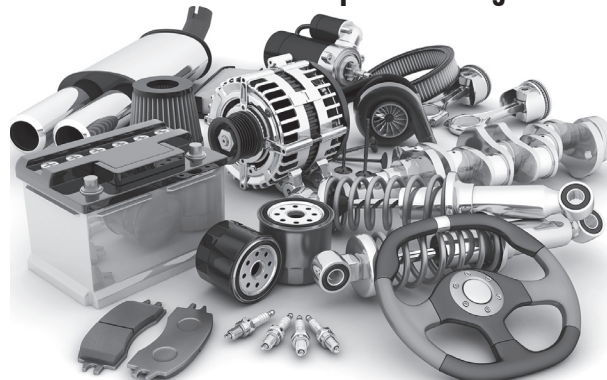

"I've got a deal, maybe, out in Idaho in June and a program lined up with an arts council in Kansas next January," he said. "I'm sure I'm leaving out some events but it seems like things are perking up a little bit, not as many as before. My youngest daughter is getting married this summer and I turned down a show in Washington state on that same weekend. That's OK because Washington state will still be there after she gets married and maybe they'll invite me back some other time."

Funny or Die's 'No Activity' gets animated on Paramount+

What's new on Paramount+

"No Activity" Season 4

Change things up from the norm with a new season of the Funny or Die series "No Activity," coming to Paramount+ on April 8. The Patrick Brammall and Trent O'Donnell comedy series, which launched in 2017 as a live action procedural sitcom, is getting the animated treatment for its fourth season. The half-hour series has been following two relatively idle low-level cops, two dispatch workers on the outs with each other, two criminals with little to no insight and two Mexican tunnelers who just met and are working in close quarters together for the first time. Now, Season 4 returns to follow the same characters (but in animated form) several years down the line from where they first began. Special agent Nick Cullen (Brammall) finally is seeing his FBI dreams come true as he breaks a lead on an emerging cult while assigned to a seemingly dull task. Despite their different paths, Cullen still is keeping in contact with his former partner, Det. Judd Tolbeck (Tim Meadows), who has been assigned a new partner on the force. Amy Sedaris, Bob Odenkirk, Sunita Mani, Joe Keery and Jason Mantzoukas will be returning to lend their voices and likenesses to the screen, while the extensive Season 4 special guest list includes Kevin Bacon, Elle Fanning, Will Forte, June Squibb and Samara Weaving among others. With the first three seasons already available to binge on the streamer, Season 4 will be dropping new episodes each week following the premiere.

What's new on Netflix

"Snabba Cash"

Join Netflix on a mission into Stockholm's seedy underworld with the new series "Snabba Cash," debuting Wednesday on the streamer. Based on the bestselling Jens Lapidus Stockholm Noir trilogy novel of the same name (also titled as "Easy Money" in the English translation) and taking place a decade after the events of the 2010 film, "Snabba Cash" follows ambitious entrepreneur and single mother Leya (Evin Ahmad) as her desire for wealth and success leads her further into danger, eventually crossing paths with gangs, troubled youths and all manner of sins deep in the heart of Sweden's capital city. During the course of six high-intensity episodes, Season 1 explores the implications that family ties, maternal drive, business partnerships and friendships may have on one's ability to make so-called "easy money." "Snabba Cash" also stars

Alexander Abdallah, Dada Fungula Bozela, Peter Eggers and new actors Ayaan Ahmed, Ali Alarik and Lennox Söderström.

"Night in Paradise" (2021)

Indulge in a night of foreign cinema when Netflix launches the highly anticipated new thriller "Night in Paradise" on April 9. The only Korean film to get an out-of-competition official selection at the Venice Film Festival in September 2020, "Night in Paradise" tells the story of a man targeted by some of the most powerful gangs in South Korea and his relationship to a woman who is teetering on the edge between life and death. Directed by acclaimed filmmaker Park Hoon-jung, the Korean noir (or, K-noir) piece is sending shock waves around the world for its "good plotting, amusing characters and exciting action scenes and bloodshed" (per the Hollywood Reporter), as well as its slow-burn beginning that rockets into intensity at a moment's notice. Starring Um Tae-goo, Jeon Yeo-been, Cha Seoung-won, "Night in Paradise" explores the nuanced relationship between organized crime and family bonds.

"Thunder Force" (2021)

A new kind of superhero duo is coming to Netflix on April 9, and it seems to all be purely by accident. "Thunder Force" is a comedy about two former best friends who reconnect in their 40s. One, Emily (Octavia Spencer), is a well-to-do entrepreneur and geneticist who has been working on a process to manipulate DNA in such a way that any average person could be given superpowers. The other, Lydia (Melissa McCarthy), is an adult who, well, hasn't quite grown up yet. When Lydia accidentally injects herself with Emily's superhero serum, the two women devise a plan to use their newfound powers to fight crime in their hometown of Chicago. Unfortunately, with the rise of superheroes comes the rise of supervillains, and now the two women, who call themselves "Thunder Force," must harness their new lifestyle quickly to defeat The Crab (Jason Bateman), The King (Bobby Cannavale) and any other villains who may cross their path along the way. "Thunder Force" is a hilarious hybrid of buddy comedy, superhero action flick and a testament to the power of women (even if that power is sometimes accidentally injected). Melissa Ponzio, Melissa Leo and Pom Klementieff also star.

"The Wedding Coach"

Say "I do" to an uplifting new reality series coming to Netflix on Wednesday. "The Wedding Coach" chronicles actor/comedian/writer Jamie Lee as she channels her own former wedding-planning stress to help couples who are preparing for their big day. Insistent that the “perfect wedding” is a complete fallacy, Lee offers her planning know-how, organizational efforts, people skills and kind heart to six couples who are struggling with average (and some more than average) stresses about their big day. From a bride-to-be who hasn’t yet told her mother she is pregnant to a same-sex couple that claims Lee saved more than just their wedding day, it is clear that self-proclaimed “fairy godmother” Lee’s “Wedding Coach” help is bringing hope, joy and love to many people by way of this new unscripted series.

What’s new on Hulu

“GLAAD Media Awards”

Tune into Hulu on April 8 to catch all the action and entertainment of the 32nd annual Gay & Lesbian Alliance Against Defamation Awards, airing on the platform and on YouTube. Every year, the GLAAD Awards celebrate the best, fairest, most accurate and most inclusive representations of the LGBTQ+ community in the media. From film and television to music, video games, comic books and print and multimedia journalism across both English- and Spanish-language platforms, a few of this year’s many contenders include Netflix’s “The Prom,” HBO’s “Welcome to Chechnya,” Canadian comedy series “Schitt’s Creek,” BBC America’s “Killing Eve,” Amazon’s “Uncle Frank,” HBO Max’s kids series “The Not-Too-Late Show with Elmo” and the DreamWorks/Netflix co-production “She-Ra and the Princesses of Power” in the English-language television categories. Honorable mentions across other categories include nominations for Lady Gaga’s “Chromatica” (Music Artist), “Assassin’s Creed Valhalla” (Video Game), “Juliet Takes a Breath” by Gabby Rivera, Celia Moscote, James Fenner, DC Hopkins (Comic Book), NBC News Now’s “Pride and Protest: Being Black and Queer in America in 2020” (TV Journalism - Long Form), People’s “The AIDS Quilt Marches Home” by Jason Sheeler (Print Article), Netflix’s “Alguien tiene que morir” (Spanish-Language Scripted Television Series), and Homosensual’s “Mujeres LGBT+ en México: Ari Vera” (Spanish-Language Online Journalism - Video or Multimedia), to name a few. Niecy Nash hosts.

What’s new on Prime

“Them”

Let the chills run up your spine as Amazon’s newest horror series, “Them,” joins the platform’s lineup on April 9. Created by budding writer/producer Little Marvin, this series’ skin-crawling, 10-episode first season follows the Emorys, a Black family from North Carolina who move to Covenant, an affluent all-white neighborhood in 1950s Los Angeles during a period known as The Great Migration. Once settled into their new home and West Coast lifestyle, the Emorys quickly become very unsettled due to dark, malevolent forces that haunt, terrorize and threaten to destroy them altogether. Starring Deborah Ayorinde, Ashley Thomas, Shahadi Wright Joseph and Melody Hurd as the Emory family, Alison Pill, Ryan Kwanten, Abbie Cobb and Christopher Heyerdahl also bring their talents to the screen. Series music is composed by “The Witch’s” (2015) Mark Korven.

SUDOKU

Like puzzles? Then you’ll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here’s how it works: Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each column, row and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. See solution, page 4.

FAMILY LIFE COUNSELING

“The next moment you find yourself instantly reacting, just stop and take a minute. Ask yourself, ‘Is this really worth the amount of emotion and reactivity I am feeling? Is it that big a deal?’ Breathe, acknowledge your stress amperage, and experience the freedom that self-control offers.”

Latest graphic novel about Lewis coming in August

NEW YORK (AP) — The award-winning series of graphic novels about congressman and civil rights activist John Lewis will continue a year after his death.

Abrams announced Tuesday that "Run: Book One" will be published Aug. 3, just more than a year after Lewis died at age 80. As with the "March" trilogy, which traced Lewis' growing involvement with the civil rights movement in the 1960s, "Run" features longtime collaborator Andrew Aydin and illustrator Nate Powell as they shape a narrative around Lewis' reflections. Comic artist L. Fury will assist with illustrations.

John Lewis

"Run: Book One" begins after the signing of the Voting Rights Act in 1965.

2021 marks 100 years since John G. Neihardt became Nebraska's first poet laureate

By MARJIE DUCEY
Omaha World-Herald

John G. Neihardt didn't like being called Nebraska's Homer.

But it was his epic stories of the settling of the American West that resulted in him becoming Nebraska's first poet laureate, and the first one in the country chosen by legislative action.

Marianne Reynolds, executive director of the poet's state historic site in Bancroft, said she is swept back to those days every time she enters the center, just as she thought of the "Iliad" and "Odyssey" by Homer during a trip to Greece.

"When I was in Greece, there was nothing like stepping off the airplane into a place where an epic thing happened," she said. "With Neihardt, and I'm not exaggerating, I can step out of my car into the American epic. We have that because of Neihardt."

A hike to Black Elk Peak is set for May 30. That's where Nicholas Black Elk shared his vision with Neihardt, which was the basis of the book "Black Elk Speaks."

On June 18, a celebration of the public declaration of Neihardt as poet laureate is scheduled. By legislative proclamation, Aug. 1 is designated as Neihardt Day, and several activities are planned at the center.

Reynolds said Neihardt was one of the few people who paid attention to the cost of westward expansion in the U.S.

"He wrote about the Indian wars and the death of Crazy Horse," she said. "He had this uncanny ability to talk about the settling of the West that is really distinctive."

Neihardt worked for a short time at the Omaha Daily News — a precursor to the Omaha World-Herald — until being fired in 1902.

"He was just so interested in the story. He would be digging into the story and talking to people, and all the other reporters were out there getting the scoop," Reynolds said.

He was also an eloquent speaker, and Reynolds said there still are visitors to Bancroft who recall seeing him in person.

He was beloved and respected not just in Nebraska but across the world. More than 1 million copies of "Black Elk Speaks" have been printed in multiple languages.

Reynolds said his writing is stunning.

"Besides being a really good storyteller," she said, "he was a brilliant writer."

Dueling Papas: 'Hemingway' separates man from myth

Tune in to PBS on Monday to catch the premiere of the new Ken Burns and Lynn Novick mini-documentaries, "Hemingway." Detailing the professional, public and private lives of the great American author in a way that only Burns' veteran documentary style could, the three-part, six-hour documentary film chronicles the dichotomy between the myth the man created and the man himself.

During the course of the 61 years he lived before taking his own life at his cabin in Ketchum, Idaho, Ernest Hemingway made quite a name for himself. Known largely for his literary works — classics such as "The Old Man and the Sea," "The Sun Also Rises" and "A Farewell to Arms," to name a few — Hemingway created a persona that to this day remains unmatched by many others. From his boxing, drinking, ladies' man, tough-guy bravado to his adventures bullfighting in Spain, hunting on African safari and fighting during World War I in Italy, the real Hemingway has become bound to the myth he perpetuated. Now, 60 years after his death, it's become more difficult than ever to distinguish between the two.

Using carefully selected pieces of his novels, letters, photographs and other pieces of nonfiction, Burns notes that the documentary's aim is "to show how flawed our assumptions about Ernest Hemingway and his writing have been." Featuring the voices of Jeff Daniels as Hemingway, and those of Mary-Louise Parker, Keri Russell, Patricia Clarkson and Oscar winner Meryl Streep as his four wives, "Hemingway" brings the legend back to life and "offer(s) viewers an honest portrayal of a complex and conflicted writer who left an indelible mark on literature" (per Burns via PBS).

Another 'Gilded' age

Awards season isn't over yet, folks! The 27th annual Screen Actors Guild Awards are coming to Los Angeles' Shrine Auditorium on Sunday and TNT and TBS are airing all the action live for your home-viewing pleasure.

Honoring the best on-screen performances from Jan. 1, 2020, to Feb. 28, 2021, this year's SAG Awards are going to be ones to remember. Leaving aside the obvious coronavirus-related struggles that have plagued studios, actors and the world at large this past year, the nominees list includes four possible wins (two solo, two ensemble cast) for the late Chadwick Boseman (for each of the 2020 films "Ma Rainey's Black Bottom" and "Da 5 Bloodz").

In addition to Boseman's posthumous recognition, SAG nominees include the casts of 2020 films "Minari," "One Night in Miami" and "The Trial of the Chicago 7," lead female performances by Amy Adams (for "Hillbilly Elegy," 2021), Viola Davis (for "Ma Rainey's Black Bottom," 2020), Vanessa Kirby (for "Pieces of a Woman," 2020), Frances McDormand (for "Nomadland," 2020) and Carey Mulligan (for "Promising Young Woman," 2020); and leading male performances by Riz Ahmed (for "Sound of Metal," 2019), Anthony Hopkins (for "The Father," 2020), Gary Oldman (for "Mank," 2020) and Steven Yeun (for "Minari," 2020). Television series nominations also include nods to "Ted Lasso," "Ramy," "Ozark," "The Flight Attendant," "Dead to Me," "Bridgerton," "Better Call Saul," "The Crown," "The Great" and popular Canadian comedy series "Schitt's Creek," while the TV movies and miniseries category is seeing nominations for "Hamilton" (2020), "The Undoing," "I May Destroy You," "The Good Lord Bird," "I Know This Much Is True," "Mrs. America," "Little Fires Everywhere" and the Netflix sensation "The Queen's Gambit."

So, make your wagers and tune in to either TNT or TBS to see how the results play out at this year's SAG Awards, airing live Sunday on both networks.
