Crypto: Investment Or Speculation?

Article submitted by Jacob Seidel, Financial Advisor - Edward Jones Investments, member SIPC Jun 21, 2022

With cryptocurrencies so much in the news, you might be wondering if you should invest in them. But "invest" may not be the right word – because, in many ways, cryptocurrencies, or "crypto" for short, are more speculation than investment.

But what's really the difference between a speculator and an investor? Probably the main factor is the differing views of time. A true investor is in it for the long term, building a portfolio that, over many years, can eventually provide the financial resources to achieve important goals, such as a comfortable retirement. But speculators want to see results, in the form of big gains, right now – and they're often willing to take big risks to achieve these outcomes.

There's also the difference in knowledge. Investors know that they're buying shares of stock in a company that manufactures products or provides services. But many speculators in cryptocurrency don't fully comprehend what they're buying – because crypto just isn't that easy to understand. Cryptocurrency is a digital asset, and cryptocurrency transactions only exist as digital entries on a blockchain, with the "block" essentially being just a collection of information, or digital ledgers. But even knowing this doesn't necessarily provide a clear picture to many of those entering the crypto world.

Open Houses – The Story Behind LE's Service

Real Estate clients asked for it, so LakeExpo market tested Open Houses digitally to a mass audience. Proof of concept was immediate.

In the second week, one of our Real Estate clients said she had eight potential homebuyers show up to an Open House on a Thursday as a direct result of LakeExpo marketing initiatives.

We watched as the analytics verified a compelling response from the LakeExpo audience.

LakeExpo invested in the concept and now offers the go-to resource for Open Houses at Lake of the Ozarks.
