

Three Generations.

Designer Whitney Robinson knows that a wedding band, worn lovingly over a lifetime, has value that can't be measured on a scale. This graceful pendant—commemorating three generations of women in the client's family—was once such a ring, and after her sketches were approved, Whitney took it to her bench and transformed it into a treasured heirloom.

Whitney has been helping Studio Jewelers clients restyle and restore inherited jewelry for almost twenty years. If you have a family piece that doesn't fit (in one way or another) or if there are things in your jewelry box that you have simply outgrown, bring them in and find out how they might be brought back to life. It's a good time to recycle, and there is no charge for an initial consultation.
