

5-column grid

UW-Madison's new engineering building

UW-Madison is getting its new engineering building after years of planning and months of delay after the state budget-writing committee declined to include it in its capital projects plan in June. The $347 million building is being partially funded by $150 million in donations, many of which were contingent on the project being funded in the most recent state budget.

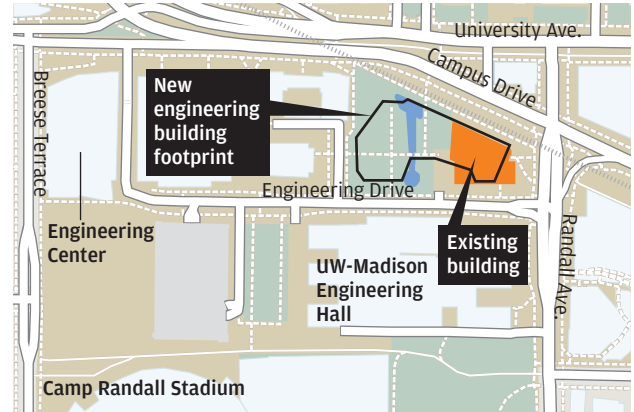

©Mapcreator.io | OSM.org, Lee Enterprises graphic

6-column grid

New engineering building

UW-Madison is getting its new engineering building after years of planning and months of delay after the state budget-writing committee declined to include it in its capital projects plan in June. The $347 million building is being partially funded by $150 million in donations, many of which were contingent on the project being funded in the most recent state budget.

©Mapcreator.io | OSM.org, Lee Enterprises graphic