Rachael Berry named Hancock County Journal-Pilot Leader of the 21st Century

While her high school career has come to an end, it is only the beginning of the next chapter in her life. She has big plans for the future and attributes her successes and leadership skills to a variety of experiences during her high school years.

While at Warsaw High School, Rachael was involved in a multitude of clubs and extra-curricular activities. She was a member and captain of her school dance team, qualifying for state two times, and danced competitively for Top Hatter Dance Studio. Berry was a member of the volleyball team and was named to the West Central Conference Honorable Mention and Academic All-Conference teams, along with being a member of the National Honor Society, the Junior Honor Society, and the Titan Volleyball Offensive Player of the Week. She was also a member of the Environmental Club, and treasurer and a member of the Drama Club. Berry held the title of Drum Major and Section Leader in Warsaw’s high school band and won several awards during her time as a band member.

Rachael Berry, Warsaw High School, was one of four Hancock County students to be named Hancock County Journal-Pilot Leader of the 21st Century.

“Being involved in most of all the clubs and activities offered at my high school has helped me to grow and develop as a leader in many different areas,” Berry explained. “My biggest leading roles have been in all of the clubs I hold a position of office in, being drum major of my school, and being captain of my dance team. Rachael believes a good leader is someone who can be encouraging and positive to others, as well as someone who can persuade others to work toward a common goal.

“A good leader is detail-oriented, and pays special attention to the little things in a big operation,” Rachael added.”

Berry also found time to be involved in several community service projects including Bright After School, which offers after school academic enrichment activities during the high school years.

“My biggest leading roles have been in all of the clubs I hold a position of office in, being drum major of my school, and being captain of my dance team.

Rachael believes a good leader is someone who can be encouraging and positive to others, as well as someone who can persuade others to work toward a common goal.

“Being involved in most of all the clubs and activities offered at my high school has helped me to grow and develop as a leader in many different areas,” Berry explained.

“My biggest leading roles have been in all of the clubs I hold a position of office in, being drum major of my school, and being captain of my dance team. Rachael believes a good leader is someone who can be encouraging and positive to others, as well as someone who can persuade others to work toward a common goal.

“A good leader is detail-oriented, and pays special attention to the little things in a big operation,” Rachael added.”

Berry also found time to be involved in several community service projects including Bright After School, which offers after school academic enrichment activities during the high school years.

My biggest leading roles have been in all of the clubs I hold a position of office in, being drum major of my school, and being captain of my dance team. Rachael believes a good leader is someone who can be encouraging and positive to others, as well as someone who can persuade others to work toward a common goal.

“A good leader is detail-oriented, and pays special attention to the little things in a big operation,” Rachael added.”

Berry also found time to be involved in several community service projects including Bright After School, which offers after school academic enrichment activities during the high school years.

“My biggest leading roles have been in all of the clubs I hold a position of office in, being drum major of my school, and being captain of my dance team. Rachael believes a good leader is someone who can be encouraging and positive to others, as well as someone who can persuade others to work toward a common goal.

“A good leader is detail-oriented, and pays special attention to the little things in a big operation,” Rachael added.”

Berry also found time to be involved in several community service projects including Bright After School, which offers after school academic enrichment activities during the high school years.