

More stringent emissions targets

President Barack Obama unveiled his plan to cut emissions from U.S. power plants. Sixteen states will have more stringent standards compared to the original proposal

