Snow days replaced with 'e-learning'

BY LISA JOHNSON
NEWS@MORAMINN.COM

From preschool through 12th grade students at Mora Schools will be participating in e-learning days if school is cancelled due to weather. With a variety of lessons and activities intended to extend classroom learning, students will engage in learning at home. The district is implementing this for the first time this year to provide continuous learning even on bad weather days.

PLANNING FOR E-LEARNING DAYS

Led by Director of Curriculum Instruction and Elementary Principal, PreK-2, Brenda Spartz, teachers began looking at the 2018 state statute to see what is mandated. E-learning days are specifically intended to take the place of a regular day when school is cancelled due to inclement weather. Districts may use up to five e-learning days in a school year, and when these days are used, students and staff do not have to make them up.

They also investigated what other districts did for their e-learning day by looking at school websites across the state to see various ways e-learning days were addressed. After checking out many sites and ideas, the teachers used a workshop day in November to adapt what they learned to what they wanted Mora e-learning days to look like. They took into consideration what an appropriate and reasonable workload would be and how special needs of students would be addressed.

All educators in the district were required to develop plans and activities for the e-learning days so that each teacher a child has during a school day will be a part of their e-learning experience.

For pre-grade five the e-learning plans come in the form of a grid or bingo card and students choose from a wide array of activities to fulfill

Youth, volunteers gear up for shooting sports season

BY KIM LUECK-FOSS
NEWS@MORAMINN.COM

Kanabec County 4-H Shooting Sports/Wildlife Management project held their kick-off event Monday, Jan 13 at the Kanabec County Courthouse in Mora. The event was held to offer information about the project, have questions answered, meet the volunteers who run the project, enroll in 4-H and register for the project.

4-H is America's largest youth development organization, empowering nearly 6 million young people across the U.S. with the skills to lead for a lifetime. It is an out-of-school, hands-on learning program for people ages 5 – 19. Youth choose a project or a variety of projects with a subject that is interesting to them and explore it with peers and caring adults. 4-H clubs are groups of youth who want to learn together and meet in every part of Minnesota. Cooperative Extension is a community of more than 100 public universities across the nation that provide the experiences and programs that include mentoring and career readiness as core elements. There is a national network of 500,000 volunteers and 3,500 4-H professionals.

Based on their interest youth develop their own pathway in 4-H, they select from a broad menu of local programs. 4-H offers learning experiences in science, photography, agriculture, healthy living, civic engagement and much more with one-day events, year-long projects and everything in between. The county fair is the year end showcase for what the youth have learned. They may bring a live animal or a display type project to the fair where they will sit down to a one on one interview with a judge, this encounter helps youth develop job interview skills. They are judged on their knowledge of the subject and the finished display or animal. Those who are age eligible and receive the highest placings may choose to take their projects to the state fair.

KIM LUECK-FOSS | TIMES

A crowd of youth and parents gathered for more information on how to join Kanabec County 4-H's shooting sports program.

The Shooting Sports project has between 75 – 80 youth sign up on average per year in Kanabec County and is run by

Mora man charged with sexual assault of child

STAFF REPORT
NEWS@MORAMINN.COM

Mark Allen Lee, 58, of Mora was charged Dec. 2 with two felony counts of criminal sexual conduct in the first degree.

According to the criminal complaint filed by the Kanabec County Court Administrator's Office, Lee reportedly engaged in sexual penetration of the victim with his fingers and penis. The events occurred approximately in November 2019; the victim, a female juvenile under age 13, was known to Lee.

Each felony charge has a maximum sentence of a $40,000 fine and/or 30 years in prison. Lee's next court date is scheduled for March 20, 2020 at the Kanabec County Courthouse.

Jensen retires from Mora Area Fire Department

Last month, after 37 years on the fire department, firefighter Bob Jensen(l) retired. Bob wore many helmets at the fire department, including assistant fire chief and fire chief. To honor him Chief Anderson(r) and the department congratulated Jensen by presenting him with a plaque. We wish him all the best in his retirement and thank him for many years of service.

Use caution when approaching an accident

Ask A Trooper
Neil Dickenson

Question: I was driving on I-35 on a winter night when I saw emergency lights flashing ahead. I moved over and slowed down but when I approached the accident scene I found I was in the lane of the accident. From a distance I could not decipher what side of the road the lights were flashing. There was too much traffic to quickly move over to the other lane safely. Do Minnesota patrol vehicles have the ability to flash directional lights to indicate what lane we should move over to? This sure would have been a help. Thank you.

Answer: Our patrol units are equipped with a directional amber arrow or directional lights that are either located near the rear window or on the light bar on top of the roof.

We are trained to make a crash scene as safe as possible. We will place our patrol vehicles behind the scene to protect everyone involved.

Our goal is to be highly visible with the use of our emergency lights and bright colored vests or jackets.

If we have time and it is safe to do so, we also may set up traffic cones or flares. We also may have other emergency vehicles place their vehicles at a safe distance behind the scene. They can help warn approaching drivers to slow down and be prepared to merge lanes or stop if needed.

When you see flashing emergency lights, please reduce your speed, be prepared to merge lanes and possibly stop. Look for the directional amber lights and safely move over. Watch out for other vehicles that might be slowing down quickly in front of you, especially when the road conditions are poor.

SERGEANT NEIL DICKENSON is Minnesota State Patrol public information officer for the state's northeast region. If you have any questions concerning traffic related laws in Minnesota, please send your questions to: Sgt. Neil Dickenson – Minnesota State Patrol at 1131 Mesaba Ave, Duluth, MN 55811. CONSERVATION OPERATIONS

The following Minnesota Department of Natural Resources conservation officer weekly reports explain the activities performed by Division of Enforcement personnel in protecting Minnesota's natural resources through effective law enforcement and education. Provided by the MN DNR on Jan. 13, 2020.

Mora: Conservation Officer Mike Krauel spent the week checking anglers and patrolling for snowmobiles. Krauel also spent time following up on big-game cases and on equipment maintenance.

Milaca: Conservation Officer Nathan Benkofske reports checking anglers on local lakes and following up on TIP calls. Enforcement action was taken for angling without a license, not having shelters licensed and various ATV violations. Ice conditions have been improving with the diminishing snow levels on the lakes. An investigation was also completed, which resulted in the loss of the subject's hunting privileges and fines for hunting deer with the aid of bait.

Hinckley: Conservation Officer Bret Grundmeier spent time checking the woods for trapping activity. Trapping had been slow during the winter season but a few trappers were still willing to make their way through the deep snow, mostly in search of bobcats and otters. Time was also spent working area lakes and snowmobile trails.

Pine City: Conservation Officer Ben Karon spent time this past week checking anglers on various lakes. He also conducted snowmobile patrols. Time was spent assisting with a possible lost person in the Nemadji State Forest. The person was located alive in another area.

Cambridge: Conservation Officer Angela Londgren checked anglers, snowmobile riders, and trappers. She also spoke at a snowmobile safety class. Calls were fielded regarding injured animals, snowmobile trespassing/damage and fish shelters. Londgren continues to work on a background investigation.

FIRE CALLS

Tuesday, Jan. 7: At approximately 11:58 a.m. the Mora Area Fire Department was called to a residence on 290th Ave. in Peace Township. They were called in on a possible dryer fire and possible issue with the electrical plug in. The homeowner heard some popping sounds, investigated and saw a small fire at the outlet of the dryer. The homeowner used a towel to extinguish the flame and removed the plug. Upon MAFD investigation, light smoke and an electrical fire smell was present. MAFD vented the residence upon homeowner request and using a thermal camera removed a 2 x 2 foot square of insulation to look for extension. They reviewed the scenario with the homeowner and cleared the scene.

Wednesday, Jan. 8: At approximately 4:44 p.m. the Mora Area Fire Department was called to Wood St., Mora to Teals and Tally to investigate a gas odor and malfunction of a gas stove top igniter. When the owner attempted to light the stove it did not light. She attempted to turn it off, but the ignition would not stop. MAFD checked the stove which was all in the off position with four gas meters and found no irregular readings. Upon inspection, it appeared the gas was plugged to the right rear burner and needed to be cleaned. MAFD stated that she should not use the burner until she had someone service the stove.

A practical spirit supports fiscal, environmental responsibility

One of the best gifts I received this Christmas was purchased secondhand. It was a simple gift — decorative tags to mark the plants in my vegetable garden. Another secondhand gift: a jigsaw puzzle (yes, it still had all the pieces.)

Editor
Kirsten Faurie

Giving a gift purchased secondhand seems taboo at first; I hope that is a societal stigma we can change.

Not only is buying used really quite practical, purchasing secondhand also embodies a few of my personal values including fiscal responsibility and reducing needless consumption. There is already enough "stuff" in the world without us manufacturing more of it.

STRAWS

While we are on the topic of unnecessary stuff, please stop it with stainless steel straws.

A year or so ago it seems the whole world saw a video of a sea turtle with a plastic straw stuck deep in its nose. The people who found the turtle removed the straw, which was obviously uncomfortable for the turtle.

It brought even more attention to the issue of plastics in the ocean. The massive amounts of trash entering the oceans is indeed concerning. It makes me sick thinking about it. Unfortunately, companies have taken advantage of our worries; they started making metal straws and marketed them as a way to save the turtles.

... using an aluminum straw may be better than a plastic one, but mining iron ore is the exact opposite of helping the environment.

Stop it.

One, why do you need a straw at all? Do we not know how to drink straight out of a cup? I'll make an exception for people who are ill or have some kind of a disability making it difficult to drink from a cup; I'll also admit straws are handy at preventing spills in toddler hands.

Two, using an aluminum straw may be better than a plastic one, but mining iron ore is the exact opposite of helping the environment.

Straws, if needed, are more sustainably made out of paper.

A PRACTICAL SPIRIT

The way to save the environment or help turtles isn't through buying more stuff. These things are better accomplished by buying less.

Approach shopping with a practical spirit. Buy used if you can. Buy higher quality if you can. If you can do without, do without. While you might not feel instantly rewarded by a trip to the store, the rewards will come over time with more money in your wallet, less clutter in your home and less junk in landfills and oceans.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Remembering Julie

To the editor,

A big thank you to the Times and your editor, Kirsten. What a beautiful tribute to our beloved Julie Lang, and how fitting to show how she always showed her concern and love for others, even though she was also exhausted. A smile, a joke and a very funny song and dance were all part of this wonderful woman.

Julie had a dream that every county in Minnesota have a Kick Cancer to the Curb: as she spent so much time with other cancer patients in various hostipals, she saw the same financial struggles others went through. Part of her dream came through as Mille Lacs County started their own Kick Cancer to the Curb and the Harbor Room and oncology department in Cambridge started helping cancer patients.

All the volunteers want everyone to know that even though our beloved Julie has gone to be with our Savior, we will continue to carry on what Julie started, people helping people.

You will be dearly missed by all who knew you and loved you, and there will be an empty spot in all our hearts.

From all of us at Kick Cancer to the Curb a big thank you to her loving caregiver husband and her brother, Joel. God bless you all.

Need help or information contact Rita Tharp at 320-679-2047, Sharon Knoll at 320-679-4128 or a local oncology department.

A compromise to the refugee issue

To the editor,

I think a fair compromise on the refugee settlement issue is as follows: the county board should approve settlement of refugees in the county providing the refugees have a sponsor or sponsoring organization. The sponsoring organization would be responsible for providing food, shelter, clothing, insurance, transportation, ESL training and other needs that the refugees may have independent of any government programs (example that does not mean taking them to the food shelf for their food needs). The sponsors would have the fiscal responsibility of

HEARD ON THE STREET BY KIM LUECK-FOSS

At the Mora Library, Jan. 16, we asked the following question:

What does your dream home look like?

Kristen Peterson
Mora
A lake home with big windows, a nice yard, two stories with four bedrooms and a big kitchen.

Julie Freschette
Hinckley
An open floor concept with copious windows, a turret with a reading nook and a spiral staircase to get to it. Two stories, three bedrooms and a wrap around porch

Katherine Jordan
Mora
One story with four bedrooms in the woods with a big fireplace, a wall of windows in the living room, a big back porch with a rocking chair and a big backyard with no neighbors.

Mac Lucking
Mora
A little country cottage with a small basement, a shed out back for an art studio, two bedrooms, nice open kitchen, lots of light, plenty of space in the backyard for a garden and quiet but not isolated.

Jenni Lachney
Mora
A two story, four bedroom, two bath, light blue lake home with a hot tub, breakfast nook and a really big open family room.

Tanner Axelson

taking care of the refugees for two years or until the refugees were able to support themselves. The people that would like to see refugees settled here would have a vested interest in the success of the settlement and it would not stretch our already thin social service budget. For those that want the resettlement they would be able to put their money where their values are.

Thankful for Mora School District

To the editor,

This past week I was fortunate to accompany the Mora School Board in participating in the Minnesota School Board Association's annual conference. This meeting is filled with inspirational speakers, innovative education programs, updates on the legalities of school financing and networking with board members from other districts.

We attended presentations from schools around the state that showcased the successes of their districts. It is an amazing event that packs so much information into two days that it can be overwhelming. This type of continuing education brings me renewed strength and excitement for the work to be done by our school board.

As I was driving back to Mora I was attempting to organize my thoughts on all I had learned. I wanted to come up with one or two actionable ideas to bring back to my community.

Replaying all I had witnessed and learned I had one emotion that kept presenting itself as I thought of how the Mora School District lines up with the rest of the state and that emotion was gratitude. I am truly grateful for every member of our district (employees and volunteers alike). We all should be.

They change lives every day, and it's not easy. From safely transporting our students, feeding them healthy meals, teaching them to read and write while supporting them through the struggles and successes of life.

We have a staff that steps up everyday and makes a difference. Please join me in thanking everyone at the Mora School District, we are blessed to have them.

Reduce conflicts with your boss

AMERICAN COUNSELING ASSOCIATION
CONTRIBUTED

If you're in a work situation where you have a strong, positive relationship with that supervisor or boss above you, congratulations. While it definitely does happen, this is not always the case for many of us in our jobs.

Good relationships with a supervisor require effort on your part, but it's effort that pays dividends. Studies have shown that one of the most important things affecting someone's job performance, stress levels and overall job satisfaction and happiness is the relationship they have with the person above them.

Your work relationship will usually improve when you take a more proactive role in creating that relationship. You can start by trying to understand what is important to him or her as a person. Are there pet peeves or things about your department or company that matter greatly to him or her? Is your boss stuck with having a difficult boss?

'It may not be clear why a meeting was rescheduled or that deadline moved, but it wasn't done simply to upset you.'

A basic rule is to try to understand what your supervisor actually expects from you. It isn't always obvious. You may need to ask questions and seek clarification. Does he or she value timely reports, meeting deadlines and showing initiative? Is a certain dress code important? Are there things that may seem trivial to you but that matter to him or her? Understanding what's important to your boss makes it easier to meet those goals or to discuss alternatives that will keep him or her satisfied.

It also helps to be flexible and understanding. It may not be clear why a meeting was rescheduled or that deadline moved, but it wasn't done simply to upset you. Understand that your boss also faces deadlines and pressure. Most bosses appreciate employees who can accept that there was usually a good reason for the changes.

It's important to open up communication. Take the initiative. Keep him or her up to date on how things are progressing, and make it easy for your boss to talk to you. Share ideas and concerns, and give weight to the things that your boss seems troubled by.

Make building a positive relationship with your boss part of your responsibilities. Recognize that it starts with you. None of us is capable of changing another person, only ourselves. Working to establish a relationship with your boss that shows your understanding and flexibility can lead to a more positive, enjoyable work environment where sharing ideas and positive accomplishments can flourish.

Youth in foster care need permanent homes

JODI RAIDT AND HEIDI WISTE
LUTHERAN SOCIAL SERVICES OF MINNESOTA

Many Minnesotans might be surprised to learn that most children who are adopted in Minnesota today are not coming from China, Colombia, Malawi or India. They are children right in our own backyard.

Today, 905 of 10,000 children in foster care in Minnesota have an immediate need for a permanent and loving family. Almost 60 percent of children in foster care are siblings. They also tend to be older children.

Mike and Megan Nelson, who knew of the great need for foster families, decided to take a leap of faith and walk through the education and training involved to become foster parents. They were also open to adoption. As a blended family, the Nelsons have two older children at home and several adult children who are now on their own. With available space in their home, love for children and a willingness to learn, they knew they could make a difference. Last year, they opened their home to three sisters, ages 12 to 17, with whom they have developed a special bond. So special, that this month – National Adoption Month – the sisters are officially joining the Nelson family through adoption.

If you've ever wondered about adopting children from foster care, here's what the Nelsons want you to know:

- All kids deserve to be loved and cherished in a family.
- Be ready to care for children with special needs. While children may have mental health, developmental or physical challenges, a wealth of resources are available to support families and help children succeed.
- It takes more than love. Time, patience and intention are needed to understand a child's unique situation and provide support they need to thrive.
- Openness with biological family members, when that's possible, provides opportunities for children to connect with their roots and enrich their lives.
- Adoption financial assistance is available to support children adopted from foster care until they reach age 18 or graduate from high school.

Our organizations at Lutheran Social Service of Minnesota and Children's Home Society of Minnesota have been working with families over decades to equip them with the education and support they need to welcome children into their homes and lives through foster care and adoption. For families who want to provide permanence for children in foster care, there is little-to-no cost for adoption and there is support available for the journey.

It takes a leap of faith to raise a child – whether they are coming to us biologically or through foster care adoption. If you've ever considered welcoming a child into your home as a foster or adoptive parent, we encourage you to learn more. All children need a loving family. These kids are depending on us.

Elder care video monitoring offers protection from abuse

LARISSA FISHER
OFFICE OF OMBUDSMAN FOR LONG-TERM CARE

Elderly and vulnerable adults now have the right to conduct electronic monitoring, such as with a camera or video streaming device, thanks to a law passed by the 2019 Legislature.

If the resident lacks capacity to make decisions, the law allows for resident representatives to make the decision with the resident.

Electronic monitoring is the placement of a camera or video streaming device in a resident's room to help the resident, family and others monitor their surroundings and resident care. If a resident occupies a shared room, their roommate must also provide consent. The law also prohibits interfering with electronic monitoring and requires facilities to comply with these requirements.

As part of the Elder Care and Vulnerable Adult Protection Act of 2019, the new electronic monitoring law is one of a series of protections for elderly and vulnerable Minnesotans which took effect Jan. 1, 2020.

"The new electronic monitoring law in Minnesota mandates facilities to inform residents of their right to install monitoring devices and have consent forms available," says Cheryl Hennen, State Ombudsman for Long-Term Care.

"Most often residents and family members consider the use of monitoring devices as protection against abuse. If the resident or the resident's representative fears retaliation as a result of placing an electronic monitoring device, they may install and run the monitoring device for 14 days without giving notice to the facility, provided they submit the consent form to the Office of the Ombudsman of Long-Term Care."

The Office of the Ombudsman for Long-Term Care advocates for adults needing or receiving long-term care. Call 651-431-2555 for more information.

SNOW: Bad weather + school cancellation = e-learning for students their responsibility. The time involved depends on the activities chosen.

Grades six through 12 will be required to use their school issued iPads or Chromebooks to complete assignments unless otherwise directed by their teachers. Work for each subject of their day should take about 15-20 minutes to complete.

PARENT AND STUDENT EDUCATION

A key component of the district's plan is education of parents and students of the e-learning days and the expectations for both. At fall conferences parents were told about the days and how they would work and given a handout which answered questions they may have. For younger grades, folders were sent home with material for parents to pull out on those days for their children to use to complete activities.

Teachers are responsible for instructing students on what is expected of them on an e-learning day, how to use assigned materials and how to access materials online if necessary.

NO INTERNET? NO WORRIES

When thinking of using technology at home to complete assignments or participating in an e-learning day the question always arises—what about the families who don't have internet access?

In actuality it is a non issue for the e-learning day. Although much of the work will be done on either a student's Chromebook or iPad, all learning activities can be downloaded onto the students' devices whether it be a textbook, video or assignment, or paper copies can be given. The responsibility then falls on the parents and students to let teachers know if they don't have internet access so work can be downloaded while the student is at school.

With today's accuracy of storm prediction schools have the ability to predict potential snow days so teachers can be proactive in assisting students for an e-learning day assuring that they have the materials they need to be successful.

ACCOUNTABILITY

Students will be held accountable for work done on e-learning days. The younger students will bring in their grids or bingo cards and work with parent signatures, and older students will return their work or submit it online. Students will have five calendar days to turn in work after the e-learning day or will be given an excused absence. Assignments done and turned in count as attendance for that day of school and will count as a part of student assessment.

Because Mora Schools have had one school day cancelled due to weather, the next snow/cold day will be an e-learning day, and all the planning by the district and its teachers will be put into action. Principal Spartz is excited about the creativity of the lessons the staff has planned and the continuity in learning that e-learning days will offer. She said, "I was really impressed with how the teachers embraced e-learning and how much effort they gave in making the whole process work and their creativity. I can't wait to actually do one."

Week of Jan. 23 - Jan. 29
HOROSCOPES

ARIES - Mar 21/Apr 20
Various opportunities may be coming your way soon, Aries. Some unique business dealings may suddenly provide some options that you never had before.

TAURUS - Apr 21/May 21
Taurus, the time has come to focus on the relationships in your life, especially a romantic one. That means spending more time with a spouse or a significant other.

GEMINI - May 22/Jun 21
Gemini, after many weeks of trying to solve a difficult problem, you have a classically clever move of inspiration. The time for big changes is now.

CANCER - Jun 22/Jul 22
Put some domestic plans in motion, Cancer. Devote extra time this week to fun activities with a son, daughter or another family member. Get creative with ideas.

LEO - Jul 23/Aug 23
A wonderful breakthrough occurs when you least expect it, Leo. If you have had real estate on the mind, it could be to that end. Enjoy your well-earned success.

VIRGO - Aug 24/ Sept 22
Brilliant insight needs an outlet, Virgo. You may have just the thing in a plan for a book, craft project, educational experience, or much more.

LIBRA - Sept 23/Oct 23
Libra, you are looking for solutions, but you may be focused on short-term fixes instead of looking at the long-term picture. Don't get caught up in the here and now.

SCORPIO - Oct 24/Nov 22
Everyone can benefit from a rebranding of sorts, Scorpio. Start jotting down ideas of what you want to accomplish and how to put your best foot forward.

SAGITTARIUS - Nov 23/Dec 21
It's time to cut through some brain fog that has been preventing you from moving forward, Sagittarius. Start by removing all outside distractions and getting down to business.

CAPRICORN - Dec 22/Jan 20
Capricorn, just when you thought your reached your quota for good ideas, you have a eureka moment later this week. Take full advantages of all opportunities that arise from it.

AQUARIUS - Jan 21/Feb 18
Don't take a "wait and see" attitude pertaining to your career, Aquarius. You need to grab the bull by the horns and make your own breaks. Don't procrastinate.

PISCES - Feb 19/Mar 20
Immerse yourself in a project that taps into the skills that you have long been afraid to develop, Pisces. It's good to push yourself at times.

125 YEARS AGO (1895)

The new court house is finally finished and furnished. The offices are furnished with oak desks and oak revolving chairs and the vaults are equipped with elegant steel book rollers and file cases, and in the courtroom are oak seats, chairs and tables. Geo. D. Barnard & Co., St. Louis, Mo, furnished the building and their goods fill the bill to the entire satisfaction of the officials. There are many larger court houses in the state but we do not hesitate to say that none of them are better constructed and furnished than ours. The building is large enough to meet the requirements of this county for the next twenty-five years and possibly longer.

In the Kent case the attorneys for the state and for the defense have decided on the 25 of February on which to argue the case to the supreme court. As was also agreed between the attorneys, the supreme court has issued a stay of the execution of Kent till after the hearing of the issues raised before the supreme court.---Mandan Pioneer.

100 YEARS AGO (1920)

Henry M. Halvorson, our local hardware dealer, returned home last Saturday evening from New York City, where in company with A. L. Noel of Princeton, he attended the truck show. Mr. Halvorson is one of the stockholders in the new truck company, which will be known as the A. L. Noel Company, incorporated. The new concern will have headquarters at Minneapolis and will handle Dearborn trucks and Warner trailers. A meeting was held at Princeton yesterday by members of the company.

Kanabec County has about 60 chickens per farm according to records at University Farm. Kanabec County added $375,000 to make up the grand total of $60,980,000 from Minnesota poultry. This may seem a large amount to those not acquainted with poultry figures. The poultry industry of Kanabec County deserves more consideration on the part of the farmers, businessmen and townsmen of within the county.

75 YEARS AGO (1945)

With a record attendance at its last regular meeting held at the U. S. Employment office, the members of Henry Bergquist Post No. 201 of the American Legion voted to either build a club house or to equip a large room in the Community Center building that this community plans to build after the war.

The American Legion expects to exceed its all high membership during the year 1945. When the war is over and the service men and women come back, the Henry Bergquist Post No. 201 of Mora expects to have a membership of several hundred. Available room must be provided for this large group.

Mora fans saw their basketball team win again last Friday as the Blue Devils overran the Isle Indians, 44-27, on the local floor.

In the first few minutes the Mora boys worked the ball down the floor for many baskets before Isle could get going. At this, the Indians began fighting, but in vain, as they could roll up only three points to end the first quarter at 15 to 3 for Mora.

The second quarter showed the tide turning as the Indians put in a total of 11 points. Naumann caged quite a few to give the Blue Devils a 23-14 lead over Isle at the half.

During the half there was a performance by Mora drum majorettes and by a girl's quartet, which was called back for an encore.

In the last half the Indians had a hard time working the ball through the Blue Devils' defense, so they had to rely on their long shots to boost their score.

The last quarter saw the Mora second team in and raising the score to 44 by the time the buzzer sounded, ending the game.

50 YEARS AGO (1970)

A crowd of some 300 warmly dressed anglers braved the 20 below weather Sunday to compete in the annual fishing contest sponsored by the Knife Lake Sportsmen's club. Held just off TH 65 in the bay at Knife lake, anglers utilized pre-drilled holes during a two-hour stretch Sunday afternoon to try to catch a prize winner.

The fishing was about as bad as the weather. Dick Caron of Minneapolis walked off with the first prize of $200 cash for pulling in the largest fish--a 1.2-pound walleye. Of the two dozen fish caught, practically all of them were perch and they weren't big.

Anglers fished in three-foot water and were kept busy during the contest keeping their lines from freezing in and the holes open. Most came dressed for the event. Snowmobile suits, face masks, bunny boots and chopper mitts were the order of the day. A few of the contestants even erected canvas windshields and sat on catalytic heaters to last out the chilling contest.

The mercury dipped to near 40 below in Mora and Kanabec County Sunday through Tuesday during the early morning hours and daytime highs seldom budged above a balmy 15 below. A record 34 below reading in the Twin Cities tied a previous record low and most of the region could claim some of the lowest temperatures.

An action photo from last year's Mora Vasaloppet cross-country ski race is on the front cover of the 10th-anniversary issue of Silent Sports, which calls itself "Mid-America's aerobic recreational sport magazine."

Inside the February 1995 issue, Silent Sports brags up our 58-kilometer event, the longest ski race in North America, by calling it a "big brute of a race that supporters feel stands on its own quite well, thank you, when compared with the Cable carnival (American Birkebeiner) two weeks later." The magazine goes on to say the following: "The champion's wreath hung around the neck in Mora has about as much cachet among serious skiers as the Birkie."

Some preach to crowds, some stand on corners and hand out Bibles, some travel to foreign lands, but Tony Peterson shares the gospel in a nutshell, literally.

It all started for Tony five years ago when he was taken by ambulance to Abbott-Northwestern. It was his second trip to the hospital, the first ending with the bad news that nothing could be done for his heart condition, except medication. But the medication was no longer working.

Before leaving for that second trip, Tony's pastor prayed that doctors would find a way.

The doctors did find a way.

"I came out of that surgery feeling pretty good," he said. "I had a lot of prayer support all the while I was in the hospital, and I really felt it was an answer to prayer. When I woke up I had a conviction that I better get up. Just like somebody was telling me to get up and get that gospel in the nutshell. So when I got home, my wife and I walked uptown and went into Nelson's Variety, and right away I saw a three-inch wooden heart, and I said, 'Boy there it is! That's just what I need!

Tony bought a few of the hearts, cracked a few walnuts in half, printed John 3:16 on a thin-strip of paper which would fit into the nutshell half, and then very cleverly figured out that a small nail driven crossways through the nutshell half and a large enough magnet on the heart would hold the two pieces together.

"I had to experiment until I got the right magnet to hold the shell. I found the right one, and it had a drawing power that would pull the shell right into it," he said.

There he had it. The gospel in a nutshell.

Make the greatest commandment your New Year's resolution

As we enter 2020 lets make a commitment to the first and greatest resolution which Jesus referred to as the first and greatest commandment.

Focus on Faith
Steve Ekholm

In Matthew 22:34-38 Jesus is sharing his final message to mankind before he makes his way to the cross.

What did he say to us before he left the earth? Jesus said, "Love the Lord your God with all your heart and with all your soul and with all your mind. This is the first and greatest commandment."

That's it. Jesus is calling us to make a resolution to love God with everything we have. In that final message we know the heart of God, the will of God and the mission of God. In his final message Jesus takes the heart of Deuteronomy 6 and 30 into one simple statement, "Love God."

Just think about that. Our God who is all powerful and majestic desires His creation to voluntarily love Him. In all of His power and authority he could make His creation love him, but instead he gave His creation a choice to love Him or reject Him. Knowing this, God does whatever he can to woo His creation back to Him. We see in scripture that God uses prophets to call His creation back to His love. He uses altars, the tabernacle and temple as a way to reveal himself to His creation. He uses supernatural means such as angelic encounters, signs, wonders and miracles to show His love to His creation. His best way to woo His creation back to His love is by sending his son, Jesus, to make a payment and atonement for our sin. By that God is saying to us, "I set before you life and death, blessings and curses. Now choose life so that you may live." (Deut. 30:19)

The greatest thing that moves God is when a person voluntarily chooses to love Him. We first love Him by choosing to accept his son, Jesus, as our Savior by admitting we are sinners. Then believing in your heart and confessing with your mouth that Jesus is Lord and that God raised him from the dead, you will be saved. (Romans 10:8-13) We love God by building a relationship with Him through studying the Bible, praying, learning to listen to His voice and holding fast to Him or abiding with Him.

When we set our hearts on loving God he will do this for us. He will rescue us, protect us, answer us, be with us in trouble, deliver us, honor us and satisfy us with a long life. (Psalms 90:14-15)

This year let's make a resolution to make the first and greatest commandment our top priority in how we do life.

MORA BOYS BASKETBALL

Gears mesh as games grind

BY SCOTT MCKINNEY
NEWS@MORAMINN.COM

This season's Mora Mustangs boys basketball team is a team "in depth" this season, a group of varsity players who maintain a high level of play and have the potential of being starters.

"We talk about things 'clicking,' things going together in the right order, and I think the gears are starting to mesh," said head coach Curt Grachek. "Our players are getting comfortable relying on each other. For example, the guys are trusting that the player coming in will play as hard as the one he replaces. We're starting a deeper team than usual, and the guys coming off the bench are close to being starters themselves."

After 13 games the Mustangs hold a 9-4 record, third place in the Granite Ridge Conference and seventh in Section 6AA. They've won eight of their last nine games and assembled a six-game winning streak, including a 49-40 win this week over longtime rival Aitkin.

Last year Mora finished at 10-16, eighth in the GRC and 13th in the section, and were eliminated from postseason play with a loss to Spectrum.

This year the Mustangs face strong competition, Grachek said. "We have a number of top-10 teams in our section, and this isn't an easy conference either. We're kind of in the 'meat grinder' stretch of our season; but that isn't all bad, because I think we have everything we need. Our guys are comfortable, confident, at ease with the game on the floor."

"Ben Wright, a junior, has shown himself to be a quality player this year. He's let himself play more aggressively and consistently. I think he's scoring 17 points a game so far."

Grachek is as confident in his players as they are in themselves. "We're a fun team to watch," he said. "We've had four losses but they've all been close; none of them have been blowouts. And we're a different team now than we were in those games. Come out any night, and you'll see an exciting game."

After the Mustangs traveled to Zimmerman on Jan. 21 they return home to host Albany on Friday, Jan. 24 and St. Cloud Cathedral on Jan. 28.

After a disappointing 2018-19 season the Ogilvie Lions boys basketball team began 2019-20 with two solid wins on their home court.

"Last year I had the opportunity to coach our junior-high guys," said first-year head coach Sam Weaver. "And this year, to fill our varsity and junior varsity rosters, we pulled up five of our eighth-graders. So they have the opportunity to play at that level, to get experience and build confidence."

"I believe a basketball game is made up of a number of smaller games, a number of opportunities to win. So we're focusing on those little wins, and having them all add up to the bigger wins. We always compare how we're doing with our first week of practice, and see how far we've advanced."

The Lions defeated Math and Science Academy 55-52 on Dec. 16, and North Lakes Academy 63-47 on Jan. 9. After nine games they hold a 2-7 record, eighth place in the Great River Conference and 11th in Section 5 A South.

"During the North Lakes Academy game, you could see that our guys were on point and ready to go," said Weaver. "We did just about everything right. That by far has been our best game so far."

Last spring the team finished with a 0-22 record, eighth in the GRC and 10th in the subsection, and was eliminated from postseason play by a loss to Onamia.

Besides activating younger players, Weaver said a key difference has been the leadership of older players. "We have three seniors on this year's team. One is a returning veteran, one transferred in from another school, and one hasn't played since sixth grade. The three show exactly the right kind of character that I try to implement on our team. At the same time, we have a sophomore class that has been grinding for years now."

Weaver's goals for postseason play are clear. "I just want to open some eyes," he said. "When a team sees that it's matched up with Ogilvie, I want them to have to dig into the scouting report."

This week the Lions begin a stretch of road games: they will travel to Northland, Isle, Pine City, St. John's Prep and Rush City before returning home to host Onamia on Jan. 30.

Ogilvie's positive potties brighten school day

RACHEL SCHMELTZER | TIMES

Ogilvie guidance counselor Mari Ringness (left) and High School Principal Sue Davis (right) collaborated with students and community businesses to install positive messages in Ogilvie school bathrooms.

BY RACHEL SCHMELTZER
NEWS@MORAMINN.COM

Ogilvie High School recently installed inspirational decals to help brighten students days and let them know in spite of their daily struggles, each student is appreciated and valued.

These decals have been placed on the outside of the stalls in the boys and girls bathrooms where students are sure to notice, and include quotes such as "Stand up for what is right, even if you're standing alone."

It began as a collaboration between high school Principal Sue Davis and Guidance Counselor Mari Ringness. While visiting Pine City, Mrs. Davis noticed they had these decals at their school. Around the same time Mrs. Ringness had come across similar decals online, and after speaking together, both thought it could be a fun way to let students know their emotional well being matters.

"We hope to inspire the kids and uplift their day. We can all use positive messages, and we want them to know they are strong and resilient, as well as a reminder to be kind," said Mrs. Ringness.

Mrs. Davis met with Branch Manager Laurie Leciejewki, at Spire Credit Union in Ogilvie to see if they would be willing to fund the project. Spire donated all the monies needed to buy decals for every bathroom at the high school.

Mrs. Ringness purchased them locally from Bethany Hauner out of Rush City, and Ogilvie students in art and OWN It volunteered their time to help do the decorating.

Since returning from the holiday break, student response has been positive.

"I think they are cool, I like them. They brighten up the bathrooms," said junior Cassie DeVito.

"I think it's putting a positive aspect to your day," said sophomore Michaela Hagen.

Mrs. Ringness believes it encourages a positive attitude from the students, knowing the staff cares about them and wants to help make a difference in their day.

Art students have also been painting murals in the bathrooms and throughout the school. Mrs. Davis appreciates the students wanting to take ownership in making their school a warm, welcoming place for students, staff and visitors. Ogilvie staff continually strives to create a positive and caring environment in their school, and it's working.

Seventh-grader Thomas Stewart summed it up well by saying, "It lightens up the room and people's day."

4-H: Shooting sports offer youth life-long skills

approximately 24 screened volunteers around 18 of which are certified instructors trained by the University of Minnesota. Most of the instructors are trained in multiple disciplines. Certified instructor trainings are usually held twice per year.

They begin their weekly meetings Feb. 3 at Almost Yours Gun and Pawn, which donates time at their indoor range for participants to practice archery, BB gun and air rifle through May. From May through September they add .22 rifle, shotgun and muzzleloader practice at Kanabec Conservation Club, the space there is also donated. This program is designed to help teach youth teamwork, self-discipline, leadership, marksmanship and outdoor skills.

The Wildlife Management part of the project is headed up by volunteers Faye Lilyerd and Mickie Hessenius who hold workshops, camp outs, hikes, skill-a-thons, games and other activities to teach youth about the outdoor environment that surrounds them. They teach wildlife identification through tracks, furs and skulls. They hold workshops where youth have hands on learning building bird, bat and butterfly houses. They may have speakers from the forestry department, trappers or beekeepers. They have planted trees and a pollination plot with seeds and plants donated by Pheasants Forever. They teach youth the basics of wildlife including orienteering, using a compass, to get kids out into nature. These workshops are open to youth of all ages.

Volunteer Nick Schroeder said, "We need a lot of manpower and we get good support from the county, the volunteers and parents. That is why we are in the top three at the state level." The state shoot hosts 16 events at several different experience levels and classes awarded to 10 places. There are four youth to a team and they are scored on a point system. In the past two years Kanabec County teams have placed in the top three in many events 29 times.

Jodi Bakke, interim program coordinator, said that the reason this project is so successful is "the volunteers all have a great passion they enjoy sharing with the kids; they are so dedicated."

Several volunteers pointed to Dan Porter for answers calling him the "heart of our program." Porter has been a certified instructor/volunteer for 16 years and is trained in six different disciplines. Porter said, "The 4-H program and the shooting sports project is good for kids, it gives them lifelong skills." He also attributes the program's success to "the instructors and the willingness of the kids to become better."

The program ends in September, the weekend after Labor Day at the state shoot which will be held in Alexandria this year. Porter said, "The outcome of the program is to teach these youth athletes a lifelong sport that anyone can do no matter who or what they are. We teach that a gun is not bad, it is a tool used to enjoy the sport. It gets kids involved outside and off their electronics."

Youth may enroll in 4-H, the shooting sports or any other project at any time of the year, however it is best to sign up early so they can get the full experience. For more information call the Kanabec County Extension office at 320-679-6340 or go online to z.umn.edu.4h-projects.

Couple makes a perfect Ma+ch

She gave him her heart; he gave her a kidney.

BY KIRSTEN FAURIE
EDITOR@MORAMINN.COM

Johanna Deithelm gave her husband her heart. She never would have imagined that less than a decade after their wedding day, he would be giving her a kidney.

Johanna first met Joe Deithelm through a mutual friend in May 2006. The two were married on Nov. 20, 2010. Today, they live on Fish Lake just south of Mora. Johanna works as a housing access coordinator for Mentoring Professionals and Joe works for East Central Energy.

"Life was just getting good," recalled Johanna.

About a year before their wedding day, Johanna's lower back was sore. After consulting doctors she was diagnosed with Primary Focal segmental glomerulosclerosis (FSGS).

FSGS is a chronic disease that causes scarring within the kidneys and can lead to kidney failure.

Doctors gave her an estimated life expectancy of 10 more years; and about five years into that she would need a new kidney. Even with a new kidney, the FSGS would likely begin attacking the new kidney.

"It was scary. We weren't expecting anything like that," said Joe. Being young and in a new relationship full of hope for the future, the diagnosis was "kind of like running into a brick wall."

With changes to her diet and medication, Johanna was able to slow the damage being done to her kidneys. Until January, 2019.

SUBMITTED

Johanna and Joe Deithelm take one last picture together in the hospital waiting room before kidney transplant surgery — giving one of Joe's healthy kidneys to Johanna who's own kidneys were failing.

At the beginning of 2019 her kidney function began to deteriorate rapidly.

As her kidney function declined, Johanna's next step was to be put on dialysis treatment as she waited on the organ transplant list.

Johanna and Joe were prepared to wait a long time on the transplant list —an estimated minimum of 5 years. As Johanna was screened to make sure she was eligible to receive a kidney, inquiries began into family and friends who could potentially donate.

Joe was first to sign up.

Shortly after, Joe received a call. He was a match.

Instead of waiting five years, Johanna found her kidney in three months.

"Everything worked perfectly," Joe said.

ARE YOU SURE?

Leading up to the day of the surgery, Joe said he was repeatedly examined to make sure he was physically, financially and mentally ready for donating his kidney. Joe was questioned countless times if he was certain he wanted to go through with the transplant — even from Johanna herself.

On June 27, 2019, they drove to the hospital for surgery. "I tried to talk him into going back home," Johanna laughed.

At the hospital, after final checks and questions, they were each taken to their own surgery rooms.

When they woke up, Joe remembered being in extreme pain.

The rest of recovery was a bit of a blur of medications, rest and support from family. Since the transplant, Johanna's FSGS has thus far been dormant. So far, it hasn't affected her new kidney. Johanna and Joe said they hope it stays that way.

JUST ONE

Today, Joe admits he was a little reluctant to donate a kidney. What would be the implications if he gave one up, and his remaining kidney failed?

He consulted others who had gone through the kidney transplant process, including former Gopher hockey player and current hockey analyst Pat Micheletti who was a kidney recipient in 2015.

Joe said Pat convinced him, "If you have the opportunity to donate a kidney to someone who needs it, do it," said Joe. "What the heck —all I need is one."

The children were also worried. Between Joe and Johanna, they have five children between the ages of 15 and 27.

Joe's willingness to donate his kidney gave their mom a new lease on life.

"It's a couple weeks of pain to save someone's life. To me, it's worth it," Joe said.

Today, the couple regularly attend fundraisers for the National Kidney Foundation and share their story to educate others on the importance of organ donation.

TALKING WITH THE EXPERTS

Thousands affected by Alzheimer's disease

UNIVERSITY OF MINNESOTA
CONTRIBUTED

In Minnesota, 97,000 people are projected to have Alzheimer's disease in 2019. Joseph Gaugler with the University of Minnesota answers questions about what Alzheimer's is, its symptoms and risk factors.

Q: What is Alzheimer's disease?

Alzheimer's is a type of dementia that causes problems with memory, thinking and behavior. It is the most common form of dementia, which is a general term used to describe impairments in mental function that compromise one's ability to carry out day-to-day activities. Alzheimer's disease is not a normal part of aging and worsens over time. There is no current cure for Alzheimer's disease, but symptoms are treatable, to a degree.

Q: What are symptoms of Alzheimer's and how is it diagnosed?

The earliest symptoms may include forgetting recent events or conversations. As Alzheimer's progresses, memory and other important mental functions (e.g., communication, ability to pay attention, judgment, visual perceptions) become more impaired. In the later stages of the disease, persons with Alzheimer's generally have significant difficulty performing basic activities to maintain independence.

Q: What are the risk factors for Alzheimer's?

Risk factors for Alzheimer's disease include:

- advancing age, as approximately one-third of people over the age of 85 are at risk of having Alzheimer's disease;
- having a family history, especially those with a parent, sibling or child with Alzheimer's disease;
- having various genetic dispositions such as the protein APOE4 which contributes to Alzheimer's;
- being a woman, as women are more likely to get Alzheimer's disease;
- having lower education;
- being African American or Latinx;
- having high blood pressure, high cholesterol and poorly controlled diabetes.

There is no one test for Alzheimer's. Instead, specialists use a number of approaches to help come to a conclusion of a diagnosis. These include obtaining a medical and family history, neuropsychological tests, blood tests and brain imaging.

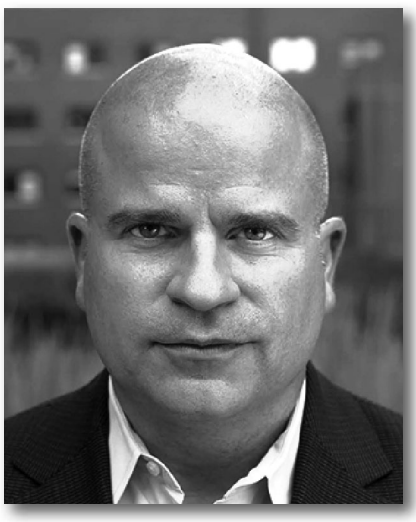
Q: Are there any treatments for Alzheimer's?

There are two types of medications that are approved to treat Alzheimer's disease: acetylcholinesterase inhibitors, which increase certain chemicals in the brain called neurotransmitters, and memantine, which blocks certain receptors in the brain that may damage nerve cells. The benefits of these drugs vary from person to person and do so for a limited period of time.

Non-pharmacological approaches to treat other complex symptoms of Alzheimer's disease, such as behavioral challenges, have shown promise. Larger-scale, higher-quality research is needed.

Q: What are you doing to expand research on Alzheimer's?

Our research has focused on evaluating innovative services and programs to support persons with dementia and their family caregivers. This includes several multi-year studies funded by the National Institute on Aging and Agency for Healthcare Research and Quality to determine the effectiveness of:



UNIVERSITY OF MINNESOTA | SUBMITTED
Joseph Gaugler's research interests include the sources and effectiveness of long-term care for older adults with dementia.

- remote activity monitoring for people with dementia and their family caregivers living at home;
- a tele-health support program for family caregivers of a relative with memory loss living in a residential care facility;
- a national evaluation of family care management and support programs integrated into adult day service settings;
- an educational program to enhance the dementia care capability of senior volunteers in Minnesota;
- an online care planning tool for family caregivers of persons with dementia that generates individualized support recommendations.

JOSEPH GAUGLER is the Robert L. Kane Endowed Chair in Long-Term Care and Aging, professor and director of the Center on Aging in the University of Minnesota School of Public Health. His research interests include the sources and effectiveness of long-term care for older adults with dementia and the effectiveness of community-based and psychosocial services for older adults with memory concerns and their caregiving families.

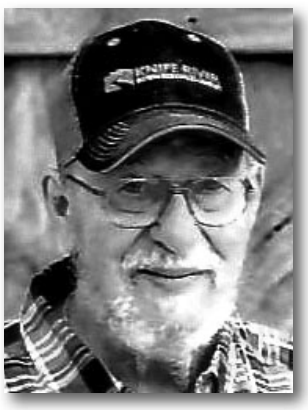
OBITUARIES

Richard C. Cramer

July 22, 1930 — Jan. 16, 2020

Richard Carl Cramer, of Mora, died on Thursday, Jan. 16, 2020, at his home. He was 89 years old.

He was born in St. Paul to Henry and Flora Cramer. He attended elementary school in St. Paul and was proud to receive his GED in 1981. He enlisted in the U.S. Army in 1952 and served during the Korean Conflict. He lived in St.Paul, Afton and Chisago City before retiring to Mora.



He was united in marriage to Adelia I.E. Schrade in June of 1957 and married JoAnn Wills in June of 1988. He was a forklift driver and elevator operator for 3M for 42 years. He was a member of the VFW, American Legion and Disabled American Veterans.

He loved a game of cribbage or horseshoes and enjoyed gambling when he got the chance. His favorite TV shows were war movies, westerns and gameshows. He liked walking for exercise and could often be spotted doing laps at Coborns. He liked to cook and made awesome homemade pickles and sauerkraut. He enjoyed his routine of heading to the bar and socializing with his friends.

He was preceded in death by his father, Henry in 1936; his mother, Flora in 1985; his wives, Adelia in 1993 and JoAnn in 2013; twin children in 1959; his sisters; Flossy, Audrey, Mary and Alice; and brothers, Warren, Joe and Edward.

He is survived by his son, Richard H. (Nancy) Cramer; granddaughters Sarah Mazzoni and Emily Cramer of Bloomington; sister, Nancy Mills of Alexandria; and brother, Bobby McKnight of St. Paul.

There was a visitation on Monday, Jan. 20, 2020 with a time of sharing at the Dresser Methven Funeral Home.

Warm up with a hearty breakfast

Breakfast long has been touted as the most important meal of the day. Early morning meals provide fuel for the day ahead. A bowl of cereal or a granola bar may make an ideal morning meal on hectic weekday mornings, but when time is not an issue, a delicious, hot breakfast can serve as a welcome change.

This recipe for "Cheddar Waffles With Pork Schnitzel, Country Ham and Sunny-Side-Up Egg" from "Fire in My Belly" (Andrews McMeel) by Kevin Gillespie makes for a hearty, flavorful way to begin your day.

CHEDDAR WAFFLES WITH PORK SCHNITZEL, COUNTRY HAM, AND SUNNY-SIDE-UP EGG

Feeds 4 hungry adults

Ingredients

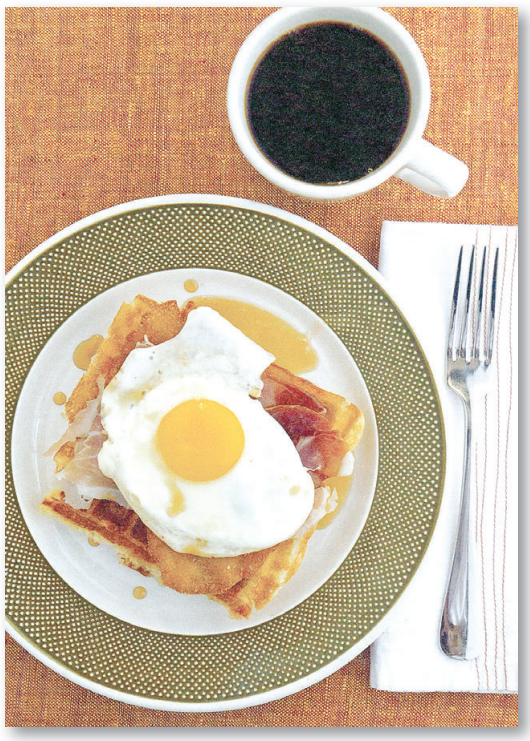
1/2 cup canola oil for frying
4 trimmed slices pork loin, about 11/2 ounces
Salt
1 cup all-purpose flour
6 large eggs
1 cup finely ground panko bread crumbs
1/2 cup pure maple syrup
4 tablespoons butter
4 thin slices country ham
Cheddar waffles (recipe follows)

Cheddar Waffles

2/3 cup all-purpose flour
1/8 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon baking powder
2 large eggs
1 cup whole milk
2 egg whites
1 tablespoon plus 1 teaspoon sugar
5 tablespoons plus 1 teaspoon melted butter, kept warm
2/3 cup grated cheddar cheese

Directions:

1. To make the waffles: Heat an electric Belgian-style waffle maker on the medium setting. Wait at least 10 minutes to make sure it's nice and hot.
2. In a large bowl, whisk together the flour, salt, and baking powder. In a separate bowl, whisk the eggs and milk. In a third, deep bowl, using a handheld mixer, beat the egg whites until frothy. With the mixer running, gradually add the sugar to the whites and continue beating until the whites form soft peaks when the mixer is lifted. Pour the milk mixture into the dry ingredients and stir with a large spoon just until no giant flour clumps remain; there will be some small lumps. Start whisking and slowly add the melted butter, whisking gently yet nonstop until incorporated. Gently fold the egg whites into the batter; you'll have a few small clumps of whites remaining — that's okay.
3. Generously coat the waffle maker with nonstick spray. Ladle about 1/2 cup batter onto the center of the waffle maker and sprinkle with a generous amount of the cheese. Close the top and cook according to the manufacturer's instructions. Repeat until all waffles are cooked.
4. Pour 2 inches of oil into a large cast-iron skillet.
5. Place the pork loin slices between two sheets of plastic wrap and gently and evenly pound them to a 1/4-inch thickness. Pat the pork dry with a paper towel and season with salt. Bread the pork using flour, dredge in 2 of the eggs, and then the panko. Fry the pork in the hot oil until golden brown, about 2 minutes on the first side and 1 minute on the other. Line a plate with a double layer of paper towels. Transfer the pork schnitzel to the paper towels to drain.
6. In a small skillet over low heat, bring the maple syrup to a low simmer. Pull the pan from the heat and whisk in 2 tablespoons of the butter until melted. Set to the side but keep warm.
7. Melt the remaining 2 tablespoons butter in a 12-inch skillet over medium-low heat and swirl to coat the bottom of the pan. Crack one egg into a small bowl and gently slide the egg into one side of the warmed skillet; repeat the process with the remaining eggs, each in its own section of the skillet. Season the eggs with a pinch of salt and cover the skillet. Reduce the heat to low and cook until the whites are fully cooked and opaque, about 4 minutes.
8. For each plate, set a waffle in the center and generously spoon some syrup over the waffle. Add a slice of schnitzel and spoon on a little more syrup. Top with a slice of ham, and crown with a sunny-side-up egg and, yes, a little more syrup.



Minnesota lakes and streams need a low-salt diet

MINNESOTA POLLUTION CONTROL AGENCY
CONTRIBUTED

As the snow and ice arrive, so does the recurring battle to manage paved surfaces. Salt – used to de-ice our paved surfaces – is commonly over-applied. We scatter an estimated 445,000 tons of chloride-laden salt in Minnesota each year. More than 70 percent of that mixes with stormwater and ends up in our lakes, rivers and streams, where it is toxic to fish and other aquatic life.

It takes only one teaspoon of salt in five gallons of water to exceed water quality standards for chloride and create conditions that harm aquatic life. There is no economically feasible way to remove chloride from water, so preventing chloride contamination is critical. Chloride from de-icing is one of the largest contributors to a growing salty water problem in Minnesota.

That crunch from sidewalk salt under your feet does not signify safety. People often think more salt equals more snow and ice melt. Salt is most effective when grains are scattered about 3 inches apart. Around 12 ounces – roughly a coffee mug full – effectively treats a 20-foot driveway or 10 sidewalk squares (about 1,000 square feet). Aim to apply salt consistently (e.g. with a spreader), and use only in critical areas.

Sweep up visible salt on dry surfaces. It is no longer doing any work and will be washed away into local waters. You can keep it to use later.

Shovel. The more snow and ice you remove, the less salt is needed to be effective.

De-icing salt doesn't melt ice when it's below 15 degrees outside. Sand doesn't melt ice but it does provide traction.

Look for signs of liquid salt application, which look like white strips on bare pavement. Many organizations are using liquid salt before a storm hits to prevent snow and ice buildup. This effective practice reduces salt use, provides great safety, and protects our environment.

When you need someone to shovel or plow for you, hire a certified Smart Salting contractor trained to reduce salt use. Advocate reducing salt use in your community, at schools, churches, local businesses and government.

For cities looking to reduce salt use and associated costs, the MPCA has a new model ordinance for municipal officials who are considering regulating the use of deicers. Learn more on the MPCA Smart Salting Training Certification page.

Visit the MPCA's Chloride webpage to learn more about the benefits of reducing salt use.
