The Votes Are In, And the Winners Are...

The publication you are holding in your hands, or reading online, is the result of many hours of work by our staff, but more importantly, the result of feedback from the many readers who voted on these outstanding merchants. Our thanks to our readers for taking time to study the ballot and vote on the entries they believe to be the best in the Greater Mount Airy area. Most assuredly, the results here are The Readers' Choice. How were the results determined that you see here? There were thousands of votes cast online. All the entries by categories were then counted electronically to obtain the results.

Our readers are the best year in and year out. For many years you have shown how much you like this special publication, and we appreciate your support. If you are a business owner and want to be included on the ballot next year, please email Advertising@ MtAiryNews.com. Our thanks to the advertisers that participated and to you for voting. Winners will be presented with a special "Mountie" award certificate for display at their place of business.

Top local businesses recognized with awards lunch

John Peters jpeters@mtairynews.com

Roughly 150 area business owners and managers, employees and friends, along with local and state officials gathered Thursday, April 24 to celebrate winners of the annual Mount Airy News Readers' Choice Awards.

The awards, unofficially known as The Mounties, celebrate businesses and individuals chosen by Mount Airy News readers as the best of the best in their respective fields. They gathered at Cross Creek Country Club for a lunch and to celebrate their achievements.

North Carolina Rep. Sarah Stevens was among a number of local officials in attendance, and Stevens helped during the ceremony by distributing the awards to the winners.

Those attending were treated to an address by Van Lankford, owner of Home Instead Senior Care. In addition to owning and operating the firm, Lankford has served as a minister for 23 years with churches in Dobson, Wadesboro and Mocksville, and has been involved with the Mount Airy Rotary Club. He served as president of the club 2014-2015, and was the Rotary District 7690 governor in 2023-24, only the second Mount Airy resident to hold that office.

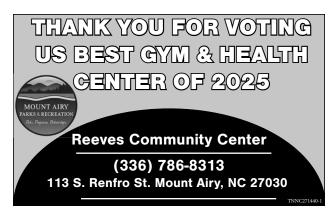

"Everything I ever learned about business, I learned in Mount Airy," Lankford told those in attendance, a play on the book "All I Really Need to Know I Learned in Kindergarten," by Robert Fulghum. Lankford said working in the area, he learned three keys to business — and life — success.

Before revealing those keys, he explained how he and his wife, Ann, switched from a life as a minister family to one owning and operating an in-home senior care firm.

He explained that in March 2007, his mother died, leaving his father — a Surry County resident — widowed and living alone. Lankford said he checked with his father frequently, often talking to him by phone. He said his dad always told him he was doing well and sounded as if things were okay, but over time Lankford said he would receive reports from other relatives or friends that perhaps he should check more closely. He did.

"My father wasn't doing so well."

That led him to seeking in-home care for his dad, which connected him with Home Instead, based in Wilkesboro. He got his father the help he needed, and a few years later — in 2011 — he and his wife decided to make a career change, opening a Home Instead franchise office in Mount Airy. A few years later, he and his wife purchased the entire company, and now run it from Mount Airy. Along the way he learned the three lessons that have keyed his success.

"You have to embody humility," he told those gathered. "There were a lot of things I didn't know," he said of those early years in the business.

Lankford, who said he is not all that skilled when it comes to basic home repairs, said he recently was talking with a local handyman he sometimes calls for work at his home. "Do you get calls to help many helpless men like me?" he said he asked.

The repairman's answer, he said, resonated with him. "There's things I can do that you can't," the man told Lankford. "But, there's things I can't do that you can do."

That is a lesson he's tried to apply to his work. He didn't know a lot in his early days with Home Instead, and he still doesn't know all the skills required to make every facet of the business successful. It's okay to not know and to admit you don't know. The key, he said, is not to try to fake it, but instead surround yourself with good-quality individuals who know their job, then let them do their jobs without interference.

His second key dovetails with the first: "Empower people...you have to empower the people around you."

He cited the book "From Good to Great" by Jim Collins to illustrate his point. "There are a lot of good companies," he said. "But the great companies have the right people in the right seats and empower those people to do their job. "

Lankford said at Home Instead, the firm has had great success and has managed a low turnover rate in an industry that often sees high turnover. "I'd like to think part of that is because I've gotten out of the way and empowered the people to do their job," he said.

His third point was a familiar one to many in attendance. "Engage in relationships. Relationships are vital, especially in a community like Mount Airy."

Lankford used his early experiences with Home Instead as an example. In those early days, when he was trying to get past receptionists in various offices, Lankford said he was hitting a brick wall, until a former member of his Dobson church happened to be in one of those offices. Because of his good relationship with that one person, who had contacts in the area, Lankford was able to get in the door with a number of area folks, setting his business up for success.

After Lankford's address, the lunch turned to recognizing those who had been chosen as the best of what they do by Mount Airy News Readers.

Sponsors for the awards ceremony included Jay's Heating, Air & Plumbing, Carolina Roofing, West Ridge Insurance Agency, Carolina Carports, Slate Funeral Home, and Dr. John L. Gravitte.
