Sampson 911 — ‘I need help’

Emergency response times reflect need for help

By ROBERT JORDAN
 Of the Record staff

For the first nine months of 2022, it took deputies 30 minutes or more to arrive on the scene of 595 calls for help in Sampson County. The Daily Record requested a report on the number of calls with delayed response times for the Sampson County Sheriff’s Office since Jan. 1 after Sampson County Sheriff Jimmy Thornton expressed concerns over a lack of deputies linked to a lack of funding for his department.

Here is what that report revealed:

Animal bites

Three response times were between 32 and 72 minutes.

Leaders address opioid funding

By RUDY COGGINS
 Of the Record staff

Taking a proactive stance and educating the community on the dangers of drug abuse is just the beginning phase to combat opioid use in Harnett County.

Stein

Government leaders, law enforcement, emergency personnel, school administrators and other entities met with North Carolina Attorney General Josh Stein to discuss options to put the first two installments of opioid settlement funding to good use Monday morning.

The county received $782,849 earlier this summer, part of nearly a $6.4 million payout that expires in 2038.

“We can’t be deluded into thinking how easy of a problem this is to solve because we know it is deep rooted,” Stein said. “We’re optimistic and we’re doing everything we can to attack this problem. We wanted you all to tailor the services to what your needs are here in Harnett County.

“There are a lot of different things that different counties are doing with their funds.”

Funding from the North Carolina Opioid and Substance Use Action Plan can be earmarked for support treatment, recovery, harm education and other life-saving programs and services in communities throughout the county.

Harnett County had 62 opioid overdose deaths in 2021.

Coley Price, Harnett County assistant manager, said a steering committee has been formed to address the issue and remains in its infant stage. Workshops, conferences and zoom calls have given the group a stronger idea of where Harnett County stands in the drug battle and where it needs to go.

“Each county [statewide] is different and each has their own

Mill workers to reunite Saturday

This is the old Erwin Mill as seen in 2006 before demolition began on part of the plant that closed in 2000.

Remembering the mill that made Erwin the world’s Denim Capital

By RUDY COGGINS
 Of the Record staff

Step inside the old Erwin Mill and take a trip through time.

Cobwebs hang in corners. The morning sun glistens through dust-covered windows.

Listen carefully and you can hear the loud clack-clack-clack of the looms as they weave cotton into cloth.

Take a deep breath and inhale the oil used to clean the wooden floors.

It’s a building with a rich, century-old history that has many tales stored within its walls.

“I’ve gone through it sometimes when it’s vacant,” said Patsy Carson, former mayor of Erwin. “I can hear the looms, hear the people talking ... so much history. It is amazing to me to think about all the employees who worked there for so many years.”

Some of those employees are coming back.

They’ll gather at 1 p.m. Saturday at the mill to greet old friends and reminisce about their days in the “Denim Capital of the World.” The first-ever reunion is part of Saturday’s annual Denim Days celebration, which brings the community together to celebrate its prestigious heritage. The yearly tradition started as Overall Days in the 1960s.

Carson said more than 100 former employees plan to make the trip from various nearby communities and from all corners of the Old North State.

“We’d love to see this become an annual event, especially tied to Denim Days because it’s centered around that particular era and honoring those people who manufactured [the denim] to me is a no-brainer,” said Sion “Si” Harrington III, president of the Erwin Historical Society.

The society will present each former mill employee, who attends the reunion, with a clear Christmas ball ornament. A piece of denim produced at the mill and a piece of paper commemorating the inaugural reunion has been placed inside each ornament.

Jimmy House, who cooked Brunswick stew for mill workers back in the day, returns for the celebration. He’ll use the same recipe and large black pot to create a mouth-watering lunch that’s a traditional staple of the south.

A look back

In the late 1890s, the Duke family made a strong future in tobacco.

They noticed the textile industry, which originated in the New England states, had started to migrate south.

In 1901, they acquired land to build a mill and opened it

Rewards offered to solve theft case

By ROBERT JORDAN
Of the Record staff

Two hundred and thirty-one days after stealing several expensive items from Jordan's of Dunn, the jewelry store proprietor is convinced the thieves returned to the scene of the crime on Wednesday.

"I recognized them as soon as they entered my store, so we hit the panic alarm," said store owner and operator, Allison Eason. "They came in with the exact same story as before, but this time I refused to pull out any merchandise."

Eason says the pair came in together in February. On Wednesday, they came in separately.

"The first man was present for around 3 minutes. The second came in and only stayed for about 60 seconds," she said.

"They were asking about wedding bands and stuff, but I wasn't taking anything out for them."

When asked if she was certain it was the same two perpetrators from the February theft, she replied, "I am a million percent sure it was them. I will never forget their voices."

On the previous visit, the men were wearing face masks. A sign on the front door of the business now asks patrons to "remove face coverings before entering." So this time, security cameras captured their faces.

The men captured on camera are considered people of interest, not suspects at this point, according to police, but officers do hope to talk to them.

As before, Dunn Crime Stoppers is offering rewards up to $1,000 for information leading to an arrest in the February theft. All tips to Crime Stoppers can be made anonymously by calling 910-892-2222.

Eason is also offering a cash reward for information to solve this crime. Anyone having information regarding this activity or the identity of the suspects in encouraged to contact Dunn Police Lt. Matthew Smith at 910-892-2399.

Robert Jordan can be reached at rjordan@mydailyrecord.com or 910-230-2037.

Can you identify this man? Police are hoping to talk to him about a theft reported at the Jordan's of Dunn jewelry store in February.

Overstepping authority

By MARK A. THIESSEN

President Biden declared “the pandemic is over” and now is trying to walk it back. Little wonder: With just a few words in a “60 Minutes” interview, Biden completely undermined his administration’s legal justification for student loan forgiveness. The nonpartisan Penn Wharton Budget Model estimates that Biden’s loan forgiveness plan will cost between $605 billion and $1 trillion. Congress has not authorized him to spend any of that. So where does the president get the authority to unilaterally spend up to 1$ trillion? He claims to find it in the Heroes Act — a law passed after the 9/11 attacks to help Americans called up to active military service not to default on their student loans. The law provides “the Secretary of Education with specific waiver authority to respond to a war or other military operation or national emergency (my emphasis). Education Department general counsel Lisa Brown claimed that emergency authority includes a “national emergency, such as the present COVID-19 pandemic.” This is absurd. The Heroes Act explicitly states that it is intended to help the “hundreds of thousands of Army, Air Force, Marine Corps, Navy, and Coast Guard reservists and members of the National Guard [who] have been called to active duty or active service.” There is no way to read this law as justifying debt relief for an entire class of individuals who never wore the uniform.

Biden is driving a steam engine right through the plain text of the law and providing mass debt forgiveness for those who did not serve in any capacity in a national emergency — and using the pandemic as justification. But now that Biden has declared the pandemic “over,” his justification for abusing this law has evaporated. Walking through the Detroit Auto Show, Biden told CBS correspondent Scott Pelley, “If you notice, no one’s wearing masks. Everybody seems to be in pretty good shape.” He said, “We still have a problem with COVID. We’re still doing a lotta work on it. But the pandemic is over.” That means what his administration’s lawyers called a “national emergency, such as the present COVID-19 pandemic,” is no longer “present.” And if the pandemic is no longer present, then neither is the legal basis for using it to forgive student loans. Of course, consistency has never been Biden’s strong suit. In the spring, his administration announced it was lifting Title 42 — the Trump-era public health order that allows border officials to turn away illegal migrants in order to prevent the spread of COVID-19 — because Biden’s Centers for Disease Control and Prevention declared it was “no longer necessary” since we now have “an increased availability of tools to fight COVID-19” and “97.1% of the U.S. population lives in a county identified as having ‘low’ COVID-19 Community Level.” In other words, Biden effectively declared the pandemic emergency over for illegal migrants at the border, but then a few months later invoked it to justify student loan forgiveness. Then he (again) declared the pandemic “over” — even as his administration submits an emergency request to Congress for $27 billion in pandemic spending before the end of the year.

The formal pandemic emergency declaration expires on Oct. 13, unless Biden extends it for an additional three months. If he fails to do so, then not only will he no longer have legal justification for student debt forgiveness, but he will also lose the basis for other pandemic-justified social spending. So, in all likelihood, Biden will follow his declaration that the pandemic is “over” by soon extending the pandemic emergency declaration. Because if Republicans regain the majority in just one house in November, the ability to pass Democrats-only spending bills will evaporate — which means the pandemic emergency will be all Democrats have left to continue their [runaway spending].

Just icing on the cake ...

I want to share this heartwarming story I ran across this week. Having just celebrated a birthday myself, this circumstance truly resonated with me. A few years back, little Gerald Hamilton begged his parents for a birthday party. The caveat was that his family had never before hosted a party in his honor. You see, Gerald was just a little different. He’d sustained some developmental issues after having undergone five skull expansions by age 8. Coined a miracle boy, the neurologists’ prognosis was that he would not live to enter kindergarten. To honor his fervent wishes, his mom, Tina, lovingly addressed invitations — sending one to each of his 30 classmates at Lake Station, Indiana, Elementary. Of those 30 invitees, there were 12 schoolmates who’d RSVPd and had agreed to join in the festivities. Gerald was so stoked the night before his party, he could barely sleep. The fellow excitedly oversaw all of the decorations, the 12 goody bags, the balloons and his specially-made cake. He had requested a round cake topped with a canine. Gerald would share with anyone who would ask, that

LET’S TALK ABOUT IT
Kim Lambert

he aspired to one day become a K-9 officer for his local police precinct. Just before 3 p.m., he hurriedly sat by the front window, anxiously awaiting his friends’ arrivals. The little fellow remained undeterred despite no partygoers arriving during the first half hour. By 4 p.m., he grew a little weary when not one of the 12 expected guests had arrived. Still, he waited. Gerald wouldn’t even allow his cake to be cut until friends began showing up. At 5 p.m., Tina began contacting the parents whose kids had RSVPd. Those senseless, apathetic adults were quite dismissive, claiming that they considered Gerald too different or too awkward for their child to be around. Wowwww ... Doesn’t that just break your heart? I could not imagine what they were feeling. Well, thankfully, Amelia Lara — Gerald’s grandmother — quickly jumped into action. She turned to social media to see if anyone could help lighten the fellow’s spirits. And sure enough, Amelia’s message went viral within a few hours. Would you believe that, in the days that followed, the 9-year-old was showered with gifts from well wishers throughout the nation? In fact, their local postman delivered more than 1,000 birthday cards, dozens of gifts, and tickets to sporting events. Doesn’t this make you cry? Get this: The highlight of Gerald’s post-birthday celebrations, though, took place during a regularly scheduled municipality meeting. There, all of the Hobart City Board officials paid homage to little Gerald. Their K-9 handler, Col. Simon Gresser, surprised him with a visit from the department’s canine officer — a retriever named Scout — who Gerald thought, looked a lot like the topper on his birthday cake. Isn’t it heartwarming to know that something good came from his heart-wrenching disappointment? For little Gerald, his family, and all of us at some point, perhaps we could heed the sentiments from this quote: “Appreciate those who love you; Help those who need you; [but, most importantly], forgive those who hurt you.” Now, isn’t that just icing on the cake for this well-deserving young fellow?

Memories of food

I don’t know how this writer’s mind works. I never know on a weekly basis what will come forth here, but after some thought, I decided to take a look at the lighter side of life. It’s time to look at the role what we eat has taken in my life of more than half a century. Now we all know there isn’t a whole lot of anything light in our food, especially if it tastes good, but it’s a topic we all enjoy. Most enjoy it just a little too much, but it’s a big part of our lives. This topic came to my mind while involved in the weekly chore of grocery shopping. That’s right, you fans of food delivery, no judgment here, there are a few of us who still trudge up and down the aisles of the local store looking for bargains. I think we would have more success looking for the proverbial needle in a hay stack, but no talk of inflation here. This weekend I found myself grabbing some fudge royal ice cream. I don’t know why, but that particular flavor of America’s favorite treat made me think of my parents. Both at home, with dad, and visiting my mom’s every two weeks, the stuff always seemed to be around. I had forgotten what a treat it is. If your not familiar with it, give it a shot. Hard to beat that creamy mix of chocolate and vanilla. Food can be a source of confrontation between children and parents. We have all seen the wars with parents forcing children to eat “what is good for them.” Simply put, that didn’t happen for me and my two brothers. Of course, we always had a choice, you could eat what was served, or not eat at all. It’s pretty simple. I learned early on about challenging my dad on food. He told me to drink my milk once. Being the smart guy I thought I was, I would put ketchup in the milk, thinking that disgusting concoction would be my ticket out of drinking it. I lost a long battle that night, finally submitting to the torture of drinking then warm milk with ketchup. Again, take my culinary advise, don’t do it. I have lots of memories of food relating to my mom. Every other week when we visited, there were always familiar offerings. Mom’s genius way of getting us to eat fruit, bananas with sugar and milk was always a treat. I don’t even know if they still exist, but in the 1970s and 1980s there was a product called Doo Dads. The closest modern comparison I know of is Chex Mix. That stuff was the bomb. Somehow eating them out of wooden bowls made them better. Mom also had these tall narrow bowl concoctions that could be a symbol of the ’70s, they just seemed to match the gold appliances. Those bowls often contained vanilla pudding, made better mixed with Cool Whip. All mom’s genius way of getting us filled with calcium and milk I suppose. Based on my waistline I should talk about food less, but hey, what’s the harm. We all need to eat, we might as well smile about it.

WOERNER’S CORNER

Man can't get his wife to the church on time

DEAR ABBY: Punctuality is important to me. My husband has many great qualities, but punctuality is not one of them. We have been married 20-plus years and, after many discussions, have not been able to come to agreement on this. We are late to church almost every Sunday and to most parties and family events. I think it's rude to keep people waiting, and it gives me anxiety. I have tried taking separate cars but think, as a couple, we should arrive together. It seems like when I try to urge him to hurry, he purposely slows down. It has reached the point where we are angry at each other by the time we finally arrive anywhere. Any advice?

— HARE MARRIED TO

TORTOISE

DEAR HARE: Yes. Take the separate cars. No one cares whether you arrive "together" or not, unless you are going to a dinner party. And if your husband will be late for that, assure your hosts that it isn't necessary to wait for him to arrive. To the extent you can, try fudging the event time. But until he suffers the consequences, his behavior will not change.

Frances Alice Anne McIlroy McQuade, 91

April 23, 1931-Sept. 21, 2022

At the age of 91, Frances Alice Anne McIlroy McQuade passed away peacefully in her sleep on Wednesday, Sept. 21, 2022.

Frances was preceded in death by her beloved husband of 63 years, James Stanley McQuade; her mother, Annie McIlroy; father, William Cross McIlroy; and brothers, Robert, Hayes, William and Kenneth McIlroy.

Frances is survived by her son, William Brian McQuade (John Baldwin) of Bryson City; daughter, Shonagh McQuade Weems (Edward Weems) of Buies Creek; grandchildren, Jonathan McQuade, Maria McQuade (Torie Cherry, great-grandson Robert), Thomas McQuade, Brandon Hillegass (Taylor Hillegass), Meredith Hillegass (Zachary Harper, son Grayson), Erika Hillegass, Austin McQuade, Megan Johnson (Jeremy Johnson, son Fischer), and Gabe Hillegass (Quinn Hillegass; children, Adelaide, Ellery, Finley, and Jack); brother, John McIlroy; and many nieces, nephews, and extended family members.

Frances grew up in Dungannon, Northern Ireland, on a farm surrounded by a large family and numerous animals. In Frances’ early years, she was a voracious reader. Her love of reading continued for years as she was a regular at the library bringing home an armful of books each visit. Frances began her career teaching at a local primary school in Ireland. She always enjoyed music and served as an organist at her church. Her love for music continued throughout her life, and Frances could be found singing joyful hymns and playing piano in her home. Frances was a lover of “Jeopardy,” Scrabble, crosswords, and bird watching, especially hummingbirds and cardinals. Frances also had a great love for flowers and plants. She excelled at sports, played on her high school hockey team, and was an avid tennis player for years. Riding horses, sledding, and being active well into her later years amazed many. She was often seen enjoying nature walks around the Keith Hills neighborhood.

Once married, Frances moved with her husband, Stanley, many times as he advanced his career. Their travels led them to Ireland, Canada, Vermont, New York, and North Carolina. She was a welcomed sight for many as she traveled back and forth between Ireland and North Carolina, visiting family and friends. Although she worked as a church secretary and ran the family medical practice as an office manager in Bryson City, she is best known as a devoted wife, mother, granny/nanny, and thoughtful friend. Some of her most cherished moments were spent with her children and later her seven grandchildren, being a school chauffeur, and having family over for many delicious Irish home-cooked meals. She set an extraordinary example of Christian love and strong family values.

Frances was an active member of Memorial Baptist Church of Buies Creek for many years. She was the quiet and kind force behind Stanley, as she kept him organized while running a busy household. Frances helped with Meals on Wheels and always made time to visit others. Whether bringing a dish to a sick friend or sharing photos she had taken of their family, she was always thinking of others. Frances remained steadfast in her faith her entire life.

Frances will be remembered as a positive influence in many people’s lives, and she will be missed and mourned on both sides of the Atlantic. A celebration of her life will be held on Friday, Sept. 30, 2022, at 2 p.m. at O’Quinn-Peebles-Phillips Funeral Home at 1310 S. Main St., Lillington, NC 27546.

in 1903. They planned to use hydro-electric power from the Cape Fear River, but relied on steam boilers instead.

Local sawmills profited. They built 305 houses in a four-block radius for mill workers. A four-room house cost $1 to rent each month. If a family needed coal, they spoke to someone at the mill and had it delivered for a minimal cost.

“All of my relatives worked at the mill,” said Gay Wilson of the Erwin Historical Society. “My dad [Glen Benson] said if you don’t need to [work at the mill], don’t do it. He went to work at the mill at 11 years old. He didn’t have to share stories with me, I lived them.

“As a little girl, I knew all about the mill. The mill whistle blew each morning.”

Child labor laws didn’t exist until 1915.

The tight-knit community began to grow in the pre-Depression era. In order to live in town, a resident had to either work at the mill, be a doctor or merchant.

“People who started this mill had the right idea,” Harrington said. “If you take care of your workers, your workers would take care of you. The town had a library, had the first swimming pool, lighted clay tennis courts, a hospital ...”

The mill produced cloth during the early years.

Denim came along in the 1920s.

Harrington said the mill reached its peak of approximately 2,000 employees between the mid-’70s and early ’80s. At that time, the mill churned out 1.7 million yards of denim. That equated to 166 miles of denim that would have stretched from Erwin to Pawleys Island in South Carolina.

The mill switched the hands of several companies before it closed in 2000.

Impact

Approximately 800 workers received their pink slip on that final day.

The No. 2 weave room building, infamous for its creaking wooden floors, was eventually demolished.

The last piece of denim, produced in December 2000, is on display at the town’s historical museum.

Erwin nearly became a ghost town.

Residents’ hearts continued to beat strong.

Their emotions and their spirit flowed freely as they begged county officials to bring industry back to town. They worried they wouldn’t prosper without the mill as their driving financial engine.

“For the first few years, it wasn’t too bad,” Wilson said. “If it was still here, you’d see a thriving town ... more stores and restaurants. This town would have grown if they hadn’t left. They were an asset and provided so many jobs, not just in Erwin, but surrounding towns, too.”

Rick Stephenson worked at the mill in various capacities for 26 years — 22 were spent at the plant. He served as an industrial engineer, process engineering manager, project manager and lab manager.

Stephenson met his wife there.

He fondly remembers the mill and company social outings, and good managers that he worked for in different divisions.

“[We] stay in contact with some of her friends who were co-workers, not many others,” Stephenson said. “But [we] see them in town [at Walmart] occasionally. Many I see and stay in contact with via Facebook.”

The future

Harrington said the mill is under contract for purchase, but the site’s future remains a mystery.

He couldn’t disclose any further details.

“So many neat stories,” Harrington said. “The town’s history, the stuff that went on, it was amazing.”

A 1905-06 housing list can be viewed at the museum.

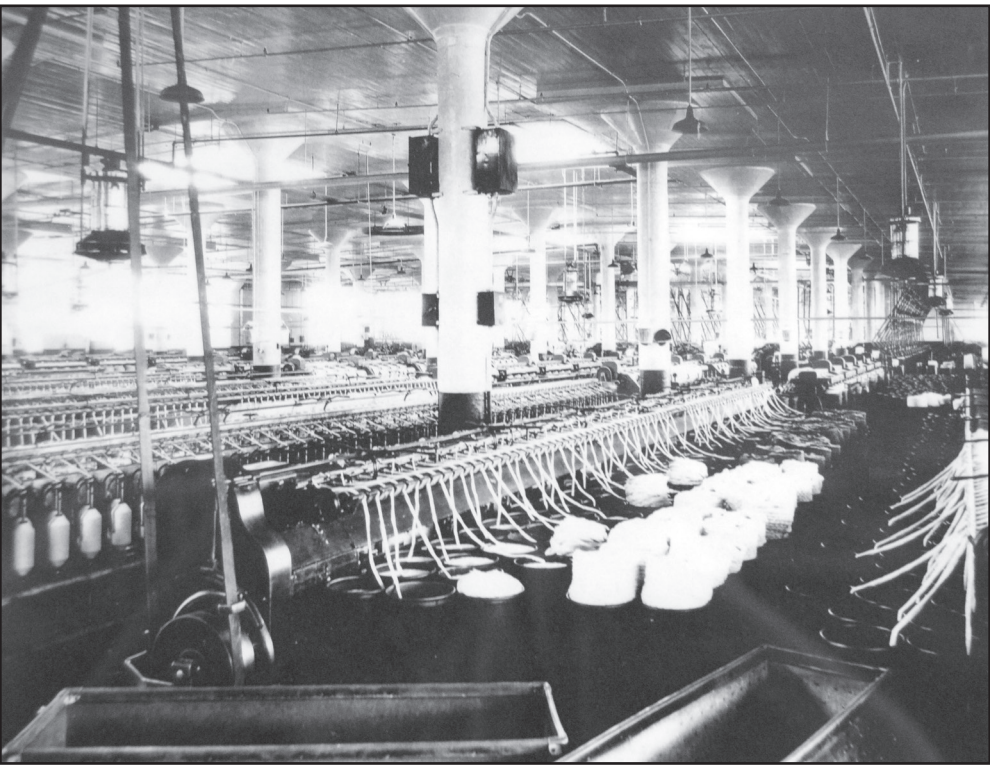

There are 2,000 pictures in two volumes of books created from movies made by North Carolina film maker H. Lee Waters, who visited the town in 1937. The books contain prints of people walking along the downtown streets and shift changes at the mill.

Harrington hopes to hear more stories at the reunion.

“We’re excited for the people who can be able to come and visit with each other,” Wilson said. “Some haven’t seen each other since they worked in the mill together. It’s great everyone can come together in one big body and visit.”

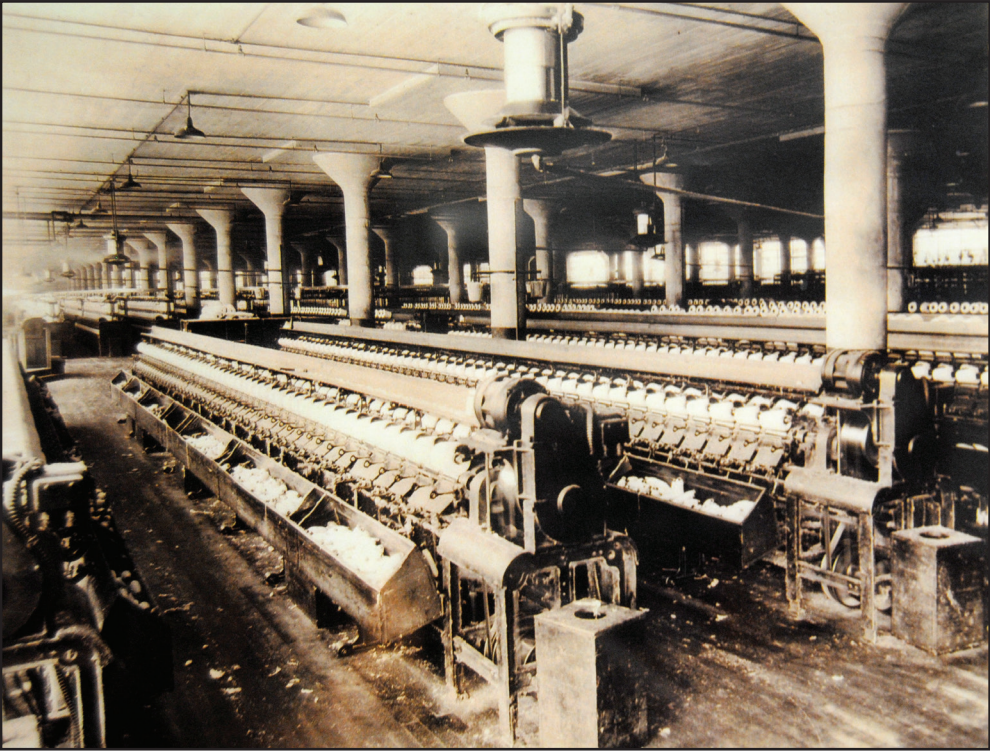

After all, they’re threads in the fabric that created the Denim Capital of the World.

FUNDING

needs,” Price said. “We’re putting together a strategic comprehensive plan that gives us a better understanding of the problems in our communities and organizations, and helping municipalities come together as a group. We want to identify the gaps and price tag those gaps.

“Every meeting there has been mention of getting a detox center to stop the revolving door (of overdoses) that we’re facing.”

The investment strategy requires transparency, Stein said.

He stressed the need for county officials to inform residents on how the funds are spent.

“What programs did you support? How much did you give them? And most importantly, what was the outcome? What they did achieve? If it wasn’t successful, try something different because the funding stream lasts 18 years,” Stein advised.

County Commissioner Barbara McKoy, Harnett County Sheriff Wayne Coats and Jermaine White, assistant superintendent for Harnett County Schools, all advocated for education.

They all cautioned that opioids are filtering down to the middle and elementary schools. The United States Drug Enforcement Administration recently warned of an emerging trend of brightly-colored fentanyl pills in the country. A plastic bag full of rainbow pills could easily be mistaken as candy, Coats added.

“I think education is the key about how serious this disease is,” McKoy said. “We have to stop dancing around it and reach out to our communities. How can people get help if there is nowhere for them to get help?”

Suzanne Matthews, district attorney for Harnett and Lee counties, said local law enforcement has done a solid job identifying and getting dealers off of the street. She added there have been several convictions of death by distribution and more cases are awaiting court dates.

Healthy Lady Eagles seeking state-title run

ERWIN — Autumn brings about certain familiarities to Harnett County each year. The weather is getting cooler, the leaves are changing colors and Page Jackson's Cape Fear Christian Academy girls tennis team is rolling. CFCA came into the new campaign with high expectations, coming off an 8-4 season that concluded with another trip to the North Carolina Independent School Athletic Association (NCISAA) 1A State Championships. Jackson's top five from 2021 are back in the mix and picking up where they left off, most recently claiming an 8-1 victory at NCHSAA 3A foe Triton. "It says a lot. Triton ... every year is one of the best teams in their conference," he said after the Sept. 21 win that brought his club's overall record to 8-1. "They've been the dominant team in Harnett County for a long time and to come up and be able to compete with them, and beat them now, it shows where our program is going." Ella John Dupree, now in her junior season, returns as the team's longtime No. 1 seed. She boasted a group-leading 11-2 singles record as a sophomore and is off to another hot start this year after taking care of Triton's Madelyn Parker in straight sets. Dupree has been just as lethal in doubles and benefiting from a not-so-new addition to the squad. Senior No. 5 seed Anna Jackson has returned to the fold after sitting out last season due to concerns stemming from a concussion. She took an 8-3 singles win over Shelby McLamb, then teamed with Dupree for an 8-3 triumph over Parker and Kamryn Wise. Aubrey Jackson, Nina Sauer and Karson Hamilton each picked up both singles and doubles victories against the Lady Hawks and bring with them years of court time that helps form on the NCISAA's most feared groups. SPRING LAKE — Overhills bounced back from its loss last week with a 55-22 home win over E.E. Smith on Friday night. It's is the Jaguars' first All American Conference win of the season. Jaguars senior Christian Daniel returned the opening kickoff for a 78-yard touchdown, which he says "definitely set the tone." The offense scored 26 unanswered points thanks to sophomore quarterback Jordan Bryant throwing three touchdowns for over 120 yards, one of which was a 50-yard pass to Daniel. "We got good leaders on the team and executed, just that simple," Daniel said. After E.E. Smith (1-4, 0-2 AAC) marched down the field for a touchdown and their defense forced an interception in the end zone on the next drive, the home crowd quickly became quiet. Overhills (3-2, 1-1 AAC) ended the first half on a good note, however, and got the crowd on

CFCA set for 'Spike-Out

From staff reports

ERWIN — The volleyball program at Cape Fear Christian Academy is bringing back a community-based fundraising event this fall. Following a successful inaugural outing last year, the second annual "Spike-Out Cancer" game is scheduled for Oct. 4 inside the school's gym. CFCA middle school volleyball coach Mary Beth Young was among the local leadership group that formed the idea in 2021 as a way to fundraise during Breast Cancer Awareness Month. The Lady Eagles' coaches and staff teamed up with Friends Fighting Cancer (FFC), a local nonprofit that services Harnett, Johnston and Sampson counties, to create the event. Last year, over $4,500 in donations was ceremoniously handed over to an CFC rep after the game and all proceeds from this year's contest will also be given directly to the charity. The CFCA teams host Lee Christian Academy, from Sanford, with the middle school contest kicking things off at 4 p.m.

WILSON — Find the playmakers. Excel on defense and special teams. Execute on offense. Get on the positive side in conference play. South Johnston football completed all of those tasks successfully in a 37-22 triumph over Quad County 3A Conference foe Wilson Fike on Friday evening. Sigh of relief SJ quarterback Riley Adams orchestrated a textbook, time-consuming drive that sealed the outcome in the final three minutes. He methodically moved the Trojans downfield with handoffs to workhorse Aiden Williams and short passes in the flat. He hooked up with senior Jamarieyon McDougald that set up a first-and-goal at the Fike 3. Seconds later, Williams scrambled into the end zone from 11 yards out. "We knew we had to get the ball into the playmakers' hands," Adams said.

Jags star breaks out in final year

ERWIN — Ryan Riopedre has been the unquestioned leader of Overhills' boys soccer team this fall.

Pacing the group in both goals and assists, he's had no problems adjusting to a newfound feature role after playing the side-kick last year as a junior.

Riopedre was held in check through the first 40 minutes of action during the Sept. 21 road matchup at Triton, however. His Jaguars faced a 1-0 deficit and were visibly frustrated.

It wasn't until the standout senior received some timely words of encouragement at halftime that he turned things around — netting two second-half goals to ignite the eventual 3-2 victory.

"I'm not gonna lie, they were telling me to pick myself up. I was down," Riopedre said.

In the 45th minute, he found front-line mate Michael Kees, who scored to knot things at 1.

With just under 18 minutes remaining, Riopedre had the equalizer after Triton took a 2-1 advantage. He found room ahead of the defense after a long pass from Connor McMillan, then punched it home to tie things at 2.

Riopedre feels the momentum swung in his group's favor because of deep lobbs down the middle as the Hawks' back line crept up.

It was also the case during his game-winner when the speedster found open grass with under 10 seconds left on the clock.

"As soon as the ball came its feet when senior linebacker Christopher Gama intercepted a pass and returned it 38 yards for a touchdown to end the half.

"To me, it didn't end the game, but it gave us (the defense) a boost for sure," Gama said, who finished with a team-high 12 total tackles.

Daniel added 11 total wrap-ups, while Deboris Williams had 10 and an interception return of his own.

After suffering a loss to Terry Sanford last week, Jags coach Kerry Bacon identified a big thing his team needed to work on to become a playoff-caliber team.

"We definitely have to be disciplined," Bacon said.

"They (the team) tried to correct their mistakes and just stay together and hold each other accountable."

and is off to another flawless start after victories over Fayetteville Academy and Village Christian.

With a healthy crop of competent talent flying in one accord, Jackson is confidently heading towards the closing stretch.

"It's an amazing feeling having six experienced players," he said.

"We really expect to be in the finals of the state championship and we'll see how it goes from there. ... Nothing is a gimme. We're gonna come out and play hard and we're gonna do a lot of practicing between now and the end of October."

the ball. We had a big drive."

The score came after the Trojans' Alex Lee missed a 25-yard field goal wide left. He converted a 30-yarder seconds before, but the Golden Demons were called for offsides.

Fike answered and pulled within 30-22.

Defense

The Trojans forced seven turnovers and blocked a punt. Four of the miscues resulted in 20 points.

Adams dropped a 98-yard touchdown dime into Kalib Brown's mitts. Williams rambled in from the 5, while Lee booted field goals from 25 and 21 yards three minutes apart in the second quarter.

"The defense had our back," Adams said.

Senior Lucas Layman logged two quarterback sacks, blocked a punt and posted seven tackles overall. Jaekob Robinson had one QB sack.

Ryan Blackmon picked off two passes and recovered a fumble. Ty Strickland, Kaleb Williams and Jamarion Ward each recovered a fumble.

Fike ran just 42 offensive plays and held the ball for roughly 18 minutes.

"Defense was our [normal] defense and they did great things," South head coach Lee Webb said.

"I'm a big special teams guy and I took it personal last week when those things [fumbled punts] happened [against SSS]."

They had focus and played with a purpose."

Stats glance

Adams threw for a career-high 263 yards, while Brown recorded 198 yards on five receptions. Williams led the ground attack with 170 yards on 40 carries.

Lee tallied 13 points on three made field goals and four PATs.

South compiled a season-high 450 yards, ran 75 offensive plays and held the ball for nearly 30 minutes. The Trojans converted seven of nine possessions inside the red zone.

No 0-2 start

South Johnston avoided an 0-2 start in QCC play.

"Fike is a tough team," Webb said. "There's no telling what's going to happen in this conference. It's a week-to-week game and it's who comes to play on Friday night. The biggest thing is our guys keeping their focus and being behind one another."

The Trojans (3-2, 1-1 QCC) celebrate homecoming Thursday and welcome unbeaten Charles B. Aycock to Four Oaks with a 7 p.m. kickoff.

through I was nervous. I thought there was like three people behind me," he said. "No one was there, so I turned around and took a quick shot and it went it. ... It felt amazing. I needed it so bad."

For Overhills coach Michelle Anderson, watching the All American Conference's points leader come through in the clutch was nothing new. She is excited to see Riopedre blossom into a marquee player after watching him progress over the past three campaigns.

"He's always fighting ... he's been a fighter since he's been a freshman, so this is his year to show out," she said.

Riopedre's heroics advanced the Jags' record to 5-4-1 overall, momentarily pulling even with Triton at 4-2 in the league standings. With collective confidence consuming the group, rightful optimism abounds as the season's final stretch draws closer.

"It's exactly what we needed. We've always had the talent, we just needed a little boost to help us out," he said.

Below is Riopedre's acceptance speech along with his answers to a list of questions from The Daily Record staff.

ACCEPTANCE SPEECH: I'd like to thank Iann Morales. He trains with me every single day and, honestly, has made me way better.

The grading of food establishments is based on a system of scoring. A food establishment that earns a score of at least: 90 percent shall receive a grade A; between 80 percent and 90 percent shall receive a grade B; between 70 percent and 80 percent shall receive a grade C. Flags to fly over South River EMC

For the Record

South River Electric Membership Corporation will once again host Fields of Honor, during the week of Veterans Day, at offices in Dunn and Fayetteville. Flags will be set to honor and memorialize our troops.

Each office will host 500 flags, which will be on display Nov. 5-13. Each 3-foot by 5-foot flag can be sponsored by friends, family, etc.

Sponsorship amounts run from $25 to $130, based on the number of veterans you wish to honor. Information can be found at sremcfields.com. Sponsorships are available until Oct. 28.

If you have interest in setting your own flag, which will be set Nov. 4, be sure to mark so on the form. You will be contacted with a time for set up at a later date.

Flags may be sponsored by selecting the "Sponsor A Flag" button, and completing the form. If you would rather make a donation, you may do so by selecting the "I Want To Donate" button.

When sponsoring, you are not purchasing a flag, but donating to local veteran organizations. You are able to receive the keepsake tags honoring/memorizing veterans after Nov. 15.

Questions can be submitted by completing a form on sremcfields.com or by calling 910-892-8071.

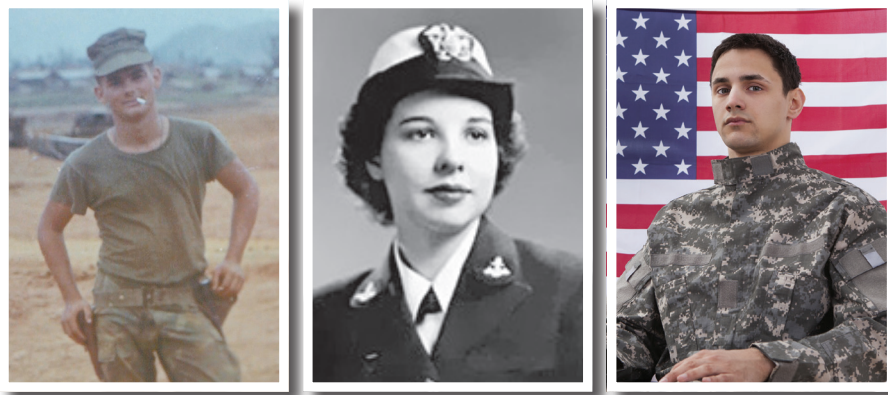

South River EMC is a locally-owned and operated electric cooperative, which provides electric service to 46,000 homes, farms and businesses in parts of Harnett, Cumberland, Sampson, Johnston and Bladen counties.

Help us honor all military men and women past and present.

To honor the anniversary of the day originally celebrated as "Armistice Day," The Daily Record will run a special section on Thursday, November 10th, to honor all the military men and women.
