Adult education or future playground? TVI's proposal for Mattocks School triggers neighborhood concerns

Villager editorial by Maurice F. Mischke

This isn't a story about the good guys versus the bad guys. It's about an upcoming local issue involving the good (oops) persons versus the good persons. Maybe "versus" is even too harsh a word, because they're really all on the same side. Except for a few minor, or major problems, depending on whom you talk to.

For quite some time now, people from the Southwest Area District (SWAD) Council have been hoping that the closing of Mattocks School could signal the future development of a playground on the site. Nobody would argue the fact that there's a dearth of playground space in this vicinity. It's a long, long way from the Mattocks area to Groveland, Edgumbe or Hillcrest, to mention the three that are "closest." The proposed project received very high ratings from the SWAD board and was among those presented to the Capital Improvement Budget Committee Monday night, July 9, for priority consideration.

Sure, it would cost money...possibly even as much as three to four hundred thousand over a two-year period. A lot of factors come up for consideration...how many children and adults would be served, "cost-benefit ratios" and all the other little items that planners put into the hopper to arrive at a comparative scale of needs and alternatives.

Of course, nothing could happen until the School Board and Administration declared the now-closed elementary school to be "surplus property." Somehow the school people involved remained blissfully unaware of the District Council's proposals.

In the meantime, the Administration at our St. Paul Technical-Vocational Institute had been assessing its needs for more space. The space requirements for this popular post-secondary school have been increasing about as fast as elementary enrollments have been declining.

According to TVI Director Ray Davoli, the school's citizens' committee had concluded that either a second (new) building or an adequate addition on the site was needed to meet their teeming demands. TVI was designed in 1966 to serve an optimum enrollment of 1,800 daytime students and up to 8,000 a week via its evening extension program. By the 1978-79 school year, the actual figures had swollen to over 4,000 each day, and more than 22,000 in the extension program.

But the legislature and the governor apparently decided that new construction was not a high priority at this time, in view of the potential of surplus school buildings within the metro area that could serve as "satellite" operations. TVI chose Mattocks because it was the most central location... student-apprentices would be coming in from all directions.

Mr. Davoli will have presented all these facts and more at the SWAD Council meeting on Monday night, which happens to be a few hours after this is being written.

One of the problems TVI faces in all this, is the fact that Superintendent Young and his lieutenants were a little less than properly sensitive to the needs and concerns of the surrounding residential neighborhood. The move was made sans any opportunity for input from the people who could be affected.

On top of that, the Administration apparently assumed that such a post-secondary school use was compatible with zoning requirements when, in fact, a special use permit must be obtained. There's a difference between kids coming to school on foot and by bus, and adults coming to evening school in their cars, directly from work in most cases, then traveling home. Not too much opportunity for pooling under such circumstances. Parking will probably be adequate there, in view of the large playground lot. It's the added volume of traffic on what have been strictly residential streets that is presently the prime cause for concern.

Which brings up another little "hooker" for the school people to contend with. We've been informed that zoning regulations in St. Paul require that any post-secondary (college, vocational or other adult-type) facility must be directly on a main thoroughfare or "thru" street. Unfortunately, the Mattocks property is off the beaten path, bounded by Davern, Palace, Macalester and James. Randolph and Snelling are both a block away.

So there's the dilemma. Are there any compromises possible? Is the Mattocks use by TVI a stop-gap proposal, or might it extend for many years?

Only recently the District 14 plan to make Jefferson a residential street was approved by city council action. The proposed new use for Mattocks, however, would have to be considered a step in the opposite direction.

There's one aspect in the playground proposal we spoke of in the very beginning of this opus that we find hard to accept at this point...and that's the possibility of razing the school building. It would seem advisable to move very, very slowly in the direction of tearing down a building that may be of very sound construction and rather valuable in terms of replacement cost. What to do with the building if TVI doesn't use it is still an important case in point.

Area meetings slated

City preservation panel considers Ramsey Hill for historic status

by Roger Fuller

A 25-block area in the heart of Ramsey Hill, one of St. Paul's oldest neighborhoods, is currently being considered for designation as a historic district by the Heritage Preservation Committee.

The commission, which has scheduled a public meeting on the subject for Tuesday, July 31 at St. John's Church, Portland and Kent St., has already appeared before several local groups to outline plans for placing a territory immediately west and south of the St. Paul Cathedral under its supervision.

The commission will also send a representative to the District 16/Summit Hill Association meeting at 8:00 p.m. Thursday, July 12 at the University Club, 420 Summit Ave. While the Summit Hill area is not included in the proposed district, the area has traditionally shown a strong interest in restoration.)

"If the public's attitude is found to be favorable, we'll proceed with a house-to-house poll of the residents who live in the district," said Ernest Sandeen, chairperson of the commission. "However, if the survey shows that the district doesn't have the backing of at least half the residents, we'll probably decide to proceed no further."

The 12-member Heritage Preservation Commission, of which two must be registered architects, has advisory powers only, and is subject to review by the St. Paul City Council. If the Ramsey Hill plan goes through, the panel would have the right to approve building permits issued for new construction in the district, and changes in the exterior of existing structures. Not included in the commission's jurisdiction would be paint colors used for exteriors, and changes inside the buildings in the district.

The commission now has the power of review over 18 buildings citywide. If the historic district is created, that list will be expanded to include structures which have no great historical value in themselves, but do add to the neighborhood's historical atmosphere.

The commission would determine whether proposed new construction would fit in with the neighborhood's existing architectural styles.

sion, while influential, is by no means absolute. Recently for example, the city council overruled its findings and refused to grant preservation status to the Stella Louise Wood Children's Center, 1652 Summit Ave., a property owned by Macalester College.

At first the commission had planned to create a district much larger than the one eventually agreed upon, and had hoped to include the entire area now recognized as a state historical district—from the Cathedral to the Short Line, and from Portland or Marshall Ave. down to the Milwaukee Road tracks.

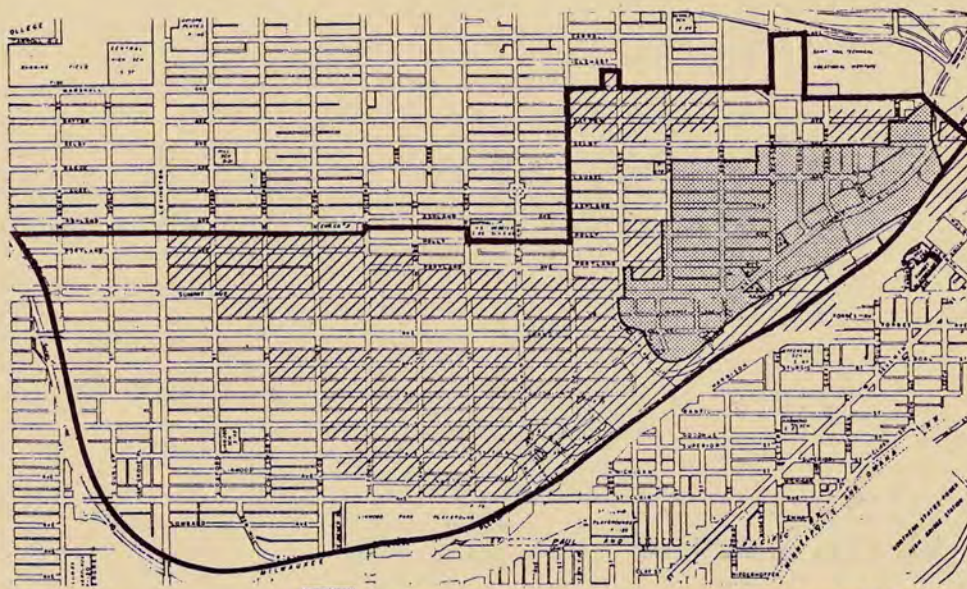

However, this plan was opposed by Councilwoman Ruby Hunt, who favors the concept of preservation on a smaller and more gradual scale.

"If we started out with a district that large," she said, "the public would start wondering what their tax money was being used for." She added that many buildings in the larger area are of marginal historical value.

"It would make a lot more sense to start with a smaller unit and see how preservation works," she added. "If it's going to work at all, it should work in an area where there are many buildings of acknowledged historic value."

Sandeen said he understood that the council prefers to act with caution. "I think the council accurately reflects the sentiments of the city with their go-slow approach. I'm not convinced that people are really ready to accept preservation yet," he said.

Councilman David Hozza introduced the first historic district ordinance shortly after his 1974 election to the council. The original concept called for a Historic Hill board made up of local residents to approve any external architectural changes made to area buildings.

Another plan for a city-wide historic district with its own preservation board was shelved after a few community meetings failed to generate public support. Hunt said the original concept failed because two committees would have been created to do essentially the same thing.

"One resident said the smaller district plan was a 'busybody approach' in which a group of people tell their neighbors how to take care of their property," Hunt observed, adding that residents felt more comfortable with the broader based, citywide approach.

When the Heritage Preservation Commission was created in 1977, the Hill area and Irvine Park were excluded because the issue of individual neighborhood preservation boards had not yet been resolved.

The opposition was withdrawn later when it became apparent that little support existed for the neighborhood boards, and the commission was expanded to cover the whole city except for the State Capitol area.

Area residents often become confused by references to historic districts. That's not surprising, because aside from the proposed city district, much the same area on the map has already been sliced up by state historical districts and by the granddaddy of them all, the federal National Register of Historic Places.

The National Register covers nearly all of the proposed city district plus another 30 blocks immediately west of it. But protection for this district is limited to government recognition, since no federal money can be spent nor can a federal agency act in these districts without first following predetermined steps.

According to Sandeen, this can have a great impact on structures such as the Union Depot. "It's hard to imagine any renovation taking place without involving the federal government," he said.

One of the main advantages to a niche on the National Register is prestige. A place on the federal list could serve as a rallying point for preservationists who want to save such a building from being torn down or altered beyond recognition.

The state historical district, which also offers no intrinsic protection to a building or to a neighborhood, resulted from enabling legislation and allows the city to create its own historic district within the designated area.

In Ramsey and Summit Hill, the state district extends from the Capitol to Lexington Ave. and takes in roughly 500 acres.

The Ramsey Hill historic district under consideration by the commission is bounded roughly by Selby Ave. on the north, Mackubin and Kent St. on the west, and Grand and Oakland Ave. on the south and Irvine Ave. on the south and east. Many of the houses in that area were built by wealthy St. Paul families between the late 1870s and 1890s.

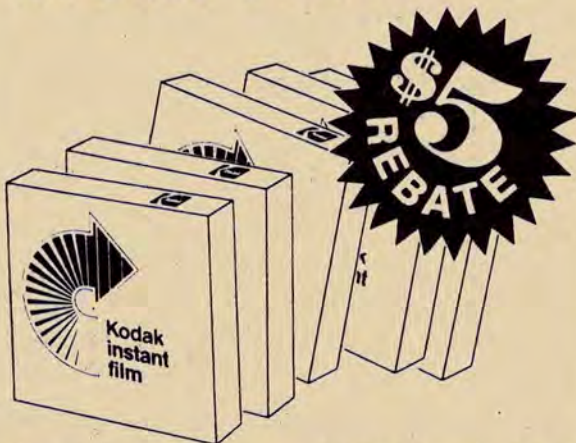

If the city building department receives an application for a permit that seeks a change to the outside of a structure within that area, the application will be forwarded to the commission, which must review it within 30 days.

The commission's design review committee would then look at the plans and make a recommendation. If the structural change is considered incompatible with the historic district and no compromise seems possible, the commission may reject the request. The interested party would then have recourse through an appeal to the city council.

Sandeen said that so far he reads the neighborhood response as favorable to the plan. From what he could tell, "the feeling was amicable" at the Ramsey Hill Association meeting and "random" but "somewhat amicable" at a meeting with the District 8 Planning Council.

"At Woodland Park (a six-block area northwest of the proposed district) there was great frustration at first because the residents felt left out of the city's preservation plans," he added. "But we ended up having a very constructive conversation."

Groveland School teacher Joan Thames compiled the poetry which appears below from this past year's issues of Das Allerbeste, the Groveland student newspaper. Some of the writing was done as part of regular classroom work, some during COMPAS' Poets in the Schools program while it was at Groveland. Community group to review progress of I-35E study

The community-based coordinating group for the Interstate 35E environmental impact statement (EIS) study, will meet at 3:30 p.m. on Thursday, July 12 in the Metropolitan Council offices to review progress of the study to date.

The coordinating group consists of representatives from the counties and municipalities directly affected by the study. St. Paul, Mendota Heights, Eagan, Lilydale and Ramsey and Dakota Counties are represented on the group, whose function is to keep the various jurisdictions abreast of study developments.

The EIS corridor assessment, now under way, is the second of three steps the Metropolitan Council is engaged in as it prepares the EIS on the St. Paul segment. This phase is scheduled to be completed in early 1980. The Council was authorized to begin the preparation of the EIS in January by the Minnesota Department of Transportation and the Federal Highway Administration.

The third and final phase of the EIS will identify a "preferred alternative." That report is to be completed in late 1980.

The uncompleted I-35E segment extends five miles from the existing I-35E bridge over the Mississippi River (Lexington Bridge) to downtown St. Paul. Under a state law passed early last year, if that segment is to be completed, the only facility that can be constructed is a limited access parkway in the Pleasant Avenue corridor. The law, in accordance with federal guidelines, also directed the council to complete an environmental impact study (EIS) analyzing alternatives for completing the segment.

ACTC PROJECT CLARIFIED

Dear editor:

I need to ask you to publish three facts to correct and clarify information I passed to the Highland Villager in a casual telephone conversation.

(1) Sister Ann Redmond of the College of St. Catherine is the director of the Twin Cities Area Writing Project; LuAnn Kitchell of the College of St. Thomas is the assistant director; I am the coordinator of the writing group sessions in our summer institute.

(2) The teachers in the institute are already successful teachers of writing. They are participating in order to share their best classroom practices, to write intensively and examine their own composing processes, and to prepare themselves to become teacher-consultants for other teachers in their schools and school districts.

(3) The Associated Colleges of the Twin Cities (ACTC) did not provide us with $15,000; they assisted us in raising the money.

Thank you for assisting me in getting accurate information to the public.

CASHILL ON TRASH

To the editor:

I am writing this in order to set the record straight. The Villager printed a very good article about the mandatory trash plan on June 20; however, the information you got from Joann Showalter was untrue. I resent her saying that I had a "traveling road show." Most of the time I went alone. Only when I did not know the location of the building where the meeting was being held did I have someone take me.

There were four and sometimes five other people from the West Side that she was referring to. These people own a small transfer station there, and they would have been put out of business if this plan had been adopted. They were there to protect their business. They came by themselves; I did not bring them. They were concerned and I would do anything I could to help them.

Another thing I want people to know is that I was invited to all the meetings. People called me from all over the city and asked me to be sure to be there. I was even asked by the East Side, where Mrs. Showalter is from. The people that called me know that I am telling the truth.

At each meeting the people were very much opposed to the plan, as Mrs. Showalter well knows but hates to admit. This includes all ages of people, young and old, not just senior citizens and myself as Mrs. Showalter said. I have been telling her for months that it is wrong for older people to have to pay for rubbish that they don't have when they hardly have money enough for food.

I have heard from the St. Paul Chamber of Commerce and the president of the Commercial Clubs in St. Paul that they have written the mayor and the city council expressing their opposition to the mandatory trash plan. They also offered to be of help to me if I needed them.

DAILY FLAK

Dear sir:

Many Highland area residents have called me in regard to the Minnesota Daily and what state legislators are doing about it.

The Senate Education Committee scheduled a committee meeting on the organization of the Minnesota Daily following the publication of a controversial "humor" issue, which offended many readers. The hearing was called solely for the purpose of gaining an understanding of the operation of the Daily. After publication of the 1979 "humor" edition, legislators had been asked by their constituents about what type of controls are placed upon the Daily.

Dr. Magrath pointed out that the total budget for the Daily in fiscal year 1979 is $1.2 million. Of this, 17 percent or some $200,000 comes from the $1.80 quarterly fee paid as a part of tuition by Twin Cities campus students. The majority of the budget, some 80 percent or $970,000, comes from advertising revenue. The remaining 3 percent, or $33,300, comes from the University as payment for subscriptions for faculty and staff.

I fully recognize the First Amendment right of freedom of the press. However, I am concerned about the publication of what I consider vulgar material by the state University. (The procedure for complaints regarding the Daily is to contact the Minnesota Press Council, 111 Murphy Hall, 206 Church Street Southeast, Minneapolis 55455.) Certainly the type of journalism exhibited by the Daily cannot be condoned. However, we should wait until the Board of Regents has its July meeting before advocating any kind of remedy for the situation. Let's hope that they meet their responsibility in dealing with this matter.

SNAPPER CAPPER

To the editor:

In your June 20th issue you ran a story about a turtle residing in Dewdrop Pond at the College of St. Catherine. The turtle pictured in the story was identified as a "box turtle." I'm no turtle expert, but I'm pretty sure the beast you pictured was a snapping turtle and definitely not a box turtle.

Ordinarily, I would not take up your time with this kind of observation; but I would hate to see some poor, unsuspecting college student lose a finger or a toe to a mislabeled reptile.

Also, the reason this turtle was making its way across open ground was to lay its eggs in warm, light soil that is exposed to the sun. I'm sure the turtle fully intended to return to scavenging in the pond, once the egg-laying was over. These turtles will stop at nothing to return and lay eggs at their traditional egg-laying spot, by the way... sort of like salmon going up-stream to spawn.

I hope this information helps you.

Dear neighbor:

Your Snelling-Hamline Community Council is happy to announce the opening of our new office and to invite you to join us during our Grand Opening celebration.

Our community council office is intended to serve two functions: to assist individual area residents in resolving neighborhood problems and in addressing community needs, and to provide a facility for neighbors to meet regularly and become active participants in the development of their community.

Misch- Masch

by Maurice Mischke

Every time a holiday pops up during deadline week, we seem to get a bit behind the eight-ball. Yet I'm not suggesting that they be eliminated!

This happened to be the first time in 15 years that I spent the 4th of July in St. Paul... and what kept me in town-tow that time was a short bout in the hospital with summer pneumonia. Yes, you can take the boy out of the country, but he'll go back there any time he gets a chance... and a tankful of gas!

It wasn't the gas that kept me home, though, as much as the fact that it fell right in the middle of the week. That accident of the calendar probably saved more gasoline last week than anything that Carter's brain trust can come up with in a week at Camp David. Of course, the fact that it rained so hard on Tuesday night and WCCO intoned threats of more for the next day, gave us second thoughts, too... although by now I should know better.

So we went to the Met for a delightful ball game, Jan and I, with the bonus of post-game fireworks. Never thought I'd see almost 35,000 at a game with Seattle, here under the open sky. It was a beautiful evening and I couldn't help wondering if I would have been even the slightest bit tempted to take it in under a slightly steamy dome. They wouldn't burn the nylon roof with skyrockets, would they? Cal, I bet you would have lost two-thirds or more of that crowd, given that lousy lid in downtown Minneapolis. Don't sign that lease, Cal, and you'll win more friends than you ever lost via Washington, Waseca and giving the axe to Billy Martin.

Did you read where the Minnesota Department of Revenue had slipped up and over-stated the potential income to Minneapolis from liquor and hotel taxes... by some 50%. That's probably closer than any of the other estimates will be, once the project gets underway. Or are you still hoping with me that the whole dome thing somehow still winds up in the architect's file 13?

Don't hear much from the Mill City on how people there feel. Except from Gayle Swann, the Socialist Workers Party candidate for mayor, who is quoted as saying, "I have not met a person who is in favor of that g-d— thing." Someone could take her over to see C of C prez Harvey MacKay. But I guess they "socialize" in different circles!

Sorry to see that the semipro Twin City Lakers can't get off the ground this year. We need some football the workman can still afford, A.D. (After the Dome). Oh, there's no need to despair. After all the MIAC still plays a mighty fast brand. I always enjoy watching St. Thomas, St. John's, Hamline, Augsburg and (surely sometime again—soon) Macalester. Even cable TV won't keep me away from those spirited rivalries.

With one or two exceptions, I heard nothing but good reports on the "Super Summer Savings" sale from merchants in Highland and other parts of the area. There's no question that retailers are feeling the inclination of people to avoid unnecessary trips via the family sedan. But a neighborhood like this, with a healthy income average and a high population density factor is likely to come out real well in the long run. It's the way-out suburban centers that have to take a hard second look.

Speaking of consumer sales brings up that much-talked-about onus of a possible recession. I refuse to comment today until I hear what actions result from all that brain-picking and hand-wringing at Camp David. But did you ever experience much of a downturn in an election year? You can always count on Congress and the President to "fire up" in those even years. Of course, we usually pay for that later.

When a recession does it, there's often a tremendous difference in the way big business and small business react. The bigs put on the pressure, invest more in advertising so that sales will hold up. Many of the small guys in looking around for a place to cut costs, will be inclined to focus on their ad budget. But a study by the American Business Press shows that firms who maintain advertising during recession years do better in sales — and profits — in those and later years. This was proved conclusively, says ABP, in studies of five separate recessions.

Include me among those who hated to see the St. Paul Central High School towers removed in the current renovation project. Possibly because it was so much akin to the architecture of the high school I attended — several years ago!

In case some of you were wondering about the dates of the upcoming Highland Art Fair, here's the scoop. It's going to be a bit earlier this year, Friday-Saturday-Sunday, September 14-15-16. Mike Liptak, Jr. is the new director, this time around, succeeding Charleen Bacigalupo, who had handled it from its inception in the late 60's. The HBA thanks you for all your efforts, Char.

The sad plight of the "boat people" isn't much of a vehicle for humor. But a cartoon I saw recently, done by MacIntosh really hit home. It shows some Indians on shore with a backdrop of pines, obviously a setting like Plymouth Rock. Pilgrim types are in the shallow water headed for shore, with boxes, bundles and chairs held overhead. Says one Indian to another, "What are we going to do? More of these people are showing up every day. This latest group just damaged their boat so we couldn't send them back to the sea." I guess we're all descendants from boat people, not so very many generations ago. Perhaps the duress wasn't often as great... manytimes it was merely economic pressure. But what about the St. Louis in 1939 which carried 937 Jewish refugees seeking asylum — only to be turned back and returned to the custody of Hitler and the Third Reich?

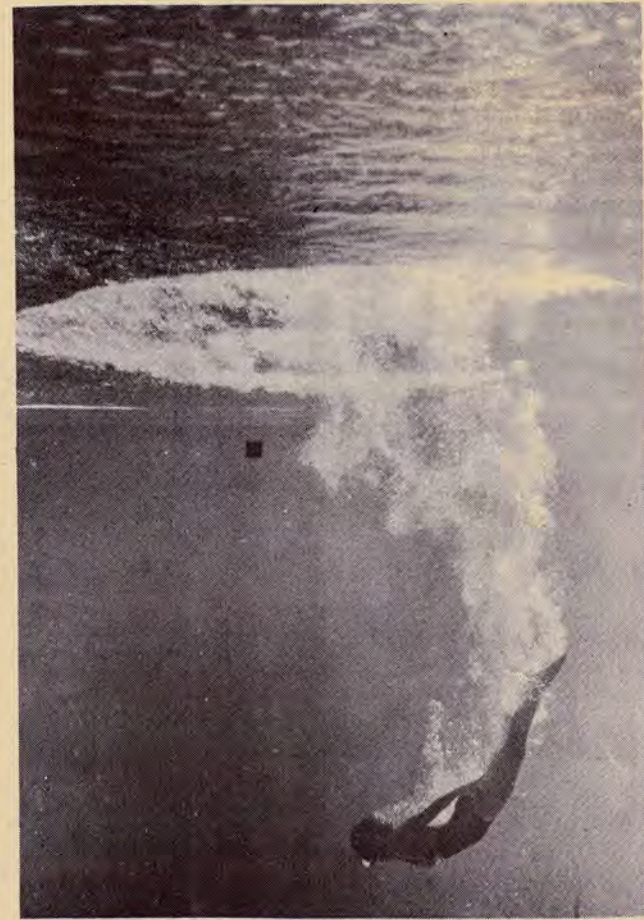

Just noted a recent study which purports to prove that older employees handle tough assignments better in the morning, while younger workers perform better in the afternoon. That's about the only indication I've had that I could belong with a younger group. It always takes me a while in the morning to build up a head of steam. Or am I just kidding myself?

With Salt II and such, I liked this cartoon of a couple medieval types in armor. Said one to the other, "One good thing about this new gunpowder — if both sides have it, it'll be a deterrent to war."

And here's another one, supposedly from a French philosopher, "God is dead, Marx is dead, and I'm not feeling too well myself." What a pessimist, eh? I'd be a pessimist, too, but it probably wouldn't work anyway!

Margaret Meade said it, "Always remember that you are absolutely unique. Just like everyone else."

And a parting pilfered punchline — from a weekly newspaper in Kentucky. The story appeared as follows: "Last week, as often happens in printing a newspaper, a line was inadvertently left off an item. It reminds us of the reader who complained to his editor that the most frequent error in newspapers is 'leaving off the last line of a story.' The editor sent this most interesting reply:"

When you're small and learning to handle a little water, poolside puddles seem tailor-made to size. Splashing inevitably leads to wading, and from there you swim, of course. Then with any luck you're ready for the big leagues and a couple of diving lessons in the grownups' pool at Highland.

More strokes for local folks offered

Registration for the fourth session of summer swimming lessons offered at Highland and Oxford pools will be held from 9:00 a.m. to noon on Tuesday, July 24 at the pool sites.

Sponsored by the St. Paul Division of Parks and Recreation, the ten-lesson sessions will include instruction for Waders, Beginners, Intermediates, Lifesavers, adults and the blind. The classes will be offered from July 30 through August 10.

The fee for the swimming session is $12.00. For more information, call the Special Services Office at 645-4631.

If you're waiting for inflation to slow down before you buy that dream home, you're in for a long wait. As you can see by the projected costs of today, in two years, it will cost $108,852 for the same home you can buy for $84,500 today - an increase of over 25%! (And these figures may be conservative.)

I'd like to talk with you honestly and without obligation about how much home you can afford - because you can't afford to wait.

Metro Council report sees potential problems for cities' water supplies

The metropolitan area has abundant sources of water now, but planning and wise use is necessary to prevent future water shortages, according to a recently completed report by the Metropolitan Council.

The report, entitled "Municipal Water Supply in the Twin Cities Metropolitan Area," evaluates 104 public and four private water suppliers, which serve about 1.75 million people in the region. The area's water supply, the report concludes, is sufficient because community water systems are well managed and adequate laws exist to protect and allocate water resources.

But there are some problems maintaining dependable surface water supplies, and protecting groundwater from pollution, according to the document. The report also identifies disposal of water purification plant residue, pollution from toxic materials and lack of knowledge of the regional groundwater system as areas where problems could arise.

The metropolitan area now gets 217.18 million gallons per day (mgd) of water from 108 municipal suppliers in the metropolitan area. Of this total, 93.2 mgd (43 percent) come from ground water sources and 123.98 mgd (57 percent) come from the Mississippi River.

One of the major water supply issues is whether future supplies should be derived mainly from surface water or groundwater and whether cities that now rely on surface water should develop supplemental groundwater systems. Supply problems associated with reliance on surface water became apparent during the 1976 drought when for a short time it seemed the water level of the Mississippi would drop below the Minneapolis water intake.

The groundwater system would be able to meet future demand better, to the tune of about one billion gallons of water per day in the Twin Cities alone, the report says.

Estimated water demand based on population growth and use will be 218 mgd in 1980, 237 mgd by 1990, and 256 mgd by the year 2000 in the 108 communities studied. Between 142 and 172 new wells will be needed by the turn of the century, according to the report.

Catherine McNamee assumes post as CSC's new president

Catherine McNamee, CSJ, formerly president of Trinity College in Vermont, took office as president of the College of St. Catherine on July 1, becoming the eighth woman to head the college since its founding in 1905. She succeeds Sister Alberta Huber, CSJ, who served as CSC's president for the past 15 years.

Sr. Catherine McNamee became president of Vermont's Trinity College, a liberal arts college for women with an enrollment of about 550, one-fourth the size of CSC's student body.

Area student learns about ancestry the 'Irish Way'

Minnesota scholarship winners in the Irish American Cultural Institute's Irish Way program are Anne Hennessey, a junior at Derham Hall High School, and Patricia Liefert, a junior at Alexander Ramsey High School in Roseville.

Both are presently five days into a six-week stay on the Emerald Isle. Costs are being offset by two $500 scholarships from the Hibernian Life Insurance Fund of Minnesota.

Anne Hennessey

During her trip, Hennessey, the daughter of John and Marion Hennessey of 540 So. Warwick St., plans to explore her heritage by studying Irish music, history and art and by seeing many parts of the Republic. A week-long home stay with an Irish family will be one of the highlights of her trip.

"I'm very proud that I'm Irish," says Ann, "and I feel this trip will give me a great understanding of the traditions of my ancestors." Hennessey and Liefert are among 152 students from 23 states participating in the program, which runs through August 18.

Entry forms are available at recreation centers for the following city-sponsored tournaments:

A citywide frisbee golf tourney will be held on Wednesday, July 25 at Langford Park, and players who sign up will be notified of tee-off time. Entry fee is $1.00 for adults, 50 cents for those in twelfth grade and under.

There will be a golf tournament for young men and women in the last part of July. Players will compete against others in their categories (grades seven through 12), and trophies will be awarded for best actual scores and best scores under the Calaway System. Registration fee is $2.75 per player.

HILLCREST

Our annual bake sale will be held on July 21 and 22. Why not whip up something and donate it? Call Jane at 698-1435 for details.

Groups of kids go roller-skating from Hillcrest at Wooddale skating rinks every Wednesday. You have to register in advance, and it costs $2.00 per person.

Don't forget—you can register at Hillcrest for the citywide hopscotch, golf and frisbee golf tournaments as well as the Big Wheel contest. Also, parents should remember that Hillcrest and the Highland Park Branch Library are cooperating on lots of good programs.

Stop down and see what's up!

GROVELAND

There are still a few openings for children ages 8 to 14 who wish to go day camping the week of July 23-27. Swimming, crafts, outdoor cooking, nature lessons and hikes are all part of the camping program, which costs $4.00 per day or $20.00 for the week. If interested, stop down at the playground soon to register.

With a total of 270 kids participating, we'd have to say the kickball, T-ball and cub softball programs are going very well indeed, thanks to the volunteer coaches and interested mothers. And a big thanks, "THANKS," goes to Widmer's Super Market for supplying treats for the kickball program.

We at Groveland are looking for adult volunteers and a chairperson to run the ice cream social on August 5. If you can be of help, call the playground at 698-5747.

DESNOYER

We wish congratulations and good luck to Sharon Johnson, winner of her class competition in the statewide yo-yo contest. Now she goes on to the regionals in Milwaukee.

Pardon the pun, but our boys' and girls' ball teams are now in full swing. If you'd like to cheer them on, note that the high school boys play at 6:30 p.m. Tuesdays, cub boys at 4:00 p.m. Mondays and pee wee girls' softball at 2:00 p.m. Tuesdays.

For adults: South St. Anthony tells us its gym can be ours from 7:30 to 9:00 p.m. Mondays and from 6:00 to 7:00 p.m. Thursdays. Anyone for basketball, volleyball or co-rec activities? If you have any ideas, call Hal or Virginia at 646-4414.

We'll be trying to organize a Desnoyer Park Booster Club in the fall, both to get more parents involved in playground activities and to raise money for our teams. We look forward to hearing from any interested adults.

Marabeth Timmers, owner of recently opened Tole House, displays a hand-painted scene on a wooden serving tray. Designs like this, done on any household item from wood to metal, are what tole and decorative painting are all about.

Grand opening celebration set for The Tole House

A folk craft first practiced by Roman Catholic nuns in 17th-century France is already enjoying a revival locally with the recent opening of The Tole House in the Summit Hill Mall, 1053 Grand Ave.

The craft is tole painting (from the French word for sheet metal), a technique for decorating metalware with colorful designs in acrylic or oil. But according to Tole House owner Marabeth Timmers, since the technique is equally appropriate for enamel, wood, glass, in fact any household product, tole has since become associated with all forms of decorative painting.

The Tole House serves as both a retail outlet for Timmers' hand-crafted products and as a classroom for those who would like to learn the simple, step-by-step process. More than a dozen courses in tole and related crafts are currently being offered at the shop.

Timmers maintains that the rapidly growing popularity of the craft is due to the fact that its devotees are finding that anyone can turn out beautiful, hand-crafted designs, whether or not he or she has had any previous art training. Timmers has practiced tole painting as an avocation for the past two years. The results of her ever-developing expertise is evident to all who drop by the shop.

A native of Brainerd, Timmers attended college at Winona State and received her masters degree in health education from the University of Minnesota. She currently lives in Maplewood with her husband Joe, who did all the carpentry work in effecting the country-style decor.

Timmers has planned a grand opening celebration for The Tole House from July 16 to 24. During that week there'll be discounts on all merchandise, student displays and demonstrations. Registration will also be conducted for a number of free classes. Refreshments, including Tole House cookies of course, will be on the house.

Snelling-Hamline Council to hold open house July 17th

The Snelling-Hamline Community Council, one of three community councils now operating as a consortium in St. Paul Planning District 13, will hold an open house at its new office at 7:00 p.m. Tuesday, July 17. The new office is located in the basement of Calvary United Methodist Church at the corner of Saratoga and Laurel Ave.

According to SHCC President Rich Upton, the new community office will serve "as a meeting facility for neighborhood residents to voice their opinions about the developments in the Snelling-Hamline area, and as an information and referral service to resolve neighborhood problems when they come up."

The Snelling-Hamline community, which is sandwiched between the District 13 neighborhoods currently being served by the Merriam Park Community Council and the Lexington-Hamline Community Council, is the representative organization of that area bounded roughly by Snelling, Summit, Hamline and University Avenues.

All residents of this area, as well as residents from throughout the district, are invited to attend the open house and hear a special presentation by the St. Paul Police Department on "Police Security and Public Safety in the Snelling-Hamline Neighborhood."

For any further information, call the SHCC's new phone number (644-1085).

Kids rally for Big Wheel, trike derby

A Big Wheel Rally for youngsters in 4th grade and under will be held at 7:00 p.m. Thursday, July 26 in the Midway Shopping Center's rear parking lot at Pascal and St. Anthony Ave.

Sponsored by the St. Paul Division of Parks and Recreation, the rally will include the following events: circle drive, slalom, narrow run, obstacle course and drag race. Children will compete by age group in either the Big Wheel category or the tricycle category.

There is no entry fees, but participants must provide their own tricycles, Big Wheels or reasonable facsimiles. For more information, call the Parks and Recreation office at 645-4689.

CIE-TV

'Antennae of the Race' goes up in St. Anthony

Most people wouldn't even consider leaving home to go watch TV, but that's exactly what they'll be doing to view The Antennae of the Race, a two-part series to be presented on July 20 and August 23 in the St. Anthony Park neighborhood of St. Paul.

Organized by Michael Hazard, media director for the Centre for Internationalizing Everything (CIE), 628 Grand Ave., the exhibitions are part of what he calls "the new television," portable video.

It is Hazard's contention that there are, in effect, two kinds of TV: "Television which is broadcast to us 'free,' and television which anyone can play on a videotape recorder." There's a world of difference between the two, he says.

"When there are only three or four channels to pick from at any given moment we turn on the TV, it's natural there's so little to choose from," he says. "The pity is there's actually so much good television when you look at it as a world medium."

There are two shows scheduled for the July 20 program in the St. Anthony Park Library, 2245 Como Ave. Hazard first saw them last month in Milan, Italy, where they were presented as part of an international public television festival. Both are about communities which mounted community art productions.

Greetings from Lanesville comes from "the world's smallest TV station." Every Saturday night for five years, Lanesville, New York (pop. 500) went on the air with its own experiment in low-power community broadcasting. Greetings presents the best of that effort.

The second feature on the program is entitled The Stuff of Dreams, which chronicles the production of a play and the development of a community. The play is Shakespeare's The Tempest, the community Guilford, Vermont. The play becomes the process by which the community realizes its coherence and finds the roots of art in its daily life.

On August 23 at 8:30 p.m. Minnesota poet Robert Bly will be at Muskego Church on the Luther Seminary campus for the showing of A Man Writes to a Part of Himself, an award-winning television documentary about Bly and his writings. Both shows are open to the public free of charge, though donations will be welcomed.

The Antennae of the Race, which takes its names from poet Ezra Pound's definition of artists, is produced by the Centre for Internationalizing Everything, a non-profit arts and media group that was founded seven years ago by Patrick D. Hazard.

According to his son, Michael, the CIE seeks to promote the arts through the various media, though primary attention is paid to poets and writers. The Centre is currently at work on The Movie at the End of the World, a videotape documentary produced in cooperation with poet and writer Tom McGrath.

Archbishop Roach to preach at Lutheran Reformation Festival

The Most Reverend John R. Roach, D.D., archbishop of St. Paul and Minneapolis, recently accepted an invitation to preach at a Twin City Lutheran Reformation Festival service scheduled for Sunday, October 28 at Central Lutheran Church in Minneapolis.

Both the invitation and its acceptance may mark an advance in a growing awareness of Christian unity on the part of the Lutheran and

Roman Catholic communities, according to St. Luke Lutheran Church's Pastor Albert L. Hock, 1347 So. Wheeler St.

The invitation was issued by a Lutheran "Consultation of Twelve Pastors," of which Pastor Hock was a member. These pastors, from four major Lutheran Synods, recently sought and received endorsement from the heads of three Minnesota Lutheran judicatories for the planning of a Reformation festival that might express the ecumenical growth of the last 20 years.

The invitation to Archbishop Roach said in part, "It would not only be a privilege for us to have you preach the gospel among us, but the occasion should be a tremendous symbol of the prayer that is in us all for a healing of the 16th century breach in the Western Church."

Seconds Shop opens with pottery priced by the pound

Peter Deneen and Dennis Christian recently opened a unique and, to customers, economical pottery shop with a new twist.

The Seconds Shop, located at 1085 Grand Ave. in the space once occupied by the Leather Indian, sells hand-thrown pottery at prices below retail—design samples, discontinued designs, production surpluses and, as the store's name suggests, seconds.

According to Christian, "seconds" can be any items with flaws, from imperfections in clay or glazing to pieces which turn out to be a color the potter didn't quite have in mind.

Deneen, who also owns The Pottery Shop, conceived The Seconds Shop as a sort of factory outlet for his pottery studio, which employs seven full-time craftspeople. He eventually intends to have a nationwide distribution.

Hours at The Seconds Shop are from 10:00 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Mondays through Saturdays. For an indefinite time, a "test the market" sale is going on with merchandise being sold at $1.00 to $4.00 per pound.

Myers named SPCO chair

John H. Myers, 445 Otis Ave., was elected chairman of the board of the St. Paul Chamber Orchestra at its recent annual meeting. He had previously served on the SPCO President's Advisory Committee.

Speaking following the appointment, Myers said he was enthusiastic about the recent response from local businesses and other organizations when the orchestra's future was uncertain. He called the SPCO "a great cultural jewel in the Twin Cities on the threshold of a tremendously exciting future."

Myers, the retired president of the Hoerner Waldorf Corporation, has long been active in the business and arts communities. He is past president of the Minneapolis Symphony, KTCOA board of directors, St. Paul Area Chamber of Commerce, and chairman of the board for the Minnesota State Arts Board.

He has also been a director for the U.S. Chamber of Commerce and Northwest Bank Corporation. Currently, Myers is a director for Economics Laboratory and is a member of Minnesota's Landmark board.

Other SPCO officers elected at the annual meeting were: Eugene M. Warlich, president; John Pulver, vice president for finance; Alan Fischlowitz, vice president for development; Herberg F. Kahler, vice president for planning; Miles Nelson, vice president for marketing; Marvin J. Pertzik and Fred Weil, Jr., vice presidents without portfolio; Lewis Paper, treasurer; and John L. Hannaford, secretary.

Two CST students picked for national chemistry awards

Michael V. Rossini, a first-year chemistry student at the College of St. Thomas this past school year, was recently selected to receive a Freshman Chemistry Achievement Award from the Florida-based CRC Press, Inc. in recognition of his outstanding scholastic achievements at CST.

James J. Figge of 1319 So. Cleveland Ave., who graduated summa cum laude from St. Thomas last May, was also recently picked to receive a Student Certificate from the Minnesota Institute of Chemists, Inc.

The group presents the award annually to an outstanding senior chemistry major who shows exceptional leadership ability, demonstrates high scholastic achievement, and intends to continue in the chemical or chemical engineering field.

Claybourne elected president of MSBA

Frank Claybourne, 2436 Beverly Rd., was elected president of the Minnesota State Bar Association at the 7500-member organization's recent 95th annual convention.

A partner in the St. Paul law firm of Doherty, Rumble and Butler, Claybourne has served the State Bar Association as chairman of the Committee on Youth Conservation and Adult Corrections for 19 years, treasurer (1975-78), president-elect (1978-79), and as a member of the Board of Governors and Executive Committee.

President of the Ramsey County Bar Association in 1970-71, Claybourne received B.B.A. and L.L.B. degrees from the University of Minnesota.

Rev. Crellin tapped to chair consumer committee of FHCE

Rev. Alison Crellin, 1046 Summit Ave., was recently elected to be the new chair of the Foundation for Health Care Evaluation's Consumer Liaison Committee, the group that speaks to the foundation on behalf of the public and also represents the foundation before civic groups.

Rev. Crellin, who has been a member of the committee she now chairs for two years, is a recently ordained Episcopal priest and works with the Twin Cities Metropolitan Church Commission.

The Foundation for Health Care Evaluation, formed in 1969 by metropolitan area doctors, at first reviewed doctors' fees as a result of complaints from consumers, insurance carriers and others. The foundation later expanded its peer review efforts to evaluate health care quality as well.

Johnson accepts ACS gifts chair

Robert W. Johnson, 1950 Bayard Ave., was recently named special gifts chairman for the Ramsey County Unit of the American Cancer Society.

A life-long resident of St. Paul, Johnson served six terms as a state representative from District 63B.

SOUTHWEST AREA DISTRICT Council Capsule

It's official. The Southwest Area District Council's new office is ready and open for business at 550 S. Snelling Ave. The telephone number remains the same as before—698-7973.

The proposed use of Mattocks School for day and night classes by as many as 400 students of St. Paul Technical-Vocational Institute was discussed at the July 9 meeting of the SWAD council. (As of this writing, the meeting was yet to be held.) The District 14 Plan, which was accepted by the St. Paul City Council for adoption as part of St. Paul's Comprehensive Plan, requested that the land be turned into a park. The reason given by the school district for not informing the community of its plans for Mattocks was that, in the district's eyes, such use by TVI would be the same as that of an elementary school.

Two actions of community interest were taken at zoning board meetings last month: Nativity School was given a permit to operate a much-needed area day care center in the building, and permission was granted the Jewish Community Center to build two new handball courts.

The city of St. Paul will be 125 years old in October, and the city fathers and mothers have decided to throw a party. Each planning district will have a chance to do something special, so if you have any ideas, call SWAD coordinator Gayle Summers at 698-7973.

The Southwest Area District Council will meet next at 7:30 p.m. Monday, August 13 in St. Joseph Hall on the campus of the College of St. Catherine. As always, your presence is most welcome.

Saint Paul's smartest condominium conversion

Mere mention of The Commodore is enough to evoke fond images of St. Paul's past for many who make this area their home. For some, the memories go back only as far as the early 1970s when the Jazz Age character of The Commodore's Art Deco lounge was discovered as an elegant backdrop for an evening's entertainment. For others, those recollections are of the Jazz Age itself, for The Commodore has been a St. Paul landmark since its construction in 1920.

Designed as a residential hotel in the heart of one of St. Paul's oldest and finest residential neighborhoods, The Commodore fulfilled the original intent of its builder for many years. Now changing lifestyles have set the stage for an exciting new era for The Commodore.

Fifty spacious condo apartments, including four luxurious penthouse suites, are currently planned, with construction scheduled to begin this summer. When completed early next year, those 50 units will feature the very finest in home accouterments, and offer their occupants all the financial advantages of home ownership, plus the freedom, security and energy and maintenance cost savings of condominium ownership.

And all this in a beautifully sculpted building that is bound to attract the eye—if not the envy—of all who appreciate the best of old and new combined.

CST offers weekend alternative

New College, the College of St. Thomas' undergraduate evening division, will conduct a new program of selected courses which will meet on Friday evenings, Saturday mornings and Saturday afternoons beginning this fall.

Entitled "The Weekend Experience," the program will offer courses in general accounting, management and marketing, and is designed "for students who need to earn a degree in the shortest possible period of time," according to Dr. James Byrne, New College dean.

"Two weekend semesters a year will make it possible to complete six courses in a year, exclusively on Fridays and Saturdays," said Byrne. "In combination with evening courses and prior college experience, it may be possible for a student to complete a degree in from one to three years."

All degree students will still be required to complete the liberal arts courses that make up the college's general requirements.

For further information on "The Weekend Experience," call New College at 647-5322.

ACTC gives nod to new director

Dr. Birgit Birkeland, associate director for college and university services for the American Lutheran Church, has been named executive director of the Associated Colleges of the Twin Cities (ACTC) effective August 1.

A consortium of five private colleges—Augsburg, Hamline, Macalester, St. Catherine's and St. Thomas—ACTC was incorporated as a non-profit organization in 1975 to promote cooperative ventures in programs and services. The colleges coordinate classes, exchange students, offer joint academic programs and share some business services.

Dr. Birkeland, a 1953 graduate of Augsburg, holds A.M. and Ph.D. degrees from New York University. She began work for the American Lutheran Church in 1969 as assistant to the director and in 1977 was named an associate director.

Crime Stoppers program retells story of Guaranty Bank heist

Since the Twin Cities-wide Crime Stoppers program recounted—both in print and over the air—what police believe to be the facts surrounding the February 9 murder of Merle Walstad, six calls have been received by the Crime Stoppers office, two of them with accurate information concerning the homicide.

Walstad, if you remember the Crime Stopper column which appeared in the last issue of the Highland Villager, was the St. Paul Post Office employee who was last seen alive getting off the bus at the corner of Pascal and Minnehaha Ave. at about 12:30 a.m. that day. His body was discovered about three hours later on the boulevard between 1861 and 1865 Rome Ave. in Highland Park. Though no arrests have been made, the investigation continues with information not previously available to the police.

This week's Crime Stoppers column involves another felony committed locally. From the files of the St. Paul Police Department comes the following:

Friday, January 26, 1979—Guaranty State Bank, located at 2475 West 7th Street in St. Paul, is open for its usual day of business. At 10:30 a.m., a white male (age 30-40, 5'8" tall, 160 pounds, with reddish-blond hair and a moustache) enters the bank wearing a brown jacket and sunglasses. He walks over to a counter, takes off his sunglasses, and pulls his red stocking cap down into a ski mask covering his face.

He turns to an employee seated at the desk near the front door, pulls a gun from his jacket, and states, "This is a stick-up—I mean it." He turns to a customer standing near him and orders her to get on the floor. He then hands the employee a blue denim cloth bag with white draw strings and tells her to collect the money from the tellers. She does as he orders and gives the bag back to him.

The suspect then leaves the bank, runs north on Davern Ave., and jumps into a 1976 or 1977 dark brown over light brown GM car.

Crime Stoppers is offering a reward of up to $5,000 for information leading to the arrest and formal charging of the person involved in this crime. If you have any information about this or any other crime in the metro area, call Crime Stoppers at 379-7050. Should you so desire, you may remain anonymous.

Russian-language books loaned out

The growing Russian community in St. Paul will soon have more books to read in Russian, and the necessary sets of English language instruction records.

Right now, the Highland Branch Library boasts a collection of both fiction and nonfiction books in Russian, and invites suggestions on what future books to order. Call the Highland branch at 698-0823 for further information.

SALE!

Fish and seafood are as versatile as your imagination... You'll enjoy a wonderful new taste sensation when you cook them over the coals and you'll find fish and seafood to be fast and easy to prepare. We recommend that you serve fresh fish and seafood as soon after you've bought them as possible. Fresh fish has a delicate, flavorful taste, so please don't destroy it by over-cooking. A handy rule to remember is that fish is translucent when raw and turns opaque when cooked and flakes easily when probed with a fork. When nutritionally compared to meat, fish has about the same protein value, but about half the calories.

Sauger Rolls With Cucumber Stuffing

2 Lb. Sauger Fillets
Salt and Pepper
1/4 C. Chopped Onion
1/4 C. Diced Celery
1/4 C. Butter
1/2 Tsp. Salt
1/4 Tsp. Thyme
2 C. Soft Bread Crumbs
1/2 C. Chopped Cucumber
1/4 C. Dairy Sour Cream

Preheat oven to 450°F. Grease 12 muffin cups. Season fillets with salt and pepper. Cut in strips about 3 x 5 inches and coil in muffin cups. Cook onion and celery in fat until tender, about 5 min. Add seasonings and toss with bread crumbs and cucumber. Spoon stuffing in sauger rolls and top with tsp. of sour cream. Bake 15-20 min. Sprinkle lightly with paprika. Makes 6 servings, 2 rolls each.

Past TapeMark tourney champs return promising 3-round rouser

Four of the five former champions and "every single pro with a realistic chance to win" are entered in the eighth annual TapeMark Charity Pro-Am Golf Tournament, set for Friday through Sunday, July 13-15 at Southview Country Club in West St. Paul.

Tourney chairman Pat Cody said Dave Haberle, last year's champ, will play, as will 1977 winner Rick Ehrmanntraut, 1976 winner Ron Benson, three-time winner (1973-75) George Shortridge and Clayton Johnson, who won the first 54-hole event in 1972.

Mike Zinni, who finished second two years in a row and lost to Haberle last year in a sudden-death playoff, will return for a try at the title, as will Jerry Rislove who finished second and third the last two years.

The TapeMark Pro-Am, started by TapeMark Company president Bob Klas of 496 Montrose Lane, has raised more than $309,000 in the past seven years for the benefit of retarded persons and children with learning disabilities. Each of the 192 amateurs pays a $250 entry fee.

Tickets for the tournament cost $2.50 each, and are good for all three days of the event. Door prizes include a new Chevrolet, trips to resorts, gift certificates and color television sets.

Tickets are now on sale at most area golf courses and will also be sold at the gate.

The nighttime stillness of the Highland pool will soon be partly shattered by evening swimmers, under the watchful eye of a newly hired lifeguard.

Relationship between Catholic school, family explored at CST

"The Catholic School and the Family" will be the focus of a week-long institute scheduled for Sunday through Thursday, July 15-19 at the College of St. Thomas.

Catholic school educators, nationally-known speakers, and parents from across the country will gather at CST for the institute, which will explore the relationship between families and educators, and try to help the latter deal with matters that concern both.

Dr. Elinor Ford, executive director of the National Forum of Catholic Parents Organization, will keynote the sessions on Sunday afternoon, July 15 with a talk on "Parents as Full Parents in Education."

Dr. Carlfred Broderick, executive director of marriage and family counseling at the University of Southern California, will also speak Sunday on "Three Metaphors for the Family."

Other speakers include: Sidney Callahan, author and member of the Psychology Department at Fairfield University in Connecticut, who will speak on "The Catholic Family: Myths, Values, New Perspectives"; Dr. J. Richard Fowler, director of the Judson Family Center in Minneapolis; and David Walsh, counselor at the Edina Family Renewal Center.

Workshop sessions during the institute will address such topics as parent involvement in school decisions, rural families, single-parent families, American family patterns, and Catholic school responsibilities in parenting education.

Further information on workshop participation may be obtained by calling Sister Katherine Egan at 647-5563 or 647-5167.

Talking Out of School

by Bill Rosenbloom and Carl Nelson

It was late in the evening that day in 1974 when the Gemini Cluster planning meeting ended. It was later still before the conversation between Webster Magnet School Principal Dr. Warren Panushka, Chuck Landon, Terry Troy and Carl Nelson ended. The topic of discussion was motivation.

It was asserted that a successful school program is dependent on successful, motivated teachers. Dr. Panushka was asked what motivates teachers. His immediate response was that motivation was a product of succeeding in helping students learn and grow personally.

Dr. Panushka recalled a student at Drew Elementary School for whom he worked night after night trying to communicate a math concept. Frustration upon frustration began to look like failure when suddenly something clicked, and the concept was understood and learned. Panushka seemed to draw continual motivation from the joy of the later accomplishments of that student.

It's understandable that Webster Magnet has succeeded as a school and that the students there would care enough for this caring person to sponsor a farewell retirement reception for him on June 7. The sentiments expressed on the cards and posters produced by Webster students are echoed in the following piece by Tari Hoel, 352 Macalester St., who just completed the fifth grade at Webster.

A DIFFERENT PRINCIPAL

by Tari Hoel

Dr. Warren Panushka, the "magnet" behind Webster Magnet School, retired at the end of June after 32 years with the St. Paul Public Schools. Dr. Panushka came to Webster eight years ago from Drew Elementary School. Prior to that, he worked in the district office for nine years.

When he came, Webster was just one building with only 375 students. Since his arrival, the school has expanded into what used to be Marshall Junior High School and now has a population of almost 1,000 students.

Dr. Panushka is different from any other principal I've had. He really cares about his students. Most mornings when the buses arrive, he's out to greet us, and he can be found in the cafeteria at noon and on the playground, too. When the buses arrive at 3:00, he's outside to make sure that everyone gets on the right bus. I know the kids at Webster will miss him next year.

In a recent interview, Dr. Panushka said leaving a school like Webster was a very hard decision to make and he will miss all his kids very much. He is very proud of having been able to develop Webster into a magnet school, but he said he is retiring so he can do something different with his life.

His retirement should give him more time to spend with his wife, Betty, and three children at their home in Falcon Heights. He and his wife enjoy doing many things together such as jogging, going to art fairs and traveling. It will also give him more time to pursue his hobbies—hunting, camping, barbershop singing and stained glass.

After he leaves, Dr. Panushka hopes Webster "will continually change and respond to the needs and ideas of the parents and the community."

GTCYS takes to the water for two offshore concerts

Two unusual concerts by the Greater Twin Cities' Youth Symphonies will be played this summer from aboard the riverboat "Josiah Snelling" to an audience gathered on shore. Each performance will be free to listeners.

The first concert, scheduled for 8:00 p.m. Monday, July 30, will be performed at Harriet Island Park, about one block upriver from the St. Paul Yacht Club. The second concert, planned for 8:00 p.m. on August 6, will be held at lower Riverside Park on the west bank of the Mississippi, upriver from the Franklin Ave. Bridge in Minneapolis.

Dr. William Jones, music director of the organization, and Ed Schlueter of the GTCYS conducting staff will lead the 70-piece orchestra. Host for the evening will be Captain Bill Bowell, owner and operator of the riverboats.

This is believed to be the first time a summertime concert has ever been performed from a riverboat to an on-shore audience. Concertgoers should bring their own blankets or chairs.

Minn. Orchestra moves outdoors for concerts free as air

The Minnesota Orchestra will present two free outdoor concerts this week on the University of Minnesota campus—one at 12:15 p.m. Thursday, July 12 on the West Bank Knoll, another at 12:15 p.m. Friday, July 13 on the Northrop Auditorium Mall.

The program will include the overture to Candide, pieces from Porgy and Bess and Star Wars, along with "Feelin' Free," "Varsity Drag" and other selections.

In case of rain, the West Bank concert will be cancelled and the Northrop Mall concert will be moved inside Northrop Auditorium.

Jazz octogenarian Hunter to belt 'em out in Northrop

Blues singer Alberta Hunter, who at age 84 is Greenwich Village's hottest singing sensation, will perform at 8:00 p.m. Tuesday, July 17 in Northrop Auditorium at the University of Minnesota.

Hunter started singing ballads and blues around 1906. She had written dozens of songs and played concerts from Chicago to Istanbul by 1957 when she "retired" to become an accredited practical nurse.

She was rediscovered in 1977 while singing at a party for the legendary Mabel Mercer and, within a few months, had become the permanent headliner at The Cookery in the Village.

Hunter's standards include "A Good Man Is Hard To Find," "The Downhearted Blues," "My Working Man" and "The Best Things In Life Are Free." Among her most recent credits is the music for the Robert Altman film Remember My Name.

Tickets are $2.00, and available by calling the Northrop ticket office at 373-2345.

Mario (the Juggler) Lorenz was on hand at the Highland Branch Library recently to lay a lesson in legerdemain on this group of attentive apprentices. After first giving the kids a brief demonstration, Mario explained some of the more subtle tricks of the trade to (above, left to right): Sean Kelly, Dana Kanter, Mark Sexton, J.J. Kidder and Doug Wagner. But nothing is as easy as it seems, it seems. Below, it's more of a struggle than a juggle as Sean, J.J. and Dana do their thing with the pins and the ring. Dana, who said she did "sorta good" despite her broken arm, has apparently given up acrobatics in favor of less physical feats. She fractured the limb while doing cartwheels in her front yard this spring.

Are granules falling off your roof?

It could be a sign that your roof's shingles are losing their ability to shed water. The oils and resins get baked out of the shingles by the sun. Soon water seeps down under these shingles, through the tar paper and possibly to your roof boards which invites rot and insects.

Ask a man who loves to talk to you about your roof about any problem you may be having. If your present roof is 15-20 years old, you may have a problem and not know it.

Topics will include planning problems employers face with regard to taxes, inflation, government regulations, administration and communication, and ways to deal with them, special benefits available to executives, and consumer information.

For reservations and more details, call Jan Phelps at 646-2501 during business hours.

Why is this man smiling? Because the University of Minnesota named him 1979's Scholar of the Year. Robert Vince, 1723 Yorkshire Ave., earned the award for excellence in teaching and research as professor of medicinal chemistry in the College of Pharmacy. Vince, who was chosen for recognition by the Honor Society of Phi Kappa Phi, has with his colleagues synthesized several new agents now being developed for use in cancer chemotherapy and treatment of viral diseases.

Berman chosen for Amoco dons' award

Dr. Abraham S. Berman, 686 Mt. Curve Blvd., is one of seven University of Minnesota faculty members that recently received the Horace T. Morse-Amoco Foundation Award for making outstanding contributions to undergraduate education.

Berman, a professor in the aerospace engineering and mechanics department, has had ten years' experience as the department's director of undergraduate studies. In 1977, he was given the first student-originated teaching award in the university's Institute of Technology.

The Amoco Foundation citation was given for quality of teaching and advising, planning and designing ways to improve educational practices, and leadership. A faculty-student committee of the All-University Council on Liberal Education chose Berman for the honor.

Historic fort sets talk, craft demo

This week's activities at historic Fort Snelling include a quilting demonstration at 1:30 p.m. Wednesday, July 11 and a lecture by Virginia Kunz about "Interesting People of Early St. Paul You Wouldn't Care to Meet," at 1:30 p.m. Thursday, July 12. Both programs are free with admission to the fort.

(By the way, that is "quilting," not "quilting." It's the domestic craft of decorating boxes and other articles with colored porcupine quills. Angela Lynch will show how.)

A new number for Know Phone

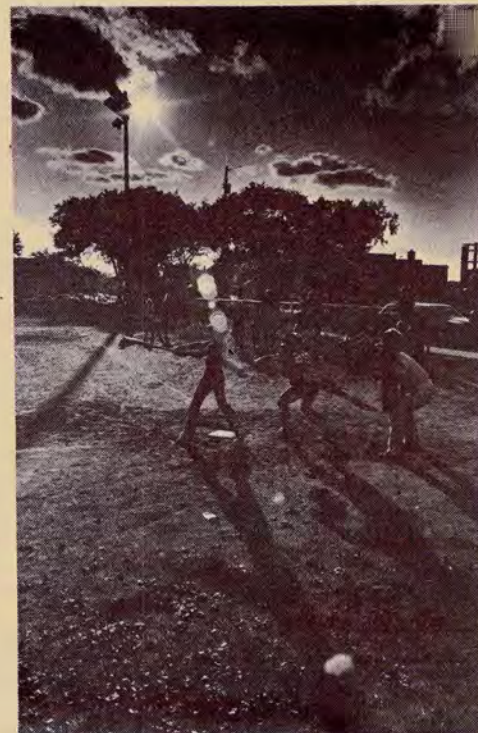

The Know Phone, a free public information service for people who live and work in Ramsey County, has announced its new telephone number: 291-0214.

The service, which can provide you with information about such varied programs as home-delivered meals, summer recreation activities, day care and even dance lessons, is operated by the Community Planning Organization from 8:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. weekdays.

CST slates talk on private schools

"The American Dream Revisited: American Private Education Today" is the title of a free lecture to be given by Brother John Olsen at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, July 11 in the auditorium of O'Shaughnessy Educational Center at the College of St. Thomas. Educators and the public are invited.

Brother John, who is executive director of the Secondary School Department of the National Catholic Education Association, is a nationally known writer and lecturer on the subject of private education. The program is sponsored by New Design for School Leadership, a project of CST's department of education and community services.

Baum's team does Wella in regional AAA competition

Jodi Baum, 596 Mt. Curve Blvd., recently won a regional competition, sponsored by the American Advertising Association, as part of a University of Minnesota student advertising team.

The award was based on the team's research, marketing plans, advertising, media strategy, budget, creativity, sales promotion and presentation in drafting a sample marketing project for Wella Balsam shampoo.

Baum graduated this spring from the U of M's school of journalism and mass communication.

The smell of leather, sweat and sun-baked earth. The burning dust in the hot, breathless air. Small, staccato voices erupt at the crack of the bat, and a ball arches silently through a pale-blue sky. . . . These are the things sandlot baseball is made of, and these are its players. Aldine was the stage for the sandlot scenes pictured here, but it might as well have been Groveland, Hillcrest, Homecroft or any of the other area playgrounds where summer is celebrated by kids who have no need to remember these months as that endless adventure between grades.

'Y' offers families a week in the sticks

Camp du Nord, a family camp operated by the St. Paul Area YMCA, has openings available for families desiring a week-long outing in the sticks this summer.

Reservations are necessary for the camping week, which runs from Saturday to Saturday. For more information, call the Camp Office at 292-4118.

Senior dental aid project begun

A new statewide program designed to offer low-cost dental care to senior citizens is now available through the joint effort of the Minnesota Senior Federation and the Minnesota Dental Association.

To be eligible, a person must be age 62 or retired, have a yearly spendable income of less than $6,000 (for singles) or $7,000 (for couples) from all sources, and have a membership card in the Senior Federation.

Cash for cans

Metro Recycling Center, 655 Glendale St., opened last month and now offers consumers 18 cents a pound for used, all-aluminum beverage cans. The center, a division of Minnesota Diversified Industries, is open from 12:30 to 4:30 p.m. Tuesdays through Fridays, and from 9:00 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Saturdays.

Under the program, oral exams will be given and treatment proposed if necessary. A minimum of 20 percent will be deducted from work done, and all dental work needed will be covered under the plan.

For details on how to enroll in the program, or to receive a list of participating dentists, call Betty Steele at the Metropolitan Senior Federation office (645-0539).

Area companies are giving the business to French students

Thirty-nine French students, all working toward their graduate degrees in business administration, are staying at the College of St. Catherine this month while they learn about the American way of doing business.

The group, sponsored by Project Responsibility of the St. Paul Area Chamber of Commerce, studied marketing at the college for one week and is now getting field experience by working in companies that participate in the project.

The students are led by Marie Therese Reed, who formerly taught at CSC and now teaches business at the University of Rennes in the French province of Brittany.

Lapidary group sets gem of a show in July

All that glitters isn't gold, really. Polished gemstones also exhibit that trait, and the public is invited to see and agree when the Upper Midwest Lapidary Association sponsors a national contest, show and sale of natural stones this weekend at the 4-H Building on the Minnesota State Fairgrounds.

The show will include displays, demonstrations, lectures and films as well as equipment and jewelry for sale. Hours are from 10:00 a.m. to 9:00 p.m. Friday and Saturday, July 13 and 14, and from 10:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. Sunday, July 15.

Hosts sought for foreign students

The Experiment in International Living, a non-profit educational institution, is currently seeking applications from families who wish to serve as hosts for an international high school student for 3 to 10 months during the 1979-80 school year.

Interested persons are invited to call Mrs. Gretchen-Dian at 292-1201.

It might be true, as Samuel Johnson said, that "a blade of grass is always a blade of grass," but to those of us who face a lawn of this come Saturday morning when we could be out knocking a golf ball about, somehow it never looks quite this good.

Search starts for state's outstanding senior citizens

Nominations are now being taken for the selection of Minnesota's two outstanding citizens, part of the senior citizen recognition program sponsored by the Minnesota State Fair, the state's Board on Aging and the Minnesota Federation of County Fairs.

All Minnesotans over 70 years of age are eligible for the program and they may be nominated by any group or individual. The selection process will begin at the county fairs with winners advancing to the statewide contest, culminating in a ceremony honoring the two outstanding seniors at the 1979 State Fair.

Entry information and nomination forms are available through the Minnesota Board on Aging (296-2770), the Minnesota State Fair (645-2781), or Minnesota county fairs (names and addresses are available from the State Fair). Entries for the statewide program must be postmarked by August 3, 1979.

Joan Coughlan (left) and Kathleen Maloney, both recent graduates of the College of St. Catherine, have been appointed admissions counselors at the college. Coughlan will recruit students from southern Minnesota, Iowa and South Dakota. Maloney's territory includes Wisconsin, Indiana, northern Michigan and the Twin Cities metropolitan area.

What would you do if a little bird told you "Thrifting beats saving."

Thrifting at Thorp offers the area's top yield on Passbook Thrift Accounts, Thrift Certificates and Variable Rate Certificates. You can earn rates of interest consistently higher than banks and savings and loans. Our 3-year Thrift Certificates earn an effective annual yield of 8.33% when held to maturity and compounded quarterly.

After you compare the return on savings at banks and S & L's,

EFFECTIVE ANNUAL INTEREST RATES

Passbook Accounts	5.47%	5.61%	6.18%
One Year Certificates	6.27%	6.66%	6.66%
Three Year Certificates	7.11%*	7.41%*	8.33%*

ask what happens to your nest egg elsewhere if you withdraw it prematurely.

At a bank or S & L, when you withdraw your certificate prior to maturity, you are penalized one quarter's interest if your certificate has an original maturity of one year or less and two quarter's interest if your certificate has an original maturity of more than one year.

Not at Thorp. You don't lose a quarter's interest for early withdrawal. You earn at the highest rate offered for the length of time your certificate has been left on deposit.

We think that makes us pretty good eggs when it comes to taking care of our customers. We also make "Thrifting" an easy process. We're as close as your nearest mailbox. Your transactions are confirmed by mail with postage paid both ways. You can even open an account by mail.

Complete details are included in our "Thrifty Mail" Kit. Call the nearest office to receive yours and join the thousands of people who are all a-flutter over Thrifting.

(Yawn) Toms set enrollment record

Seems it's hardly cause for comment anymore when the Toms come marching in in record numbers.

The same institution that boasted a record 4482 students during the past academic year, now announces it has surpassed its old summer enrollment record, set just last summer with 1970 students presently enrolled.

St. Thomas, the largest independent college in the state of Minnesota, is accommodating 1312 graduate students and 658 undergraduates during the 1979 summer session.

Deanery denizen named to council

Gerald Alfveby, 2003 Palace Ave., was recently elected to a two-year term on the Pastoral Council of the Archdiocese of St. Paul and Minneapolis. The Pastoral Council, composed of 15 deaneries from 223 parishes, meets with and advises the archbishop, and aids communication between parish members and archdiocesan agencies.

Alfveby will represent Deanery 2 which consists of St. Therese, St. Mark, St. Leo, St. Gregory, St. Cecilia, St. Andrew, Nativity, Immaculate Heart, Maternity of Mary, Holy Spirit, Holy Childhood and Corpus Christi in St. Paul, St. Odilia in Shoreview, St. Rose of Lima in Roseville, and St. John the Baptist in New Brighton.

If the Highland theater had a penny for everybody in the block-long crowd who passed through these portals, —well, they'd collect a dollar a head instead of 99 cents.

St. Paul's early days discovered by tours over pages 'n' pavement

Two books published by the Ramsey County Historical Society, Rocky Roots and Discover St. Paul, are all you'll need for a thorough soaking in St. Paul's past. Together with two good feet, the books form the backbone of walking tours through downtown and its surrounding neighborhoods.

Rocky Roots is divided into a series of walking tours through downtown St. Paul with maps, photographs and descriptions of the kinds of stone used in the buildings, where they came from and how they were quarried.

Discover St. Paul has maps and short histories of seven St. Paul neighborhoods just beyond downtown: Dayton's Bluff, Ramsey Hill, Frogtown, West Seventh Street, the West Side, North End and Payne Avenue.

The books are available for $1.00 each at the Historical Society's headquarters in the Landmark Center, 75 W. 5th St., and at the Gibbs Farm Museum, Cleveland and Larpeteur Ave. in Falcon Heights.

$10 million pledged now in United Way 10-year fund drive

The capital campaign of the United Way of the St. Paul Area, Inc., has arrived at what it calls the most difficult part of its $15 million fund drive—the last one-third.

To date, just over $10 million has been pledged: $5 million by corporations of all sizes and types, another $5 million by foundations, and the rest from individuals.

The St. Paul capital campaign, conducted every 10 years, provides money to be used by the 26 United Way member agencies in expanding their facilities and is the largest fundraising effort of its kind in the country. It's not to be confused with the annual United Way appeal, which helps agencies meet their year-to-year operating expenses.

Be a party to a party: Help city celebrate its 125th

Mayor George Latimer has sounded the call for St. Paul residents eager to help plan and carry off a 125th birthday party for the city, scheduled for the week of October 6-13.

Themes for each day of the celebration will be St. Paul's religious heritage (October 6 and 7), Discovery Day (October 8), Transportation Day (October 9), Neighborhood Day (October 10), Business and Labor Day (October 11), Government Day (October 12) and Culture and Arts Day and a concluding party (October 13).

All those interested in helping to plan the event should call Tom Kelley, director of the Department of Community Services, at 298-4431.

Canines face frisbee contest

If your dog has a disposition for catching frisbees, you're invited to enter him or her in the K-9 Frisbee Catch and Fetch Contest, sponsored by the St. Paul Division of Parks and Recreation and open to all dogs with a valid city license and proof of rabies shots.

The competition will be held in Como Park—the citywide event at 6:00 p.m. Friday, August 10, and the state and regional contests at 1:00 and 3:30 p.m. Saturday, August 11.

The uncanny canine who wins the regional competition will proceed to the Rose Bowl in Pasadena on August 26 in an attempt to depose Dink, the reigning champion, and collect a $1,000 U.S. Savings Bond.

Dog handlers must be St. Paul residents. To enter, call the parks division at 645-4689.

Library sets Read to Me Workshop

A Read to Me Workshop, designed to aid adults in developing reading skills for young children, will be held from 7:00 to 8:30 p.m. Thursday, July 19 at the Highland Branch Library, 1974 Ford Pkwy.

Topics to be covered in the workshop include: the importance of reading to the child on a one-to-one basis, selection of materials, and an introduction to different forms of storytelling.

To register for the workshop, call 224-3383, ext. 28.

STA names new athletic director

Brown, currently the head football coach, has taught at STA for 14 years and has coached football, baseball, track and basketball. A 1958 Academy grad, he has taught in the mathematics and physical education departments.

Notice to Savers!

Higher returns available to you, effective July 1.

Your neighborhood MidAmerica Bank is ready, as always,
to pay you the highest interest rates permitted by law.

Regular passbook savings accounts will pay $5\frac{1}{4}\%$ — deposit or withdraw at any time. Interest is calculated on a daily basis and credited to your account the first day of each quarter.

Consider our new four-year certificates. The rate ceiling will change on the first calendar day of each month in relation to the average four-year yield on Treasury securities as determined by the Treasury Department. A $1,000 minimum deposit is required. These certificates provide an opportunity to earn higher interest — in four years — than ever before.

We will continue to issue Money Market certificates with a $10,000 minimum and six-month maturity, with weekly interest rate based on new six-month U.S. Treasury bills.

Other savings plans, including IRA, are still available as heretofore. We invite you to come in for help in placing your savings to obtain the highest possible return.

*Federal regulations require substantial interest penalty for early withdrawal on time deposits.
