Concerned residents block plans for TVI's use of Mattocks site

by Nancy Keating

Call it coincidence if you will. More likely, a direct result of citizen participation.

On Monday, July 9, the Southwest Area District Council, after a heated discussion, formed an ad hoc committee to try to block the St. Paul Public Schools' plan to turn the Mattocks Elementary School site over to the St. Paul Technical-Vocational Institute.

On Tuesday, July 10, the committee, headed by Jim Zdon of 1669 Juliet Ave., spoke at a regular meeting of the school board, school superintendent George Young withdrew a recommendation to move TVI courses into Mattocks, and the full board referred the question to its buildings and grounds subcommittee.

Zdon said that, for good measure, the SWAD committee would attend that subcommittee's meeting on Monday, July 23 to keep track of the Mattocks matter. (Results of that meeting were not available at press time. However, Young and Zdon each said they expected no action to be taken.)

What will eventually be done with the Mattocks site, 447 Macalester St., has concerned the SWAD Council since last April when the school board decided to close down the school at the end of the school year. The District 14 Plan, and SWAD's capital improvement budget requests to the city, requested that the site be converted to a playground.

The St. Paul City Council approved the District 14 Plan with the recommendation for Mattocks' use intact. But the school system owns the property, so the city can do nothing with the site unless the school board decides it's of no further use as a school and sells it to the city.

Official wheels turn slowly, but the district council

Who'd Give a Dome Here for 'Ersatz' Baseball?

by Maurice F. Mischke

Editor's note: A bit of a diamond purist, your friendly neighborhood newspaper publisher has long held the notion that fans in these parts would not long support an under-cover, artificial substitute for the real game—not with the many other outdoor options available during our short, but mostly sweet, Minnesota summers. All it took was last week's All-Star game in Seattle to drive him up a tree and out on a limb, with what poetic purists would no doubt call questionable verse-utility. We nevertheless condescended to print the following poem because (1) we agree with him; (2) he stayed up so late that very same night to finish it; and (3) his signature still appears at the bottom of our paychecks.

Our major league all-stars,
Those voted the best,
Took the field at the Kingdome
By punch-card request.

The crowd watched a see-saw,
Not bad as a show,
It was even called "baseball"
By Tony and Joe.

New energy rules
Made it hot by degrees,
For under that dome
There was nary a breeze.

(It must be rough on the pitchers,
Who are trying to keep Their E.R.A.'s decent,
When those homers come cheap.)

Astroturf altered
The whole diamond scene;
It's so different from grass,
Except that it's green.

What should have been outs
Went for hits when the ball
Bounced high over outstretched
Gloves in the "hall."

And what about pop-ups
Lost high in the ceiling?
It made playing the field
Somewhat less appealing.

This brand of baseball
Makes for comical innings,
But should flukes such as these Measure World Series winnings?

Sure, Seattle needs a dome
What with all of its rain,
But for the Twin Cities
It'd be mostly in vain.

Here's hoping that somehow
The commission will let
The whole dome thing die
And remodel the Met.

The Vikings could still Get their dome at the "U,"
And upgrade the plant
For Giel's Gophers, too.

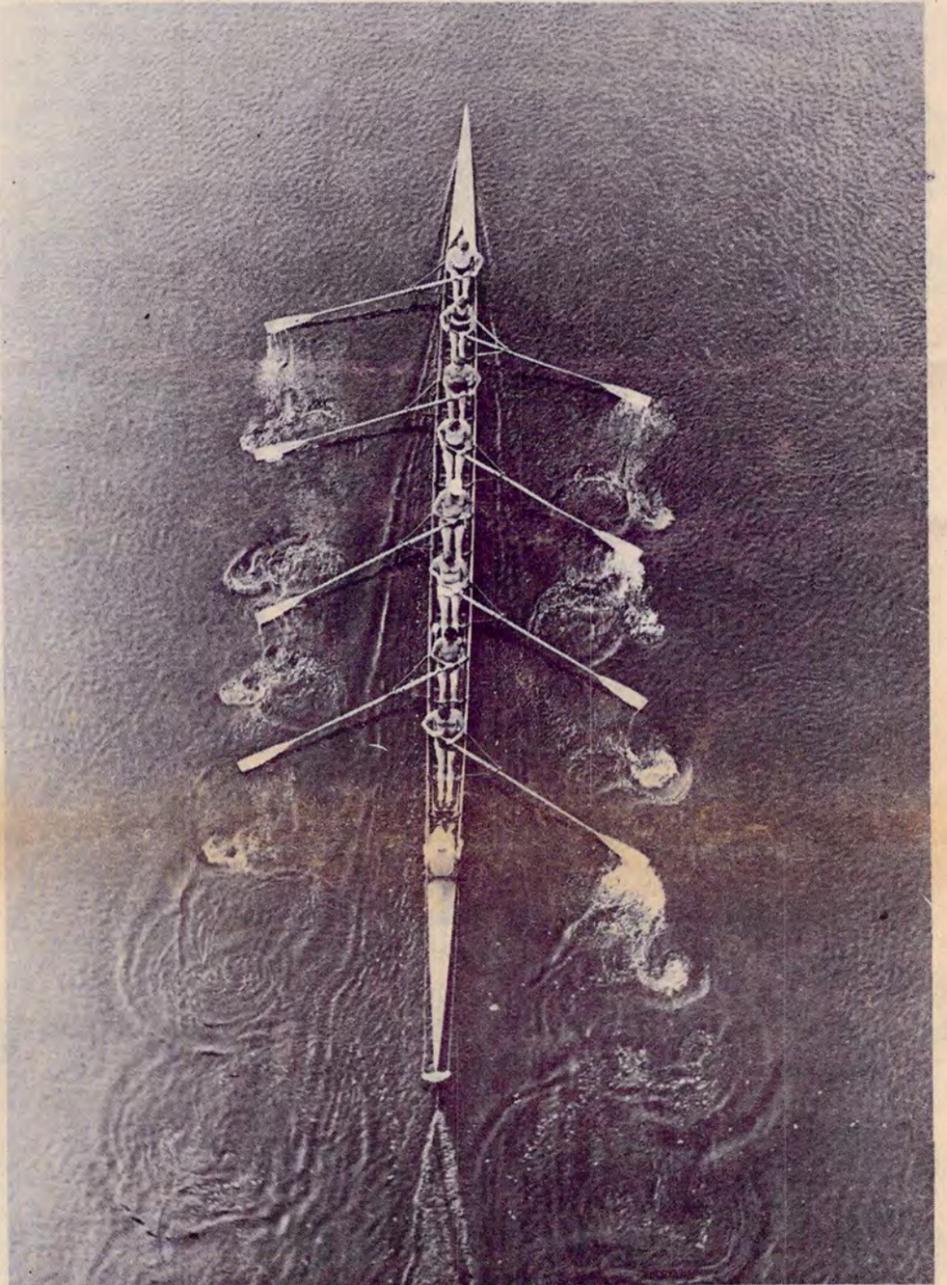

We can still pray that Cal,
That crusty old gent,
Will not sign the sheet
That would cost him more rent.

Or that Bob Short will sue
To block the whole mess,
Save the powers that be
From their error—no less.

Cancel that half-baked
Self-seeking proposal,
Run those dome drawings
Down a garbage disposal.

Then back to the drawing
Boards, Coleman and Quie;
Call Dan Brutger also
And soon you will see...

That the taxpayers, sports fans
And students, too,
Would all benefit more
From a dome at the "U."

Area demand is high enough to support a couple of co-ops

by Roger Fuller

What began as a plan to move Merri-Grove Community Foods from its site on Selby Avenue to a new and larger location on St. Clair has resulted in the creation of two local co-ops instead of just one.

After residents living near the Selby store let it be known loud and clear that they wanted it to stay, "the consensus was to keep both stores open," said John Sellen, a member of the board of directors which oversees the operation of Merri-Grove and the new co-op, Mississippi Food Market.

Sellen explained that the board's initial opposition to operating two stores diminished when co-op members discovered there was enough business to support both locations.

"But that doesn't mean there wasn't a lot of bitterness along the way," said Genny Keyser, a board member during the transition period. She explained that the decision to move the store to St. Clair made a lot of people in the Merriam-Groveland area feel their neighborhood was being abandoned.

and the city seemed in agreement that the site should become a recreation center. Nobody counted on the school administration's next move, which was to let TVI begin moving some of its equipment into the Mattocks building.

District council members responded by asking City Councilman Ron Maddox to get an opinion from the city attorney's office on whether or not the schools' plans complied with zoning ordinances.

According to current city zoning law, a post-secondary school must face a major thoroughfare (which Mattocks does not) and must supply one parking space for every eight students. The legal opinion indicated that, to locate at Mattocks, TVI would need a variance for nonconforming use, and probably a special-use permit to build a parking lot on the grounds.

It looks as though the district council and area residents—concerned about potential traffic and parking problems, and a feared devaluation of residential property—will continue to try to block any attempt to locate TVI at the Mattocks site.

But apart from residents' conviction that the proposal is illegal, much "frustration and anger" surrounds the issue, according to SWAD chairman Tom Watson, 1769 Stanford Ave., because the school administration took action without informing Mattocks neighbors.

The TVI administration, meanwhile, is "trying to reschedule plans," according to Gerhard Nelson, assistant director. "The school board has approved eight 'portables' which may absorb some overflow, and we may lease private space," he said, to house an estimated 450 to 500 additional students and 44 classes this fall.

If the school board finds another facility for TVI, what will happen to the Mattocks site? Young stopped short of saying the school board would part with it for use by the city.

"When I go to the board to recommend that a school property be declared surplus, I have to be telling the truth, that there is no further educational use for it," he said. "We're in the process of studying that matter now."

According to spokespersons for both sides, a compromise solution might be some form of joint use—a city-run playground for the bulk of the square-block site and some "compatible" school district program for the building on it.

But for that to happen, SWAD members say, communication between the city and the school board would have to improve dramatically. "It makes no sense at all," Watson said. "Why can't these governmental arms cooperate with each other? They're competing like big businesses, but forgetting all the money comes from the same pocket."

New Montessori Children's Center to open Sept. 12

The new St. Paul Montessori Children's Center, located at the corner of Marshall and Lexington Pkwy., will open its doors on September 12 under the direction of Chulanganee Fernando.

A native of Sri Lanka (formerly Ceylon), Ms. Fernando received her training in the field from Dr. Maria Montessori herself. She has been involved in Montessori instruction for a total of 35 years, the last six as an instructor of other teachers at the St. Paul Montessori Training Center.

According to Ms. Fernando, the St. Paul Montessori Children's Center will offer both a morning Montessori program and an extended day program. For any further information about the facility and the program it will be offering, call 690-1219.

It's something in between blacktop and green grass that makes the Mattocks site the little-used playground it is today. From across the street, neighbors see a lot of room for improvement.

Administrative shuffle sends St. Paul principals packing

Four St. Paul high school principals and four elementary principals have new assignments for 1979-1980, it was announced recently by the school administration.

Karl Grittner, principal of Johnson Senior High since 1969, will move to Hazel Park Junior High. Dr. David Frye will man Grittner's post at Johnson after serving as principal of Highland Park Senior High since 1974.

Reno Rossini moves up the hill from Monroe Junior High to Highland Senior High, and Keith Bergstrom travels across town from Hazel Park Junior High to fill the principal's shoes at Monroe Junior High.

The four elementary changes include Alfred Pieper who will move from Mattocks to Mississippi, and Glorienne Rosten from Linwood to Parkway. These transfers were due to school closings at Linwood and Mattocks.

In addition, Kenneth Galatowitsch moves from Horace Mann to Chelsea Heights, and Eugene Galatowitsch from Mississippi to Webster Magnet.

Fred Pelting, assistant principal at Washington High School, and Dean Sausele, assistant principal at Como Junior High, will swap positions as Como becomes a senior high and Washington a junior high.

Court clearance sought at city hearing July 31

The St. Paul City Council has scheduled a public "vacation hearing" for 10:00 a.m. Tuesday, July 31, in the council chamber, on the third floor of City Hall, to determine whether to release an unused parcel of city-owned land for sale to the Jewish Community Center, 1375 St. Paul Ave.

Last month the JCC received zoning board approval for a plan to build racquetball courts behind its current grounds. The courts would be built on what planners' maps refer to as part of Wheeler St., a portion that has never been and never will be paved if the city "vacates" that parcel of land.

According to Sellen, the decision to eventually move out of Merri-Grove, 1675 Selby Ave., dates back several years. "We had been considering a new location because Selby was just too small," he said. "We looked at a couple of locations within the neighborhood, but neither one of them worked out."

"Finally we decided on the former Clemen's Food Market, which had been out of business for several months. It was pretty well suited to our needs because it had been used as a grocery store before, and it had about three times as much space."

The proposal was then submitted to the co-op members. "About a third of them voted to stay," Sellen said. "A little more than half indicated that, given the circumstances, they'd prefer to move to St. Clair."

Part of the friction that developed could be traced to the role the seven paid coordinators played in promoting the move, Sellen said. "They were the people most familiar with the shortcomings of the Selby store, because they had to deal with them every day," he explained. "They might have acted more decisively than many of the members thought they should have."

All that was left on Selby was an empty store after the co-op moved into 1459 St. Clair and opened under the name of Mississippi Food Market. But as soon as the move was made, many local residents who had been loyal to Merri-Grove came forward to say they wanted to re-open the store.

"Though we felt our first responsibility was to the St. Clair store, the board decided to let them re-open," said Keyser. "We also took out a small loan for them to operate."

Ten days after Merri-Grove closed, it re-opened. "We saw a massive influx of people," said Sellen. "People who had been regular volunteers moved up to become coordinators. Those who had occasionally volunteered took regular shifts. People who had felt there was no place for them moved into volunteer roles. We were just lucky we had a lot of people trained to move in all at once to keep the operation going."

Hardly what one would call fancy, but the Mississippi Market does sport all the spices a chef could ever need.

Today, the basic difference between the Selby and St. Clair operations is that Mississippi Market is run by seven paid coordinators, and Merri-Grove by volunteers. "When we started five years ago, we were all-voluntary because we couldn't afford to pay anyone," Sellen said. "It wasn't until two years ago that we were able to pay the coordinators."

Tom Hatch, a coordinator at the Mississippi Market, predicted that the voluntary phase at Merri-Grove is just the beginning of a familiar cycle. "In the beginning, all co-ops go through this," he said. "They feel the decision-making group becomes too isolated from the co-op members if it's paid." That feeling changes as the organization matures, he explained.

However, Sellen sees a basic philosophical difference between the two stores' styles—one that isn't likely to change. "When we started up again on Selby, we had voluntary coordinators simply because there was no money to pay them," he said. "The feeling was that we would pay them when we could afford it."

has virtually no overhead in the form of salaries."

(The Selby store departed slightly from its volunteer-only structure when it hired Randy Muller as an organizer. "Since we were dealing with volunteer coordinators, we didn't feel any one of them should have the burden of working out organizational problems," said Sellen. "If one shift is low, or the crew which orders meat is short-handed, Randy's job is to find people to fill out the shift.")

Both co-ops are made up of shareholders who buy $3.00 worth of stock (one share) entitling them to receive a discount on purchases in exchange for volunteer work in the store.

At Mississippi Market, a shareholder gets a 20 percent discount for four hours of work and 15 percent off for eight hours. At Merri-Grove, the discounts are greater due to the voluntary nature of the organization. There, shareholders are given 10 percent off for four hours, 20 percent off for eight hours, and 30 percent off for 16 hours.

Summit Hill Ass'n backs plans for preservation of Ramsey Hill

by Roger Fuller

The Summit Hill Association/District 16 voted to support the proposed Ramsey Hill Heritage Preservation District at its monthly meeting on July 12.

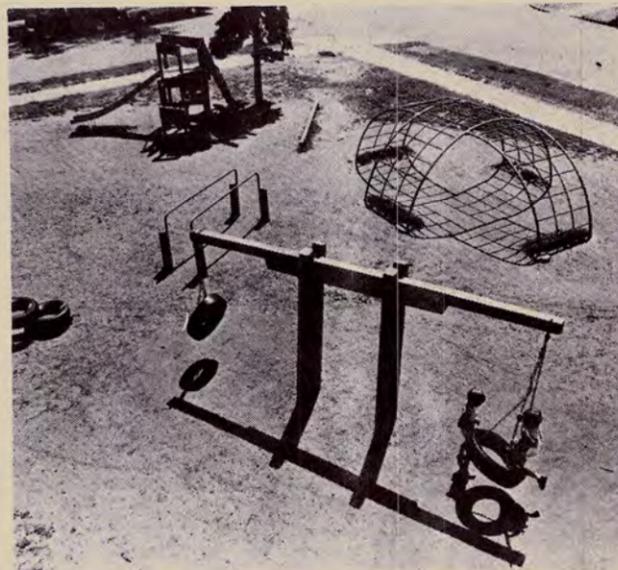

Ted Lentz, author of the resolution, explained, "If we don't go on record in support of this, it'll be taken as a sign of opposition by some people." He said some residents of the Summit Hill area who were disappointed that their neighborhood was not included in the plans for historic designation would opt for no preservation district if they could not be a part of it. According to Lentz, the best way for Summit Hill to eventually become a heritage preservation district was to support the Ramsey Hill proposal.

The voice vote taken by the District 16 council indicated no audible opposition, though several board members had expressed reservations earlier. One of them, Ron London, said he preferred that the District 16 council try to ferret out the feelings of the neighborhood before taking a position.

Another, Jean Hall, held that there was no need for a vote of support at this time because Summit Hill could not possibly undertake an effort to create a preservation district of its own for many months.

While the Summit Hill area was not included in the preservation district, the neighborhood has long shown a strong interest in restoration. The proposed Ramsey Hill Historic District lies just to the northeast of that area represented by the Summit Hill Association/District 16.

Norma Finnegan, a former board member, explained that the needs of Summit Hill and Ramsey Hill are different. "Ramsey Hill (the area west of the Cathedral between Summit and I-94) has many vacant lots right now which may begin to fill up daily," she said. "They (Ramsey Hill residents) want to have

A pair of neighborhood children take over the playground of Linwood School during the summer-time grace period before the ground and building become known as the St. Paul Open School.

some control over the types of structures which will go in there. Their situation is critical, while we in Summit Hill haven't had that develop here."

However, Robert Casselman cited an instance on Lincoln Avenue where a resident erected an outside stairway on his home. "We feel cheated out of the controls," he said. "There's nothing to stop someone from altering an architecturally significant building."

Lanier Oxtan, an architect and member of the Heritage Preservation Commission, explained that the commission was originally in favor of including both Ramsey Hill and Summit Hill in the preservation district, "but it was too unwieldy," he said.

Oxtan explained that if Summit Hill structures are to be protected, the neighborhood will have to have its own preservation district. "The guidelines would have to be different because the needs of the two neighborhoods are different," he said.

In other business taken up at the July 12 meeting, Jay Bambery, representing the St. Paul Open School, said the neighborhood will be invited to an open house this fall, shortly after the school completes its move into Park Elementary School building. He added that plans for the building include allowing community organizations to use the facility for meetings after school hours.

"The building fits us very comfortably," he said. "We plan to grow no larger than 500 students." Beyond that, Bambery explained that any comparison between the number of pupils using the building as the Open School and the number using it when it was a traditional elementary school is misleading, since the Open School offers an alternative educational program which employs classroom space quite differently.

Finally, Talley Rhame, the community organizer for District 16, announced that the long-awaited traffic light at the corner of Grand and Victoria should be installed by the end of August.

"Since the Summit Hill Association had something to do with getting it, we'll have to have a neighborhood celebration when it's finally in," she said.

PARKING LOT PROBLEMS

To the editor:

As a Highland area resident for many years, I've long enjoyed the convenient shopping in the neighborhood. I'd like it even more but for numerous near-accidents in the Highland Village Center north of Applebaums due to careless drivers and the confusing lot markings.

I claim to be no authority on traffic regulations, but I find that much could be done to improve the situation there. For example, an "Enter Only" sign should be posted at the west entrance off Ford Parkway (near First Federal Savings), as well as a "One Way" sign pointing south—toward Applebaums.

Further, the parking lot aisles should be made one-ways going in alternate directions. Speed limit signs might also be posted in highly visible locations.

I'd appreciate it if your paper and proper Village authorities investigated this matter.

Thomas D. O'Brien
2120 Juno Ave.

Editor's note: A couple of phone calls to the folks over at the Highland Village Center turned up varying opinions on just how serious the parking lot problem is. John Hickey, manager of Applebaums, said that "in four years, we've had about one other complaint." On the other hand, Sandy Atlas, owner of Highland Optical, said he's received numerous complaints from his customers. At any rate, Atlas said he'll look into the matter further in his capacity as president of the Highland Business Association.

Wigfield to replace Holmgren as chaplain of Macalester College

The Rev. Russell Wigfield, a former assistant chaplain at Macalester College, has been named the new college chaplain, replacing Kristine Holmgren who resigned earlier this year in protest over what she called "a lack of commitment to the chaplaincy and (her) work."

Wigfield, a 1947 graduate of Macalester, will take up the full-time position on September 1. An ordained Presbyterian minister, he was chosen for the job after a nationwide search by a committee of Macalester faculty, students and staff.

Although the college is affiliated with the United Presbyterian Church, it has always maintained an ecumenical ministry on campus.

Wigfield said his own religious background makes him "feel at ease with other denominations." Born in St. Paul, he was raised as a Lutheran, graduated in 1950 from the Yale University Divinity School (which has a Congregational background), once worked as youth director for a Methodist church in St. Paul, and in 1953 was ordained in the Presbyterian Church.

He served as Macalester's assistant chaplain from 1956-64 under the Rev. John Maxwell Adams. Since 1965, he has devel-

Misch-Masch

by Maurice Mischke

In spite of the fact that there was plenty of work to keep me in town this weekend, I opted for a brief escape to the country — to gain a new perspective, as it were. But unlike the way they've been doing it at top levels in Washington, I had no occasion to schedule a speech, nor do I intend to call for oral resignations from the entire Villager staff. I'm not that dumb... what if they all up and quit — on press day yet!

The way I hear it, the tobacco growers of North Carolina were glad to learn of the departure of HEW's Joseph Califano from the President's cabinet. Joe must have known that when you get involved with smoke, you're liable to be fired!

Anyway, the world's best advertised and most anticipated recession is now supposed to be upon us. Or hadn't you noticed? As always, such a drop in quarterly GNP figures does not necessarily apply across the board. Much of the recently released figures can be attributed to energy-related factors, like lower sales in large, higher-priced autos. But do you think for a minute that there's any recession in mopeds or bicycles? Remote tourist meccas might be suffering from vacancies as a result of gasoline prices and shortages. But Ma Bell must be doing quite well in WATS line and toll-free phone sales to those "off-the-beaten-path" communities. Long distance business calls should certainly be up, too, as more and more salespeople resort to direct-dialing instead of direct personal contact.

We've already speculated on how much our neighborhood stores and neighborhood strips and shopping centers ought to benefit if they're geared with the right goods and adequate selections. But doesn't it also figure that the energy crisis will speed the arrival of Pay TV to the entire local metro area? And what might that do to Dome Stadium revenues and cost projections?

That brings us back to the same old subject that's been haunting us for several years — the Downtown Dome. If you read all four Twin City dailies as I do most of the time, you must be aware of the bad rap Cal Griffith has been getting from the sportswriters recently. Klobuchar, Hartman and Max Nichols, especially, but St. Paul's Pat Reusse, too. Heavily, consistently (and intelligently, in my view) aligned against the Dome have been Joe Soucheray and Don Riley.

The pro-domers accuse Cal of pressing hard for a Dome and now reneging in the face of the higher costs involved. Don't know if that's really a fair assessment. I'm far from an insider on the matter, but I don't think I ever heard him threaten to leave if a Dome were not built, and I doubt that anyone told him years back what to expect in terms of costs. Not to mention the more recent experience of just how bad that kind of baseball can be, as a game of relative skills. I just hope Cal turns them down flat, whatever his mixture of motives might be. Frankly, I feel he's come to the conclusion that what the Dome would bring is inferior baseball, better crowds when the weather is cold and rainy, but far smaller crowds when summer comes and the livin' is easy. Seattle puts up with a Dome because it was the only alternative, what with their prevalence of rain. But on nice days their crowds are really hurting. Count the nice days here versus the rainouts and what do you get? A much different answer.

Griffith need not fear from reprisals on the part of that small group of insiders in downtown Minneapolis. For every one of these people, there's a thousand others that will be forever grateful that he deflated the whole stadium cover-up. They love good baseball and they'll be good for lots of tickets, too.

I understand the Dome, if it does get built, is to be named after our late, great politician — Hubert H. Humphrey. But people like Dick Cullum and even Barbara Flanagan think it might make more sense to name it after a certain double "H," rather than triple "H." They're talking about the sportswriter and broadcaster we most identify with baseball — the late Halsey Hall. Frankly, I respect Halsey's horsehide savvy too much to do that to him. That edifice would not offer baseball as he knew it. I'm afraid the old onion-eater would turn over in his grave at the sight of that synthetic substitute for the game he loved.

Flanagan feels we should stop naming streets, schools and parks after politicians, and rather — more logically — after local people in related fields. Like naming our airport Charles Lindberg International. But there's a special reason why the HHH handle could make sense as a name for the Dome. It is, after all, very likely to suffer from huge and continuous deficits. Our late Senator and Vice President could hardly complain about having his name associated with red ink on such a large scale!

Business is on the move in Highland these days. Dan Dolan Realtors has expanded its office space by moving to the first floor of Architect Jim Speckmann's new building at St. Clair and Cleveland. Associated Architects and Engineers, Inc. occupy much of the second level. According to Steve Hyland, manager for Dan Dolan, the move will represent an expansion to triple the firm's previous space at 664 South Cleveland — which they will also retain.

Realty World Glassman will also make a move shortly — straight down Snelling from their present building near Marshall Avenue, to a new location deep in the heart of Highland at Snelling and Bayard. This structure was one of a number of 7-11 locations that couldn't cut the mustard — or sell enough of it. And Morrie Rutman gets a new neighbor. Ron Glassman and Henry Brandis are already knee-deep in plans for a gala opening.

Don't go away — there are more. Kurt Furedi's Village Shoe Service will be moving across the street to a shop in the Highland Center Mall, directly in back of Dell Fabrics. The address is 2020 Ford Parkway, with entrance from both front and rear parking lots. This gives Kurt a lot more elbow room, and the same goes for Fred Ohno at Red Robin Cleaners. He desperately needed the additional space Kurt's departure will free up for him.

Many people will also be pleased to hear that a new children's clothing store, "Fantasia," will be opened in August in the space vacated by Village Books — and in ample time to outfit the kids for the upcoming school term. Peter and Livia Fondrick are the principals. Livia grew up virtually in the shadows of the center. This will be their second location. Their original store will continue to furnish the youngsters in the Golden Valley area.

Advertising thought for the day — It would be nice to think that every reader reads and retains all of your ad. But we know it doesn't work that way. To be most effective, advertising must have continuity.

So much for public service commercials. On to the pilfered parting punchlines — this from the current issue of the Minnesota Business Journal, on a customer with an overdue electric bill who got the following note from his power company: "We would be delighted if you would pay your bill. You will be delighted if you don't."

And a word to the dome-conscious cartel of developers in downtown Minneapolis, from Calvin Coolidge: "Nothing is easier than spending public money. It does not appear to belong to anybody. The temptation is overwhelming to bestow it on somebody."

Time now to bestow a breather on you, dear reader. See you again in these columns THREE weeks hence. We've gotta take another week off to gain more new perspectives. Hasta la vista.

Allan Boyce elected new Citizens League president

Allan R. Boyce was elected president of the Citizens League for 1979-80 at the recent annual meeting of its board of directors. The league is an independent, non-partisan, non-profit educational research organization dedicated to improving local government and solving problems facing the Twin Cities metropolitan area.

An assistant vice president of Burlington Northern, Inc., Boyce, his wife, Sally, and their two children live at 1795 Bayard Ave. A graduate of Dartmouth (BA) and Stanford (MBA), he has been a Citizens League member since 1971, and served as its first vice president last year.

Other new league officers elected at the June 28 board meeting were: Wayne Popham, first vice president; Andrew Boss, second vice president; Medora Perlman, third vice president; Robert D. Owens, fourth vice president; Eleanor Colborn, fifth vice president; Wayne Olson, secretary; and Peter Hutchinson, treasurer.

Seven additional directors were appointed for one-year terms at the meeting. They are: Francis M. Boddy, Lloyd L. Brandt, Fred C. Cady, Gerald W. Christenson, Roger Palmer, Thomas H. Swain and Carol Trusz-Masuda.

Elected members of the Citizens League board of directors were: John E. Brandt, Earl Craig, Pat Davies, Leo Foley, Joan Forester, Scotty Gillette, Paul Hilstad, B. Kristine Johnson, Dean Lund, Paul A. Magnuson, Charles S. Neerland, Harry Neimeyer, Martha Norton, Daniel K. Peterson, James R. Pratt, Solveig Premack, Hazel Reinhardt, Mary Rollwagen, Allen I. Saeks, James P. Shannon, Glen Skivholt, William O. White, and Lois Yellowthunder.

Local archaeological find proves: They drank beer back in '14

Louis and Richard Leakey they're not, and their recent discovery will never be heralded by the world's scientific community as a major archaeological breakthrough. But Lyle Wick and Dick Conger know a slow-season news item when they see one.

Seems last Wednesday the two College of St. Thomas grounds crewmen were better than six feet under repairing a leak in the foundation of Foley Theatre when they literally stumbled upon two empty beer bottles dating back to 1914—the year construction began on the building.

According to Wick, the bottles—one a Schmidt, the other a Hamm—were still very much intact though a little worse for the wear of 65 years and seven feet of dirt.

Wick credits an unknown predecessor of his in the grounds department for the inadvertent antique. "I figure he was probably drinking on the job," he said. "I know that's what we were thinking about doing. Thing is, they only let us drink water here."

As for the future of their find, the two accidental archaeologists plan to split 50/50. Wick said he's going to put a flower in his bottle and give it to his wife. "She'll go for that," he said. "She's the drinker in the family anyway."

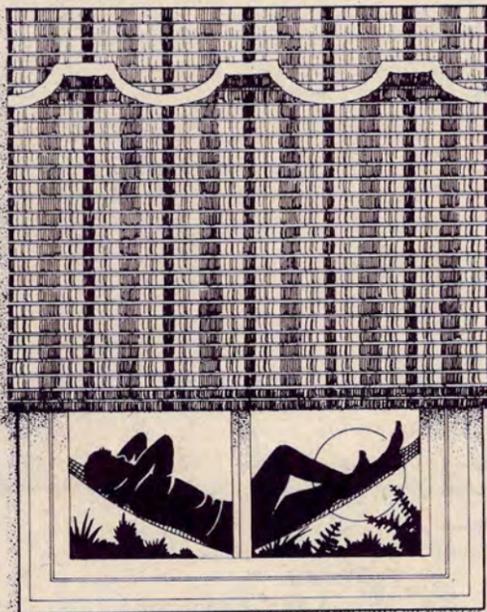

Mrs. Wick was unavailable for comment.

'Polka Padre' says Mass at St. Mary's

Father Robert Kapoun, commonly referred to as the Polka Padre, will be the celebrant for a special Mass for the residents of St. Mary's Home and their families at 11:00 a.m. Sunday, July 29 at St. Mary's, 1925 Norfolk Ave.

The Mass, which will include the Sacrament of the Sick, will be followed by a family picnic in the gardens at St. Mary's. Concelebrants include Fr. Robert Jude, chaplain at St. Mary's, and Monsignor Raymond Rutkowski, a resident of the home.

Filmmaker Goodell gambles on 'Jackpot,' envisions Cities as a future movie center

By Nancy Keating

It has all the ingredients: the blackjack player with the computer built into his jacket, the hit man who packs a syringe, the Swiss bank accounts, the chase scenes, the office with a secret back room—and the winning bettor with no system at all.

Jackpot, a movie about gambling and luck, also features several well-known area actors and scenes shot in Vegas, Atlantic City, Milwaukee and places around the Twin Cities that should look familiar. There's a Highland Park connection too—much of the indoor footage was filmed on the soundstage of Pro-7 Entertainment, 2269 Ford Pkwy., and filmmaker John Goodell used several area residents as "extras" in the casino scenes.

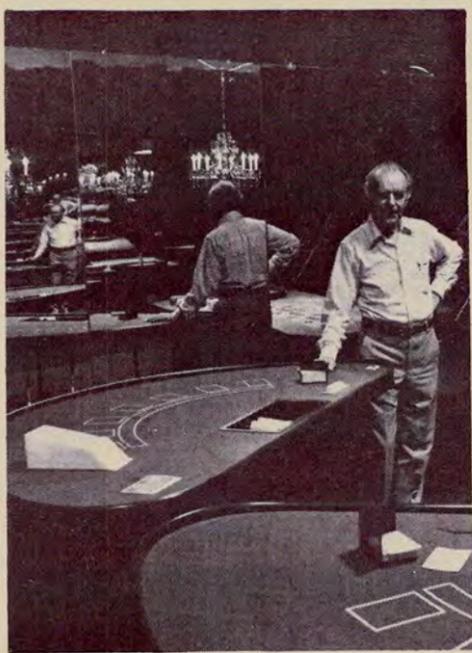

Goodell, 69, of 355 Kenneth St., has made between 50 and 60 movies but this is his first "theatrical feature." A supremely optimistic man, he is confident that if Jackpot is successful, the Twin Cities metropolitan area could "go Hollywood."

When he says that, he makes it all sound like the most reasonable thing in the world. "We have all the credentials here to establish a major, full-blown theatrical film production center—the actors, producers, animators, film labs, writers, musicians, recording and production facilities. Everything's here," he says, "except the reputation for having made a feature-length film that makes money."

Jim Lawless and Shirley Diercks (seated), surrounded by a cast of locally hired extras, take another turn at the roulette wheel in Jackpot.

John D. Goodell

"That hasn't been done here yet. And I'm going to do it."

Most big-budget movies now making the rounds are made by independent producers ("even Superman") and then sold to Warner Brothers, MGM, Paramount and the other large companies for distribution, he says.

"There is no longer any need for the kind of production lot these studios have, because the vast majority of films are now shot on location. And the equipment has become so much more sophisticated," he says. "They used to need a whole truck just for sound equipment. Now I can personally carry—well, not carry, but I can take with me—all the equipment that's necessary."

Goodell, with the help of assistant Ken Smith, wrote, directed, casted and filmed Jackpot. He started last September and expects to be finished sometime in August. Then he'll approach the distributors.

And what will he be selling them? By Hollywood standards, Jackpot is a bargain. How much he and his backers spent is a secret, and it's "a lot," but Goodell says it's nowhere near the $3 million minimum a big-time filmmaker would budget.

Distributors also might be intrigued by Goodell's plan to make extensive use of split-screen cinematography and other novel techniques. (He shot both 16- and 35-millimeter footage.)

Then there's the educational bonus for film buffs who gamble. To learn more about his subject, he says, "I went to Vegas and played blackjack for four days, using the system which will be revealed in the movie. And printed on the back of the program."

And then, the movie has its deeper meanings. "Of course you have to have a message in your films," Goodell says, "but nobody has to know that. If you say it's a message film, people will stay away by the millions."

Jackpot stars Jim Lawless, Lou Bellamy, Shirley Diercks, Nancy Nelson, Peter Goetz, Warren Frost, Michael Laskin and other professional Twin Cities actors. Millionaire Percy Ross, one of the extras, allowed Goodell to shoot some scenes in his office (the one with the back room). Las Vegas merchant Reese Palley donated several fiercely expensive figurines, which are smashed at the start of the chase scene.

Goodell kept costs down partly by getting permission to shoot location scenes in exchange for a few mentions in the credits. "Minneapolis and St. Paul people have just fallen all over themselves to help me out. I couldn't have done it otherwise," he says.

Goodell's own credits read like an item from Who's Who in Finance and Industry (check the 1977-78 edition). He earned an Oscar nomination in 1973 for Always a New Beginning, a feature-length documentary about children and learning around the world. A world-renowned GO player, he is author of a book on the subject called The World of Ki (1957). He also reads enough Japanese to digest complicated GO technique books.

Then there's the honorary doctorate (1953) in the theory of deductive reasoning from the University of Lodz in Poland—his only degree. A self-taught engineer and inventor, he holds perhaps 200 patents by one estimate, and has designed and built teaching machines. He helped invent the cassette.

As Goodell himself will point out, he has done a great many things, but his current career grew out of several former occupations—writing, directing summer stock, photography, sound recording and others. It all has given his own life the character of a movie, even down to the Forties scene where he met his wife Bernadette while working as an Arthur Murray dance instructor.

For those interested in Jackpot's message, it goes something like this: That life is "what mathematicians call 'a random walk with an upward trend'... Not to change is equivalent to death. The term 'winning' has no meaning unless there is the possibility of losing... Everything we do in life is a gamble."

Goodell says Jackpot's backers "recognize this as kind of a gamble. Any film is. But I happen to be pretty optimistic about this. I wouldn't be doing it if I wasn't."

By the way, the main character in the movie is a man who just wins and wins.

Design Company moves downtown

The Design Company, located at 649 Grand Ave., will be moving downtown August 1 to make its new home in Suite 317 of the Pioneer Bldg., 336 Robert St.

According to partners Patricia Hayes and Joy Yoshikawa, who opened the firm in May of 1978, the move was made necessary by plans for future expansion.

Door-to-door bus service goes to handicapped county residents

Metro Mobility, a special transportation service for people who can't ride regular buses, is now in operation and available to all Ramsey County residents who live south of Highway 36.

The service will provide inexpensive (35 cents one-way fare) door-to-door transportation using small buses accessible by wheelchair, for all kinds of trips including recreational, work, school, medical and shopping.

Users of the service must request transportation at least two hours in advance by calling 644-2122. Riders who make regular trips to the same place can place standing orders, however.

Metro Mobility is sponsored by the state department of transportation, the Metropolitan Transit Commission and the Metropolitan Council. To become certified to use the service, call the Metro Mobility office at 644-1119 for an application.

Groups that are interested in the program can arrange to have a speaker explain it and help members fill out certification forms. For more information call 221-0939, extension 245.

SHE KNOWS NEIGHBORHOODS—

Gretchen Asmussen signs on with The Home Team

It was more than an academic interest in urban history and geography that drew Gretchen Asmussen to the real estate field more than three years ago. But that was a big part of it.

A native of South Minneapolis, Gretchen attended Gustavus Adolphus College before packing up and heading out for points east (Boston) and west (Seattle) with her newlywed student-husband. It was at the University of Washington that she served as research assistant for her husband's doctoral dissertation, "Children's Perceptions of Their Neighborhoods."

She moved back to the Twin Cities in 1971 to fill a position at the University of Minnesota as administrative assistant in the history department. After shopping around for a neighborhood to settle in, she settled on "Tangletown," the 13-block anomaly of wooded, winding avenues just west of Macalester College, and the oldest residential area in Highland Park. She's lived there ever since.

"It's true in all neighborhoods," Gretchen says, "but especially in the Highland, Groveland and Macalester areas, that a realtor isn't just selling a home. He's selling a neighborhood, a community, a lifestyle. And to do that, you not only need to know the area inside and out, but to be able to appreciate — and communicate — its distinct personality."

Gretchen, who for the past three years has been doing exactly that, recently signed on with The Home Team. She made the move because, as she says, "Here we are a team. We are a young, spirited, supportive group of people who work very well together."

"But The Home Team also has the advantage of being able to offer home buyers and sellers a lot of innovative real estate services... things like the Matchmaker Home Warranty Program, for instance."

These things might have been what brought Gretchen to The Home Team, but it's performance — the kind of performance that comes with her high level of expertise and dedication to her clients — that will bring you. We invite you to give Gretchen a call if she can be of any service when it comes time for you to buy or sell a home.

Wood named to Humane Society's board of directors

Donald L. Wood, 1597 Scheffer Ave., has been appointed to the board of directors of the Minnesota Humane Society for a term expiring in January of 1983.

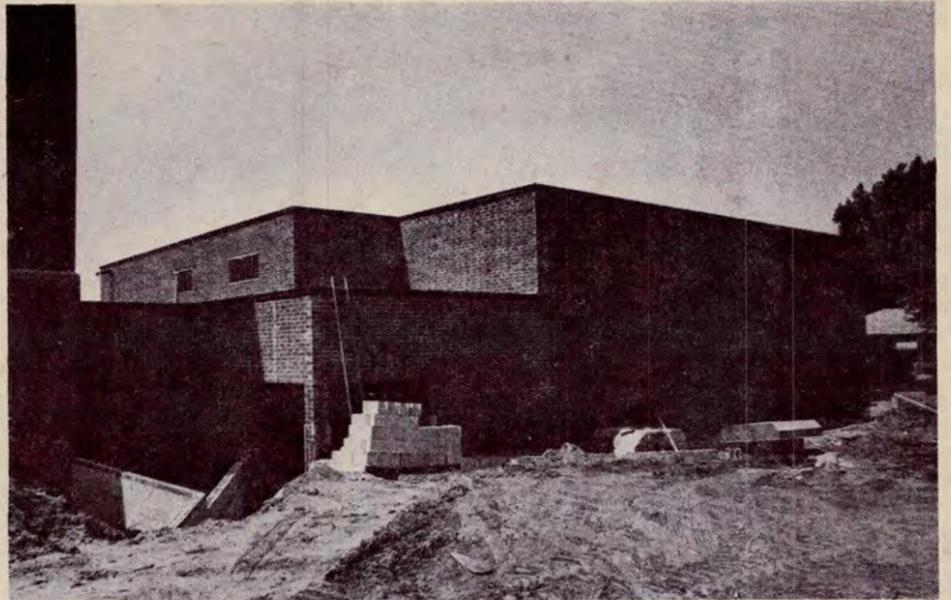

A licensed psychologist for the Ramsey County Welfare Department, Wood said he hopes to "work toward developing and facilitating legislation which would strengthen the humane society in its regulation of appointed societies and investigatory agents."

He has worked as a welfare department social worker, counselor, administrative assistant, clinical psychologist and management analyst, and also as a psychological consultant to Minnesota Mutual Insurance Company.

When Groveland's new gym opens in the fall for shared use between the elementary school and playground, it will boast two full basketball courts, free public showers and a craft room complete with kiln. But a community gym can always use more equipment, so some of the proceeds from this year's Groveland Playground Ice Cream Social will go to buy more. The event, slated for noon to 5:00 p.m. Sunday, August 5 at the corner of Prior and St. Clair Ave., will feature a dunk tank, moon walk, bake sale, miniature golf, games, food, beer, a raffle and (whew!) an all-day talent show. Volunteers or aspiring talent are invited to call 698-5747 for details on the social.

Faricy faces summertime grads, gets citation at CST ceremony

State Representative Ray Faricy, 2240 Goodrich Ave., addressed 209 graduates at the College of St. Thomas' summer commencement ceremonies held last Friday in the auditorium of O'Shaughnessy Educational Center.

Faricy, a 1956 CST graduate and former chairman of the education division of the House Appropriations Committee, was also presented with a citation in recognition of his "record of distinguished service on behalf of higher education."

Born in 1934 in St. Paul, Faricy majored in philosophy at the college, and earned a law degree in 1960 at William Mitchell College of Law. He is currently serving his fifth term in the Minnesota House of Representatives (DFL-63A) where he is chairman of the House Judiciary Committee and a member of committees on taxes and financial institutions and insurance. He is also a practicing attorney.

Among the CST degree recipients were 65 Master of Business Administration, 61 Bachelor of Arts, 79 Master of Arts in Education and seven Specialist in Education candidates.

Hospitals offer to help new parents

United and Children's Hospitals are offering a series of four classes for new parents beginning Wednesday, August 1. Classes will meet at 7:15 p.m. in the obstetrics area of United Hospitals, 333 N. Smith Ave.

The sessions, which will be taught by obstetrical and pediatric nurses, are designed to help new parents better handle the problems of childraising. Parents are invited to bring their babies and share their experiences, problems and concerns in a supportive atmosphere. Interpreting services will be available for hearing-impaired persons.

Cost of the series is $5.00. For information and registration, call United Hospitals' Health Education Department at 298-8272.

It may be cold turkey over the noon hour for junk food junkies

A proposal that would prevent public school students from buying "junk food" out of vending machines until after lunch will take effect on January 1 if the U.S. Department of Agriculture gives the ban its blessing.

But the potato chip interdiction should not be considered the whole solution, warns Louise Mullan, University of Minnesota extension food service management specialist.

Parents should take responsibility to set good examples for their children, she said, and "we must have continuing education for the food service personnel so that they may do a good job even better."

Those interested in offering their comments to the USDA have until September 6 to do so. Address letters to: Director of the School Programs Division, Food and Nutrition Service, USDA, Washington, D.C. 20250.

Mac launches cross-disciplinary program for students and faculty

Reversing what has become a national trend toward specialization in college curricula, Macalester College will soon launch a series of courses that cut across all disciplines and involve faculty members from nearly every department.

The project, which has received a $299,714 grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities, will unfold over a five-year period. It will ultimately include:

- Three cross-disciplinary seminars that will give freshmen the chance to explore all aspects of the liberal arts;

- Summer workshops for faculty members, enabling them to study new disciplines and teach new courses.

- An All-College Reading and Writing Program that professors from all departments will integrate into their regular courses.

- A Senior Seminar which will give students the chance to share their specialties with each other and discuss issues relevant to all majors.

According to project director Karl Sandberg, professor of linguistics and French and chairman of Macalester's linguistics department, "There is a malaise throughout higher education which comes in large part from excessive specialization."

Sandberg, who has taught at both public and private universities, said that at these institutions "faculty rarely talk to each other seriously across departmental lines, and students go from class to class without seeing the relationship between any of them."

The Macalester program is designed "to reverse that trend," he said.

"A chemistry professor can learn how to interpret a painting without becoming a professor of art history," Sandberg said, "and it is possible for all faculty members to ask about the ethical implications of their specialty without becoming professors of ethics."

That premise forms the basis for all of the new Macalester cross-disciplinary projects. For the next several years, faculty members from a variety of departments will take summer workshops to learn from each other and gain insights from consultants who have experienced this kind of general education at other institutions. Then the faculty will return to the classroom to teach the new courses.

The new cross-disciplinary courses for freshmen will include "Life of the Mind," "Ways of Knowing" and "Humans and Their Language."

"Life of the Mind," which was offered to Macalester freshmen last fall as a NEH pilot course, will train students to read and interpret the humanities, including rhetoric, poetry, drama, architecture, history and philosophy.

"Ways of Knowing" will examine the problems which scientists, philosophers and artists face, and will give students the chance to compare and contrast various approaches to those problems.

"Humans and Their Language" will study the phenomenon of language, including the differences between animal and human language; how language is acquired; the difference between learning a first and a second language; and the social function of language. The course will draw on such disciplines as psychology, sociology, biology, computer science, political science, and linguistics.

The Senior Seminars will give students the chance to apply their liberal arts background to their specialty. Each seminar will include students from a variety of disciplines, who will present an aspect of their major work in light of the values questions raised by the humanities. Their goal will be to justify their presentation to "Non-specialists"—their fellow students.

The All College Reading and Writing Program will also be cross-disciplinary—for both faculty and students. The program begins with two summer workshops in which faculty members from a variety of departments learn how to teach reading and writing effectively. Returning to their classrooms, they will incorporate these fundamentals while teaching their own specialties.

Sandberg noted that most students who come to college do not know what a liberal arts education means and that "the common definition is that liberal arts means doing whatever you want to do."

But that is not true, he said. "Liberal arts teaches people to think, inquire and enjoy in many areas."

While plans have not yet been developed for sophomores and juniors, Sandberg eventually hopes to use those years to help students appreciate the vast career possibilities that arise from a general, liberal arts education.

HGRA football registration set

The Highland-Groveland Recreation Association will hold special "pre-football registration" for current HGRA baseball and soccer players on Thursday, August 2. Youngsters may sign up for the fall football program from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. at Hillcrest Recreation Center, Kenneth at Ford Pkwy.

Regular football registration will be held from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. on Wednesdays, August 15 and 29 at Groveland playground, Kenneth at St. Clair, and on Thursdays, August 16 and 30 at Hillcrest.

The HGRA divides its football teams into three age categories: grades 4-5, grade 6, and grades 7-8. The HGRA is currently looking for a few individuals who would be interested in serving those kids as football coaches and league chairmen. For any additional information, call the HGRA office at 699-4633.

Old Gophers, Vikes clash at halftime of high school classic

The sixth annual Minnesota High School All Star Football Game, which divides into two teams, North and South, the 72 outstanding players who graduated this past June from high schools throughout the state, will be held on Friday, July 27 at Parade Stadium in Minneapolis.

And while the rising football stars of tomorrow are in the locker room between halves, the pigskin powerhouses of yesterday, former Gophers and Vikings, will battle it out on the field in a grueling touch football game.

Former Gophers expected to play include: Aaron Brown, Verne Gagne, Ron Kullas, Dick Larson, Bob McNamara, Pinky McNamara, Tom Sakal, Rick Seitz and Stan Skjei.

Former Vikes will include Grady Alderman, Bill Brown, Fred Cox, Paul Dickson, Paul Faust, Paul Flatley, Doug Kingsriter, and Dave Osborn.

Proceeds from the All Star game will go to the Human Growth Foundation, a nonprofit organization concerned with the process of physical development. Tickets for the game cost $5.00 and are available at Dayton's and at the gate before kickoff.

Win your weight in ice cream from The Pantry

Summer in the Cities is all the excuse anyone ever needed to sponsor an ice cream social in these parts. And Ken Johnson, owner of The Pantry and a pretty sociable guy in his own right, would like to make it a little easier—and a lot cheaper—for two lucky locals to throw one next month.

To help mark the six-month anniversary of the opening of the Highland Village Pantry at 2147 Ford Pkwy., Johnson recently announced plans for a "Win Your Weight in Ice Cream" drawing. Two names will be selected in separate drawings on August 15 and August 30 at the Highland Pantry.

Entry forms are now available at all three Pantry restaurants (Highland, Richfield and Edina), and one may also be found in the Go & Do section of this week's Highland Villager.

Of Thoughts and Things

by Dr. Lydia Schaffer

Three and a half years ago, I moved from Chicago to St. Paul. At the time, I knew very little about this city, except, of course, that it was the capital of Minnesota, that it had an annual winter carnival, and that, with its twin across the river, it constituted a major cultural center in the Midwest.

But if I knew little about St. Paul, I knew even less about Highland Park, the community my husband and I have called home ever since. I decided that it was about time I boned up on a little of the history of this area.

I learned, for instance, that there is no absolute certainty as to how Highland Park got its name. According to Gary Phelps, researcher-writer for the Ramsey County Historical Society, Highland was and is a common name to denote (what else?) high lands. Highland Park may have gotten its name by virtue of the elevation near the corner of Ford Parkway and Snelling, the second highest point in the city of St. Paul.

But the area may have gotten its name more directly from the Highland Spring Water Company, established in 1901 at the corner of Randolph and Lexington, and one of the first recorded references to "Highland."

I have also learned that Highland Park, defined here and elsewhere as that area from the Mississippi River north to Marshall Avenue and from the Mississippi river east to Lexington Parkway, is celebrating its 175th birthday this year. Its recorded history began when 26-year-old Lieutenant Zebulon Pike, acting under orders from President Thomas Jefferson, ascended the Mississippi River to select a site for a fort. One of the sites chosen was at the junction of the Minnesota and Mississippi Rivers. For $200 in gifts and 60 gallons of liquor, Pike purchased from the Indians a tract of land that stretched for nine miles on each side of the Mississippi. Cash payments were added at a later date at the insistence of the Indians.

This, the first land transaction in what is now the state of Minnesota, marked the beginning of a 50-year association between Fort Snelling and the area known today as Highland Park.

Six Swiss families were the first settlers of what was at that time called Reserve Township. Their homes were built on the river bluff between what is now Elsie Lane and Ford Parkway, just south of the Ford plant. It wasn't long before four houses that were located right at Elsie Lane became known as "Old Rum Town," a reference to the availability of liquor at this settlement and the source of eventual problems for Fort Snelling commandants.

By 1838, Major Joseph Plympton had grown uneasy about the claims of those who had been permitted to "squat" on the military reservation. He was concerned about the soldiers' easy access to liquor, and annoyed at the squatters' use of the army's timber, grazing lands and other resources. At the time, there were between 150 and 200 Swiss, French Canadians and Indians living in Reserve Township.

Then on May 6, 1840, U.S. Deputy Marshal Ira B. Brunson forcibly ejected the squatters from the area and burned their homes to the ground. These families spread out to the north and east and became the earliest settlers of St. Paul, St. Anthony (later to become Minneapolis), Little Canada and Stillwater. Had they been permitted to remain, chances are there would never have been Twin Cities—only one city, with its downtown area spanning the river between Highland and southeast Minneapolis.

In the summer of 1848, eight years after the eviction of the squatters, an Irishman by the name of William Finn, a veteran of the Mexican War, became the first permanent resident of Highland. One hundred twenty-six years later, I became the latest addition to the population.

I cannot possibly enumerate all the things that fascinate me about this area today. I am impressed with your colleges—St. Catherine's, St. Thomas, Macalester and Hamline—and all they have to offer their neighbors, young and old alike. I am surprised to learn about your various community councils which address themselves to the needs of the entire community as well as its individual residents. I take delight in browsing through the numerous needlepoint, pottery and craft shops in the area.

I find it hard to believe that you actually have a movie house which charges the pre-pre-inflation price of 99 cents. I enjoy the convenience—and incredible variety—of all that your 244-acre park has to offer: golf, swimming, skiing, tennis, track and field, picnicking, or simply strolling through the woods. I am amazed by all the programs and services offered by your local community centers, not to mention your many churches and synagogues.

I am...well, I could go on and on but for the space limitations your community newspaper editor has placed upon me. I would, however, appreciate your letters bringing to my attention the many things you enjoy about your neighborhood—things which I may have overlooked or of which I am not yet aware.

Until next time, be well...be happy.

Funds sought for priests' home

A campaign was kicked off recently to gather funds for the Leo C. Byrne Residence for Retired Priests, a building presently under construction at the corner of Cretin and Summit Ave., adjacent to the St. Paul Seminary.

The residence, which is expected to be completed in October, will provide 25 apartments for retired and disabled archdiocesan priests. Each unit will include a study, bedroom, kitchenette and storage space. The residence will also provide a chapel, common dining room and kitchen, and a 12-car garage.

As one retired priest put it, "It will be like going home. We will be able to retire on the same grounds as the seminary, where our vocation to the priesthood was cradled and nurtured. We will be ending our priestly life where it began."

The goal of the fund-raising campaign is $1,850,000.

What you want is what we try to get for you.

Dear Charlie Locks,

Of all the many house moves I've made (by decree or by choice) none has been so happy-fy-ing as the one you managed for us.

Not enough that we wanted so many rooms, of such particular uses, in a special neighborhood, on a chosen street, and at a cost less than our old house—no small order—but at the same time we wanted you to sell our old house to someone who would love and water the trees we planted. So it took a little time—a couple of months—and now we are here in the neighborhood we wanted on the street we wanted with the space and yard we wanted. What more could we want? To say Thanks to you and the Jambor people for making true what you say—you're first-the customer.

Sincerely,

Oneida's fall quarter offers three dozen college courses

More than 30 college level courses will be offered this fall through the Inver Hills/Oneida Inner-City Education Program.

The classes, which cost $12.00 per credit, begin between September 13 and 20 and run for 11 weeks. The majority of the classes are held in the evening at various St. Paul locations.

Financial aid and grants are available through Inver Hills Community College, and education and career counseling is offered days and evenings at the Oneida Education Center, 357 Oneida St.

The fall quarter class schedule follows:

Art—Painting I and II.

Business—Accounting Cycle, Principles of Small Business Management, Principles of Selling, and Women in Business Workshop.

Career Development—

Life Career Planning and Job-Seeking Skills.

Competency Based Education—Individualized Educational Planning.

English—English Composition Workshop.

Human Services—Introduction to Human Services, Community Resources, Internship, Understanding Racial and Cultural Differences Within the Human Services, American Sign Language, and Introduction to Dance Therapy.

Law Enforcement—Police Community Relations.

Learning Labs—Mathematics Learning Lab, Reading and Writing Skills, and Study Skills.

Mathematics—Basic Math with Applications.

Physical Education—Body Mechanics and Conditioning, Introduction to Modern Dance, Ballet for Moderns, Jazz Dance, and Soccer Officiating Workshop.

Psychology—Child Psychology.

Secretarial Sciences—Beginning and Intermediate Typing.

Speech—Interpersonal Communications.

Topical Studies—Irish History, History of American Sports, History of the City of St. Paul, Hispanic History and Culture, and Adventures in Attitudes.

Non-Credit Courses—Creative Writing, and Conversational Spanish.

For any further information, call Kathy Moore at the Oneida Education Center (227-7803).

DOWN AT THE Playground

EDGCUMBE

Registration for soccer and football will begin at Edgcumbe on Monday, July 30. Soccer will be offered for boys and girls in grades 1-9, touch football for girls in grades 6-9 and football for boys in grades 6-7. Call Edgcumbe at 699-6903 to sign up.

Championship T-ball, cub baseball and softball games will lead off the activities at our Summer Fun Festival, scheduled from 5:00 to 9:00 p.m. on Wednesday, August 1. Play games of chance, take a cake walk, and join in train rides, dunker and fish pond too, while munching on hamburgers, hot dogs and sno-cones. Thanks go to the Edgcumbe Booster Club for sponsoring this yearly event.

HILLCREST

Registration for Hillcrest's fall soccer and touch football will be held at the playground on August 1, 2, and 3. The fee is $4.00 for both programs, which are open to sports enthusiasts in kindergarten through grade 12.

The staff down here at Hillcrest would like to say thank you to all the parents in the community for their support of our endeavors in the past. "Thanks, moms and dads."

Got a question? Call Hillcrest (698-1435). We have the answer.

HOMECROFT

Modern Mother Goose, a play for children of all ages but especially geared to those under 10 years, will be performed at 10:30 a.m. Wednesday, August 8 on the main stage here at Homecroft.

Mary Brabec, Betsy Ferber, Cathy Homan, Lynn Manske, Cindy Shaw and Cindy Truda star in this production, which consists of a series of rhymes, skits and songs, both traditional and modern. Admission is free and open to all—so come on down!

And break a leg gang, you're going to be great.

DESNOYER

The master planners down here at the playground have organized a trip to Valley Fair on Tuesday, August 7. Buses will leave Desnoyer at 9:00 a.m., returning several dizzying hours later at 5:00 p.m.

Sign-ups for the Valley Fair trip will be taken now through July 30. The cost is $7.00 for children ages 8 to 11 and $8.00 for everyone older than that. For more information, call Desnoyer at 646-4414.

If there's enough interest, we'll be offering adult tennis lessons on weeknights from 6:00 to 7:15. Open to persons ages 16 and older, the tennis lessons will cost $5.00 for ten sessions. If you're interested, call Dennis Ferche at 647-1756 (home) or 376-8330 (office).

We are also accepting registrations for fall soccer and football. For boys, the classes will be high school, 9th grade and under, 7th grade and under, and 5th grade and under. Two classes will be offered to girls: 7th grade and under and 5th grade and under.

Again, if you have any questions, call Desnoyer at 646-4414.

Desnoyer's director retires

Virginia Nelson, playground director at Desnoyer Recreation Center, will retire at the end of July.

A contributor to countless Villager "Down at the Playground" columns, Nelson is stashing her sneakers following 23 years of service as an employee in the St. Paul Division of Parks and Recreation.

In addition to those at Desnoyer, she has supervised playground programs at Haydn Heights, Prosperity, East View Ramsey, Sylvan, Hamline, South St. Anthony and Rice Recreation centers.

At presstime, Nelson's numerous friends had scheduled a farewell party for July 24 at the Bali Hai restaurant. The Villager joins them in wishing her a happy and healthy retirement.

Ice cream social raises funds for women's caucus

A fundraiser for the Ramsey County Women's Political Caucus will be presented in the guise of an ice cream social from 5:00 to 7:00 p.m. Thursday, July 26 at the home of George and Nancy Latimer, 754 Linwood Ave.

The fundraiser, which costs $5.00, will feature a varied assortment of ice creams and toppings—everything you'd ever need for a "build-your-own" sundae. The affair will also include a performance by members of the University of Minnesota Ballroom Dancing Club.

Proceeds from the event will help support the work of the RCWPC, a bi-partisan group which is committed to the support of the ERA, freedom of choice and child care.

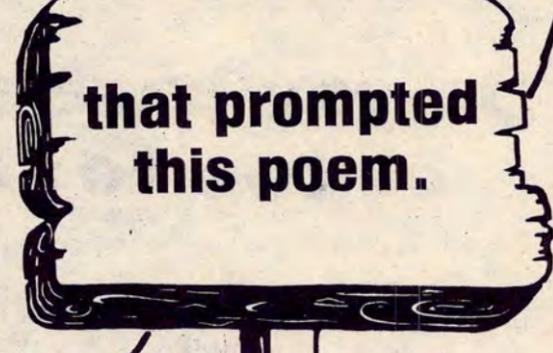

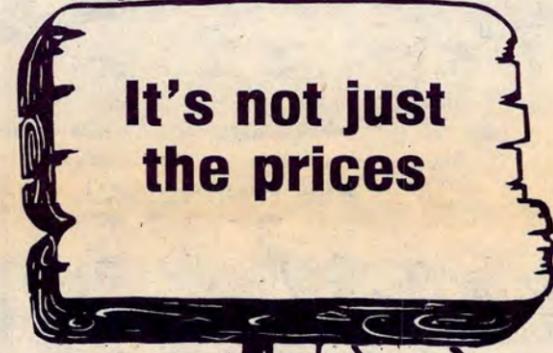

For further information about the event or about caucus membership call the RCWPC office at 646-5865.

Belville gets bucks, bays for play

Lance S. Belville, 1236 Lincoln Ave., was recently awarded a $750 cash prize from the Western Illinois University Foundation Playwriting Competition for his play, Pope Joan the No-Number.

The Western Illinois University award also includes the play's performance at the university as the showcase production for its 1979-80 season.

Belville, who has worked for United Press International and ABC, and has also written for off-off Broadway productions, is currently playwright-in-residence at the Playwrights' Lab, Minneapolis.

The local playwright has also written three plays for the COMPAS/St. Paul History Theatre, all performed during the past year: The Deadly Decades, You Can't Get to Heaven through the U.S.A., and We Win or Bust.

A new series of St. Paul History Theatre plays by Belville and others is currently being researched and planned for production this coming fall and winter.

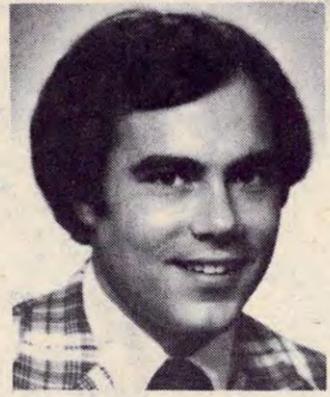

AA, Alanon open doors to everyone

Area residents are invited to attend an open meeting of the West End Alcoholics Anonymous and Alanon at 8:30 p.m. Friday, July 27 at St. James Church Hall, Randolph and View St.

AA's Bruce R. and Georgia Rehberg from Alanon will speak, and ample amounts of coffee and refreshments will be served.

Nisenholz named scholarship winner

Steven K. Nisenholz, 1859 Morgan Ave., was recently named the Baron de Hirsch scholarship recipient for the 1979-80 school year.

Steven, the son of Mr. and Mrs. David Nisenholz, graduated from Highland Park Senior High and is currently attending the University of Wisconsin-Madison, where he is majoring in Communication Arts with a minor in Hebrew.

The Baron de Hirsch scholarship fund, which is administered by the Jewish Vocational Service, was established in 1891 by Baron Maurice de Hirsch to alleviate the plight of Jews in Austria and Russia. The fund has continued to provide money for needy Jewish persons to this day.

SOUTHWEST AREA DISTRICT Council Capsule

We've moved! The new Southwest Area District Council office is at 550 S. Snelling Ave. Our new office hours will be 9:30 a.m. to 12:00 noon Monday through Thursday—with some exceptions. If nobody is in, leave your name and number on the tape, and coordinator Gayle Summers will get back to you as soon as possible.

St. Paul Technical Vocational Institute will not be moving into Mattocks School. Through some serious efforts on the part of area residents, especially grid representative Jim Zdon and other SWAD board members, the School Board withdrew their recommendation that TVI use the school next fall. A task force, headed by Jim and other members of the SWAD board and Mattocks neighbors, will soon be meeting with the school board concerning a compatible neighborhood use for Mattocks.

A meeting to discuss the District 15 Plan will be held at 7:00 p.m. Wednesday, July 25 at Edgcumbe Presbyterian Church, 2149 Edgcumbe Rd.. Everyone who worked on the plan, or who has an interest in it and has not already received a notice, is cordially invited. After this meeting the plan will go to the St. Paul Planning Commission for review and then to the City Council for final passage. The City Council meeting will be held in the community; watch this space for the date, time and place.

Some new bus shelters have gone up along the Randolph bus line. The MTC is attempting to put the shelters at all of the busy stops throughout the city. Area bus riders will really warm to them this winter.

At the next SWAD meeting, scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Monday, August 13 in West Merrian Lounge at the College of St. Catherine, John Sturner of Police Team B-4 will present a slide show addressing the purpose of decentralizing the police out into neighborhoods and making the officers more readily available to area residents.

Grant gives Mac the means for real-time lab computing

Several hundred Macalester College students will soon learn how to use laboratory computers to perform science experiments, thanks to a recent $250,000 grant from the National Science Foundation.

The NSF grant will enable Mac to purchase flexible, stand-alone laboratory computers which can be used by every science department; to introduce real-time lab computing throughout its entire science curriculum; and to give one-third of the student body the chance to use lab computers in their science experiments.

Real-time lab computing is a major development in contemporary science, according to Professor Raymond Mikkelsen, who will direct the interdisciplinary project.

First of all, the computer can record data while an experiment progresses and it can alert the scientist to take action when he or she encounters unexpected results. This eliminates the need for constant surveillance, enabling the scientist to perform many experiments at one time.

The computer also eliminates the need to record data by hand. And when the experiment is completed, the computer can make the calculations, analyze the data and provide quick results.

Super Kids gather for grand finale

All children who were registered in the summer reading program at the Highland Park Branch Library are invited to disguise themselves as their favorite superheroes and come to the grand finale of Super Kid Summer, which will be held at 2:00 p.m. Wednesday, August 1 at the library, 1974 Ford Pkwy.

Costume judging, prizes and refreshments will all be part of the celebration.

Another upcoming attraction at the Highland Branch will be the appearance of animals from Como Zoo, live and in color, at 2:30 p.m. Tuesday, July 31. For more information, call the library at 698-0823.

Superkids celebrate passing of program

Believe it or not, kids, but your days as Superkids are numbered, at least in the summer of '79 at St. Paul public libraries.

Still, the stripping of your super powers is cause for celebration—not so much a fete for your future as normal human beings, but as a capping for the passing of the public libraries' Superkid Summer program.

The free party will begin at 2:00 p.m. Wednesday, August 1 at the Lexington Branch Library, 1080 University Ave. All the children who have signed up for the summer program at the Lexington Branch will be eligible for prize drawings at the party. For more information, call 645-7739.

Public to hear plan for river corridor

The St. Paul City Planning Commission will hold a public hearing on the implementation of the Mississippi River Corridor Plan at 9:00 a.m. Friday, July 27 in the 15th Floor Auditorium of the Lowry Annex, 25 W. 4th St.

The 100-page plan, which took three years to complete, affects the 17 miles of the Mississippi that wind through St. Paul, including the land bordering the river 100 feet back of the bluff line for 17 miles on the east and north banks of the river, and for 11 miles on the south bank.

Six new MTC bus shelters were installed last week on Randolph Ave. at the intersections of Kenneth, Davern, Fairview, Hamline, Milton and View. Constructed of aluminum and 3/8-inch tempered glass, the shelters cost between $4,000 and $5,000 each and are part of the MTC's plans to provide such facilities at all heavily-trafficked corners (at least 40 passengers per day) throughout the Twin Cities. Supervising the installation at Hamline and Randolph are, left to right: St. Paul City Councilman Len Levine, Jennifer Summers, Larry Shumi of the MTC staff, and Gayle Summers, coordinator for the Southwest Area District Council.

MISF assesses itself and smiles

More than $415,000 was distributed during the past year to the 24 nonpublic high schools in the state that make up the Minnesota Independent School Fund (MISF), an organization that has earned national recognition as the first successful united fund-raising program in the country for independent secondary education.

The distributed funds, which represent gifts from 130 Twin Cities area corporations and foundations, support the operating budgets and the academic and scholarship programs of the member schools.

During its first three years, MISF has received more than 300 gifts totalling $1,100,000. Over that three-year period, each school has made an investment of $3,750 to help support MISF operating costs.

Those schools have earned a minimum return of $38,550 on that investment. MISF member schools from this area include Brady, Breck, Visitation, Cretin, Derham and Regina high schools, Minnehaha and St. Thomas academies, and St. Paul Academy/Summit Schools.

Five picked for Derham board

Five new members were recently appointed to the Derham Hall High School board of trustees, replacing retiring members Dorothy McGuire, Sr. Constance Marie DeFoe, William Ridley, Cis Simonet and Sr. Carolyn Wittman.

Appointed to three-year terms on the board were: Ruth Brombach, 1911 Summit Ave., a Derham Hall alumna; Sr. Francis Mary Benz, 1937 Conway St., who is also principal of St. Pascal Baylon Elementary School; and Patricia Shea, 1593 Portland Ave., a Derham Hall alumna and a teacher at Highland Elementary.

Appointed to a two-year term was Donald Frenette of 1944 Portland Ave., and filling a one-year term is Sr. Jean Wincek, principal of Christ the King Elementary School.

The Villager's Guide to Food, Fun & Entertainment

The sweet strain of strings will be heard again when the Minnesota Orchestra returns for the sixth Music and Arts Under the Stars Festival in Merriam Park on Wednesday, August 8. The annual event, which begins with an arts and crafts fair at 6:00 p.m., will include musical performances by the Championaires, the Hoerner Waldorf/Champion International chorus; and the Minnesota Orchestra, under the baton of Henry Charles Smith.

Merriam Park holds 6th annual music, arts festival 'under stars' on Saturday, October 20 at the St. Paul Radisson Hotel.

Curtis, who was a Northwest regional Metropolitan Opera auditions winner, is currently an affiliate artist for the Opera Company of Boston. Wayland, a conductor, composer, arranger and pianist, is presently associate conductor for the Boston Pops and guest conductor for the Rochester, New York Philharmonic and the Minnesota orchestras.

The theme of the dinner is "Silver Salute," commemorating the Opera Guild's 25th anniversary year. The dinner is the major fundraiser for the guild, and finances its numerous educational enterprises.

The sixth annual Music and Arts Under the Stars Festival will get underway at 6:00 p.m. Wednesday, August 8 on the wooded grounds of Merriam Park. This year's event will feature an arts and crafts fair, a concert by the Minnesota Orchestra, music of the Championaires, and the dedication of a new wing to the Merriam Park Community Center.

An open house will be held for an hour before the 6:00 p.m. dedication of the Charles Prior addition to the center. The new wing will house the Developmental Achievement Center program for retarded adults from throughout Ramsey County.

At that same hour, more than 50 artists and artisans are expected to display and sell their wares. Free ice cream and soft drinks will be provided in the tennis court area, courtesy of the Hoerner Waldorf/Champion International Corporation, cosponsor of the festival.

The company chorus, the Championaires, will sing a selection of favorites at 7:00 p.m., and at 8:00 p.m. the Minnesota Orchestra will perform selections from Rachmaninoff, Shostakovich, Nicolai, Liszt, Rodgers-Bennett and a movement from Grofe's Grand Canyon Suite. Henry Charles Smith will conduct.

Free parking is available on the Merriam Park ball fields off N. Prior Ave.

Noted scribe gives lecture on lettering

Ieuan Rees, chairman of the Society of Scribes and Illuminators, an international organization composed of the world's foremost calligraphers, will give a free public lecture at 7:30 p.m., Thursday, August 9 at the Minneapolis College of Art and Design, 133 E. 25th Street.

Considered one of the world's most versatile lettering artists, Rees will be the honored celebrity August 18 at opening ceremonies for the Minnesota Renaissance Festival. Each year the festival salutes a noted artisan whose craft flourished during the Renaissance period in history.

Kid's flicks shown on Tuesday morns

Children's films will be shown at 10:00 a.m. every Tuesday during August in the auditorium at the Highland Park Branch Library, 1974 Ford Pkwy. Each program will last 30 to 45 minutes.

On the first Tuesday, August 7, the films Cricket in Times Square and Where the Wild Things Are will be featured. For more information, call the library at 698-0823.

The Villager's Guide to Food, Fun & Entertainment

Comedy, cheap theatrics and the most bizarre juggling act you ever saw take center stage when the Flying Karamazov Brothers return to Dudley Riggs' Etc. for a limited engagement at 8:00 p.m. Wednesday through Sunday, with additional 10:30 p.m. shows slated for Friday and Saturday.

Olsenius, Torbert to lecture at FITC

Richard Olsenius, a staff photographer for the Minneapolis Tribune and author of Flight, will be the next guest lecturer in the Light and Form lecture series at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, July 25 at the Film in the Cities Gallery, 2388 University Ave. At 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, August 1, FITC's guest speaker will be Stephanie Torbert, a Minneapolis photographer whose work has been exhibited nationally. Admission to each program is $1.50.

Flying Karamazovs do encore performance at Dudley Riggs

Theirs was still a fledgling career when the four Flying Karamazov Brothers came to the conclusion that juggling rubber balls was no way to make a living; the round little devils tended to roll away when dropped, which was altogether too frequently.

The Karamazovs vowed henceforth to juggle only easy things, stuff that would stay put when dropped... like scissors, sickles, hatchets, meat cleavers and flaming torches. Self-preservation is a powerful motivator. They improved.

Today, these rococo barbarians of vaudeville take their flamboyant antics to audiences throughout the country. Most recently, the Flying Karamazovs appeared on the West Coast with Robin Williams, the Grateful Dead and the Blues Brothers, and Ken Kesey and the Pranksters.

Their evening of comedy, cheap theatrics and the most bizarre juggling you ever did see will return to Dudley Riggs' Etc. Theatre on the West Bank from July 25-29. All shows begin at 8:00 p.m., with additional performances scheduled for Friday and Saturday.

For ticket information or reservations, call the theatre at 377-2120.

MIA screens an early six by the master of suspense

Six classic mysteries by the master of suspense, Alfred Hitchcock, will be featured in a film series running now through August 29 at the Minneapolis Institute of Arts.

These early Hitchcock films will be shown at 8:00 p.m. on Tuesdays and Wednesdays in the museum's Pillsbury Auditorium. Admission is $1.50. The schedule follows:

July 24 and 25 — Secret Agent (1936). This film version of Somerset Maugham's novel Ashenden stars Peter Lorre, Madeleine Carroll, John Gielgud and Robert Young.

July 31 and August 1 — The Lady Vanishes (1938)

starring Margaret Lockwood and Sir Michael Redgrave.

August 7 and 8 — Number 17 (1932) with Barry Jones, Leon M. Lion and Anne Grey.

August 14 and 15 — The Man Who Knew Too Much (1934) stars Peter Lorre in his first English language film, along with Leslie Banks and Edna Best.

August 21 and 22 — Blackmail (1935). The first sound film for both Hitchcock and Britain, the film stars Anny Ondra and Sara Allgood.

August 28 and 29 — The 39 Steps (1935) starring Robert Donat and Madeleine Carroll.

Senior Federation hosts festival

An International Festival, sponsored by the Metropolitan Senior Federation, will be held on Friday and Saturday, August 3 and 4 at the St. Paul Radisson Hotel, 11 E. Kellogg Blvd.

"Apple Pie and America" is the theme for the festival, which will include Yankee Pot Roast and apple pie for lunch, prizes, display booths, an old-time "T" dance, boutiques and a program featuring James Murray, barbershop quartets, comedy and the big band sounds of Don Cavitt.

The emcees for both days are Dave and Doug Moore of WCCO-TV; Doug on Friday and Dave on Saturday. The doors to the boutique, display booths and refreshments open at 10:30 a.m. The luncheon is at 11:45 a.m. and the program starts at 1:00 p.m.

Russian Music Festival opens at Orchestra Hall

A three-week Russian Music Festival, presented by the Minnesota Orchestra, is now in progress with Russian and Soviet artists, music of Russian composers, Russian dancers and a preview of the orchestra's latest recordings of the ballet music of Stravinsky and Prokofiev.

All concerts and performances start at 8:00 p.m., and all take place in Orchestra Hall except for the ballet which is scheduled for Northrop Auditorium.

Local actor James J. Lawless will play the part of the composer in two "Tchaikovsky in Person" concerts on Thursday and Saturday, July 26 and 28. Each is a different program, and associate conductor Henry Charles Smith will lead the orchestra in both.

Soviet pianist Mikhail Pletnyov, first prize/gold medal winner of the 1978 Tchaikovsky Competition, will perform that composer's Concerto No. 1 in B flat minor for Piano and Orchestra at the July 26 concert, part of the Pletnyov's first American tour.

American violinist Elmar Oliveira, also a first prize/gold medal winner of last year's Tchaikovsky competition, will be the featured soloist in the July 28 "Tchaikovsky in Person" concert. On the program will be the Concerto in D Major for Violin and Orchestra, the suite from Swan Lake and Tchaikovsky's Symphony No. 5 in E minor.

The festival moves to Northrop Auditorium on Friday, July 27 when Smith conducts the orchestra accompaniment to Russian dancers Valery Panov and Galina Panova. They will perform Rachmaninoff's Symphonic Dance, Prokofiev's Grand pas de deux from Cinderella and Adam/Drigo/Minkus' pas de deux from Le Corsaire.

Mac's community production bids local talent to audition August 5-7

Area residents are invited to audition for Macalester College's fourth annual community and alumni production, Ketti Frings' comedy-drama Look Homeward, Angel. Auditions will be held at 7:00 p.m. on Sunday through Tuesday, August 5, 6 and 7 in the auditorium of Mac's Janet Wallace Fine Arts Center.

Based on the novel by Thomas Wolfe, Look Homeward, Angel was awarded both the Pulitzer Prize and the New York Critic's Award.

Set in the North Carolina of Thomas Wolfe's youth,

Angel tells the story of an eager young man reaching for his future, and the relationship between his mother, who has a mania for the ownership of material things, and his father, a stone carver.

Roles available to auditions include ten men and nine women ranging in age from the leading character of 17 to his 60-year-old father.

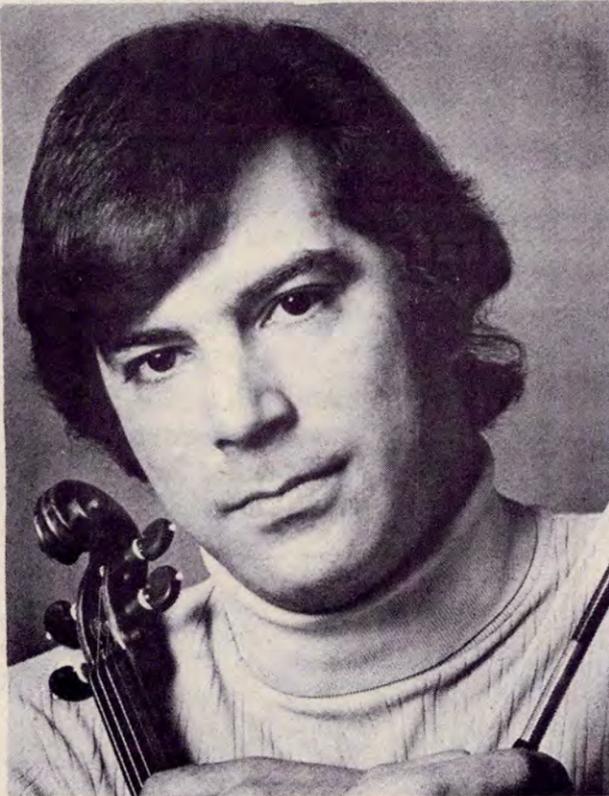

Production dates are September 21, 22, 28 and 29 and October 5, 6 and 7. Personal scripts are available at the Macalester Library on campus.

Old Salt (Dave Moore, left), manager of the New York Yankees, offers worthless advice to the uncertain Duke (Stephen Roser), whose sudden attack of middle-age queasies is threatening to blow his team's lead in Yanks 3, Detroit 0. Motor City runner Lincoln Lewis III (Marion McClinton) heckles, in the Theatre in the Round comedy set to open for a month's run at 8:00 p.m. Friday, August 3.

Park Square presents two more for summertime stage

The next play in the Park Square Theatre's summer season, The Sea Horse, will open at 8:00 p.m. Thursday, July 26 and continue until August 11, with 8:00 p.m. performances on Thursdays through Saturdays at the theater, 400 Sibley St.

Following this play will be a one-time production of An Evening with Edgar Allen Poe at 8:00 p.m. Saturday, August 18.

Set in a run-down West Coast waterfront bar, Edward J. Moore's The Sea Horse introduces us to the establishment's tough, disillusioned proprietress and a boisterous, romantic, compassionate merchant seaman between trips.

An Evening with Edgar Allen Poe features staged readings from the prose and poetry of America's master of suspense, rendered by actor-producer Jake Esau.

Super Kids convene for program capper

All the kids who registered for "Super Kid Summer" at the Merriam Park Branch Library are invited to toast the program's end at a Super Kid Party, scheduled for 2:00 p.m. Tuesday, July 31 at the library, 1831 Marshall Ave.

Besides special prizes for lots of super-special kids, the party will feature the screening of the film Rookie of the Year. For more information, call the Merriam Park Branch Library at 645-3483.

Highland Catholic's diamond boys captured the CAA St. Paul City Baseball crown this year with an overall record of 13-4. Hi-C edged St. Bernard's in a 1-0 pitcher's duel to take the city laurels, but were ousted by Assumption of Minneapolis in the Twin City game by a slim 4-3 margin. Making up Hi-C's team were, left to right: (front row) Jim "Dirt" Weinberger, John Quintavalle, Dave Reiling, Mike Weinberger, Bill Utschinski and Jim Leahy; (middle row) Tim Shaw, Tim Ofstead, John Hayes, Steve Haugh, John Purtell, and T. J. Wiesner; (top row) John Mancini, Mike Cullinane, John Messing, Steve Neira, Tom Marchio and Coach Tom Whisler. Not pictured were David Daws, Kevin Mergens, John Tschida, Mike Williams, Mike Salmen and batgirls Lisa Elliott, Gooch Kelley and Ann Bredemus.

JCC Happenings

LAMAZE CHILDBIRTH CLASSES

Lamaze Preparation for Childbirth classes, led by Eileen Putter, will be starting at the Jewish Community Center on Wednesday, August 15. Classes will run from 5:30 to 10:00 p.m. Wednesdays through September 19. Fee is $25 and registration is limited. For more information or to register, call the center at 698-0751.

AQUATIC CAMP

The JCC's first aquatic camp, for members in kindergarten through twelfth grade, is on the boards for 9:00 a.m. to 1:00 p.m. Monday through Friday, July 30 to August 3 at the center. The week's activities will include games, sports, stroke work, scuba and water ballet, boating and safety skills, competitive strokes, starts, turns, diving and competition in the Jewish Welfare Board's "Air Mail Meet." Fee is $30. Call Sandy Unger for more details at 698-0751.

TENNIS LESSONS

A four-week session of tennis lessons, for JCC members only, is scheduled for August 6-30. Sessions for beginners will be held from 5:00 to 6:00 p.m. Tuesdays and 11:00 a.m. to noon Wednesdays; advanced beginners from 6:00 to 7:00 p.m. Tuesdays and 9:00 to 10:00 a.m. Wednesdays; intermediates from 7:00 to 8:00 p.m. Tuesdays; and children (ages 9-13) from 4:00 to 5:00 p.m. Tuesdays and 10:00 to 11:00 a.m. Wednesdays. Fee is $9.00 plus a seasonal maintenance charge, and registrations will be accepted at the JCC front desk.

ALL-SPORTS CAMPS

Youngsters (members only) in grades 1-6 can learn all the ins and outs of baseball, basketball, soccer, touch football, newcombe, trampoline, tennis, floor hockey, frisbee, badminton, racquetball and others during two all-sports camps: August 6-10 (grades 1-3) and August 13-17 (grades 4-6). Each day's session lasts from 9:30 a.m. to noon and the $10 fee for each weeklong camp includes refreshments. Call Rich Danov at 698-0751 for more information.

THIRD AQUATIC SESSION

Another chance to get instruction in the JCC pool is set for August 6-24 during Session III of aquatic classes. Beginners I, Beginners II and water ballet will be held from 9:00 to 9:40 a.m.; Beginners III, Intermediate I, Swimmers and Beginners I, from 9:40 to 10:20 a.m.; women's swim, swimnastics, women's instruction and swimming for seniors, from 10:20 to 10:50 a.m.; Intermediate II, Beginners I and Parent-Tot, from 10:50 to 11:30 a.m.; adult swim and camps, from 11:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.; and Introduction to Water, Beginners II, diving, and aerobic and lap, from 12:30 to 1:10 p.m. Each class has an $8.00 registration fee. Call the Center for more details.

Brown is again president of five-state educators' council

Dr. Robert Brown, a member of the education department at the College of St. Thomas, has been reelected president of the Midwest Council on Educational Administration. The 17-member council's purpose is to provide an avenue of communication for educators in the five-state area who are concerned with administrative issues and problems.

Brown, who lives in Stillwater, received his bachelor's degree from Winona State University in 1957, and his graduate degrees from the University of Minnesota.

Before joining the CST faculty, he taught in the Farmington school district and at Simley High School in South St. Paul.

Former state Republican party chairman and state senator for Minnesota's District 51, Brown recently succeeded Rudy Boschwitz as state GOP national committeeman.

Bicycle safety is reason for rodeo

Two-wheel wizards and their parents are invited to a free Bicycle Rodeo Circus, set for 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. Thursday, August 9 at Palace playground, located at Jefferson Ave. and View St.

Pedal pushers can participate in safety relays, see bike safety movies, learn how to tune up their transportation and watch St. Paul Police Department representatives demonstrate how accidents can happen on the road. (Area streets will be blocked off for the duration.)

Ronald MacDonald and various city officials are expected to participate in the bike rodeo. The program is sponsored jointly by the police, the St. Paul Division of Public Health, and Parks and Recreation.

WILDER PARK CONDOMINIUMS

we are doing something about it . . . !

- Are you fifty-five years or older and looking for some security in a modest size home with potential for appreciation?
- Are you neither rich or poor?
- Have you spent most of your life paying rent?
- Or, have you been burdened with an oversized dwelling, once used by your family?
- Are you the middle income person bearing the brunt of the tax burden and being squeezed because of a tight budget?
- Have you been thinking about alternative housing but afraid to make the change?

If so, here's a better way to meet your fears . . . ask us some important unanswered questions about housing. We've done something about it!

We are now constructing sixteen stories of the most delightful condominiums in the St. Paul area. Located at Edgcombe Road and Lexington Parkway South. We have facilities for social and educational activities, private or community-style entertainment, all within the building.

Models now open Weekdays: 10 A.M. to 6 P.M.

St. Paul Children's seeks volunteer aid

St. Paul Children's Hospital has sounded the call for volunteers who would work in nearly every department at the hospital. Anyone age 14 and over is invited to take on such functions as lobby greeters, tour guides, office workers, emergency services helpers and playmates for nervous young patients.

The hospital can always use helpers with special educational or entertainment skills for teaching yoga, giving puppet shows or singing and playing music. Call the volunteer office at 298-8874 if you're interested.

Schools sell out

The Minneapolis Public Schools will hold a garage sale from 9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. Saturday, July 28 at 4401 Columbus Ave. S., to raise money for the support of its Community Resource Volunteers program. The sale will feature bargains donated by teachers and friends, and raffle prizes.
