Great River Road detour shifts future federal funds north of the Mississippi

by Roger Fuller

At least a section of the originally proposed Great River Road route from Fort Snelling to downtown St. Paul will jump from south of the Mississippi to Shepard Road thanks, in part, to the efforts of the West Seventh Street Federation.

Original plans for the federally funded project, which were developed locally by the Minnesota Department of Transportation and supported by the City of St. Paul, called for that section of the Great River Road to run through Mendota and Lilydale via Highway 13. St. Paul withheld its blessing only after the West Seventh Street Federation began lobbying for the northern route late last year.

The Great River Road has been a planner's plaything since it was first proposed in 1938 by the U.S. Department of the Interior. In 1963, the state Mississippi River Parkway Commission was created, which assumed responsibility for designating the route of the Great River Road and installing signs identifying it as such.

A breakthrough of sorts was reached when the Federal Highway Act was passed in 1973, appropriating about $90 million to be spent within the ten states bordering on the river. They include Minnesota, Wisconsin, Iowa, Illinois, Missouri, Kentucky, Tennessee, Arkansas, Mississippi and Louisiana. Minnesota's cut will be $19.5 million, based on the 426 miles of the river between Lake Itasca and Point Douglas for which the state is responsible.

The Great River Road project will incorporate many parkway-like features, including scenic river views, bike trails and rest areas, and will provide protection for the historical, archaeological, scenic and cultural assets of the river corridor.

Until recently, three possible route designations were being considered from Fort Snelling to downtown St. Paul: The original Highway 13 route favored by the state; the northern route along Shepard Road favored by the West Seventh Street Federation; and a compromise route which would follow Highway 13 from Fort Snelling to the Lexington Avenue Bridge, and then switch to Shepard Road from Lexington through downtown.

According to John Yust, president of the West Seventh Street Federation, the neighborhood his group represents would stand to benefit the most if the route were to follow the second alternative. Though tourists using Shepard Road would most likely pass through with little impact on surrounding business and residential areas, Yust feels the designation could be a community asset.

"The Great River Road is what you make it," he said, pointing to a potential commercial revival of the West Seventh Street area a la Grand Avenue. What is certain is that those areas which receive the Great River Road designation can benefit from federal funds applied to various nearby improvements.

Connie Kozlak of the Metropolitan Council's transportation staff feels the significance of the Great River Road in the metropolitan area is not likely to be great.

"In a rural area it could make a difference," she said. "On a two-lane highway in Aitkin County, the travelers attracted by the Great River Road designation might make a measurable impact in the community. But any additional traffic on a roadway which has the Great River Road designation in the metro area would make only a minimal impact when compared with the city traffic already using the route."

Federal funds appropriated for the project will be spent for engineering and environmental studies of existing roads and new locations, land acquisition for scenic easements, and construction of rest areas, scenic overlooks and bike trails. Funds will also be available, when necessary, for the reconstruction of existing routes and the construction of new ones.

The 1973 Highway Act changed the original concept of the Great River Road in several ways.

Pictured above is the compromise route proposed for the Great River Road. Efforts on the part of the West Seventh Street Federation — with support from the City of St. Paul — have assured that at least that stretch from the Lexington Avenue Bridge to downtown St. Paul will run on the north side of the river.

When Great River Road signs were first put up in the 1960s, both sides of the river often received the designation, and the routes sometimes followed major highways and interstate expressways.

The new regulations are more restrictive. In accordance with federal guidelines, there will now be only one designated Great River Road stretching from Lake Itasca to Venice, Louisiana, and priority will be given to two-lane highways of scenic or historical value, rather than to major traffic arteries.

The compromise route proposed through this area now leaves downtown Minneapolis on the west side of the river, follows West River Road to Fort Snelling, crosses the Minnesota River at the Mendota Bridge, and takes Highway 13 through Mendota and Mendota Heights. It then crosses the Mississippi River at the Lexington Avenue Bridge and follows Shepard Road through downtown and onto Warner Road.

According to Andrew Golfis, Great River Road coordinator with the Department of Transportation, the area of controversy has been limited to the section between Fort Snelling and the Wabasha Bridge. There has been no opposition to the route in Minneapolis and on Warner Road.

Rick Wiederhorn of the St. Paul Planning Department, explained that it was the Minnesota Department of Transportation which offered the Lexington Bridge compromise, though at first it was very much in favor of the route through Mendota and Lilydale.

"But there are many scenic areas in other parts of the river road," Wiederhorn said. "And while in the metro area, the road should show something of urban and industrial life. We feel the Shepard Road does that."

As of presstime, the city had yet to answer the state's compromise offer. But Wiederhorn predicted that the compromise suggested by the state will be the ultimate route, since the final decision rests solely with the Minnesota Department of Transportation.

Vorspan to speak at JCC on implications of Carter era

Albert Vorspan, noted author and a prominent figure in the civil rights struggle of the 60's and the peace movement of the early 70's, will speak on "The Carter Era: Jewish Implications" at 8:00 p.m. Thursday, October 12 at the Jewish Community Center, 1375 St. Paul Ave.

A sherry hour in the JCC adult lounge will precede his address.

Vorspan, vice president of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations (UAHC), is director of UAHC's commission on Social Action of Reform Judaism, and executive editor of the commission's publication, Reform Judaism. He is also the author of several humorous books, including the latest, You Packed the Cat in the Suitcase?, as well as serious works on Jewish values and justice.

Born and raised in St. Paul, Vorspan attended the University of Minnesota, graduated from New York University and completed graduate work at the New School for Social Research.

His talk is open to the public free of charge, however seating is limited and tickets will be available on a first-come, first-served basis. For more information, call the JCC at 698-0751.

Highland was hopping last weekend as throngs of Twin Citians descended on the corner of Ford Parkway and Cleveland for the 11th annual Highland Village Art Fair. If the number of exhibitors was down from previous years, the temperature was certainly up. Sunny skies and a Fahrenheit reading in the upper 70s made the weather the featured attraction for these and countless other sidewalk strollers. (More photos on page 12.)

Mayor Latimer selects 13 area residents for advisory boards

Thirteen area residents were recently appointed to St. Paul advisory boards by Mayor George Latimer.

Appointed to the Planning Commission were Sister Alberta Huber, president of the College of St. Catherine; Jeff Levy, 327 S. Saratoga St.; Carolyn Cochran, 1911 Bayard Ave.; George McMahon, 339 Pelham Boulevard; Thomas P. Fitzgibbon, Jr., 42 S. St. Albans St.; and David M. Hyde, 615 Montcalm Place.

Appointed to the Human Rights Commission were Christine Dawn Ver Ploeg, 1583 Summit Ave.; Carlos W. Luis, 2045 Summit Ave.; and JoAnn Cardenas de Enos, 149 Exeter Place.

Vincent P. Woods, 1549 Portland Ave., was appointed to the Board of Zoning Appeals. Jack Geller, 1891 Hillcrest Ave., was appointed to the Parking Commission. John Catlin, 1893 Berkeley Ave., will represent consumers on the Community Health Services Advisory Committee, and Louis H. Meyers, 1889 Princeton Ave., was appointed to serve on the Port Authority.

Middle East peacekeeper to speak at Mac Sept. 27

Major General Indarjit Rikhye, a world renowned diplomat, military advisor and head of an international peacekeeping agency, will speak at a free lecture at 8:00 p.m. this Thursday, September 28 in Weyerhaeuser Memorial Chapel at Macalester College.

Rikhye, the president and co-founder of the New York-based International Peace Academy, will talk about the role of the non-profit agency in furthering peace by teaching world leaders and others how to settle conflicts and disputes without violence.

Born in Lahore, India in 1920, Rikhye's distinguished career includes extensive involvement in peacekeeping in the Middle East. He commanded the United Nations Emergency Forces in the Gaza Strip area in 1966 and was appointed Special Advisor to the U.N. Secretary General on Middle Eastern Affairs in 1967.

In 1957 he headed the Indian contingent to the U.N. Emergency Forces in Gaza and was later promoted to Chief of Staff of the Force. He left the U.N. in 1969 to start the International Peace Academy and was chosen as its president in 1971.

A discussion period will follow his address, which is part of Macalester's Hubert H. Humphrey public lecture series.

Sister Alberta Huber to resign as president of St. Catherine's

Sister Alberta Huber, president of the College of St. Catherine since 1963, has announced that she will resign from her position at the end of her current term on July 1, 1979. However, she will continue to serve the college as special consultant to its development programs.

During Sister Alberta's 15 years as president, the college has gone from an enrollment of 1,300 to 2,100, which makes it the second largest women's college in the country. Four new residence halls, the Mother Antonia McHugh Fine Arts Center and O'Shaughnessy Auditorium were also completed and dedicated during her tenure.

A native of Rock Island, Illinois, and a graduate of St. Catherine's, Sister Alberta received her Master of Arts degree from the University of Minnesota and her Ph.D. from the University of Notre Dame. She joined the St. Catherine's faculty in 1940.

Some of Sister Alberta's many civic affiliations have included membership on the board of directors of the St. Paul Chamber of Commerce, the Minnesota Opera and Junior Achievement. She has also served as chairperson of the St. Paul Opera and was recently appointed to the planning commission of the City of St. Paul.

A search committee comprised of trustees and faculty has been appointed to seek a successor.

'BUSH LEAGUE' SENSIBILITIES

To the editor:

During the last few weeks, the citizens and sports fans of this state have been insulted by the comments of Max Winter and the Vikings organization. Besides threats of moving the team, we've had to put up with Bud Grant's claim that we are not "big league" because we don't have an expensive monument to pro-football financed by the fans and taxpayers. As a fans organization, we have to respond to the "bush league" sensibilities of the vikings.

Over the years, the Vikings have been a very profitable business for Mr. Winter. Their net worth is in the $20 to $30 million dollar range. Gross profits are around $4 to $5 million. New television contracts totalling $5.4 million annually have the club breaking even before the first fan comes through the turnstile.

Evidently the Vikings have forgotten all the support they have gotten over the years from the Minnesota community. The enthusiasm of Minnesota sports fans has done a lot for the Vikings. The shirts, hats and bumper stickers around town show lots of spirit and devotion. The Vikings continued support for a multi-million dollar white elephant could lose a lot of that good will.

We think the Vikings should realize how good they've got it here in Minnesota. Television contracts or not, you can't bite the hand that feeds you. The Vikings should put some of their income into remodeling the Met. Private business and the other teams ought to help.

In our opinion, having professional teams listen to their fans and work together with them is really "big league." We'd like to think that the Vikings are a team of this caliber.

NO FUNDAMENTAL DIFFERENCE

To the editor:

Observe that the ancient Chinese obviated abortion by waiting till the fetus emerged, whereupon those appearing to need help from others during their lives were beheaded and buried. Decades ago, a Japanese philosopher remarked that this grisly method was acceptable intellectually since a future Einstein could thus live for the good of all while abortions were unselective in this regard.

Our Christian values, of course, eschew such brutal butchery. But as an exercise of intellect one can say that the purpose of abortion is no different from that of ancient infant butchery: to avoid obligation to carry a crippled brother.

It follows that there is no fundamental difference in death itself, whether fetal or infant. In both there is an absence of brother love. It is for this reason that mass abortion can never be accepted by Christianity.

A LIECHTENSTEIN "NEIN"

To the editor:

In the September 13th issue of the Highland Villager, you printed a photograph of the Liechtenstein Nein band, which will be playing at the Kidney Foundation Oktoberfest to raise funds for much needed medical research. The man wearing the "Coca Cola" shorts and a jacket covered with buttons may be in the spirit of Oktoberfest, but the man in the back row? He's wearing a Nazi Wehrmacht uniform. That's not funny, that's sick.

A pretty fair fair

Blue skies and mid-summer temperatures brought out better than a fair crowd last weekend for the "One and Only, Genuine, Original" Nativity County Fair. The sun-drenched Nativity School playground served as the site for the annual three-day fun and fundraising exposition. At the right, a birds-eye view of the goings on from atop the school. Below, a few of the youthful faces in the crowd.

CST tops state's independents with record-breaking enrollment

Undergraduate and total enrollment figures reached all-time highs earlier this month as classes began at the College of St. Thomas.

Unofficial fall totals show that the undergraduate enrollment of Minnesota's largest independent college stands at a record 2891, an increase of 205 over the previous record of 2686 established last September.

Unofficial graduate student enrollment figures raise the college's total fall enrollment to a record 4209. A 4139 total in 1977 was the previous St. Thomas high.

The college's graduate programs in Management and Religious Education and Graduate Studies in Education and Community Services are expected to enroll nearly 1600 students in fall courses this year.

The addition of a new 144-bed residence-hall also gives the college a record resident population in 1978. Approximately 1000 boarders occupy the new residence and Murray, Dowling, Ireland and Brady Halls on the CST campus.

Slide show on Afro American artists set at Lexington Branch

Afro American Art and Artists, a three-part slide presentation developed by Dr. Ralph M. Hudson of the University of Alabama, will be presented from 6:30 to 8:00 p.m. on three dates in October at the Lexington Branch Library, 1080 University Ave.

The first session, on Thursday, October 5, will cover artists from 1800 to 1940; the second session, on Thursday, October 12, will include artists from 1940 to the present; and the final session, covering sculptors, ceramicists and crafts-persons, will be held Monday, October 16.

KushBey, a master in fine arts from the University of Minnesota, will make the presentation and answer any questions from the audience. For further information, call 645-7739.

It's the community's responsibility to provide a "total education"—one that not only advances the child's knowledge of the world, but also molds his character—Governor Rudy Perpich recently told a capacity crowd at Adath Israel Synagogue, 2337 Edgumbe Road. The occasion was a breakfast discussion on morality in education, sponsored by the synagogue. Also addressing those gathered on the theme, "Education: More Than Information; Teaching Morality for Humanity," were, left to right: Rabbi Moshe Feller, director of the Upper Midwest Merkos Educational Association; Councilman Len Levine; and Rabbi Asher Zeilengold, spiritual director of the synagogue.

PP&K competition kicks off October 3 at local playgrounds

Future Fran Tarkentons, Ray Guys and Rick Danmeiers will get a chance to flaunt their pigskin prowess when local Punt, Pass and Kick competitions begin next week.

Open to youngsters ages 8-13, the first PP&K contests will be held at 4:00 p.m. next Tuesday, October 3 at all Highland area playgrounds. Participants must have parental approval and may register at their recreation center in advance or on the day of the event.

The competition will be divided into six age groups with each entrant competing in three categories—punting, passing and kicking. One point will be scored for each foot the ball travels in the air, minus one point for each foot the ball lands away from the center tape. There is no entry fee, no special equipment needed, nor any body contact during the competition.

The top three finishers in each age division in the local contest will receive trophies, and the first two qualifiers will advance to the local recreation district finals to be held at 6:30 p.m. Thursday, October 5 at Edgumbe playground, Griggs and Jefferson Ave., and at St. Clair playground, Oneida and St. Clair Ave.

The top two finishers in the local competitions will be eligible for the zone finals to be held at 7:00 p.m. Thursday, October 12 at Midway Stadium. From there, the best of the bunch will attempt to punt, pass and kick their way through district, area and division semi-finals for a chance to compete in the national finals at Super Bowl XIII.

For more information, contact your local recreation center or call 645-4689.

'Financial Female Symposium' slated at St. Catherine's Oct. 7

Information needed by women in handling money matters will be the focus of a "Financial Female Symposium" to be held at the College of St. Catherine on Saturday, October 7. The symposium, which will run from 9:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m., will be conducted in the West Marian Lounge of St. Joseph Hall. The four guest speakers, all women who are experts in the fields of insurance, real estate investing, legal problems, and stocks and bonds, will include:

Anne Kelly, chartered life underwriter, representing the Penn Mutual Life Insurance company and the Mutual Association for Professional Services, Minneapolis;

Jeanette Manville of Edina Realty, past member of the board of directors of the Greater Minneapolis Board of Realtors;

Bonnie Fleming, member of the law firm of Faegre and Benson, Minneapolis;

Donna Eull, investment adviser and registered representative of Piper, Jaffray and Hopwood's Minneapolis office.

The symposium is patterned after a highly successful all-woman lecture bureau originated in California to help women become more familiar with money matters.

Women wishing to register for the October 7 symposium may contact the Women in Management office at St. Catherine's (690-6728) for information and registration forms.

Are you thinking about buying or selling a home? First ask your real estate agent if he or she can:

- 1 Warrant unobservable defects in any qualifying home for up to three years.
- 2 Buy your home at a pre-determined price if it isn't sold by the time you want to move.
- 3 Offer information and assistance for your family's relocation anywhere in the U.S.
- 4 Buy your home back from you within the first year if you get transferred.
- 5 Provide on-line computer terminal marketing of Multiple Listing properties.
- 6 Offer a professionally trained staff of neighborhood salespeople who can explain these programs and their benefits to you.

If all these services are not available through your real estate agent, you haven't yet talked with a member of The Home Team. Our sales staff is ready and able to offer you these services and more.

Give us a call any time. We'll be happy to explain our complete program to you at your convenience.

MISCH- MASCH

by Maurice F. Mischke

It's kinda tough to build up a good head of steam for this column after a weekend as we've just experienced. I'm talking not only about the obviously beautiful "fair" weather we had for the several fairs in this area, but also of some personal good fortune...like winning one of the free trips in the Sunday drawing at the Nativity County Fair. Looks like a mighty fine 10-day tour for Jan and me, in the Southland sometime this winter!

One of the first big items in the news since we last talked to you in print was, of course, the primary election. The "shock waves" seem to be with us yet. One thing you gotta admit...Bob Short spent his money wisely—he didn't buy a landslide!

In some ways, considering all the issues Don Fraser had going against him in a year of resistance to accelerating taxes and constantly expanding government, it's rather surprising he could come that close. Call it a tribute to DFL party loyalties and discipline, perhaps, along with the unquestioned advantage that goes with 16 years of Congressional incumbency.

I thought Fraser was making a mistake from the time he first announced his intention to run for the Senate. He's just too far to the left to capture the hearts of out-state DFLers, single issues aside. To be sure, he could have retained his House seat just about as long as he wanted to, given the big ultra-liberal majority he enjoyed in Minneapolis. But out in the "boondocks" where I used to live, the Democrats are still a slightly different breed.

That doesn't mean I thought Short would necessarily beat Fraser...just that Fraser couldn't win. If he hadn't lost in the primary, in other words, it was my gut feeling that he'd surely lose to Durenberger in the November finale. He just wasn't a consensus type of candidate—not for the year 1978, at any rate.

So now you hear noises that our primary system should be changed...forcing advance registration as a Republican or Democrat. They'll never sell that bill of goods in Minnesota...we're just too independent for that kind of political machinery. I didn't say that it couldn't be passed, you understand—just that it wouldn't go over with our citizenry, and anyone who sponsored or voted for that type of legislation would do well to consider early retirement.

I'm not even sure that Republican crossovers were all that crucial. So-called single issue votes could well have cut both ways...for Fraser as well as against him. However, I do feel Bob Short deserves to have his wrist slapped for openly and unabashedly asking for Republican votes in the primary. That just isn't cricket. People make up their own mind on that score anyway, of course. But the official line for any primary election—which is, after all, designed to nominate the respective parties' candidate—should be to vote your own party slate. Of course, since there are as many or more independents in this state as DFLers, that leaves a lot of room for free-wheeling activity. But would anyone propose to disenfranchise upwards of 40% of our constituency in any given primary contest? Well, they better not. Mugwumps unite!

In fairness to Short, I ought to mention that he wasn't alone in calling for party crossovers. According to press reports, Republican Senator Ed Brooke of Massachusetts publicly asked for Democratic crossovers, too, to help him win a close race for renomination.

What's a poor millionaire going to do? You heard and read about Short's so-called lavish political expenditures during the primary. Well, if a party maverick hasn't got access to some ready dough to overcome official endorsements, political blessings and volunteer party support, he might as well forget it. So the fastest way is to use your own money, and hope the dollars will come in a bit easier if you come out on top. Now Rudy Boschwitz sends out a letter pleading lack of sufficient funds, and he gets chided, too, by the likes of Klobuchar (transplanted iron-ranger at the Star). It seems they're damned if they do use their own money, and damned just as much if they don't. You can see what a special problem a challenger like Dave Durenberger has—since he's probably still counting his net worth in six figures!

Before I move on to other fortnightly tidbits, let me just say that I've never heard such a hue and cry, such a stream of sanctimonious palaver as I have (in the wake of Fraser's defeat) regarding Short's advertising campaign. I'm not defending it, I'm not saying that he wasn't guilty—as I've read—of "simplistic, shallow sloganeering" or given to unwarranted hyperbole. But these critics make it sound as if it has always been so simon-pure in this state...that Bob Short was almost sacrilegious in defying our "Minnesota miracle" as they like to call it. I'm just saying that these people are either extremely young or very forgetful. Remember the Highway 35 hoax, a totally unwarranted attack that was enough to beat Governor Elmer Anderson by an eventual 91 votes? Miraculously, the inter-state turned out to be OK after the election...that was back in 1962, if you recall. If you don't, maybe I can dig up a copy of the book an old friend of mine, Tom Roeser, wrote on that whole intriguing intrigue.

That's just one example. Most election campaigns stop short of such shenanigans. But there's a lot of half-truth, almost-truth and pulling-out-of-context in a lot of campaign advertising or literature that appears on the scene before every election. The candidates and committees do this, only because they think it works. The more intelligent our electorate gets, the less apt we are to be presented with that kind of drivel. So do a little checking...it might pay off in terms of better government.

While you're mulling over just how much Short should be chastised for his "hard-hitting" campaign tactics, consider this quote from Fraser's press conference of last Saturday. "Independent-Republicans," he said, "do not share our commitment to economic and social justice, and we cannot permit (them) to take over the political direction of our state." So there you have it. Either you vote for justice, or injustice. It's as simple as that. Or is it? Maybe Fraser has feet of clay, too.

Speaking of primaries, I go along with getting rid of party designation on the city level in St. Paul. Let them endorse all they want to, but let's get the general election down to just two top candidates, regardless of party or no party. The alley system may be OK...let's wait and see. It's more clean-cut, in my view.

The question of increasing the mayor's term from two years to four is also scheduled to be on the November ballot. To that I say, what difference does it make? Until comes the revolution, we'll almost always have Democratic mayors here anyway. At this point I see no great virtue in making the term longer. What if, by fluke, some bona fide Republican got elected. Wouldn't the electorate want to have a crack at ousting him after two years? Think about that!

Since money, its presence or absence thereof, came to the fore to such an extent in the state primary, I thought it might be useful to do a little research, for your information and mine, on the local legislative level. You're probably aware of the fact that legislative candidates can qualify for some public funds—via the public's state income tax check-off—provided they live within a $7,500 campaign spending limitation. Depending on the vote in their particular county, Democratic candidates tend to receive a good bit more than Republicans—apparently because more Democrats pay income taxes, I guess. (Hey, that doesn't sound right, does it?) Well, apparently, in this state almost everybody has to dig deep so, on the basis of popularity and sheer numbers, DFL candidates get more of the dough. By the way, no candidate has to accept those funds, but if he or she exceeds the $7,500 limit, contributions received are not legally deductible on state income tax returns.

Well, on to the research. The first required report to the State Ethical Practices Board covered the period thru August 26. We secured copies on eight candidates in four area districts...62A, 63A, 63B and 65A. Only two of them had primary contests of any kind—Ann Wynia (DFL) in 62A and Bill Collison (I-R) in 65A. That didn't seem to be a major factor in campaign receipts and expenditures...they weren't the big spenders.

Without further ado, here are the reported figures:

	(Summary)	Receipts	Expenditures
62-A	Ann Wynia (incumbent DFL)	$ 4,636	$ 1,383
62-A	Cathy Healy (I-R)	3,469	733
63-A	Ray Faricy (incumbent DFL)	$ 2,525	$ 2,656*
63-A	Jack Schluebier (I-R)	1,228	950
	(*includes $1,204 transferred to other candidates or committees)
63-B	Dick Cohen (incumbent DFL)	$12,483	$11,086*
63-B	John Drew (I-R)	4,529	1,984
65-A	Fred Norton (incumbent DFL)	$ 1,710	$ 980
65-A	Bill Collison (I-R)	1,279	769

Most of these figures seem very modest...maybe far more modest than some of the candidates—especially the challengers—would like. But what do you make of that tremendous outlay on the part of Dick Cohen? What a kitty he's been building up! Rather unusual for an incumbent to be running that scared. It won't take long for him to have spent more than a year's legislative pay, and the campaign is barely underway! I'm not casting any aspersions, but I have to admit, it's got me a bit baffled. I didn't expect to find anything this out of the ordinary, when I delved into the question of moola.

U.S. Chamber exec to speak at St. Thomas September 27

Shearon Harris, chairman of the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, will address the College of St. Thomas Town and Gown Forum, to be held at 6:30 p.m. this Wednesday, September 27 at the college.

Harris, who is also the chairman of the board of Carolina Power and Electric Light Co., will present "An Eleven-Point Anti-Inflation Program."

As a member of the National Industrial Energy Council, Harris has engaged in a concentrated effort to bring about better public understanding of the country's energy supply problem, placing particular emphasis upon the harsh economic impact threatening people, jobs and the Gross National Product if present energy supplies prove insufficient.

Kids needed for Highland Senior's child dev. class

The Home Economics Department of Highland Park Senior High School is looking for youngsters ages 3-5 to spend one hour a day with students in the department's Child Development Center.

The youngsters will be supervised and cared for by Home Ec students in grades 10-12 from 10:00 to 11:00 a.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays or Wednesdays and Fridays from mid-October through November. Parents may also bring their children in on all four days.

The students will plan learning activities, supervise free play and tell stories to the children. Interested parents are asked to call Jana DiLorenzo at 690-1545.

Shearon Harris

and Gown Forum was initiated to encourage communication and cooperation among members of the business and academic communities.

Family Tree offers menopausal support

"Womenpause... for Reflection," an information and support group for women in their middle years, will meet from 9:00 to 11:00 a.m. once a week for four weeks beginning Friday, October 27 at the Family Tree, 1599 Selby Ave.

The group will focus on physical and emotional changes during menopause, menopausal myths, society's view of women past the child-bearing age, sexuality concerns, and ideas for positive approaches to the second half of life.

Fee for the course is $10.00. For pre-registration or more information, call 645-0478.

JCC sets Saturday nite soiree

Following 8:00 p.m. Civic Center performances by comedian David Brenner and vocalist Ruthi Navon on Saturday, November 18, the Jewish Community Center, 1375 St. Paul Ave., will host a gala reception dubbed "Saturday Night alive."

Illumined by criss-crossing cones of colored lights, Joe Hyatt's Orchestra will provide the musical entertainment on the main floor while a jukebox kicks it out on the lower level. A buffet meal is also part of the reception fare.

Tickets for Saturday

Night Alive, a benefit for the JCC, are $7.00, $10.00 and $12.00 and can be purchased at the center through October 15 and at Dayton's after that date. Patron tickets, which include both the performance and the reception, are available for $30 at the JCC. For more information, call the center at 698-0751.

Sound barrier shattered for members of the Highland Park Church for the Deaf

by Paul Schollmeier

A group of Twin City residents broke the sound barrier in Highland Park recently, though nobody heard them do it.

They accomplished the feat within the walls of an unpretentious building at 536 S. Snelling Ave. — The Highland Park Church for the Deaf.

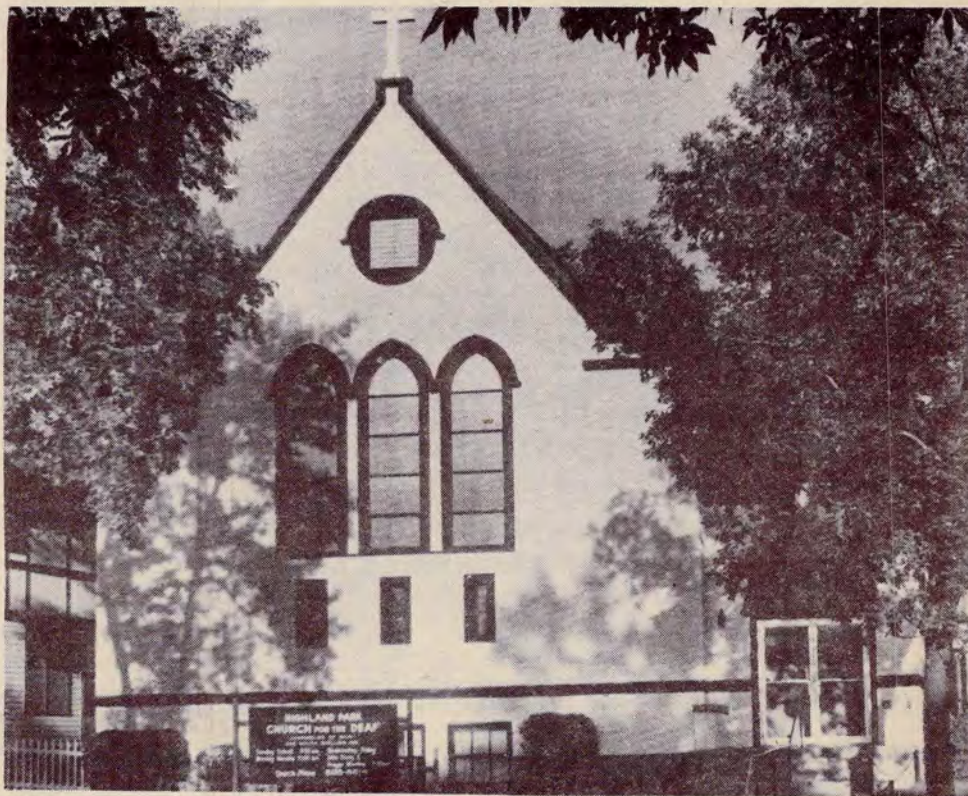

"We broke the sound barrier when we began conducting services for the deaf in total communication—sign language, lip reading, facial expression, and body movement," said Pastor Eldon Post.

Church services for the deaf used to mean simply having someone translate services for hearing people into sign language. But deaf people can easily get lost in abstract language and complex sentences, Post explained. Those who cannot hear tend to think more in concrete, visual images, since they must rely so heavily on their eyes for receiving information.

"By using total communication, we are forced to avoid abstruse language and complex grammar or we won't be able to get our message across in physical movements," Post said.

The Highland Church for the Deaf is one of six churches in the Twin Cities which offer either this new type of service for the deaf or continue to offer services with deaf translators.

"Deaf people living in the Twin Cities are really very lucky," Post said. "Here they have a choice of where to worship. In many cities, there is no deaf church or, at best, only one."

But approximately 90 percent of the 4,000 deaf people living in the Twin Cities have no church or religious affiliation, according to Post.

"This sad fact points to the failure of the old concept of a religious service for the deaf," he said. "The older deaf people feel no need for the church because the church never met those needs."

A visitor attending a service at the Highland church would be able to understand the service, since Post delivers his sermons in spoken English as well as in total communication.

But when he speaks to the congregation, Post acts out practically everything he wants to say in pantomime. And before and after his sermon, Post and his congregation also "sing" hymns in sign language.

The resulting commotion appears to be pure pandemonium to someone unfamiliar with sign language. The experience is quite like that of observing foreigners talking animatedly in their own language.

Except for the unusual mode of expression, the service is quite ordinary, Post even uses a piano to lead the congregation in singing hymns.

"Some members of our congregation have five to ten percent residual hearing and can hear some of the tones produced by the piano," Post said. "They really enjoy it, and it gives them a better sense of the religious service."

The congregation can also feel some of the tones, and Post plans to install an organ soon because it will produce more vibrations than the piano.

For its Sunday school program for deaf children and children of deaf parents, instructors use Bible study aids designed by Post in cooperation with the American Bible Society.

The study aids work much like braille, but instead of using raised dots, they present sentences as a series of drawings of a person using sign language.

The study aids also present the written word under each signed word and, since the syntax used is that of hearing people, the study aids not only bring the Bible to the deaf, but help them learn English as written and spoken by hearing people.

The church offers the congregation varied social activities, too. It fielded the only deaf softball team in the St. Paul City Parks Softball League this summer, and is presently organizing volleyball teams. The congregation will also be taking a trip to the Holy Land soon.

These activities are the result of an attempt to minister to the whole person, Post explained. "We try to minister to the mental and physical needs of our congregation as well as to its spiritual needs," he said.

"Our primary purpose, though, is to give deaf people an opportunity to find Christ as a personal savior. I believe that this is the heart of our being on earth."

of God church," Post continued. "The distinctive tenet of our religion is belief in the baptism of the Holy Spirit, the baptism of spiritual strength. We consider the ability to speak in tongues evidence of this strength."

At first, Post thought deaf people who don't use their voice wouldn't be able to speak in tongues. "But when inspired, they speak in definite syllables—syllables they couldn't have learned from experience," he said.

The Highland Park Church for the Deaf was originally part of a hearing congregation. Carol Vetter started services for the deaf in 1969 under the sponsorship of the Summit Avenue Assembly of God, 845 Summit Ave. The deaf group formed its own congregation and bought its present building from the Lutheran Church in 1973. In 1976, the deaf congregation became financially independent from the hearing congregation.

The Highland Park church is one of very few self-supporting churches for the deaf in the world, Post said. It is the only self-supporting Assemblies of God church for the deaf.

"This is one of the fruits of our new concept of service for the deaf," Post explained. "I think we will soon see more self-sufficient deaf churches because deaf worshipers are now being encouraged to participate in their own congregations, rather than be simply onlookers in hearing congregations."

Within the next two years, the Highland Park congregation plans to raze its present church building and build a new one on the same site. "The new structure will be designed for maximum visual contact, since the deaf have to hear with their eyes," Post said. "We expect the cost to run about $500,000 by the time it is finished."

Post has been working with the deaf ever since his graduation from Central Bible College in Springfield, Missouri, in 1971. He was assistant director of a vocational rehabilitation project sponsored by Goodwill Industries in Winston-Salem, North Carolina, and a national representative for Ministries to the Deaf and Blind before coming to Highland Park.

Besides being a pastor, Post is a translator for the deaf. He is a member of the National Registry of Interpreters for the Deaf and has received a Comprehensive Certification from the State of Minnesota, its highest certification. He is thus qualified to translate in courts, in hospitals, and in business transactions.

"The reason deaf people prefer to use translators instead of using written English is that their syntax may appear primitive to hearing people," Post explained.

A deaf person would be likely to write 'I want go' or 'You with me go,' according to Post. The deaf place concrete events or objects before abstract ones because of their visual orientation.

"In the past, a hearing person would often interpret this type of syntax as an indication of not knowing how to write, or worse, of being mentally retarded," Post said.

Post likes to joke in sign language by making puns. The deaf seem to appreciate puns more than hearing people do, according to Post, and some members of his congregation have started to invent their own.

"The sign for walking is to walk the first two fingers of one hand across the palm of the other," Post said. "The other day I asked a member of my congregation what he did over the weekend, and he answered by walking his fingers over his head, meaning he had taken a walk over the week end."

Reflecting for a moment on his years of experience with the deaf, Post said that the most important lesson he's learned and tries to communicate to others is that, though deaf people may be disadvantaged, they are not disabled.

"The difference," he said, "is that the disabled can't achieve in certain areas. But with proper training and perseverance, the disadvantaged can—and do."

Grand new sale set for grander old Ave.

A Grand Carriage House Sale, sponsored by the Grand Avenue Business Association, will be held from 9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. this Saturday and Sunday, September 30 and October 1 at the Carriage House on Summit Ave. and Dale St.

Author Elizabeth Hailey to appear at Odegard Books

Elizabeth Forsythe Hailey, author of A Woman of Independent Means, will appear at Odegard Books in the Victoria Crossing Mall, 867 Grand Ave., from 7:00 to 8:00 p.m. on Wednesday, October 4. Ms. Hailey has received outstanding reviews of late for her recently published novel, including articles in Publishers Weekly, Kirkus Reviews, and The New York Times Book Review.

Told through a series of letters spanning more than half a century, A Woman of Independent Means is the story of Bess Steed Garner's life, from her childhood in tranquil Honey Grove, Texas, at the turn-of-the-century to old age amidst the turbulence of the late sixties. In words simple yet eloquent, Bess shares her triumphs and follies in love and marriage, in child-bearing and childrearing, in travel and in business.

Born in Dallas, author Hailey presently lives in Los Angeles, California, with her husband, playwright Oliver Hailey, and their two daughters. After graduating from Hollins College in Roanoke, Virginia, with a B.A. in English, she worked as a reporter for The Dallas Morning News. She is now at work on a second novel.

St. Mary's Leisure Center sets special noontime program

The Leisure Age Center of St. Mary's Episcopal Church, 1865 Laurel Ave., will present a special noon luncheon program on Wednesday, September 27, when a representative from Northwestern Bell will be on hand to talk about a new telephone service called "The Tomorrow Machine."

A home-cooked meal will be served to all in attendance immediately preceding the presentation. The cost is $1.10 and general public is cordially invited to attend.

Special Mass to honor St. Luke's 90th anniversary

To celebrate its 90th anniversary, St. Luke's Catholic Church will offer a special Mass at 10:30 a.m. Sunday, October 15 at the church, Lexington and Summit Ave.

The mass will honor the people, past and present, who have contributed to the life of the parish, from its beginnings in a small, wood frame church on the corner of Portland and Victoria Ave. in 1888 to the present stone structure completed in October of 1926.

Following the Mass, a brunch will be served in the school's auditorium, next to the church on Summit Ave. The cost of the brunch is $3.00.

For reservations, which must be made by October 12, send a check, payable to the Church of St. Luke, to Mrs. Jane McKim, 792 Fairmount Ave., St. Paul, MN 55105.

Small business owners invited to voice their views October 6

Owners and operators of small businesses in Minnesota are invited to voice their opinions on the needs of their firms at a meeting of the Small Business Task Force at 9:00 a.m. Friday, October 6 in Room 188 of the State Capitol Building.

Task Force members, who have already received testimony from representatives of governmental agencies, chambers of commerce and other business associations, are especially interested in the views of individual small businesspersons on new state programs and services.

During its 1978 session, the Minnesota Legislature established a new Small Business Division within the Department of Economic Development. The Small Business Task Force is working to define the duties and powers of the new division, cataloguing existing state services and potential new programs to benefit the state's smaller firms.

The Task Force is currently studying ways to use existing educational resources in state colleges and universities, as well as other state government services, to assist small businesses.

One proposal which the task force will probably submit to the Legislature is a statewide educational consortium for small business development. Such a consortium would provide technical and management assistance to small businesses.

The panel is also investigating the use of computerized data retrieval systems to provide specialized information and knowledge to small business owners.

Other topics under consideration by the Task Force include: the formulation of a working definition of "small business" for the new division; new state small business programs modeled after existing services in the federal Small Business Administration; and possible improved state services to help small businesses in such areas as state procurements, job services and vocational rehabilitation.

Talking out of school

by Bill Rosenbloom & Carl Nelson

Talking Out of School has received a number of calls from Highland area parents since the school year got underway concerning program and personnel cut-backs at Highland Park Senior High. The two areas affected by budget cut-backs were the school's French language program and an attendance liaison position.

The issue with regard to Highland's French program concerns the elimination of all advanced level courses in the language. Highland currently offers only an introductory course in French.

The parents who we talked to expressed their dismay that the school is not meeting the needs of their children if they are unable to pursue their intellectual interests—in this case French—beyond the first level. Agreeing with them that a first-year French program is about as good as no French program if those students aren't able to pursue the subject beyond what must necessarily be a rudimentary level, we contacted Dr. David Frye, principal at the Highland Senior High, to elicit his explanation for the cut-back.

Frye explained that his decision was based on the declining interest in French shown by students in the senior high, as well as on the need for personnel cut-backs generally.

"Over the last three years, Highland Senior has lost five teachers per year," he said. Each of those teachers taught five sections of classes; thus, in those three years we have lost the flexibility of 75 sections of classroom instruction."

According to Frye, 54 students are presently enrolled in the two sections of French I being offered. (Only 15 students signed up for advanced French courses last spring.) Frye is concerned with offering the most comprehensive courses possible and at the same time meeting the needs of as many of the Highland students as possible. He agrees with parents who see languages as a real academic need, and points out that Highland Senior also offers Spanish (I, II, III and IV with a combined enrollment of 145 students) and German (I, II and III together, for a combined enrollment of 50 students.)

Frye's concern is really with answering the question: "How do we best serve the kids?" With the declining interest in the French program, he felt he had no choice.

The second area of concern had to do with the termination of an attendance liaison position at the school, namely that of Keanne McCannon. One mother we talked to had nothing but praise for McCannon and all he'd done for her child who had a problem with drug use. McCannon, she said, had succeeded in bringing her child back from the "brink." She had hoped he would be able to help others with similar problems.

Frye explained that there were a total of 28 individuals hired throughout the city last year under a CETA (Comprehensive Employment and Training Act) program. Funding for the program ran out on September 1 of this year. With it went the position.

Marathon for Non-Public Education steps off Sept. 30

More than 16,000 students, alumni and faculty and friends of Twin City private and parochial schools are expected to be among the 45,000 participants from 260 schools across the state who will be walking, jogging, running, unicycling, bicycling and tricycling over 90 routes throughout Minnesota as part of the sixth annual Marathon for Non-Public Education this Saturday, September 30.

The metro area rally will run from 9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. along a route running on both sides of the Mississippi River from the Ford Bridge to the Washington Avenue Bridge. Check-points will be set up at Minnehaha Park, Riverside Park, and at the monument on Summit and Mississippi River Blvd. Participants may begin the marathon at any of the three check-points.

A marathon rally will also be held at noon in Minnehaha Park. Honored guests will include Arch-

The 11th annual Highland Village Art Fair

Critical comments are a little hard to come by following last weekend's idyllic display by Mother Nature. But artist and ogler alike perceived the quality of the 11th annual Highland Village Art Fair to be down from previous years—not to mention the number of artists themselves. Whether it was last fall's three-day deluge that kept many of the better exhibitors away, or as some of the artists present indicated, today's more frugal fairgoer who by looking but rarely buying, makes the art fair circuit little more than a break-even proposition, the 1978 benefit fell a bit below most people's expectations.

But even so, there was lots to see and do. And except for those we talked to who were a bit put off by all the hand-pumping on the part of local politicians, it seemed a good time was had by all. Villager photographers Michael Lynch and Dave Wright were there to record the event on film for your further viewing pleasure.

SOUTHWEST AREA DISTRICT Council Capsule

The Southwest Area District Council has hired Gayle W. Summers, 2258 Goodrich Ave., to fill the position of administrative secretary/community co-ordinator. A life-long resident of this area, Ms. Summers has been active in a number of community activities. She is currently a member of the St. Paul Planning Commission and is on the Board of Zoning Appeals. She brings to the district council a thorough understanding of the community planning process.

At the last monthly meeting of the Southwest Area District Council, a discussion was held concerning the experimental, low-pressure sodium vapor street lights. A number of people are strongly opposed to the installation of these lights. Area residents who have any feelings about them—one way or another—are urged to call the lighting division of the St. Paul Public Works Department at 489-8871. The test sights in our district are located on Summit Avenue just west of Fairview, on Edgumbe Road between Randolph and James Avenue, and on Mt. Curve between Eleanor and Scheffer Avenue.

The task forces listed in the membership coupon which appeared in the last issue of the Villager have been defined and expanded. The Economic Development task force will address the business community in the district. The Parks and Recreation task force and the Education task force will work together on the re-use of the Mattocks School site. Other new task forces include Transportation, Social Services and Housing, Community and Public Relations, and Urban Design and Environment.

An at-large representative position was also filled at the last meeting with the election of Martin Kellogg to the board. Lee Levitan was elected to represent Grid 17. Representatives are still needed from Grids 1 (the area bounded by Summit, Cleveland, St. Clair and the Mississippi) and Grid 9 (the area bounded by Snelling, St. Clair, Hamline and Randolph.) Any resident of either of these areas interested in serving on the Southwest Area District Council can contact Gayle Summers at the District office (698-7973).

The council's next monthly meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m. Monday, October 9 in St. Joseph's Hall at the College of St. Catherine.

Two-day symposium set at CST on 'Humanae Vitae', ten years after

A symposium designed to address some of the current thinking on the issues raised in Pope Paul's encyclical, Humanae Vitae (Human Life), will be held on Monday and Tuesday, October 9-10 at the College of St. Thomas.

Sponsored by the college and the Archdiocese of St. Paul and Minneapolis, the conference will mark the 10th anniversary of the encyclical's publication with an opening liturgy at 7:00 p.m. Sunday, October 8 in the Basilica of St. Mary in Minneapolis. Archbishop John R. Roach will be the principal celebrant.

Among the speakers at the two-day symposium will be Rev. Robert Brungs, S.J., director of the Institute for Theological Encounter with Science and Technology at St. Louis University; Thomas Hilgers, M.D., from the National Institute of Health Research on Human Reproduction; and Rev. Donald McCarthy, professor of social policy of Kent School of Social Work at the University of Louisiana.

According to its organizers, the symposium will address especially those issues raised in Humanae Vitae that have created concern, confusion and consternation over the last decade.

Both programs will be held in the auditorium of the O'Shaughnessy Educational Center at the College of St. Thomas. For further information, call CST's Center for Senior Citizens Education at 647-5221.

Ann and Randy Krug show off their 18-month-old son, Andy, and their recently refurbished Durawood cabinets.

Krug saves you money with Twin Cities Sav-A-Kitchen

Randy Krug, 2008 Princeton Ave., stepped out of the classroom and into the kitchen when he moved from his home in Ripon, Wisconsin, two months ago.

Krug, a former special education teacher, is now the owner of Twin Cities Sav-A-Kitchen, a company offering a new concept in kitchen remodeling.

With a national headquarters in Philadelphia, and Midwest offices in Chicago, Sav-A-Kitchen recently decided to expand into the Twin Cities area and selected Krug as its area representative and craftsman.

Krug was an experienced carpenter, having run his own construction company on a part-time basis for almost a year, and recognized quality workmanship. So when Sav-A-Kitchen representatives explained their unique process, demonstrated their product and made their offer, Krug couldn't refuse.

Krug saves a kitchen, or at least saves you money on the cost of kitchen remodeling, by converting old cabinets into attractive, modern and maintenance free ones.

Sav-A-Kitchen's patented process involves replacing the doors and drawer fronts on old cabinets with Durawood, a urethane substance virtually indistinguishable from wood. The sculptured fronts won't peel, crack, warp or stain, and can be installed on wood or metal. The cabinet surface, including center rails and sides, are treated and stained to match the grain and tone of the new drawers and door fronts.

According to Krug, the Sav-A-Kitchen process can not only save homeowners up to 50 percent on the cost of kitchen remodeling, it also saves them half the time. Krug estimates the maximum length of any job to be no more than two days. Krug will not only apply the factory molded Durawood fronts, but he will also install custom counter tops upon request.

Krug and his wife, Ann, will hold an open house from 1:00 to 5:00 p.m. on Saturday, September 30 at their home at 2008 Princeton Ave. They invite all area residents to stop in and take a close look at their own recently refurbished cabinets. A drawing for plants will be held and refreshments will be served—in their kitchen, of course.

At Jambor Realtors—

Tom Edelstein's No. 1 . . . for two months in a row!

Winning the top honors as top salesman at Jambors in any given month obviously takes a bit of doing . . . but to top the list for two months running, well that's something else! Just something else Tom Edelstein did in July and August.

Of course, Tom has a lot going for him. Young as he looks, he's into his fifth year as a real estate specialist in Highland. He's also operating on very familiar ground, since he's lived in the Highland area all of his life. And, of course, he's a bit of a Y.E.S. man . . . if you interpret that to mean Young, Energetic and Successful. Congratulations, Tom, maybe that million-dollar smile will be good for another million-dollar year!

LEISURE LEAGUE

Leisure League activities for senior adults will begin this week, highlighted by a visit from Jo Savino, director of the St. Paul City Ballet, who will talk to the group about the upcoming ballet season at 1:00 p.m. Thursday, September 28.

Knitting and crocheting instruction will be offered in Leisure League arts and crafts classes at 10:30 a.m. on Thursdays. Buffet lunches will be served at noon on Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursdays at a cost of 75 cents per lunch. Contact Rose Grossman at 698-0751 for more details on the Leisure League program.

FALL CLASSES

Most of the fall classes at the JCC will begin the week of October 8. There is still time to register for the wide variety of activities and classes that will be offered for all ages. Call the Center at 698-0751 for more information.

5th AND 6th GRADE PARTY

A kickoff party for fifth and sixth grade JCC members is slated from 8:00 to 10:00 p.m. Saturday, September 30. The party will include a "Crazy Olympics," tumbling and trampolining events, swimming and pizza. The cost is $1.50, and paid reservations are due at the JCC front desk by 5:00 p.m. Friday, September 29. Rides home will be available at a cost of 50 cents. For more information, call Lauren Bleet at 698-0751.

STAFF CHANGES

Ken Weintraub, supervisor of the Youth Services Department, will also coordinate the Adult Department programs for 1978-79 at the JCC. Working with Ken in youth services will be Lauren Bleet, who will handle activities for fifth and sixth grade and junior high students, and Sheryl Alexander Newman, who will concentrate on senior high students. Sheryl will also be completing her field work for the University of Minnesota graduate social work program this year. Joan Levey has joined the staff as a Senior Adult Department worker, assisting the Leisure League and New Horizons programs.

The No. 2 blues hit area schools

All students in the second through eleventh grades in St. Paul public schools will complete the 1978 SRA Achievement Tests and Educational Ability Series over a three-day period between September 25 and 29.

By considering test results for a particular class, a teacher can adjust and individualize his or her teaching methods. Test results assist counselors as they help individual students plan their educations and careers. And principals and administrators use the tests to determine the strengths and weaknesses in instructional programs.

The kids? Well, it gives them a good workout with the ol' No. 2.

Christian Science lecturer Ada P. Mondino of Montevideo, Uruguay, will speak on "Life Without Lack," emphasizing spirituality as a basis of life, at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, September 28 in the auditorium of the 2nd Church of Christ, Scientist, 2315 Highland Pkwy. The lecture is open to the public free of charge.

New little league officers elected

The election of officers for the 1979 baseball season heads the agenda when the Highland Little League holds its next board of directors meeting on Thursday, September 28. The meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m. at the Jewish Community Center, 1375 St. Paul Ave.

Jim O'Connor, current league president, has extended a special invitation to the league's new group of ex-ballplayers to attend the meeting. All others are, of course, also invited to come and cast their votes.

Oriental art exhibition, sale set at St. Kate's

A special exhibition and sale of original Oriental art will be held in the gallery of the College of St. Catherine's art building from 10:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. on Thursday, October 5. A collection of some 500 pieces from Japan, China, India, Tibet, Nepal and Thailand will be exhibited by Marson Ltd. of Baltimore.

The oldest prints date back to the 18th century and include Chinese woodcuts, Indian miniature paintings and other master works by Oriental artists. There will also be a large number of modern pieces by contemporary artists.

A representative from Marson Ltd. will be on hand to answer questions about the artists, their works, and the various artistic techniques employed.

Village Profile

Celia Rosenberger: An artist whose time has come

by Jane Rachner

Time is of the essence. Celia Rosenberger is a case in point.

Not that time is passing her by; at the age of 28 she has already achieved what is probably the most sought after position in the country for a violinist who wishes to devote her professional time to performing chamber music—and to increasing the general public's appreciation of it.

I met Ms. Rosenberger following the St. Paul Chamber Orchestra's opening Capital Series concert at O'Shaughnessy Auditorium on September 16. Taking advantage of the invitation to an on-stage reception which the Friends of the SPCO extended to the opening night audience, I introduced myself, and asked for an interview for the next day.

Though she said she's still living among unopened packing boxes since moving to Highland, she graciously consented. When I stepped into her Mount Curve bungalow, the only unboxed thing in sight was a music stand. On it rested a heavily annotated score. She offered me a choice of ten varieties of herbal tea. I chose "morning sun" and sipped the delightfully fragrant brew while we talked about the orchestra's performance of Transfigured Night. Both were new experiences for me.

"I didn't even know I liked Schoenberg," I confessed, "but it was a moving, yet relaxing experience."

"Maybe that's because Jorge Mester knows how to communicate effectively with images," she said. "At the point where the piece moves into D-minor, he said to us, 'You're on a water-bed'."

Celia Rosenberger set her sights on leaving San Francisco and coming to the Twin Cities to join the Saint Paul Chamber Orchestra five years ago. Her reason? "You have the only full-time professional chamber music ensemble in the country."

If it seems like a long time between Celia's decision and her first SPCO performance, consider that the Deity governing her destiny is no dummy. Knowing that timing is the essence of heavenly music, he timed the orchestra's need for a new member of the first violin section to coincide with the time Celia reached the level of artistic development when she knew she was ready to apply.

But it was a long, long way from September, 1977 (Celia's audition) to May, 1978 (the director's decision), and Celia was getting a bit melancholy before she heard the results.

When the phone call finally came, it was an emotional moment for the artist, the high point in a career that had begun when she was seven years old. That was the year she switched from piano to violin.

Her psychologist parents decided at that point to invest in private tutoring because they realized that their daughter adjusted well to the self-discipline and concentration that musicianship demands.

When the family moved from San Diego to San Francisco, Celia, then age 13, made her first solo performance with an orchestra. From then on she studied chamber music under numerous Bay Area artists. During the two years she attended the University of California at Berkeley, she was concertmistress of the University symphony, played concerti with local orchestras, and began working in professional orchestras.

The morning before Celia left on tour with the SPCO, I had a chance to chat with her again in the hotel lobby where the musicians were gathering to board the bus. I learned that one of the most exciting times of Celia's life was the 3½ years she spent in London where she took violin lessons from the renowned soloist and concert artist Szymon Goldberg.

"That must have cost a fortune," I couldn't help thinking and then said so aloud.

"Not so much as you think," said Celia. "In London, both studying and enjoying music are less expensive than here because the arts are subsidized by the government."

"There's so much choice—every night seven or eight concerts, at least one ballet, and an opera or two. You can attend these performances for under $3.00. Culture is part of the air you breathe."

In 1973, Celia returned to the San Francisco air, where her solo work won numerous awards, among them the Hertz Memorial Fellowship in Musical Performance, the University of California's Concerto Award, Colorado's Pueblo Symphony Mozart Festival Young Artist's Award, and the Eisner Prize for Creative Achievement in the Arts.

Celia also performed with many chamber groups and several orchestras, including the San Francisco Ballet Orchestra and the San Francisco Opera Orchestra. At the same time her special interest in the authentic performance of early music led her to join the Spanish Corte Musical and to start her own baroque trio.

"When you play for a full-time salary, how can playing for pleasure on your evenings off be anything but a busman's holiday?" I asked.

"It's like the difference between writing a term paper for a teacher and creating your own story," Celia said. "For instance, in the Corte Musical, a group which originated from the Studio der Fruhen Musik in Basel, Switzerland, we performed medieval Spanish monophonic music. It was a delightfully creative experience. All we were given was the melody. We wrote the rhythm, decided on the chords or other accompaniment to the melody, even decided what instruments to use."

"Playing in string quartets is always a creative experience. Playing under the direction of a brilliant conductor is a thrill, too, but making your own artistic decisions is a pleasure of another kind."

"What decisions?" I asked.

"Timing, for instance. It's up to you to decide where to relax, where to move forward, where to pick up."

"Of course, the decision I'm interested in is your decision to come to St. Paul," I pressed. "Was there any other reason besides the fact that SPCO is both famous and unique?"

"No other basic reason, but there are other pluses to my being here. Like Dennis Davies, the music director. Ever since he was guest conductor for the Aspen Summer Music Festival orchestra that I played in, I've wanted to play under his direction again."

"Another plus is that my mother grew up on Jefferson Avenue in St. Paul and went to the University of Minnesota, so I have a lot of friends and relatives here."

"To my surprise a friend from California has also turned up, and guess where? In SPCO. The day I went to my first rehearsal, I found out that my stand partner was Robert Zelnick, a musician I'd known in San Francisco."

"And a plus-plus for me is the SPCO's educational program. Teaching has always been an interest of mine. I taught private lessons in California for four years before coming here, and I gave frequent lectures on the baroque style. I also believe in the importance of teaching school children to appreciate and take up the challenge of string instrument mastery."

"One of the aspects of this job that I most look forward to is our educational tours throughout the five-state region."

"Then I'd better let you catch your bus," I said, and the SPCO was off, bringing St. Paul's—nay the country's—best to other parts of the Midwest."

COMMUNITY SERVICES

The center will continue to offer the following community services this fall: Children's Health Clinic — from 9:00 a.m. to noon on the fourth Tuesday of each month, with services provided by the Center, Ramsey County Nursing Services and the St. Paul Bureau of Health; Senior Citizens Health Screenings — from 1:00 to 3:00 p.m. on the first Thursday of each month; Emotions Anonymous — from 8:00 to 10:00 p.m. every Wednesday; Youth Service Bureau; Ramsey County Mental Health — with a full-time outreach psychologist; Information and Referral Services — available by calling 645-0349; and Congregate Dining and Homebound Meals for Senior Citizens — for information call 645-0349.

DANCING FOR SENIORS

The Senior Citizens Harmony Dance Group will meet on Tuesday, October 3 at the center, and will meet at the same times every other Tuesday thereafter. For more information, call Ann McDonald at 645-0349.

COLOR GUARDS

Applications are now being accepted for the Merriam Cadet Color Guards for girls in grades 6-8. For an application, call Joe Albrecht at 645-0349. Practices will be held from 4:00 to 6:30 p.m. on Fridays at the center.

GAME ROOM

The teen game room is no longer located in the center's basement. The games teenagers play are being held in the balcony rooms above the gym. The room will be open from 3:30 to 5:00 p.m. and 7:00 to 9:00 p.m. Mondays through Thursdays (closed Wednesday evenings) and from 3:30 to 5:00 p.m. and 7:00 to 10:00 p.m. on Fridays. The room will be closed Saturday afternoons but will be open from 7:00 to 10:30 p.m. Saturday nights. To find out what grades may use the room on what days, check the list in the stairway leading to the game room.

GYM HOURS

The after school gym hours for teen activities will be from 3:00 to 5:00 p.m. Mondays through Thursdays. The evening hours will be from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. Mondays and Wednesdays (closed Tuesday evenings), 7:00 to 9:00 p.m. on Thursdays and 7:00 to 10:00 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays.

JOBS AND VOLUNTEERS

Teens in grades 7-12 who would like to volunteer one hour a week to the center's after school programs for children in grades K-3 are asked to contact Joe Albrecht at the center.

Teens who would like a weekend or afternoon part-time job may also contact Mike Sparks at the center.

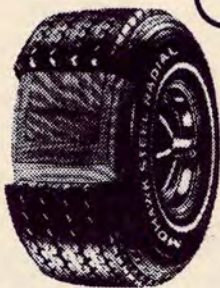

HOBGOBLINS AND HOCKEY

Volunteers in grades 7-12 are needed to create, set up and act in the center's annual Haunted Spook House on Halloween day. All gung-ho ghouls are asked to contact Mike Sparks or Joe Albrecht at the center.

The center is trying to find out if there is sufficient interest to form a floor hockey league. If interested, call Greg at the center (645-0349).

Final preparations in progress for Opera Guild's Candlelight Dinner

Invitations to the Twin Cities Opera Guild Candlelight Dinner were recently mailed out as guild members make final preparations for the 17th annual black tie benefit on Saturday, October 28 at the St. Paul Radisson.

"La Festa Italiana" has been selected as the theme for the 1978 fundraiser, proceeds from which will help finance the Opera Guild's various educational projects throughout the state. The 17th annual Candlelight Dinner will mark the bicentennial of La Scala, Italy's leading opera house.

Following cocktails and the 8:00 p.m. dinner, tenor Dana Talley and his wife, concert pianist Sue Lane Talley, will entertain. Dana Talley, winner of eight national and international operatic competitions, comes to St. Paul directly from New York where he is currently singing the role of Don Jose in Rigoletto for the New York Opera.

Sue Lane Talley has performed in concert throughout Europe and has assisted at numerous opera festivals across the United States.

Anyone who has not yet received an invitation, may receive further information about the Candlelight Dinner by calling Ceil Gesell (291-7936) or Lou Hart (699-0551).

REDUCE HOME TAXES. CUT THE COUNTY BUDGET. ELECT BILL

Essling

RAMSEY COUNTY COMMISSIONER — DISTRICT 4

The County Board is spending us into oblivion. Previously, the county was solvent—as late as 1959 it had no debt. Now it has a debt of $36,000,000.00. This costs taxpayers $10,000.00 per day for debt service payments. The 1979 budget is up over $10,000,000.00. It is now at an unbelievable $140,435,281.00.

Here are some budget items to start the cuts on:

BOARD SALARIES

The County Board meets one day a week. For this, an annual salary is paid. (Example: In her first term to date, Commissioner Diane Ahrens and her aide, M.L. Grahek, received salary payments totalling $105,420.88.) The 1979 budget for such salaries is $275,583.00. This could be cut substantially.

BOARD ALLOWANCES

In addition to salaries, County Board members get extra allowances. (Example: Commissioner Diane Ahrens in her first term to date, received for car allowances $3,113.16; for car parking $1,694.14; for conference and workshop travel $1,143.69, or a total of $5,950.99 plus some for travel paid by the Welfare Department.) The 1979 budget for these extra items is $50,660.00—almost all of which could be eliminated completely.

CONTINGENT FUND

In addition, the 1979 budget sets aside a fund of $1,065,164.00 for unidentified use by the board. This excessive fund is unnecessary, as well as illegal.

CSC scripture series to begin September 27

"The Historical Jesus and the Christ of Faith," the first lecture in a four-part scripture series, will be given at 7:30 p.m. this Wednesday, September 27 in Jeanne d'Arc auditorium at the College of St. Catherine. The talk is sponsored by the college's theology department and its Campus Ministry.

The speaker will be the Rev. John Shea, a teacher of systematic theology at St. Mary of the Lake Seminary in Mundelein, Illinois, and the director of the Doctor of Ministry program for the archdiocese of Chicago.

Persons interested in attending the public lecture are asked to pre-register by contacting the Campus Ministry Office at 690-6724. There will be a registration charge of $2.00. The second lecture in the series will be given on November 9.

It's difficult to coax cooperation out of 16 grade school children on a hot afternoon in early September. Especially if it's the second day of school.

Mrs. Mary Mitchell's class at Longfellow Elementary School, 318 Moore St., made it clear that day that studying a science lesson is not necessarily the best way to spend a summer afternoon.

"I'm waiting for you to open your book, Doris, and then we can go on," said Mrs. Mitchell.

Doris lifted her book from the floor beneath her desk where she had tried to hide it, and opened it to page 73. The lesson continued but it wasn't long before Doris had closed her book and turned a dreamy-eyed gaze window-ward.

"I really wasn't sure what to do with that one," Karen Dux said later. "I don't know how much I can go over the line when Mary's teaching."

An education student at Concordia College, Dux is earning the credits for her senior year while working as a teaching intern in the St. Paul schools.

According to Jerry Shannon, principal at Longfellow, this is the first time the public schools and a college have worked together developing a student teaching program.

"I guess the idea for the whole intern program started five years ago," he said. "We were looking for a course that was more in-depth."

Students in the intern program work in a school as teachers for a full school

Experience hot on their tails, interns blossom in Saint Paul public schools

Overly dramatic perhaps, but experience still stands behind inexperience. The veteran established teacher shadows the youthful intern for a classic "before and after" shot in Mrs. Mary Mitchell's fourth grade class at Longfellow School. To clear up any doubts, Karen Dux is the student intern on the right, Mary Mitchell on the left.

year. Under the traditional student teaching program, the students were in the classroom for only 10 weeks.

The interns go back to the Concordia campus several afternoons a week for a seminar. The frequency of the seminars decreases until the spring quarter when the interns are out of the classroom only one afternoon a week.

There are two St. Paul schools currently involved in the program—Longfellow and Ames elementary schools. Each intern works in both schools with the option of spending six weeks teaching at a Lutheran school in Milwaukee.

Geared toward training teachers for inner-city children, the program was born in 1976 when Concordia received a planning grant from the Bush Foundation. A team of representatives from Concordia and the St. Paul schools worked during the 1976-77 school year developing the intern program.

"First we determined which schools would be involved," said Barb Schoenbeck, one of the administrators of the program at Concordia.

That done, the Concordia staff decided which regular college-level courses, required of all education students at Concordia, could be converted into a series of competencies, each of which must be signed off by a Concordia professor or the intern's supervising teacher after the intern has achieved the competency.

The competencies range from teaching an art unit to attending a seminar on a certain subject. "I like it," said Dux. "I feel like a teacher. I felt I would be more competent at teaching, doing it for a full year and knowing exactly what a teacher does."

Dux said she particularly likes the seminars in combination with the classroom experience.

"We'll cover something in seminar, but if you have problems later you can go back to the instructor for help," she explained. "All my questions are answered."

Mrs. Mitchell also speaks highly of the program, though it increases her teaching burden. She is not only responsible for her own class, but must act as an instructor to Dux as well.

"I work with her and tell her what I expect," she explained. "She makes a lesson plan and then I check it over with her before she does any teaching. You're always conscious of your methodology."

Concordia is very enthusiastic about the program although it has its problems.

Cost is one, since the interns had to return to Concordia for orientation three weeks before the opening of classes.

The time involved for the interns is also a problem. "The interest is up on the campus, but it's a big commitment," said Schoenbeck.

Besides attending seminars, interns take on all the responsibilities of a professional teacher, including night meetings and parent conferences. They also attended the workshops for all teachers in the St. Paul Public Schools the week before school opened.

But if the spirit at Concordia is any indication, the intern program will survive these problems. "Eventually, somewhere down the road, we'd like to see this as our program," said Schoenbeck.

"I think one of the most beautiful things about the intern program is just watching a teacher blossom during the year. At the end of the program, they're real professionals."

The ultimate spectator sport

The confessions of a fantasy football fanatic

by John Ruddy

It's a quarter to six by the time I fit the ripped plastic cover on my hardly overheated typewriter. I've only got 15 minutes to make the meeting, the event, the draft. The moment I've been waiting for all day, all week, in fact, since last January.

I leave the air-conditioned building which houses the Villager offices, and step into the warmth of the late-August sun. Normally I'd bask for a minute in the rays striking my work-paled skin, but there's not much time and it's more than a few miles between Powers' and O'Connell's parking lots.

I'm not concentrating on my driving. I'm not thinking about stop signs or semaphores or little old ladies caught slow-footed in the crosswalks. My mind is on a younger breed, a bigger and faster lot who cross goal lines, not streets. People who score touchdowns don't have to wait for red lights. People who draft people who score touchdowns don't even care. I was thinking about Franco Harris, Roger Staubach and Walter Payton.

I was scrambling. In 10 minutes I'd have to draft a dream team of football superstars. And I wasn't ready.

My car managed to negotiate the Snelling rush hour snarl, and now turned east down a quieter Grand. With the vehicle on semi-automatic pilot, I leafed one-handed through the pages of Street and Smith's Pro Football Annual to the 1977 final statistics. One eye caught the green light at the Green Mill corner, while the other fixed on Tony Dorsett's rookie TD totals.

I drove split-visioned the rest of the way, making mental notes of Payton's, Foreman's and Staubach's 1977 statistics. Blue-chippers for sure. But first round picks are automatic; the next 11 choices are a little tougher.

I decided it was too little, too late. I was paying for my procrastination. There was no way I was going to plan my drafting strategy with this last-minute cramming. I'd just have to rely on my three years' experience in the league.

I turned from the magazine and looked up to see the back door of O'Connell's Restaurant. Somehow I'd made it. I still had five minutes to spare and was tempted to take one last peek at last year's stats. But common sense and nerves prevailed, and I decided to grab an early cocktail.

O'Connell's attracts a respectable clientele. It's a clean bar. But as I swung open the louvered doors to the back room, I was hit with a stinging layer of sweet-stale cigar smoke. The boys were there. Checker, Shooter, Sparky, et al. The Fantasy Football League was beginning its fourth season.

The FFL, O'Connell division, began four autumns ago soon after a 3M advertising executive and occasional O'Connell patron explained the concept of the game to seven of his cronies. The ad man was an FFL veteran, having played the previous year with several of his fellow employees. He sold the dream team idea to his O'Connell cohorts, and so, following a brief installation of commissioners, the city's second FFL operation was underway.

There have been a few changes since the League's humble beginning back in 1975 (the league has expanded from eight teams to 16) but the rules have remained basically the same. Each player (a.k.a. coach, general manager or franchisee) selects 12 current NFL offensive scorers in an annual pre-season draft. The selection order is determined by lottery and reverses itself as the last person drafts in each round. Therefore, in an eight-team league, the order would be one through eight, then eight through one, and so on.

The player fills his roster with two quarterbacks, four running backs, three wide receivers, two tight ends and one kicker. From this dream team, he "starts" seven of his dreamiest (one quarterback, two running backs, two wide receivers, one tight end and his kicker) in a game against another player's magnificent seven. Each player must report his line-up to the league secretary by Thursday of each week.

Points are scored from plays originating from the line of scrimmage only. A Rick Upchurch punt return might call for a few bars of the "Minnesota Rouser," but it doesn't score any points in this league. Each touchdown run or reception is worth six points; a TD pass counts for three points and a field goal or extra point scores as it would in a regular game.

Each week of the NFL season, the total points of one team's starting line-up is compared to the total of an opponent's line-up, and a winner is declared.

How does all this work? Suppose your fantasy team consisted of quarterback Staubach, running backs Chuck Foreman and Payton, wide receivers Lynn Swann and Drew Pearson, tight end Jean Fugett and kicker Erroll Mann. Let's say that on that "any given Sunday," Staubach throws three touchdown passes, one to Pearson; Foreman dives for one; Payton and Fugett don't score; Swann snares a bomb; and Mann becomes your "man" by booting three field goals and two extra points. Just add 'em up. You got nine points from Staubach (three for each TD toss), six apiece from Foreman, Swann and Pearson, and 11 from Mann. That's 38 big ones, and most likely a winner.

The gang gathers at O'Connell's for another round of Fantasy Football

The week-by-week operation is systematically run by an accomplished FFL front office, which determines the schedule, keeps track of records and division standings, sets play-off pairings, and handles the finances.

The finances? Well, there has to be some consolation in a game that makes you watch an entire Green Bay—Tampa game simply because Chester Marcol happens to be your kicker. Actually, the only fee involved is a small donation to purchase prepared roster sheets, pay for trophies and an awards banquet, and reward the Super Bowl winner and runner up with a small stipend. There's also an extra bonus for the top individual scorer; not to the NFL player who did all the work, but to the wise FFL owner who drafted him.

The entry fee is soon forgotten. Cold cash becomes small change in the excitement of this ultimate spectator sport. There's much more to this game called FFL.

There's competition. And you don't even work up a sweat. Unless, of course, you find out on the day of the game that your starting quarterback fried his forearm on the backyard grill and will be out for the rest of the season.

There's strategy. It would behoove the wise FFL franchisee not to start the entire Green Bay backfield against the Pittsburgh Steelers, or draft Mosi Tatupu on the first round.

There's Monday night Football. Cosell's sweet voice signals the end of the weekend tilts and many of the FFL owners like to save at least one of their boys for a little Monday night insurance. Some term it an ace-in-the-hole; others might call it an excuse-to-get-out. Almost every Monday evening, fantasy footballers file into O'Connell's back room, pull up a chair in front of the giant TV screen, and with a beer in one hand and a crying towel in the other, hope against hope that their mediocre tight end will score six touchdowns.

There's frustration. The mental strain of playing fantasy football comes not with losing, but rather with trying to find out who scored that touchdown which put the Colts in front by 7, or which Oakland receiver caught his third TD pass of the game. Most FFL players don't have the patience to wait for the Monday morning paper to tell them that Tony Dorsett didn't score once in the Cowboys' 54-0 rout of the Lions.

Next January, in Miami, Florida, the champions of the National Football League will be slipping oversized Super Bowl rings onto their muscular pinkies. Big deal. Also next January, at O'Connell's, 656 Grand Ave., the FFL champion will be sipping champagne from a silver loving cup. Big Deal? Well, just ask Mark "Ol' Ginth" Ginter, who went all the way in the league's inaugural season. Or ask Sandy O'Brien, who has captured the coveted cup for the past two years. Better yet, ask one of the 14 FFL also-rans who have yet to taste the thrill of victory—to be called the Champion of the Fantasy Football League.

What do ladders, trees, power tools, wet ground and people have in common?

They're all conductors of electricity.

Electricity won't hurt ladders or trees, but every year people are seriously injured because they were careless with electricity outdoors. When you're outside, practice these common sense rules. No child should climb in trees with branches near overhead power lines. Adults on metal ladders should watch out for overhead lines too. Those lines carry enough power to cause serious injury. And avoid using electrical tools outside until things dry up. Water is another excellent conductor of electricity. These and other potential hazards are outlined in NSP's electrical safety booklet. It's free. Just call your local NSP office.

Dudley Riggs comes out from 'Behind the Fridge'

A mishmash of schoolboy hokum and sophisticated wit will be presented in the comedy revue, "Behind the Fridge; or Would You Rather Come Back to My Place?" running Thursday, September 28 through Sunday, October 15 at Dudley Riggs' Etc. Theatre, 1430 Washington Ave. So.

"Behind the Fridge" will visit a disastrous restaurant called the Peach and Frog, conduct an in-depth interview with an unimpressed shepherd at the Nativity and examine the motivations of a one-legged aspiring actor auditioning for the role of Tarzan.

Performances are at 8:00 p.m. Thursday through Sunday with an added 10:30 p.m. show on Fridays and Saturdays. A special rate is available to students with I.D.s at 10:30 p.m. on Fridays, and a dinner/theatre package is available at the 8:00 p.m. shows on Fridays and Saturdays.

For information and reservations, call 377-2120.

Junior Song and Dance finalists from Chimera's Youth Talent Search are, left to right: Jennifer Green, Kaldin MarSchel and Rachel Witenstein. All three will be featured performers in Chimera Theatre's Saturday Children's Film Series program on September 30.

Young performers showcased at Chimera

The Junior Song and Dance finalists from Chimera Theatre's recent Youth Talent Search will be the featured entertainment at the theatre's Saturday Children's Film Series program on September 30. The program will begin at noon in the St. Paul Arts and Science Center, 30 E. 10th St.

The performers, all young girls between the ages of five and six, will include Kaldin MarSchel, a kindergartner at Breck School, who will perform a ballet dance to "Doll on a Music Box." The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arden Mar-

Schel of Minneapolis, Kaldin has taken dance lessons for four years and placed first at the Minnesota State Fair with her ballet solo.

Shirley Temple look-alike Jennifer Green will perform a song and dance routine entitled "Varsity Rag." The reigning Little Miss Minnesota, Jennifer has appeared on Discoverama and on Sweetest Days. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Green of Savage.

The third junior entertainer, first grader Rachel Witenstein, has taken acting and dancing lessons, but will showcase her singing skills during the September 30 program. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Witenstein, 780 Mohican Lane in Mendota Heights.

Also included in the afternoon's entertainment are Spin-A-Win and Bean Bag Bonanza, two games that offer audience members a chance to win toys and cash prizes. Heidi, a film starring Shirley Temple, will also be shown.

Tickets are only $1.00 and are available at the door. For more information, call 227-7058.

CONCERNED ABOUT TAXES?

DID YOU KNOW:

That Ramsey County is going to build a brand new County Nursing Home in 1979 at a cost of over 4 million dollars, even though there are some logical alternatives to that expenditure?

The seven-member County Board voted 6 to 1 in favor of this expenditure. TONY DANNA voted NO!

"I just don't believe the County should be in the Nursing Home business, in competition with private nursing homes. It's a well known fact that government cannot operate facilities such as these as efficiently and economically as private operators. This initial expenditure is just the beginning. Ramsey County taxpayers will be paying for this one for many years to come."

Shearing hearing

Jazz pianist-composer George Shearing and string bassist Andy Simpkins will perform in concert at 8:00 p.m. Saturday, September 30 in Orchestra Hall. For advance reservations, call the Orchestra Hall box office at 371-5656.

Chamber Orchestra to open Baroque Series Sept. 28-30

The Saint Paul Chamber Orchestra will present the first set in a series of five Baroque Series concerts on Thursday, September 28, at Temple Israel (Hennepin at 24th St.); and on Friday and Saturday, September 29-30 at House of Hope Presbyterian Church (Summit at Avon St.). Concert time for all three performances is 8:00 p.m.

SPCO Principal Conductor William McGlaughlin has selected a program which will open with Vivaldi's Sinfonia in G Major, P. 143 "Alla rustica", followed by J.S. Bach's Concerto in A minor for Flute, Violin and Harpsichord, BWV. 1044. Soloists for this composition will be SPCO Principal Flute Julia Bogorad; SPCO Principal Second Violin Thomas Kornacker; and SPCO Harpsichordist Layton James. Following intermission, the SPCO will perform Lully's Overture to "Armide" and Symphony No. 88 in G Major by Haydn.

William McGlaughlin, who served as the SPCO's Exxon/Arts Endowment conductor for three seasons prior to his recent appointment as principal conductor, was previously assistant conductor of the Pittsburgh Symphony Chamber Orchestra. He has guest conducted the Minnesota Orchestra, the Pittsburgh Symphony and the Denver Symphony Orchestra.

Julia Bogorad, who joined the SPCO last season, has participated in the Marlboro Music Festival and has performed at the summer festivals of Temple University at Ambler and Wolf Trap Farm Park for the Performing Arts.

She holds an award for outstanding recital performance from Indiana University, and placed first in the National Music Teachers Association competition.

Thomas Kornacker, now in his second season as principal second violin for the SPCO, served as concertmaster of the Florida Symphony, performed with the Houston Symphony, and was music director of chamber music at the Westpoint Military Academy.

Beginning his tenth season as harpsichordist with the SPCO, Layton James is an organist and conductor as well. He presently conducts and performs in many recitals and chamber ensemble programs in the Twin Cities, performs as harpsichord soloist with local orchestras, and serves as music director of the Presbyterian Church of Stillwater.

"A" seating at all three Baroque Series concerts is already sold out. "B" season tickets for the series, priced at $25, are still available by visiting or writing the SPCO ticket office at 328 Landmark Center, 75 W. 5th St., St. Paul, MN 55102. A discount price of $17.50 is available to students and senior citizens with current ID.

Two lovers, Jean (Toby Wherry) and Miss Julie (Alison Stair Neet), ponder their ill-fated relationship in At Random's production of Strindberg's "Miss Julie." The play, along with Strindberg's "Playing With Fire," will be presented at 8:00 p.m. Thursdays through Saturdays, September 28-30 and October 5-7 at the Walker Church.

Minnesota Orchestra opens subscription season this week

The Minnesota Orchestra will open its 1978-79 subscription season under the baton of music director Stanislaw Skrowaczewski with four performances this week.

The concerts will be presented Wednesday and Friday, September 27 and 29 in Orchestra Hall; at 8:00 p.m. Saturday, September 30 in O'Shaughnessy Auditorium on the campus of the College of St. Catherine; and at an 11:00 a.m. Coffee Concert on Friday, September 29 in Orchestra Hall.

Skrowaczewski, who will celebrate his 19th and final season as music director, will lead the orchestra in Beethoven's Overture to Fidelio, Shostakovich's Symphony No. 1 and Schubert's Symphony No. 9 for the opening concerts.

A fashion show, cosponsored by Jackson Graves and First Federal Savings and Loan Association, will precede the Coffee Concert at 9:50 a.m. in Peavy Plaza. Mary Ann Feldman, Orchestra program annotator, will speak about the coming subscription season.

For advance reservations, call the Orchestra Hall box office at 371-5656, or any Dayton's ticket office.

Strindberg's 'Miss Julie,' 'Fire' highlight At Random's selections

At Random, a new Twin City theatre ensemble, will offer a varied look at one of modern drama's great playwrights when it presents "An Evening of Strindberg," at 8:00 p.m. Thursdays, Fridays, and Saturdays, September 28-30 and October 5-7 at the Walker Church, 3104 16th Ave. S., Mpls. Included in the program is the classic tragedy, Miss Julie, and one of Strindberg's rarely performed comedies, Playing With Fire.

Written in 1888, Miss Julie concerns a young servant and his mistress who seek to escape the stifling milieu which spawned their love. On a festive midsummer's eve, love and hatred, passion and violence become strangely mixed as Strindberg reveals his vision of man and woman.

In Playing With Fire, Strindberg again shows his fascination for the game of love. The play revolves around the very rich—and very bored—members of a family who show their true feelings for each other when a friend comes to visit. Translated by Michael Meyer for the Royal Shakespeare Company, Playing With Fire displays a malicious wit seldom associated with Strindberg's dramatic writing.

The resident At Random company consists of Louise Goetz, Alison Stair Neet, James R. Slowiak, and Toby Wherry. All are former Macalester College students. For "An Evening of Strindberg" they will be joined by Jeremy Best, Mary-Beth Bowers, Spencer Ehrenberg, and Pearl A. Isaacson. Both plays are directed by James R. Slowiak.

Admission to the plays is $3.50. For more information, call 722-2094.

'The Belle of Amherst' opens Sept. 27 at the Edyth Bush

The Belle of Amherst, a one-woman play based on the life of poetess Emily Dickinson, will be performed at Chimera's Edyth Bush Theatre, 690 So. Cleveland Ave., Wednesday through Sunday, September 27 to October 1.

The production stars Twin Cities actress Mikel Clifford, who recently portrayed Lily in Chimera's Freedom of the City. Much of Clifford's theatrical experience has been in California, where she was a co-founder of the Berkeley Shakespeare Festival and a member of The Wing, a professional improvisation group based in San Francisco.

Directed by Warren Frost, The Belle of Amherst combines the poems, letters and background of Emily Dickinson into a one-woman show that humorously and poignantly reveals the life of one of America's most fascinating writers. The play contrasts the reclusive life Miss Dickinson led in her hometown of Amherst, Massachusetts, with incidents from her life and samples of her poetry that reveal her vibrancy and zest for life.

Production times for The Belle of Amherst are 2:00 p.m. on September 27 and 28, 8:00 p.m. on September 29 and 30 and 7:00 p.m. on October 1. For more information or reservations, call 690-4536. Tickets may also be purchased directly through any Donaldson's ticket office.

Glitter City does a retake as the University Club goes Hollywood

Carrying on what has already become a tradition on the Hill since the inaugural production six years ago this fall, the University Club of St. Paul will present its annual Follies Wednesday through Sunday, October 11-15 at the club, 420 Summit Ave.

The theme for this year's amateur extravaganza, "The Follies Goes Hollywood," will transport the University Club and all who cross its threshold to Glitter City, USA, where—tongue-in-cheek with Hollywood's most glamorous friend of the glamorous, the first lady of the whispering gallery, Rona Barrett—segments from some 20 feature flicks will be paraded before the footlights.

Directing the sixth annual benefit effort is two-time Follies farceur Larry Krug, who is making his debut this year in the director's chair. Krug, who offhandedly admits he "sells drugs" for a living, is actually quite properly employed as a territorial manager for Wyeth Laboratories. His backstage background includes production roles for United Fund and Red Cross promotional shows, a stint as creative dramatics teacher at Richfield High, and former special guest spot on 'CCO's Carmen the Nurse Show.

Krug is currently involved full-time in fine tuning a Follies that will feature nearly 60 amateur Twin City entertainers. More than 15,000 hours of volunteer time will have been logged by cast and crew by the time the curtain goes up opening night on what Krug believes is "the biggest and best amateur production of its kind."

Credit for the 1978 Follies script goes to Don Stolz, owner, director and producer of the Old Log Theatre. The musical arrangements are being handled by Ray Komischke, and the choreography by Kay Koch.

A gala premiere is planned for Wednesday, October 11, when Twin City personalities, as well as some surprise out-of-town guests, arrive on the U Club's doorstep beneath the spotlight skies. Thursday, October 12 has been designated Producers' Night, with a wine and cheese cocktail party planned for all patrons, sponsors and advertisers just prior to showtime.

Open to the public, performances will begin at 8:45 p.m. Wednesday, through Saturday, with a Sunday matinee scheduled for 4:45 p.m. Preceding each evening performance, a 6:00 p.m. dinner will be served in the University Club dining room. A social hour will precede the Sunday matinee, followed by a 6:00 p.m. buffet supper.

Tickets for the show are $6.50; $12.00 for the dinner and show. Dancing and cocktails for all guests will follow each performance.

For further information or reservations, call the University Club at 222-1751.

Chinese paintings shown at Museum

Forty-one Chinese fans and album leaves and two hanging scrolls, on display for the first time, are among the more than 50 works in an exhibition currently being shown at the Permanent Collection Gallery of the Minnesota Museum of Art, 305 St. Peter St.

Chinese Painting/The Flawless Line also includes several pieces of Buddhist sculpture, a ceramic model of a Han Dynasty well head, a ceramic mortuary urn from China's Neolithic period and a ceramic jar of Sung Dynasty T'zu Chou ware.

Docent tours of the exhibition as well as the continuing exhibition, Living Japanese Treasures, can be arranged in advance by calling the Permanent Collection Gallery at 224-7431.

Johnson's collages exhibited at Walker

Ray Johnson, artist and founder of the New York Correspondence School and Buddha University, will give a free, public lecture at 3:00 p.m. Saturday, September 30 in Gallery 7 at the Walker Art Center. His talk will open an exhibition of his collages which will run through November 12.

Johnson's collages use silhouettes of well-known individuals ranging from artists, writers and critics to movie stars and politicians. One unifying feature of his work is a simplified image that variously represents a human face, a rabbit or a duck.

Pianist Istomin to perform with Minnesota Orchestra

Pianist Eugene Istomin will appear with the Minnesota Orchestra under the baton of music director Stanislaw Skrowaczewski in four performances next week. Concerts are scheduled for 8:00 p.m. Wednesday and Friday, October 4 and 6 in Orchestra Hall; 8:00 p.m. Saturday, October 7 in O'Shaughnessy Auditorium. An 11:00 a.m. coffee concert will also be performed on Thursday, October 5 in Orchestra Hall.

One of the world's greatest pianists, according to cellist Pablo Casals, Istomin tours annually all over the world, performing with major orchestras and in music festivals. Probably best known as the pianist for the trio which also includes Isaac Stern and Leonard Rose, Istomin has made 24 recordings for Columbia.

The October 5 coffee concert is co-sponsored by First Federal Savings and Jackson Graves. Free coffee and donuts will be served in the lobby of Orchestra Hall beginning at 9:50 a.m. during an informal fashion presentation. Mary Ann

Eugene Istomin

Feldman, the Orchestra's program annotator, will present a pre-concert talk from the stage at 10:30 a.m. followed by the concert at 11:00 a.m.

A wine reception with pianist Eugene Istomin and Maestro Skrowaczewski will be held in O'Shaughnessy's Recital Hall following the Saturday evening concert.

Tickets are available by calling the Orchestra Hall box office at 371-5656, or at Dayton's ticket offices.

Museum of Art opens registration for fall art classes

Registration is now open for art classes which begin October 2 in the Community Gallery of the Minnesota Museum of Art, 30 E. 10th St.

Adult classes, held Monday through Friday, include painting, drawing, watercolor, ceramics, graphic design, photography, calligraphy and "Dance for Non-Dancers," which teaches basic skills in modern dance technique, body conditioning and improvisation.

Children's classes in drawing, painting, pottery, imaginary worlds, creative dance and film animation will be held on Saturday mornings. A ceramics class for teenagers will also be offered Tuesday afternoons.

For more information on any of the courses, call the museum's Education Department at 227-7613 during regular office hours.

Actors Theatre sets the stage for its second season

Actors Theatre of St. Paul will draw the curtain on its second season with an expanded repertoire of plays and an increased performance schedule. According to Artistic Director Michael Andrew Miner, Actors Theatre's second season will be comprised of six plays in a subscription series running from November 2, 1978 to April 29, 1979.

Actors Theatre will also produce a musical for children, Aurand Harriss' Androcles and the Lion, during the December holiday season. Last year, in an abbreviated inaugural season, the theatre produced four plays.

The first of the six 1978-79 subscription offerings will be Jean Anouilh's Waltz of the Treaders, running from November 2-25. James J. Lawless, featured in last season's The Farm, joins the Actors Theatre resident company in the first of three roles this season as General St. Pe, the central character in Waltz.

Camille Gifford will direct the company in its second production, Niccolo Machiavelli's The Mandrake, which runs from December 7 through January 6. The classic Italian comedy is being specially adapted for the Actors Theatre resident company.

An Irish drama, The Iron Harp by Joseph O'Connor, will be staged as the third play of the 1978-79 season. Originally produced at the Guilford Repertory Theatre in Ireland, The Iron Harp deals with a blinded IRA officer's struggle to reconcile loyalty to friends with duty to country. The play will be performed January 11 through February 3.

A new play, Custer by Robert E. Ingham, opens February 8 and runs through March 3. George C. White, founder and president of the O'Neill Theatre Center, will guest direct Custer, which offers a startling alternative view of the events surrounding the Battle of the Little Big Horn. White and Ingham are currently collaborating on a revised script for the Actors Theatre production.

John Dos Passos' U.S.A. will be staged as Actors Theatre's fifth production of the season and then tour for three weeks throughout Minnesota and parts of Wisconsin and North Dakota. Adapted for the stage by Dos Passos from his trilogy of the same title, U.S.A. plays mainstage from March 8-31 with touring engagements scheduled through April 22.

The final production of the season will be William Gibson's Two for the Seesaw. Resident company members Mari Rovang and James Harris will be featured as Gittel and Jerry, while the rest of the ensemble hits the road with U.S.A. Seesaw opens on April 5 and runs through April 29.

"This season should be a very exciting year of growth for Actors Theatre," Miner said. "We got off to a solid start last year, but this season represents even greater challenges."

"The second season plays are widely varied in style. That poses artistic challenges to the company as an ensemble, and casting allows everyone to stretch their muscles individually as well."

In response to a large number of patron requests, Actors Theatre has scheduled matinee performances for the third Thursday of each production. The theatre will continue to offer interpreted performances for the deaf on the second Sunday of each performance run.

All productions will be staged in the Foley Theatre on the campus of the College of St. Thomas. Performance times are Thursdays and Fridays at 8:00 p.m., Saturdays at 5:15 and 9:15 p.m., and Sundays at 7:00 p.m.

For subscription or single ticket information, contact the Actors Theatre box office at 698-5559.

Fear-struck disco ducks get feet wet

Do you have the urge to try disco dancing, but not the nerve?

Although the Merriam Park Library makes no claims about having a neurologist on its staff, the branch will offer a little confidence during a free, three-week mini-course on Disco Basics from 7:00 to 7:45 p.m. Mondays, October 16, 23 and 30 at the library, 1831 Marshall Ave.

To register, call 645-3483.

WHY O'CONNELL'S "O'REGULARS" WOULDN'T GO ANYPLACE ELSE ON SATURDAY NIGHT.

(or on Monday night or on Tuesday or . . .)

They're spoiled. And no wonder. No other bar or restaurant makes the most of your night everyday of the week.

On Mondays, friendly fans gather to toast to the coming week and watch football on the big-as-life screen.

Mellow Dan Perry smooths the edges out of Tuesdays, performing from 9:00 p.m. to 1:00 a.m. in the cozy back room, and two Ft. Lauderdale imports, John and Sue Mann, bring southern swing north playing sweet Florida folk from Wednesday through Saturday.

And owners Steve and Bill O'Connell aren't just feeding you blarney when they brag about their excellent food. Twenty years of satisfied o'regulars would have to agree.

So, stop in and spend a night at O'Connell's. You might want to stay a whole week. Sorry, closed on Sundays.

French flicks featured in film series at Macalester

A series of 11 French films, ranging from the romantic to the surreal, will be shown at 7:30 and 10:00 p.m. on Wednesdays beginning this week in Olin Hall Auditorium at Macalester College.

The series, sponsored by the Macalester French Department, includes films by renowned directors such as Jean Renoir, Francois Truffaut, Jean-Jaques Annaud and Luis Bunuel.

The first two films in the series, both examples of romantic realism, are: Les Enfants du Paradis (The Children of Paradise) at 7:30 p.m. only on September 27; and Les Jeux Interdits (The Forbidden Games) on October 4.

The next five films have a feminist slant, with women playing the principal roles. La Religieuse (The Nun) will be shown on October 11, followed by the Marquise d'O (The Marquise of O) on October 18; L'Histoire d'Adele H. (The Story of Adele Hugo) on November 1; and La Vieille Dame Indigne (The Shameless Old Lady) on November 8. The last of the feminist films, One Sings the Other Doesn't, will be shown on November 15.

Black and White in Color, a 1977 Academy Award-winning film by Jean Jaques Annaud, will be shown on November 29, and Daguerrotypes, a documentary of life in the Paris streets, will be shown on December 6. The series ends on a surrealist note with La Voie Lactee (The Milky Way) on December 13.

All of the films are in French with English subtitles. Admission to the films is $1.50 at the door; $1.00 for students and members of the Alliance Francaise.

Tapestry, stonewear featured in Osborne Gallery exhibition

The Osborne Gallery will present an exhibit and sale of stonewear sculpture by Emmy Lu Lewis and contemporary tapestries by Barbara Sykes from Friday, October 13 through Tuesday, October 31 at the gallery, 1074 Grand Ave.

Lewis, who has studied with Gail Kristenson and at the St. Paul Gallery and School of Art, will be showing more than 20 of her recent slab-built sculptures in an exhibition entitled, "Allegories in Stonewear."

Lewis achieves her thought-provoking and sometimes humorous clay abstractions by molding upward forms and lines from rolled out slabs. This is the St. Paul artist's second exhibition at the Osborne Gallery.

Sykes, a resident of Northfield, Minnesota, has been involved with fabrics and textiles most of her life.

She has a background in fashion design, has studied weaving—from ancient warp-weighted methods and multi-harness weaving to the most contemporary tapestry techniques—and has taught a number of weaving classes and workshops in her Northfield studio.

Works by both artists will be exhibited during the Osborne's regular gallery hours: 9:00 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Mondays through Fridays, and 9:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. Saturdays.

Wolverines, Rio Nido to perform benefit concert Oct. 7

A benefit concert, sponsored by the Loring Nicollet-Bethlehem Community Centers, will feature the Wolverine classic Jazz Orchestra and the Rio Nido Trio at 8:00 p.m. Saturday, October 7 in Orchestra Hall.

Ticket prices range from $4.00 to $7.50 and may be purchased at all Dayton's stores, Orchestra Hall (371-5656) or the Loring Nicollet-Bethlehem Community Centers office (823-6214).

Unity Church sets Jules Feiffer talk

Jules Feiffer, whose cartoons appear regularly in more than 100 newspapers around the world, will speak on "how not to talk to each other" at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, October 5 at Unity Church-Unitarian, 732 Holly Ave.

Registration fee is $3.00; $2.00 for students and senior citizens. Mail your registration to Unity Church, 732 Holly Ave., St. Paul, MN 55104, by September 30. For more information, call 226-1056.

WHERE TO GO & DO WHAT TO

The Villager's Guide to Food, Fun & Entertainment

Hysterical, yes. But whether Honor (Becci Dawson) is ecstatic or choleric, we wouldn't place a bet either way. Leeds (Glenn A. Cox) takes it all in stride though, in TRP's area premiere of "The Wager."

TRP opens its 26th season with Medoff's 'The Wager'

To open its 26th season in Minneapolis, Theatre in the Round Players will present the area premiere of The Wager by Mark Medoff at 8:00 p.m. Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays through October 15 at the theater, 245 Cedar Ave.

Directed by Carolyn Levy, The Wager juxtaposes comedy and fear. The bet itself is simple enough, but the four characters involved make it a play of psychological complexity and plot perplexity.

Cast members include Glenn A. Cox as Leeds, Michael Fink as Ward, Becci Dawson as Honor, and John Schumacher as Ron.

Tickets are $4.00; $3.00 for students and senior citizens except on Saturdays. Reservations are available at all Dayton's and Donaldson's ticket offices or by calling the TRP box office at 336-9123.

'Candida' opens season for Park Square Theatre

Park Square Theatre, located at the corner of 6th and Sibley St. in St. Paul, has opened its fifth season with George Bernard Shaw's Candida, the story of the love of Marchbanks, an 18-year-old poet, for Candida, the parson's wife.

Directed by Philip Morton, the play will be staged at 8:00 p.m. Thursdays through Saturdays, now through October 21. Tickets are $2.75 to $3.50 for students; $3.00 to $4.00 for adults, depending on the night.

On Thursdays, dinner at Fiorito's and the theater ticket can be purchased together at a discount price.

For reservations, call the Park Square Theatre at 291-7005.

Ragtime and jazz swing into Walker

Ragtime and old-jazz pianist Butch Thompson will be featured in a concert presented by the West Bank School of Music at 8:00 p.m. Sunday, October 1 at the Walker Church, 3104 16th Ave. So.

Also on the program will be jazz and swing music from the '30s and '40s performed by Rebecca Hanson, Terry Gardner and John Anderson.

Tickets are $2.50. For more information, call 722-2094.

APPLE kicks-off with Coffman party

Two groups, Shadowfox and Magenta, will perform at a kickoff party for the Association for the Preservation and Promotion of Live Entertainment (APPLE) at 7:30 p.m. Friday, September 29 in Coffman Memorial Union at the University of Minnesota. Tickets are $2.25.

APPLE is a new organization that was formed to help University entertainers get bookings, and bring local and national entertainers to campus.

National youth conference set at Radisson Hotel Sept. 27-30

The third annual youth conference of the National Community Action Youth Organization will be held Wednesday through Saturday, September 27-30 at the St. Paul Radisson Hotel.

Sponsored locally by Ramsey Action Programs (RAP), the four-day conference will bring together youth and adult representatives of organizations from throughout the nation.

The conference will begin with registration at noon on Wednesday and will continue with panel discussions and workshops on youth programs and issues from 8:00 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. on Thursday, 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. on Friday, and 8:30 to 11:45 a.m. on Saturday.

Grace Olivarez, director of the Community Services Administration (CSA), will be the featured speaker at 12:30 p.m. on Wednesday. Olivarez was named by President Carter in 1977 to head CSA, the only federal agency devoted solely to combatting poverty.

Registration for any of the panel discussions and workshops will be open throughout the conference. For more information, call Lu Lopez, conference coordinator, at RAP (227-8954).

Investment broker conducts seminar

An adult education course on investing is being offered from 7:00 to 9:00 p.m. Mondays, now through December 11 at Highland Park Junior High, 975 So. Snelling Ave.

Conducted by Davis B. Sloane, an investment broker with Paine, Webber, Jackson and Curtis, Inc., the course includes an overview of various investment vehicles (stocks, bonds and mutual funds) and will touch lightly on portfolio management.

Although the first session was held last Monday, registration for the remaining sessions can still be made at the school or by calling Sloane at 222-1511.

Red Robin Cleaners' owner Fred Ohno added 1200 square feet, one to his address, and carried the capital across the street in his recent move from 2014 to 2015 Ford Pkwy. Exhibition of Russian art to draw series of related events downtown

A unique exhibition of 19th century Russian art—the first of its kind in this country—will open on October 7 in downtown Saint Paul's Landmark Center.

"The Art of Russia: 1800-1850" features more than 150 works of art lent by the Ministry of Culture of the U.S.S.R. from the Russian State Museum and the Hermitage in Leningrad and the Tretyakov Gallery in Moscow. Exhibition hours will run from 10:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. on Tuesdays, Wednesdays, Fridays and Saturdays; from 10:00 a.m. to 8:00 p.m. on Thursdays, and from noon to 6:00 p.m. on Sundays through December 6.

Part of the University of Minnesota Gallery's Festival of Russian Arts, the exhibition is a focal point for a series of lectures, theater productions, music and dance performances, classes and films scheduled for next month.

The Minnesota Opera Company will perform Sergei Prokofiev's The Love for Three Oranges (sung in English) at 8:00 p.m. October 13, 14, 20 and 22 at O'Shaughnessy Auditorium on the campus of the College of St. Catherine.

Alexander Nevsky, a new, uncut Russian film directed by Sergei Eisenstein with music by Sergei Prokofiev, will be shown by the Schubert Club at 8:00 p.m. October 20 and 21 at the Landmark Center.

The Schubert Club will also present "Melodeclamation," a recitation of Russian poetry by Edith Joagana Freeman and a concert by pianist Joann Freeman Shwayder at 3:00 p.m. October 22 at the Landmark Center.

Edouard Forner will conduct a Saint Paul Civic Symphony concert of 19th century Russian music at 3:00 p.m. November 5 at the Landmark Center to close out the schedule of events.

Small fries offered art classes at 'U'

The University of Minnesota will offer art classes to children ages 5-10 from 10:00 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. on Saturdays, beginning September 30.

The fee for the ten-week program, which will explore composition, design, color and texture in many media, is $20. To register, call the University's Institute of Child Development at 373-9851 or 373-2390.

CSC Parents' Weekend set

The College of St. Catherine will hold its annual Parents' Weekend this Friday through Sunday, September 29, 30 and October 1.

Friday evening has been set aside for private get-togethers between parents and their daughters. Registration for all planned activities will begin at 10:30 a.m. on Saturday in St. Joseph Hall.

At 11:30 a.m. that day, parents and students will meet with faculty members at an informal reception in St. Joseph Hall, which will be followed by a 12:30 p.m. luncheon in the main dining room.

Luncheon speakers will include sister Alberta Huber, president of the college, and student committee chairpersons Linda Northup and Mary Feldman.

The highlight of the weekend will be a dinner at 7:15 p.m. on Saturday at the St. Paul Radisson Hotel, featuring a performance by the college's Chamber Singers.

An 11:00 a.m. mass on Sunday in Our Lady of Victory chapel will be followed by brunch in St. Joseph Hall.

Renewal slated for parents of disabled

An evening of renewal for parents of handicapped children will be held Thursday, October 12 at Mary Hill Retreat House, 260 Summit Ave. Registration begins at 5:30 p.m., dinner at 6:00 and the first conference at 7:00 p.m.

Father William O'Neill will be the retreat master. The charge is $6.00 per person. For reservations or more information, call Jan Mischke (698-8143 or 699-1462) or Mary Beckfeld (941-2739).

Cadet corps seeks drum and buglers

The Blue Knights' Cadets Drum and Bugle Corps has openings for boys and girls ages 10-14 to play either drum or bugle. There are also positions open for girls on the color guard. No experience is necessary and uniforms and instruments will be furnished.

The Blue Knights' Cadets participate in several parades annually, and will enter drum corps competition come spring and summer. The color guard will compete on the North Star Circuit from January through March.

Practice is held from 6:30 to 8:45 p.m. Mondays at St. John's School, 5th and Forest St. For more information, call Kathy at 698-6708.

Eric Urness, son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Urness of 282 Warwick Ave., was presented with the Eagle Scout Award, scouting's highest honor, at a recent ceremony sponsored by Immanuel Lutheran Church's Troop 90. A junior at Highland Park Senior High, Eric served as King Frost XXX in the 1978 Winter Carnival's Junior Royalty.

Derham's mothers and daughters to brunch at the Prom

Derham Hall High School will hold its annual Mother and Daughter Brunch on Saturday, October 7 at the Prom Center, 1190 University Ave.

An 11:00 a.m. social hour will be followed by the brunch at 11:45 a.m. Entertainment will be provided by the Symphoknolls, a 30-member Twin City choral group.

Five Macalester College faculty members were recently named DeWitt Wallace Professors by John B. Davis, president of the college. The professorships, named after and funded by the founder of Reader's Digest, entitles the faculty members to an extra annual stipend to be used to further their teaching abilities. The five newly designated D.W. Wallace Professors shown above are, from left to right: Patricia Kane, 394 Macalester Ave., chair of the English department; James Spradley, 1980 Goodrich Ave., anthropology professor; President Davis; Karl Sandberg, chair of the linguistics department; Emil Slowinski, 806 Bachelor Ave., chemistry professor; and Scott Nobles, 1634 Portland Ave., speech communication professor.

Kid's flicks shown at Merriam Branch

The Merriam Park Branch Library will present a series of four free children's movies at 2:00 p.m. on Saturdays, beginning October 7 with The Fur Coat Club.

The schedule continues with Peewee's Pianola, October 14; Captain Noah and His Floating Zoo, October 21; and Ghosts and Ghouls, October 28. The popcorn wagon will be at all showings, selling popcorn for 5 cents a bag.

Judges comb nominations for state's foremost entrepreneurs

The St. Paul Area Chamber of Commerce will host the third annual Minnesota Business Hall of Fame at an awards luncheon and induction ceremony at 11:00 a.m. Wednesday, October 18 at the Radisson Saint Paul Hotel, 11 E. Kellogg Blvd.

An independent panel of judges is presently combing a list of nearly 30 nominees in search of the four entrepreneurs who have achieved the most success in business and contributed the most to the development of their community and society in general.

Faculty representatives and students from 21 colleges and universities in Minnesota have been invited to attend the luncheon, which focuses on the importance of the free enterprise system among the public at large, and specifically among students and educators.

Tickets for the luncheon are available at $10 by calling the Chamber office at 222-5561.

Austrian influence examined in course at Volksfest Haus

A four-week course entitled "Austria: Its Influence on Western Culture" will be offered at the Volksfest Haus, 301 Summit Ave., beginning Tuesday, October 24. Sponsored by the Center for Austrian Studies and Continuing Education for Women at the University of Minnesota, the class will meet from 7:00 to 9:00 p.m. on consecutive Tuesdays through November 14.

The four sessions will feature addresses by authorities on Austria and its culture who will discuss the Central European country's unique contributions to the music, art and architecture of the Western world.

The lecturers will include: Dr. William E. Wright, director of the Center for Austrian Studies and professor of modern European and Austrian History at the U of M; Dr. Fritz Cocron, director of the Austrian Cultural Institute in New York; Barbara Kaerwer, art historian and former senior lecturer at the Minneapolis Institute of Art; and Mary Ann Feldman, program annotator for the Minnesota Orchestra and coordinator of the Metropolitan Opera Upper Midwest Festival.

Fee for the course is $32; free to high school and full-time college students. For further information, call Irma Wachtler at 698-5386.

Groveland's garage sale bolstered by generous merchants

The Groveland Community Education Department will hold a garage sale from 9:00 to 4:00 p.m. Saturday, September 30 at 1765 Goodrich Ave.

Area merchants who have donated items to be sold include Spike's Hardware, Regina's Candy, The Dutch Bakery, King's Pharmacy, Widmer's Super Market, Johnson Florists, Abbott Paint Company, Macalester Park Book Store, Macalester Picture Framing Company, St. Patrick's Guild, McDonald's and the Hungry Mind Book Store.

Proceeds from the sale will go toward the purchase of classroom equipment, books and children's records for use in Groveland's Early Childhood and Family Education programs.

Free cancer exams set at Family Tree

A community cancer health screening project, co-sponsored by the Family Tree and the American Cancer Society, will be held on Thursday, October 12 at the Family Tree, 1599 Selby Ave.

LPNs and physicians will be on hand from 10:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. that day to give free pap smears, breast exams and blood pressure checks. There will also be demonstrations on self breast exams and an opportunity for discussion concerning the menopausal years.

Subsequent reports are not due until October 31 and January 31... not too useful as a guide, since the election will be history before we could even submit them to you. I'm told only two candidates in the whole legislature, just one besides Cohen, passed up the public payout—to avoid spending limitations. Opponent John Drew has not taken the public funds either. But they tell me he's going to stay within $7500 so as to make contributions to his campaign a legitimate tax deduction.

I'll let the case, if there is one, rest on the figures themselves. But if you run into Representative Richard Cohen of 63-B, you might ask him why he—an incumbent yet—needed 65% more in receipts by August 26, than anyone else in this area could even dream of spending by November 7!

ODDS AND ENDS FROM HERE AND THERE—

I don't see the Governor all that often but last week I happened to see and hear him twice in one day. First, at a 7:00 a.m. breakfast at Adath Israel Synagogue, which I attended at the invitation of Rabbi Asher Zeilgold. The theme of the event was "Education—More than Information; Teaching Morality for Humanity." It was a kick-off for an effort to get more "God" into our education for life. As Rabbi Moshe Feller said, "Separation of Church and State, yes, definitely. But not separation of State from God." Councilman Len Levine introduced Governor Perpich at this early ayem event.

Second, I saw the Guv again at a very well-attended testimonial luncheon for Doug and Dotty Kelm at the St. Paul Athletic Club. Len Levine was there, too, wearing his other hat... Doug Kelm's successor as Chairman of the MTC. Doug, who—as you know—is departing the local scene in favor of a six-state regional assignment for the Federal Department of Transportation, told us what he thought of Short People. (It's a vile song, he said, and should really be banned from the air waves!)

Do you have some thoughts or questions on the People-Mover? Then hie on over to Public workshop #6 (Hm, I missed the first five) at 7 p.m. Thursday (the 28th) to Room C-15, St. Paul Civic Center. Apparently the crowds aren't big enough to use the main arena! I understand a model and display are on view now somewhere in the Skyway System. That's all I know... hope you can find it.

Have you joined the Southwest Area District Council as yet? Dues are voluntary, but oh, so helpful. Family membership is $5, individual, $3; and senior citizen rate, $1. Call Gayle Summers at 698-7973 for detailed info... like where to send the dough. We hope to be telling you more about the council's activities in the very near future.

What's what in the Highland Shopping Center? Well, several leases have been signed. You, of course, knew that Red Robin Cleaners took over what was the Highland Cleaners location, but Village Shoe Service stays. Into the old Red Robin site there'll be an unusual specialty shop... to be known as "R. Sykes." Rick Meyerberg is leaving Donaldson's shortly to provide us with the most in "gourmet cookery." Bob Satterstrom who has operated the Nokomis Variety on 34th Avenue South in Minneapolis expects to open a large new store (10,000 square feet) including a hardware department, in the east end of what used to be the Red Owl Store. Don't know what he plans to call it, as yet. I think I know what's going into the Hove's site, but official word on that will have to wait 'til next time. The Baskin-Robbins franchise, to be located between Fanny Farmer and Naturalizer Shoes, is not expected to be occupied before January 1—which could be a rather cold day for ice cream. But Maury at Maury's Emporium would tell you ice cream is a cool item for your menu any day of the year.

So you want some pilfered parting punchlines, do you? Well, how about this election year special: "I wouldn't call him a liar. Let's just say he lives on the wrong side of the facts."

Well, my space has its limits, even if I don't. Hasta la vista!

West End AA and Alanon set meeting

The West End Alcoholics Anonymous and West End Alanon will celebrate their fourth anniversary with a meeting at 8:30 p.m. Friday, October 6 at St. James Church, Randolph and View St.

Following the meeting, which will feature prominent A.A. and Alanon speakers, a buffet luncheon will be served. The public is invited.

Eliot's odyssey

Dr. Joy Lee King, a faculty member at the College of St. Thomas and the University of Minnesota, will give a six-lecture series on "T.S. Eliot—An Odyssey from Agnosticism to Christianity" from 1:00 to 3:00 p.m. Mondays through October 30 in the Kirk Parlour at House of Hope Presbyterian Church.

For reservations, call 227-6311. A nursery will be available on request.
