The College of St. Catherine Film Series

Final confirmation has now been given on the following films which comprise our film season. As you will note, the season is varied. It represents not only the best American films, but the best of foreign films as well. It ranges from "High Camp" to social commentary.

October 8—"The National Student Association Film Winners and the Critic." A program of new voices in American cinema.

November 19—Ingmar Bergman's "Sawdust and Tinsel" (The Naked Night). One of

Bergman's "Dark" films. December 10—W.C. Fields' "The Bank Dick."

January 14—Marcel Camus' "Black Orpheus." Considered one of the most beautiful films ever made.

February 25—A program of West Coast and local underground cinema. The best of the new wave film makers. Includes "Scorpio Rising" and "The Diggers."

March 25—The American Classics, "Frankenstein" and "The Bride of Frankenstein." Not only will the fans of the horror movies have a field day. April 29—Truffaut's "Fahrenheit 451." Orwellian overtones combine with science fiction to produce a "it-can't-happen-here, but-it-could" film experience.

All films will be shown at 8 p.m. in Jeanne D'Arc Auditorium at the College of St. Catherine, Randolph at Cleveland Avenue.

HAIR MAGIC

PROBLEM HAIR

We don't think it is correct to apply that term only to certain dull or unmanageable hair. All hair is really problem hair. If it's naturally luxurious and full of sheen it's beauty can be muted or disappear entirely if it's mistreated. No matter what condition your hair is in now it will receive special gentle care in our hands. If it's stiff, dry, brittle or damaged in some other way we'll treat it to bring back the lively loveliness it ought to have. If you've got the prettiest hair in town we'll keep it that way.

ARE YOU CONFUSED ENOUGH TO BE REALLY READY FOR BEAUTY ADVICE?

It must be confusing indeed for a non-professional to sort out the beauty advice which suits her needs best. We're professionals and sometimes reading one expert saying put it on, and another saying take it off tempts us to forget the whole thing and change to some nice comparatively uncomplicated business like building bridges or flying rockets to the moon. But to date we're still with you and still anxious to be helpful. If you are not yet a regular patron in our salon you may find it worth your while to visit us a few times and find out for yourself why we have such a fine reputation.

TO MAKE YOUR HANDS LOOK YOUNGER

If your hands look old, dull, coarse, or darkened, red or weathered, or detergent-damaged . . . you need a corrective hand cream that can undo all those ravages. AND a corrective manicure every week to go with the cream. We'd like to have you try the two 'go-togethers' at our salon.

There aren't too many salon artists who do really and truly give good manicures but we are fortunate to have a large staff of experts on the care of hands as well as nails. We welcome your patronage even tho it may be for manicures only.

Jewish Women Begin Second Year Drew School Instruction Program

Today the Supplementary Instruction Program (SIP) at Drew School begins its second year with orientation programs for volunteers from the St. Paul Council of Jewish Women and parent aides—new to the program this year. Ruth Dunsmore, SLD remedial reading specialist, will be teacher-consultant for the project. Its purpose: to give the instructional attention needed by approximately four percent of students (national estimate) who are deficient in reading and language skills.

Evaluation from the Council and Drew Principal Warren Panushka indicates that most participating children averaged 1.2 years' gain in reading achievement in last year's SIP program. Some gained as much as 2.3 years in standard reading evaluation tests. Improvement in social adjustment were also observed.

The children "...got into less trouble in the classroom," said Panushka, and "...they had more self-assurance. They were not afraid to tackle problems."

Further inferences of the program's impact may be made statistically. SLD teachers in St. Paul usually carry a case load of 20 pupils per day. At Drew last year about 48 pupils per day were served by one SLD teacher-consultant with substantial paraprofessional volunteer help.

Both Panushka and Tom Starr, special education reading supervisor, feel that the 1:1 relationship typical of the SIP program is of primary importance, while the specific instructional materials used are a secondary factor. Without volunteer assistance, the 1:1 relationship could not be achieved at realistic cost: last year 59 women volunteers of the council, ranging in age from the early 20's through the 60's, put in 2,410 hours of volunteer service to the program.

Miss Dunsmore's first official task in the project has been to coordinate the orientation sessions for aides and volunteers, which begins today. Dr. Douglas Wiseman, supervisor of program development and evaluation, special education department, will explore with the group "the role of the paraprofessional in overcoming pupils' learning disabilities." Tomorrow a panel of specialists—a psychologist, speech-therapist, and others will review typical case studies with the group.

In addition to coordinating the orientation of volunteers, Miss Dunsmore, as teacher-consultant for the SIP, will administer diagnostic tests to identify pupils who will participate in the program and, later, prescribe individualized instruction programs for them which the aides and volunteers will carry through in tutorial sessions.

The St. Paul Council of Jewish Women considers this year to mark the beginning of a new phase in the Supplementary Instruction Program. Actually, they will begin a slow withdrawal from the program to be completed after the third year. By that time, the council anticipates it will be able to concentrate on getting similar programs started in other schools.

About 50 percent of the council's volunteers gained experience in last year's program. The rest are new. Also new are five parent aides—the vanguard of those who will assume the tutorial aide roles pioneered at Drew school by the St. Paul Council of Jewish Women.

ST. PAUL PUBLIC SCHOOLS ADULT EDUCATION PROGRAMS

Early registration is urged for the St. Paul Public Schools adult education program, as classes start September 30 at seven centers throughout the city. Registrations may be made by mail, or by phone or in person between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m. The local directors to contact are L. G. Heinze, Central High School; V. Johnson, Como Park Junior High School; G. L. Cronquist, Harding High School; V. A. Wittgenstein, Hazel Park Junior High School; K. L. Hamann, Highland Park Junior High School; K. A. Clausen, Humboldt High School; and V. J.

Iverson, Johnson High School.

Daytime classes for any type of educational need can also be arranged if ten or more individuals are interested. Through arrangement with the adult education office of the St. Paul Public Schools, such daytime classes can be held in elementary schools, clubs, churches, libraries, and recreational centers. Last year 40 such classes were arranged outside regularly scheduled center programs.

A nominal fee, payable at the first class meeting, is determined by the subject and the number of class hours. Some classes are free. Persons at age 65 or older may enroll for half of the listed class fee if they obtain a reduced fee permit. Such permits are issued at the adult education centers or at the adult education office, 757 City Hall and Court House, St. Paul.

Each evening class meets once per week, 7-9 p.m. Most classes run for ten weeks, providing 20 hours of instruction. Several courses are offered in each of the areas of clothing, foods, home decorative arts and crafts, languages, literature, math, personal improvement, physical fitness and swimming.

Popular courses of general interest include classroom instruction for driver education, how to buy a home, income tax and record procedures, photography, Goren bridge (beginning and advanced) and many others.

Among new courses are basic cookery for new cooks, understanding your child's behavior, home appliance repairs, studies in the classics, stocks and bonds, nature hobbies, and others.

NEW APPROACH TO RELIGIOUS CLASSES IN ST. PAUL AREA

Jim Adams, St. Paul Jaycee president, stated today that the initial background phase of the high school dropout study which began last July 13, 1968, is now nearing completion. When asked what the Jaycees had found out so far, Adams made the following comment:

We can say first of all that we can be proud of the fact that our state ranks among the highest in terms of percent of students completing high school. Nevertheless, each year approximately 9000 students in Minnesota drop out before completing high school. While the percentage of students dropping out is high in rural areas, the metropolitan areas account for the majority in terms of numbers. The reasons why the students leave school are varied and include among others immaturity, pregnancy, home problems or just a plain lack of interest.

Concerning helping dropouts to complete their education, several public and private organizations or institutions are

Cretin Parents Tea and Smoker

The new Cretin High School Parents Association will meet faculty members at the October 2nd afternoon Mother's tea and evening Dad's "smoker".

The Mother's tea will honor freshmen mothers with sophomore mothers under the co-chairmanship of Mrs. Mary Friedlander and Mrs. Val Paranto.

Mrs. James V. Halligan is the Vice President of the recently organized Parents Association which replaces the former Mother's Club and Dad's organization at the junior ROTC Christian Brothers operated high school.

Brother Theodore, F.S.C., Principal will introduce faculty members at both meetings. The school varsity football team will also be introduced at the Dad's smoker meeting. Mrs. James V. Halligan is Vice President of the Cretin Parent's Association and Robert L. Runyon is President.

available. For example, here in St. Paul we have our excellent Vocational School which offers counseling, training and placement; the St. Paul Guidance and Occupational Center; the St. Paul Evening High School; the Youth Opportunity Center; and The Neighborhood Youth Corps Out Of School Youth Program which is sponsored by the Jewish Vocational Service. The key to the problem, however, is the dropout himself. He has to want to stay in school or if he has already dropped out, he must have the desire and confidence to return. Certainly counseling and personal contact are important in this regard. I believe the St. Paul Jaycees will have more to say on this particular aspect later.

INITIAL FINDINGS OF JAYCEE DROPOUT STUDY REPORTED

"Cooperative Centers" is the watchword this year in the St. Paul area Religious Released-Time program. This would mean that the children being released from a given school would go to the closest church regardless of denomination, and there be assigned to religious instruction classes as sponsored by their own group. Each group has its own curriculum with all teachers adhering to the particular course of study as agreed on by their group.

Religious Education on a Released-Time basis in the public schools grew out of a conviction of many parents that training in a religious faith should be an integral part of the child's total education. Released-Time Religious Instruction is a privilege granted by law under which children are excused from public school up to three hours each week during regular school session at the request of their parents in order to receive religious education.

Those involved feel that it provides the one area of study for a well-rounded education which cannot be offered in the school system, providing an avenue for every child to learn about God, to learn to pray and to become acquainted with the Bible or other sacred writings. It instills moral values, and teaches a child his worth before God, helping to build the child's character.

In St. Paul and suburbs the sponsors for this program at present are: Association of Evangelicals, 360 Robert St., Catholic Confraternity of Christian Doctrine, 251 Summit Ave., Lutheran Council of St. Paul, 448 Wacouta St., St. Paul Area Council of Churches, 1671 Summit Ave. Other groups are invited to participate. Questions may be directed to representatives of the above groups who have formed an Inter-Faith Committee in order to carry out the program more efficiently.

Classes at present are offered to grades 4, 5, and 6 in the elementary schools and to a few Junior High Schools for one hour each week. In St. Paul the program has been in operation since 1923.

In order to enroll, the parent or guardian must sign a Parents' Request card as provided by the Inter-Faith Committee and available at the school. The parent should check his religious group preference and the child should return it to the public school office. It is not necessary that the parent or child be a member of any of the churches represented. A first, second, and third choice is offered by the Protestant groups for the convenience of the parent.

In St. Paul and suburbs classes commence today and on succeeding days. Late registrations are permitted.

Adult Education At St. Therese

Still in its first year of operation, the Board of Education of St. Therese Catholic parish, Norfolk and Prior, has inaugurated an ambitious educational program for adults, young adults and children.

Consideration of the all-important subject of parent-child relationships begins at 7:30 this evening, September 26 and continues for four consecutive Thursdays through October 17. This series of lecture-discussion periods will cover such subjects as Self and Child Evaluation, Parenthood 1968, Rights of Parents-Rights of Children, and Parenthood Tomorrow. Speakers will be from the Catholic Social Service of St. Paul. The series is open to the public.

The program for young adults, in process of being formed, will include social, apostolic and discussion meetings.

Christian doctrine instructions for children attending public schools are being given each Saturday morning in the parish school.

In addition to the pastor, Rev. Joseph Streff, and the school principal, Sister Ann Redmond, the education board is comprised of Mr. William J. Moore, president, Mrs. James Salmen, Vice-president, Mr. Robert Faricy, Secretary, Mrs. Wayne Jorgenson, Mr. Patrick Coleman, Mr. Emmett Kenefick and Mr. Emmett Carrell.

HIGHLAND DRUG CENTER

New models in cameras, like the yearly automobile changes, are starting to arrive, and like the auto dealers, we have brand new cameras we have to move to make room for the new models. So we are marking down our prices on those cameras which are being superseded.

One might ask whether it would be profitable to buy "Last Years" model at a saving, or to go for the very latest. Cameras are unlike cars that depreciate very rapidly, that are subject to accidents of varying types, from fender-bender to complete washouts. A camera should last at least 10 years with reasonable care (like not dropping it, or drowning it), and most of them last considerably longer.

To answer the question, we'd say that for 95% of the people who use cameras, the reduced price of yesterday's model is well worth the saving compared to the cost of today's model of the same camera. Let's take the simplest Instamatic by Kodak, the 104 (last year's model) and this year's model, the 124. Basically the same camera. New styling, new batteries, an easier to find shutter release and wind lever, and the cube turning with the wind instead of on release of the shutter are the only changes. To some these may be of sufficient importance to warrant getting the newer model.

On the higher priced models there has been more radical change. But our personal opinion is that they won't get you THAT MUCH of a better picture for the extra money you'd pay for the LATEST model of say the Kodak Instamatic 804, the 814.

If you could use a new camera, or should have another one in the family, why not drop in to Highland Drug Center and look at the lines we have, compare the differences and the prices, and we feel sure you will walk out with last year's model and a substantial saving.

IT IS CHRISTMAS CARD TIME! Yes, you read it correctly. But this is only SEPTEMBER Thursday, September 26, 1968

Ramsey Hospital Celebrates 3rd Anniversary Today

St. Paul Ramsey Hospital will celebrate their third birthday on September 25. A tea will be held from one to four o'clock in the nurses lounge of the Hospital.

This party is means of showing those who are interested in the Hospital the many ways they may be of service. Conducted tours of the Hospital are being arranged.

The St. Paul Ramsey Auxiliary stresses service. It started with a membership of less than a hundred and now has a membership of 600 in three short years. During this time 65,000 volunteer hours of service have been donated to the Hospital. The need is great for additional volunteers and the rewards are many.

If you are interested in being of service to the patients, to the Hospital staff and to the community, join us on Sept. 26th.

HUMOR
POLITICS OPINIONS

Eventually, your city is going to have to tax you more. That is a fact, and whether they get the State Legislature or the Federal Government or the Charter Commission to do their dirty work, it is still a fact, and which pocket the extra moola comes out of is strictly academic. They—the current administration—do not have the courage to tell you that you cost them too much money. They won't ask you whether you want a first class city or a second class city. They threaten to cut services if you don't legalize some taxing authority that does not presently exist. They knew this during the last City Election. The Mayor knew it. In fact, his opponent, Mrs. Butler—who apparently didn't graduate from high school—was more correct in her arithmetic and more truthful about it than the ex-high school counsellor. That is beside the point, however—the point is that the loot is needed and it is needed now! It will be needed in ever increasing amounts to eternity! Why not devise a whole new tax structure in St. Paul and show Urban America the way out of the chaos caused by lying and cheating politicians? Let's use real estate as a base and have a point system for other factors like the number of children living at home (a plus factor); the income level of the head of household (a plus or minus factor); the age of the taxpayer (a minus factor for senior citizens) and a few other demographic criteria that are the main cause of tax inequities today. You can't get Charter Reform to raise taxing authority when 30 percent of your citizens are senior citizens living on fixed and dwindling incomes. Give them a break (or a point). You can't get tax reforms and charter authority from wage earners whose incomes do not allow them a recovery factor in prices or profits. Give them a point off! Families with six children use the city more than single people or couples without children. Add a point! The whole problem with urban taxes is inequality. When you ask people to vote to raise their taxes, they have to be motivated. If the politicians were smart they'd dream up a tax reform which would stick it to the people who are using the city and get the reform on the books with the votes of the people who use it very little. In St. Paul the non users are in the majority. Senior citizens, fixed income laborers and single working people. The people who cost a city money are the ones with large families. St. Paul has a lot of such families . . . and they are politically conservative about taxes and demanding of better city services. Therein lies the dilemma, and the politicians lie with impunity to both groups about what the city needs in the way of tax money and where it is going to come from. The result is a poorly organized and poorly planned future for your city. The people who need the city the most—people with growing families—are simply going to have to pay for it. All the others should pay their share, but not a cent more. Because they are being asked in as equal partners in the urban mess, senior citizens, single people and fixed income laborers are thumbing their noses at any hint of reform or legal authorization of higher taxing limits. Our present Mayor is at sixes and sevens with his own party on the matter of taxes, because the Charter Reform Proposal was roundly defeated by DFL wards in the city, while the higher income neighborhoods gave it its best support—though not a majority. This proves that higher income families are willing to pay the price—because they can—and that lower and fixed income people won't because they can't. It doesn't take a crystal ball to suggest that any future tax authority should be organized solidly behind those who wish to pay only what they can pay. I think a point system is the answer. (P.S.—I have three children, and count myself in the higher taxed group by my own definition. I happen to think that equality in taxes breeds better government, and I know what that might mean to my children.)
