Letters to Editor

Dear Editor:

Your newspaper should be congratulated for helping to relate information to your readership on the importance of this State's No. 1 health problem.

We realize that space is very important to an editor and appreciate the fact that you have provided so very much to alert the public to this health problem and maybe decrease the toll of lives it may claim.

On behalf of the 60,000 heart volunteers and in particular the volunteers in your own community who have given so very much of their valuable time to this cause, may we say thank you from our hearts.

Really there is no better way to relate the importance of our cause than by the printed word, and we hope that you will continue to disseminate this life-saving knowledge to your readership on a 12-month basis, since Heart Disease is not a one-month problem.

May we congratulate you on your fine support of the 1968 Heart Fund Drive and hope that more will live because of the space you gave.

Ann Zaleski

St. Catherine's New Resident Units

Contracts for the construction of two new residence units at The College of St. Catherine have been awarded according to an announcement made today by Sr. Fides Huber, president of the college. The units, which will house 52 women each, will be ready for occupancy this fall for the early start of the 1968-69 academic year.

The buildings can be best described as of "garden apartment" type construction. Two future units will provide a square shaped complex with an inner court.

Each building will have three floors, the first floor entering at grade level at the exterior of the complex. The second floor will also enter at grade, this being the inner court level.

Construction will feature brick and stone veneer. Brick has not been selected but it will be complemented by the generous use of stone from Mankato.

Interiors will be fully carpeted and the furnishings, including the cabinetry, will be of the latest design.

The heating will be by hot water, using steam from the boiler plant and a conversion unit. Fresh air will be warmed and distributed throughout the building, contributing to comfort in the winter months. The water will be softened at the central water plant.

The general contract for the job was awarded to the Wm. F. Kopp construction company of St. Paul. Two other St. Paul firms, Hoffman Electric and Hankee Heating, were awarded the electrical and mechanical contracts.

Keep All the Happy Hours Alive On Film, Make It a Team Project

One of the truly memorable souvenirs of a wedding is the album of photographs which is a traditional part of The Day. But camera experts suggest that you supplement this with a happy, 'new' gift—a second album of photographs taken by family and friends.

This takes a bit of organization and teamwork: an executive producer and staff of cameramen and women. Because this album covers more than just the wedding day. It starts with the engagement party and goes right through the reception.

Obviously, not any one person (not even the bride or groom!) attends every party. So a close friend or bridesmaid must be in charge of photographing showers. The best man or an usher takes over at the groom's stag party. Someone else does the rehearsal and the party that follows it. A sister can catch the gifts in all their glory. With his carefree camera and his access to the premises, Junior can provide amusing pictures of family confusion. And everyone can click away at the reception. There are almost limitless possibilities, beyond the traditional.

Duties of Groom and Others Of the Bridal Party Outlined

On the solid basis that "every wedding should have a bridegroom," and the equally logical conclusion that the man-in-the-case should have his own set of ground-rules, here are some pointers for him.

The groom's duties: if there is a Bachelor Dinner, usually the night before the wedding, the bridegroom is the host. At this time, he presents gifts to his best man and ushers, customarily something that can be engraved with initials of the recipients . . . He selects, and pays, for the wedding ring; purchases the marriage license; arranges for the bride's bouquet and for boutonnières for the male members of the wedding party; purchases gloves and ties for the ushers (which are usually sent directly from the store to the ushers' homes); takes care of the contribution to the clergyman; arranges for the car in which he and the bride will leave, and makes full arrangements for the honeymoon trip.

Duties of others: The Best Man serves as general assistant to the bridegroom in preliminary arrangements; actively handles the Bachelor Dinner;

Argus, the camera people, point out that anyone can produce excellent candid shots these days. No need for elaborate focusing with new instant-load cameras. Flash cubes are simple and effective. And every eye sees something different and can catch it on film.

The executive producer must hand out assignments and make sure they are followed. The picture won't let you forget; but you have to get it on schedule. And then it must be developed promptly and inserted in the gift album by the time the couple return from their honeymoon.

What a book this is, dedicated to the newlyweds by a large staff of camera-happy friends! It's one gift that will never be returned or duplicated.

When Miss Johnson married Captain Robb, cameramen and TV technicians at the wedding were instructed to dress like guests rather than workmen.

OLD RHYME

A wedding is the greatest place
For folks to go and learn.
He thought that she was his'n,
But he found that he was her'n.

helps bridegroom prepare his wardrobe for the wedding; keeps wedding ring until it's called for at ceremony; turns over the contribution (or fee) to clergyman after the ceremony; and checks all travel arrangements . . . The Chief Usher has responsibility of supervising the seating of the families and guests at ceremony; also personally escorts the bride's and bridegroom's mothers to their respective seats; and is responsible for briefing the ushers.

Scottish Rite

Note change of date. The Scottish Rite Women's Club monthly dinner meeting will be held Tuesday, April 9, in the Temple, Sixth and Smith. A program "Pantomime" by Mrs. Phil Gearhart will follow the business meeting.

For reservations call Mrs. Schwarzkopf, 645-7877 or Mrs. Legler 226-7751 before noon April 8th.

Honeymoon? Travel Light And Easy

Whether you are headed for an exotic honeymoon paradise, or for a weekend in a cozy, country cottage, a few packing reminders always come in handy.

Heavier articles such as shoes should be packed against the bottom end of your suitcase so when the porter clunks your bags down hard (and he will!) the heavies won't slide down and crush all in their path.

Since air travel puts every stop brief hours apart, pack your dresses last on top of everything else. The moment you arrive, the dresses come out first to go busily about shedding wrinkles and the rest of the bag need not be unpacked at all. And another quick tip—color coordinate sunglasses to each outfit as you pack, so there is no fumbling about for the right eye excitement when you are ready to go.

Enjoy Your Sterling Gifts, Their Beauty Lasts 'Forever'

The shining countenance of every blushing bride is happily reflected in the priceless sterling silver treasures that add a warm and wonderful glow to her new home. As her dowry from loving parents, as gifts from well-wishing in-laws, relatives and friends, silver — says the Jewelry Industry Council, is an important part of every girl's wedding. And at this time, when traditions are followed so closely, silver is the most gracious tradition of all.

Friends and relatives looking for the most expressive wedding gifts turn to silver. When the bride makes use of the Bridal Registry listing her chosen pattern and the sterling she already has, a gift of silver is the easiest to give, and a guaranteed delight for the bride to receive. Especially hoped for are additional place settings and those most often needed extras that have to do double duty in a newlywed household: the salad forks and teaspoons that "sub" as dessert forks and spoons.

Little silver gifts mean a lot to the practical bride. Her homemaking instincts go for serving pieces such as meat fork, gravy ladle, pie or cake server, pierced tablespoon, lemon fork, and those special niceties, iced tea spoons, after dinner coffee spoons and cocktail forks.

Holloware is the gift that puts the silver lining on her day of days. In a pattern that is selected to blend harmoniously with her flatware pattern, versatile holloware gives that sumptuous banquet flavor even to the bride's very first dinner. And what a variety of exciting silver holloware is available . . . bowls, trays, bud vases, cannelabra, magnificent tea or coffee services. With her vibrant imagination, she'll see a simple silver bowl as a vegetable dish, a fruit centerpiece and a flower vase. A relish tray turns, by bridal magic, into a distinctive ash tray; a silver trivet carries intimate cocktails-for-two; a nut dish becomes, romantically, a holder of fancy soaps for a guest's bath.

The promise of silver wedding gifts is in their rich and lasting elegance, warmth, usefulness and appeal. Today's bride knows that her silver gifts will become the heirlooms to be passed on with loving care. And, the Council points out the more they are used the more treasured they become, softly glowing with a patina that only proper use can achieve. Here is an easy guide for the bride who wants to get the most pleasure from her sterling and prepare it for future generations.
Thursday, April 4, 1968

- 1) Use it daily, rotating it to give each piece plenty of use.
- 2) Wash silver in hot, sudsy water. Rinse well with hot water and dry thoroughly.
- 3) When washing, don't crowd the silver; use steel wool or soap pads.
- 4) An over-all cleaning with polish every month or so is sufficient with often-used silver. For best results, use lengthwise strokes on flatware, follow the contours of the holloware.
- 5) Seldom-used pieces should be kept in tarnish-free cloths and a tightly closed chest.

It's a Wise Bride Who Learns Labels at the Start

On becoming a bride: learn your labels. And know what they mean. No one ruins clothes faster than a bride who doesn't follow the washing and ironing instructions on garment tags.

It's true that tags may seem confusing. Durable-press fabrics, for example, are identified by a variety of labels — including "Never-Press," "Super-Crease," and "Primatized."

Whatever name your durable press fabric carries, chances are the fabric will benefit from a touch-up with an iron after laundering.

This year the majority of men's shirts will be durable-press. With proper washing care, these shirts should require ironing only around seams where slight puckering may occur.

Remove the shirt just after the washing machine's rinse cycle and before the spin cycle. The shirt can then be tumble-dried, but it must be removed immediately after the drying process. It's important to remember that the durable-press process bakes out wrinkles by using high temperatures. Conversely, if shirts are not removed immediately after being dried, wrinkles will be baked in.

For the body of a shirt, a cool iron and a lightning-fast pressing will do the job.

When ironing, try using spray sizing instead of dampening the shirt. Magic spray sizing will restore the original "body" which tends to wash out in the laundry. A little sizing sprayed on shirt collars will go a long way toward perking up the collars without making them uncomfortably stiff and scratchy.

Sizing also contains a special lubricant that makes irons glide smoothly. This too will reduce ironing time.

These techniques, combined with durable press fabrics, should enable new homemakers to approach ironing days with a lighter step—and work load.

PLANNING HIS "TROUSSEAU": The groom should pay as much attention to assembling his wardrobe as the bride pays to planning her trousseau. A good place to begin is at the beginning—with underwear . . . easy-to-care-for knitted T-shirts, athletic shirts and briefs. By Allen A in a new blend of Quintess polyester and cotton.

Whether your first home as a bride is a little apartment, a small house in need of paint, or a dream home, the problems of decorating it move right in with you. The "big" items, such as furniture, frequently present the least difficulty. If new furnishings aren't possible on your newly-married budget, "early attic" or the latest in "rummage sale provincial" can make a charming home with a little paint and imagination.

One quick, easy, and relatively inexpensive decorating trick can be accomplished largely with things you're sure to have on hand. The Picture and Frame Institute suggests using wedding and family photos to decorate a secondary wall—that is, any bedroom, hall or stairway wall where personal accessories are as appropriate as framed reproductions of paintings. Living and dining area walls should be reserved for more universally enjoyed art and decorating accessories, the Institute points out.

You can begin with one photo of the wedding party or several and add to your family wall as new photos are taken or new family members added. Frame your photos in wood or metal tone frames from any department, chain, or variety store, mixing the frame styles and sizes.

Your photos might be framed individually or as a montage

Notes on Love

"The music at a wedding procession always reminds me of soldiers going into battle."

—Heinrich Heine

"You ask if Lady Byron was ever in love with me? No! I was the fashion when she first came out: I had the character of being a great rake, and was a great dandy—both of which young ladies like. She married me from vanity and the hope of reforming and fixing me."

(several small photos arranged Thursday, April 4, 1968 in a somewhat random fashion in one large frame). For an unusual effect, line your frame with colored paper or cloth that shows between photos or use color around the edges of a single picture. For a color-photo, choose a liner to match or complement a color in the picture. Around black and white photos, almost any bright color creates interest.

Arrange your photos with one of the larger ones as the focal point. Center it where you wish the eye to fall first. Careful placement of the surrounding pictures will give a finished look to the arrangement and still leave room for additions.

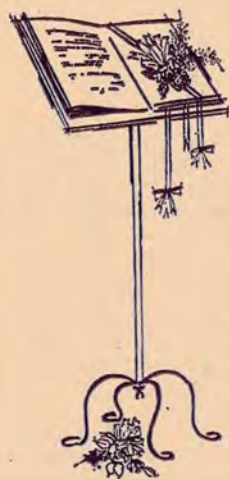

Handy Tips for The Wedding Day

At a wedding, everyone notices hands. Since the wedding guests are gazing at the new ring on the bride's finger, they are also gazing at other pretty hands which are yet to have rings slipped upon them.

For this reason Pacquin hand care experts recommend that Bride and bridesmaids use lots of hand and body lotion to make arms, elbows and necks petal smooth.

They also recommend a liberal application of hand cream for extra-dry skin every night for a week before the wedding—as well as a good application just before the ceremony starts. Smooth hands are not only essential for smooth looks, but there are constant introductions and hand-shaking at a wedding reception.

James W. Jenkins, director of research for Pacquin hand care products, says that women of all ages should use hand creams and lotions to help preserve moisture in their skin. So mothers of the bride (and groom) should also start grooming for the wedding day. All eyes will be on them, too!

Loving Way To Express Your Thanks

After all her fears, she didn't trip on her train, Dad remembered his one line and the groom showed up! The bridal bouquet landed in happy hands and rose petal "confetti" accompanied the new Mr. and Mrs. to their honeymoon car.

The rules of etiquette claim the bride has six months to acknowledge her wedding gifts. girl with foresight, however, can send special, personalized thank-yous well in advance—without cataloging her presents while sitting on the banks of Niagara Falls.

While the bride-to-be is discussing church and reception arrangements with her Florists' Transworld Delivery design expert, she can also order post-wedding bouquets. The thoughtful gesture is an unusual way to thank friends for throwing showers, buttoning gowns and calming nerves before the ceremony.

Only one girl catches the good-luck flowers tossed at the reception; imagine how thrilled other close friends will be to receive miniature bouquets the next day! Each of the nosegay remembrances carries a special wish for equal happiness.

Parents-in-law will be more impressed than ever with their son's choice if a "thank-you-for-the-help-you've been" planter or centerpiece arrives before the bride can invite them for their first home-cooked meal. Through the FTD inter-city network of florists, the order can easily be filled whether or not the girl has married the boy next door.

SUPERSTITIONS

If your wedding day is windy, it is a sign of good luck.

If you catch a falling leaf, it means that you will have twelve months of continued happiness.

If you are married when the moon is waxing, your marriage will be a happy one.

If the hands on the clock are moving upward when the wedding ceremony is being read, your prosperity is ensured.

For That Bridal Glow Start with Soap, Water

What makes a "radiant" bride? Your rosy glow of happiness and excitement that surrounds the wedding surely contribute, but a vibrant, healthy complexion generates the compliments of wedding guests.

There isn't a girl who has said "I do" who doesn't want to maintain these great good looks. Too often, though, it's only a few weeks before you are sure to be enmeshed in your new routine as wife, homemaker, and perhaps working girl, with little time to give to your personal beauty program. Only the rarest complexion retains its smooth, lively loveliness attended only by the daily bath-with-face-washing and a little make-up.

With so much help at hand today, there is little reason for a dull, coarse, lifeless complexion. This is certainly an area in which it pays to think ahead. While today you can hardly imagine your first wedding anniversary, start now to spare yourself that rueful glance on your tenth, when you may begin to wonder how to salvage your face or your figure.

Air-Cooled, Sheer Pretty Packables

Travel figures into most honeymoon plans so it's a smart bride who selects clothes for her trousseau that retain their attractive appearance under travel conditions. But that doesn't mean she's stuck with fashions that shout wash and wear.

She'll be happy to know that some of Spring's most romantic embroidered dresses, blouses and sportswear also make the best travelers.

Did you know? All-over embroidery makes any fabric wrinkle-resistant, keeps ruffles unruffled, defies wilting in even tropical climates such as Jamaica. It makes dresses such as one designed by Ellinor Pommer for A'Agilon in cool Sheffield-embroidered sheer — both pretty and packable.

Thursday, April 4, 1968

It is a great temptation to say, "but I'm only 18," or 22, or whatever your present age. Experts answer that with, "Now is the time to start your life-long skin care program." And they are unanimous in making cleanliness the first step. Start and end each day with soap, the antibacterial kind, such as Dial, and water. For the face characterized by enlarged pores, the addition of an astringent may enhance cleansing. Then cream. In the morning, use a moisturizer that comes between you and your make-up, in more ways than one. It goes on before cosmetics and protects the skin from drying effects of some beauty portions. Before bed, another dose of lotion, perhaps a creamier one, is called for.

Neglect, a common complexion detractor at almost any age, is easily remedied with twice daily inclusion in the moisturizing routine.

Moderate use of cosmetics is not only good fashion, but good complexion care. However, it isn't putting them on, but taking them off that becomes many a pretty face's Waterloo. Every trace of make-up should be gone before your head touches a pillow. In addition to soap and water, use a creamy cleanser to remove mascara, eye-liner, and anything else with water-proofing.

Problem skin should be presented to a cosmetologist (lay skin specialist) or a dermatologist (medical doctor specializing in skin care). Home treatment should be limited to cleanliness, good nutrition, and adequate rest. Regular use of mild antibacterial soap builds up an invisible film of germ-inhibiting protection—a real help for some skin problems. Sunshine and fresh air are still important for good skin health, too.

By starting now (even before the wedding), your complexion care routine will be second nature in just a few days and is sure to help you keep that "radiant" bride look for a long time.

PRETTY AND PACKABLE . . . an ideal choice for her trousseau. All-over embroidery makes any fabric wrinkle-resistant, keeps ruffles unruffled, defies wilting even in tropics. Cool Schiffli-embroidered sheer, designed by Ellinor Pommier for L'Aiglon.

The Groom Should Ready His 'Trousseau', Too! Live It Up!

A trousseau might not mean the massive collection of clothes it once did, but it's a good enough reason for the bride-to-be to indulge her fashion whims with a new wardrobe.

But what about the bridegroom? He has every right to start marriage looking his best, too. Besides, it may be the last opportunity he has to spend his money exactly the way he wants to. That boldly printed sport shirt, a few too many ties, the snappy blazer that might seem too costly once the expenses of setting up a home descend . . . now's the time.

Now's the time, also, to attend to the fundamentals of a wardrobe—the socks, the pajamas, the underwear. Just as a bride's trousseau usually begins with lingerie, he might start with underwear. Since his first considerations will be fit, comfort, and long wear, a good choice might be a complete wardrobe of knitted T-shirts, athletic shirts and briefs. Allen-A makes them in a new blend of Quintless polyester and fine combed cotton. Assures a neat look, plus no-iron ease of care—two qualities sure to be appreciated by a wife.

LOVING GIFT FROM MOM AND DAD . . . The Bride's sterling is often a gift from her parents, according to survey. Friends and other relatives usually round out her set with extra place settings, or additional place or serving pieces.

AN EASTER TRIBUTE TO "THE WOMEN"

From the time of Mary it has been "The Women" who have performed the large and small miracles which gave meaning to the joy of living. It is true today as it was then, and it is good that it should be remembered from time to time. There is no better moment for remembering that at Easter when Mary's part in the greatest miracle of all is in everybody's mind.

Men make the wars and fight them. It is women who wait and hold together a place of belonging... a place worth coming home to.

Strange how times change! Beauty salons and services were once a symbol of vanity. Now, our thriving businesses are proof that women are keeping the faith.

Flemming Named President of Mac

Arthur S. Flemming, president of the University of Oregon for nearly seven years, was named president of Macalester College recently.

Flemming's appointment as Macalester's 11th president was announced at a meeting of the Trustees, faculty, administration and student representatives by A. B. Jackson, chairman of the Board of Trustees of the St. Paul liberal arts college.

The Board also approved, as a result of generous pledges from DeWitt Wallace and other donors, the establishment of the Macalester Foundation for the Advancement of Higher Education.

The precise nature of the Foundation will be worked out after Flemming takes office, but Jackson said it would have as its primary objective the conduct of studies dealing with problems in administration that are shared by the nation's colleges and universities.

Flemming was born June 12, 1905, in Kingston, N. Y. He married Bernice Virginia Moler Dec. 14, 1934, and they have five children and nine grandchildren.

St. Paul Red Cross Servicemen's Fund Drive on Acceptance Basis

St. Paul Area Red Cross will accept contributions to the American National Red Cross drive for funds to help "Support Our Servicemen," but will not conduct an active campaign in the city or its suburban communities.

Lester J. Asfeld, St. Paul chairman, said that the successful United Fund campaigns within the chapter's service area provided the money needed to meet "our commitments to the national organization".

"We are deeply grateful to the thousands of contributors, who provided financing for our work in Vietnam and the chapter's other services through their gifts the United Way, Mr. Asfeld continued.

"The national campaign is aimed at cities and towns where the Red Cross is raising all its funds in independent March campaigns. American Red Cross financial requirements for 1968 will total $121,624,000, the largest amount since World War II. The financial crisis is directly attributable to the war in Vietnam.

"Two years ago there were 13 Red Cross staff members in Vietnam. Today there are 360 at major military installations. More than 800 emergency messages are flashed between Vietnam and Red Cross chapters at home every day. Maintaining communications between servicemen and their families in emergencies is only one phase of the Red Cross job. The organization has 20 clubmobile units of five recreation specialist each and recreation centers where they can be secured by the military. Social welfare workers are assigned to every hospital and to the hospital ships Repose and Sanctuary," Mr. Asfeld concluded.

Individuals moved to make additional contributions to help "Support Our Servicemen" may send checks marked SOS, payable to the American Red Cross, to the St. Paul Red Cross Bldg., 413 Auditorium St.

Ron Bacigalupo's COLUMN

POLITICS
HUMOR
OPINIONS

"Don't let it be forgot, there was a certain spot . . ." It is now time, fellow Americans, to sit back and watch the well-financed, well organized, deftly calculating and totally classy Kennedy machine in action. And, if it seems boring it is only because it is the second time in the past decade that it has happened, and if that sounds unusual, it is because the fellow named Richard Milhaus Nixon still mesmerizes the Scotch drinkers in the back room of the Grand Old Party. On then, to Camelot, with a new lead and the same old supporting roles. One hopes the orchestration will carry the show!

Students, young people of all ages, and intellectuals who have gravitated to the McCarthy wing of the Party need not despair over the inevitable fate of gentle Gene since he lifted himself and his ideals from anonymity to admirable public acclaim. He will now share an equal role in the history book with the man who was selected ahead of him for vice president in 1964.

Nixon's statement after LBJ's statement Sunday—to wit—that he (Nixon) would face Humphrey now, took the rum-dum award of the evening which means that "stretch-sock" is warming up in earnest for the big show and looking every bit the loser of old.

In the event that Nelson Rockefeller has enough courage to arm wrestle with some pretty dedicated Nixon people in the GOP, there might yet be an election this Fall. He can always (almost) count on Le Vander's support (I think maybe!)

Tom Byrne is behind. The campaign hasn't really started yet, but he is apparently going to make the mistake of using her medium—television—as a rebuttal.

Meanwhile, the local gazette is earning the dismay of City Council candidates by sending out an inquiry asking three questions which have little if anything to do with either the job of being a Councilman or the opportunities of, as one incumbent put it, "changing the world" available to a Councilman in the City of St. Paul. The gazette also specified which issues and dates news would be accepted from Council candidates and to whom it should be reported. Bill Sumner is busy worrying about the courts inhibiting new gathering processes, when it now appears all that is needed to gather news resourcefully is a 6 cent stamp, Xerox and some reasonable office hours.

A suggestion for the $127,000 rat control federal grant available to St. Paul—put a $5 bounty on rats which would achieve the following: (1) get rid of more rats than the program will (25,400); (2) get rid of existing arsenals of ammunition and provide good shooting for those who like to shoot the guns they have illegally concealed in the city; and (3) redistribute the funds where we can be reasonably assured they are most needed.

Local Democrats who backed the Johnson Administration while opposing his Viet Nam policy seem to have emerged in the best light in the tricky quagmire that has consumed the DFL since the Keith-Rolvaag ruckus got everybody turned around in 1966. By August, all the thunder against the President's war policy will have been watered down by the gradual disengagement of U.S. forces, which is all any of the doves could have done in a similar period of time. The youngsters and the hotheads will only have their hero badges unless they begin to adjust their thinking along with the changing situation.

St. Therese Style Show At Hazeltine Club

The Hazeltine National Golf Club will be the scene of a luncheon and style show today. Powers Highland will feature an Easter Parade of hats. Commentator, Lorraine Cline. Guests will wear "Kooky" hats of their own design for which prizes will be awarded.

Mrs. Warren Rebholtz will turn over the president's gavel to Mrs. Richard Moehrle, president elect. Other officers for the ensuing year are: Mmes. Robert Flesch, vice president; Gerald Gerber, recording secretary; Fred Wagner, treasurer, and LeRoy Dickman, treasurer.

McGowan Memorial Fund Drive At Marshall

In December, a career of teaching speech and dramatics at Marshall Junior High School for 34 years ended abruptly with the sudden death of Miss Mildred McGowan.

How does a teacher affect her students? In as many ways as they affect her. If you attended Marshall, you will recall her speech class, or maybe you were in a play she directed. Remember her distinctive voice, quick step, and ready sense of humor?

In thinking of the many years Miss McGowan shared her knowledge with the students of this community, the faculty at Marshall has established a student fund. This fund is to provide students with clothing, equipment, and other necessities for their education. If you would like to be a part of this memorial, please send your contribution to the Student Fund, Marshall Junior High School, 62 North Grotto, St. Paul, Minnesota.

Talmud Torah of St. Paul Teacher's to Take Over Student Vacations April 7-11

The Talmud Torah of St. Paul teachers will take their pupil's places during the spring vacation. For five days, beginning Sunday, April 7 through Thursday, April 11 they will take part in in-service teacher training for a new elementary Hebrew conversation course. Also participating are teachers from the Minneapolis Talmud Torah and the Torah Academy, Minneapolis, and other religious schools in the Twin Cities. It will be given at 636 S. Mississippi River Blvd.

Called "B'yad Halashon", "Power of the Tongue", it was developed by Reuven Yalon, a native Israeli of the American University, Washington, D.C., for use with children in the Aleph or first Hebrew class. The course includes workbooks, tapes, records, posters and filmstrips.

Emphasis is on conversation and the course is systematically programmed at the primary level, utilizing daily situations and Jewish holidays. Interwoven in the daily lessons are temple liturgy and ceremonies.

Children from 7 to 9 years of age and who are potential fall enrollees in the Talmud Torah of St. Paul will be given opportunity for a unique experience during the training laboratory.

For 45 minutes each of the five days, there will be a demonstration class, starting at 10 a.m. The children who have never been taught Hebrew will show the effectiveness of the new course. Parents interested in having their children join the class should call Mrs. Herman at 698-8807. Participating children will receive two free records from EMC Corporation.
