Vol. 26, No. 6 Wed., May 24, 1978 Published twice a month Delivered to 34,500 homes

The 90-year-old Selby Avenue bridge got at least a five-year lease on life when St. Paul Mayor George Latimer snipped the ribbon to mark its re-opening on May 12. Recent repairs to the historic bridge — closed to traffic ever since a fire struck its east end in October, 1974 — will be good only until 1983, according to the city's Public Works Department. At that time a decision will have to be made whether to replace it with another or completely restore the structure.

State PCA sets public meeting May 31 on pollution emissions from Ford plant

The Minnesota Pollution Control Agency will hold a public hearing at the Highland Park Branch Public Library, 1974 Ford Parkway, at 9:30 Wednesday, May 31, concerning air pollution emissions from certain painting facilities at the Ford Motor Company's Twin Cities assembly plant, 966 S. Mississippi River Blvd.

Purpose of the hearing, according to the state PCA, is to allow Ford to explain its reasons why odor reduction measures are not practical or economically reasonable, and for the PCA to hear from affected area residents about the extent any odor nuisance problems the plant may have caused.

Seven painting facilities at the assembly plant now have odorous emissions in excess of Minnesota Pollution Control Agency Regulation APC-9, Control of Odors in the Ambient Air. The PCA is required to hold a public hearing before it can grant or deny Ford Motor Company's application for a variance from the pollution control regulation.

At the beginning of the hearing, representatives of the company will give a presentation on what types of pollution control equipment or changes to different types of paint would be required to effect odor reductions. Following that, area residents may make statements about the extent of nuisance of paint odors in the vicinity of the plant and comment on whether the PCA should grant a variance for the seven painting facilities in question.

Those persons unable to attend the hearing may send written comments to Edward M. Wiik, P.E., Director, Division of Air Quality, MPCA, 1935 W. County Road B2, Roseville, MN 55113, on or before May 31.

Questions about the hearing and the variance may be directed to Thomas Townsend, Minnesota Pollution Control Agency, at 296-7271.

Grand Old Day takes to the streets for an afternoon of song and dance

It promises to be an even grander Grand Old Day than the four which have gone before it when local businesses, community groups and an anticipated crowd of more than 60,000 people take to the streets for the fifth annual Grand extravaganza on Sunday, June 4.

Sponsored by the Grand Avenue Business Association, Grand Old Day 1978 will provide a showcase for countless musical and dance performances, and arts and crafts demonstrations. Festivities begin at 11:00 a.m. up and down the length of the avenue between Fairview and Dale.

For the second consecutive year, a Grand Old Parade is on the day's drawing board. Mary Rice, co-owner of Th'Rice gourmet cookware shop and its adjacent Food School, will serve as the parade's grand marshal. Celebrity grand marshal will be Ron Magers, KSTP-TV news anchorman.

St. Paul Mayor George Latimer and his family, Winter Carnival Royalty, Carmen the Nurse, Ronald McDonald and members of the Minnesota Kicks will all take part in the pageant, ferried in cars provided by the Antique Auto Club of America. The parade will

Extended day care planned for Hill and Longfellow Schools

Registration is now open for an extended day care option at J.J. Hill and Longfellow Schools. A part of the desegregation plan, the free program will provide care for grades K-3 from approximately 7:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. on school days. Kindergartners will be able to stay all day and both the breakfast and hot lunch programs will be available to all participating students.

Non-minority students from Apollo Cluster schools other than Hill and Longfellow (Randolph Heights, Groveland Park and St. Anthony Park), and non-minority students from Apollo Cluster private and parochial schools transferring into the Hill-Longfellow pairing will be given first preference in the program. Should there be any remaining slots available, students presently attending Hill-Longfellow will be eligible.

Actors Theatre members Barbara Granning, Steven Pringle, Nancy Bagshaw, Mari Rovang and Jim Harris review the revue they'll present at 2:00 p.m. Sunday, June 4 during Grand Old Day celebrations at the corner of Grand and Victoria. The troupe will also perform June 2-3 in Mears Park as part of the Lowertown Art Fair.

No 'gimmies'

Golfers at Highland and Town and Country golf courses will join duffers at 37 other Twin City links when competition begins Memorial Day weekend for some $6,000 in prizes in the "Big Green Team Putt-Off" contest sponsored by National Car Rental System, Inc.

The tournament will be open to players age 21 and over during their regular 18-hole rounds at all 39 participating Twin City golf clubs on Saturday, Sunday and Monday, May 27, 28 and 29.

Prizes will range from "Big Green Team" coupons, redeemable for merchandise at golf club shops for the eight qualifiers at each course, to a full week's use of a National rental car for both the amateur and professional winners of a June 2 championship match at Town and Country Club.

The eight golfers turning in official Big Green Team Putt-off score cards showing the lowest number of putts during regular 18-hole play will qualify for their individual club putt-off on Monday, May 29. The winners will represent their clubs at the metro championship beginning at 6:30 p.m. on Friday, June 2 at the Town and Country Club.

Notice to Savers

Beginning June 1, Mid America State Bank of Highland Park will begin issuing two new types of certificates, the authorization for which was recently made possible by Federal Banking Regulations.

The new "money market certificate" will have a six-month maturity and a $10,000 minimum. The maximum rate of interest will vary from week to week, and will be the average yield in the weekly auction for six-month U.S. Treasury Bills. A review of recent treasury bill auctions indicates that the interest rate of this new money market certificate should be approximately 7 percent. Once issued, this six-month certificate will bear that interest rate until it matures.

Also beginning June 1, we will commence issuing certificates with an eight-year maturity in minimum denominations of $1,000. The rate of this certificate will be 7.75 percent.

Both of these new certificates are subject to existing penalties for early withdrawal, which is the loss of 90 days interest and the payment of remaining interest at passbook rates. We will continue, of course, to offer our existing savings plans.

There's more to those old homes than meets the eye

"A Living Tradition" is the theme of the fourth bi-annual Summit Hill House Tour to be held on Sunday, June 11 from noon to 5:00 p.m.

The tour will feature 14 turn-of-the-century private residences located in the Historic Hill District of St. Paul. Many of the homes have undergone extensive renovation in an effort by the homeowners to preserve the area's heritage.

An added highlight to this year's event will be musical performances by professional and amateur musicians in the homes and park areas. Selections will range from Victorian parlor music to jazz. Proceeds from the house tour, which is being sponsored by the Summit Hill Association, will go toward a tree-planting program in the area.

Tickets for the tour are $3.50 per person and will be available the day of the event at three locations: Grand Ave. at St. Albans, Osceola Ave. at Milton St., and Goodrich Ave. at Dale.

Tickets will also be available on Sunday, June 4 during the Grand Old Days celebration at the Summit Hill Association information booth on the Northeast corner of Lexington and Grand Ave.

Library offers story program

Pre-schoolers ages four and five are invited to attend a series of stories and other activities during the Merriam Park Branch Library's five week Summer Story Time.

Twins set baseball clinics at three area playgrounds

What do Twins' Dave Goltz, Gary Serum, Tommy Johnson and ex-Twin Jerry Terrell have in common?

For one thing, they're all professional baseball players—that's obvious. For another, they're all from Minnesota—you probably knew that too. But did you know that they all learned how to play the game at a Midwest Federal—Minnesota Twins baseball clinic?

Area boys and girls, ages 8-18, will have the same opportunity to learn from the experts when the clinics are held at three local playgrounds this summer.

The two-hour instructional clinics are run by Twins scout and former major league catcher Angelo Giuliani (see our feature story on "Angie" elsewhere in this Villager), assisted by two other Twins scouts, Bill Kane and John Maurer.

The first of the three area clinics will be held at 6:30 p.m. Wednesday, May 24 at the Highland-Hilltopper little league field, Cleveland and Montreal Ave.

Local major league hopefuls will get yet another chance to practice with the pros when a second clinic is conducted at 6:30 p.m. Wednesday, June 7 at Edgumbe Playground, Stanford and Griggs Ave.

In case you missed the first two, or have already forgotten which side of the foul line to play third base on, another clinic is scheduled for 6:30 p.m. Wednesday, July 15 at Groveland Playground, Kenneth and St. Clair Ave.

Besides the valuable instruction, participating youngsters will have an opportunity to win a $5.00 savings account from Midwest Federal. The lucky winners might have to apply the money toward a mitt for mom, because this year parents are invited to bring a glove and join their sons and daughters on the practice field.

Swimming lessons offered at Oxford and Highland pools

The St. Paul Division of Parks and Recreation will offer two sessions of swimming lessons this summer: June 12-23, and June 26 to July 7.

The lessons, which will be offered locally at Highland and Oxford pools, are taught by Red Cross Certified Water Safety Instructors. The classes will be divided into the following categories: waders (who must be at least 4 years old), beginners, advanced beginners, Jr. and Sr. Life Saving, springboard diving and adult lessons. The fee is $9.00 for ten lessons.

Registration will be from 9:00 a.m. to noon on June 6 for the first session, and on June 20 for the second session. Registration will be at the poolsite.

For additional information, call the Special Services Office at 645-4631.

Golf tourney benefits county lung program

The third annual Golf for Lung Power Tournament will be held on Tuesday, June 6 at the Hastings Country Club in Hastings, Minn. Starting time is 1:30 p.m.

Both golfers and sponsors are currently being sought. The $40 golf fee and the $100, $50 and $25 sponsorships are tax deductible. Proceeds will be donated to the Ramsey County Lung Association's pediatric lung disease program.

For registration information, call 224-4901.

Talmud Torah to hold annual meeting May 31

The 30th annual meeting of the Saint Paul Talmud Torah will be held at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, May 31 in the Talmud Torah Auditorium, 636 S. Mississippi River Blvd.

Following the brief business meeting and election of directors, Talmud Torah students will pay a musical tribute, "Thanks for the Memories," to Dr. Harry Malin, Talmud Torah Director. The program will also include an ice cream social. Reservations are requested.

Committee members include chairman Sandra Aaron, Naomi Rutchick, Sheila Brod, Sheila Kaufman, Bob Alch, Dick Baer and Joan Levey.

MISCH-MACH

by Maurice F. Mischke

In weather like this, it's a wonder I get around to writing this column at all... quality of writing and content aside. Yes, and if all the on-site research on "quality of life" were being done in mid-May, Minnesota might well come out on top, among all our states. Assuming, of course, that we get our house in order on state income taxes, workmen's compensation, and the like... you know, the "business climate" you've been hearing so much about, even in this column.

But let's not get into that just now... that whole question will certainly get a thorough airing as the political campaigns start heating up this Summer and Fall. By the way, the Villager is here to stay. We steadfastly deny any impending rumors that we might be pulling stakes in favor of Highland Park, Illinois.

If you've been alert to the news the past weekend, you're aware of the fact that the 15¢ first class letter is about to become a reality... on May 29, Memorial Day, in fact... something else to remember, as it were. Thank heavens President Carter's (13¢) citizen rate idea didn't make the grade with 16¢ for business mail. Who winds up paying the freight in the final analysis anyhow? And what an administrative boondoggle it would have been, trying to determine which rate should apply, catching up with cheaters, etc. At least this way we save the cost of another 'book of regulations,' countless meetings with postal inspectors, and what have you.

So, get those letters in the mail before Monday and save yourself an increase of over 15%. Incidentally, the Post Office has had to increase first class postage costs 200% during a time (from 1967) when living costs have gone up (only) 100%. I suppose that's not too unlike what's happened to all the other governmental costs we've been complaining about.

Of course, it isn't only first class mail that gets hit. So does the price of mailing the Villager... to our subscribers, advertisers and also to Mendota Heights... up once again from 12 to 14%, depending upon whether the piece rate or weight factor applies. The new rate can vary from 8.4¢ (minimum piece rate) to 10.8¢ for one of our 40-page issues.

People often ask us to mail them a copy and, of course, it's just too costly for us to provide that service... and really too costly for you to buy it too, I would judge. Do you realize that to send you a copy of the very Villager you're reading right now... a single issue, third class... will cost us 40¢ in postage. And that when the Villager hits 40 pages, as it has twice in the last two months, the new cost will be 53¢? Previously those figures were 28¢ and 39¢ respectively. Anybody want to come over and jawbone me into holding the line... yet another while?

It's going to be interesting to see what California does to Proposition 13 on June 6. Whether they vote to limit property taxes to 1% of market value, other tax increases to 2% annually, plus requiring a two-thirds vote of their legislature for future tax bumps. Since so many people are dependent upon the government now... in one way or another... it could be very close. But I don't buy the dire consequences that are being presented if #13 wins. They'll find a way to cope, never fear. What a positive vote will do, too, is shake up legislators in other states to the point of taking a harder look at their rates, their expenditures and their inflation-fired surpluses. And, wouldn't you think our Minnesota House and Senate might be included in that category, too?

How about some good news for a while? Like the Twins winning five of six after having lost something like 18 of the previous 22. And Carew batting at .407, 22 points above the "Lumber Company's" won-lost percentage to date. Maybe Cal Griffith will start paying attention when Gene Mauch and Rod Carew want him to sign on a player.

You know, before Mike Marshall came aboard, I was almost ready to suggest that it was time to bring out the old 1954 brochures on Midway Stadium (I still have a copy) and sell that locale as the now logical home for the Twins. For a while it certainly looked big enough... and, of course, it was designed to be expanded. Then Metropolitan Stadium could have been remodeled for soccer and football only.

But along comes a little spurt like the Twins gave us this past week... and, once again, hope springs eternal. Maybe Jacket Day this coming Sunday will bring out the largest crowd of this still young season.

So, it's graduation time once again... some of the colleges held their commencements this past weekend, but the high school ceremonies are yet to come. The relative importance of the commencement speech came up for discussion the other day. Mike, the editor of this bi-weekly tab, says the only thing he remembers from the talk at his graduation exercises was the speaker's statement that none of them would remember a thing he said on that occasion. Nor does he recall who the speaker was.

Of course, you wouldn't expect me to remember much about my high school graduation. But I do recall the man who spoke at my 1947 college graduation... Dr. Lawrence Gould of Carleton College, was the man. I recall he was a bit of a geologist and had accompanied Admiral Byrd on his Antarctic expeditions. But don't ask me what he said that day. It left no indelible imprints.

Well, the long-awaited zoo is now open. If I had taken up the early offer of a preview extended by Zoo President—I've got that right, haven't I—Firmen (Ace) Alexander, or if we could have seen our way clear to accept the gracious offer for "media day" last Thursday, maybe I'd have some impressions to give you. But it was post-deadline day... not a good time to take off. So if you write us about YOUR impressions, we'll print it in our letters column... this is a limited time offer!

Did you notice that our neighborhood Ford Plant is switching its assembly line from passenger cars to light trucks? That's good news in these parts, because it'll mean an added 300 jobs (from 2,000 to 2,300) and 700 vehicles a day in two shifts versus the previous 480 average. The conversion shut-down occurs in July. Congratulations to Ford for a better idea.

You must be tired of reading about the mythical three-martini lunch. But I was reading somewhere that even if the drinks were allowed to be deductible on the tax return, the government would still make 69¢ (at 23¢ per), because of alcohol taxes, I presume. So much for sin-tax!

A combination of congratulations and condolences seems to be in order for Minnehaha Elementary School at 51st and 40th Avenue South in Minneapolis. Congrats on 50 years of educational experiences, a jubilee that was celebrated last Sunday. Condolences if the on-again, off-again decision to close, winds up on-again. Right now the neighborhood is still up in the air... not really sure. The School Board is apparently awaiting a court ruling on its desegregation plans before taking final action. It has already recommended closing Howe Elementary at 38th and 43rd Avenue South.

Have you been following the successes that local athlete Paul Molitor is enjoying in his rookie year as shortstop for the Milwaukee Brewers. The St. Mark's, Cretin and U of M alum is currently batting .301, has 18 RBI's and three home-runs. Not a bad beginning, not bad at all.

Belated congratulations to Fred Lang of 4736 Coffey Lane (Mpls.) on the very fine story Robert T. Smith did on him recently in the Sunday Tribune. "Mr. Kindergarten" had been the subject of a feature in the Villager several years ago. Now this innovative maverick of a teacher is retiring. I'm sure many, many budding students got a good start and a great attitude on learning from this kindly gentleman. I hope God didn't throw away the mold when he made him. The world needs some more teachers like Fred Lang.

I see that there is now one millionaire in every 1200 in the U.S.A., 200,000 of them in all. Stick around a while longer, fellows and girls, and we'll all make it. Only by that time it probably won't mean a thing. Inflationary forces will be such that only billionaires will rate any special attention. So forget the miserly approach and live a little. But then, if nobody saves any more who will be there to give us a loan?

Speaking of inflation, I also noticed that 54% named it as our number one problem in a recent Gallup poll. And when they were asked which party could do a better job of solving this or any of the many other problems mentioned, do you know which party they preferred? "No difference" came out ahead with 34%, then the Democrats at 32%, Republicans at 22%. But since October of 1977, the Demos had dropped six points and the G.O.P. had climbed eight notches from 14%. Looks like there's a bit of "what's the use" cynicism represented in those figures. Lots of selling to be done in the coming months... if anyone can make the public believe any more.

You deserve a few parting pilfered punchlines... as much as I can find room for. I like the cartoon I saw of a gunman peeking out the window while his wife wailed: "I can't take it anymore... the burglaries... the break-ins... running from the cops... hiding out in flea-ridden motels... Charlie, you've got to quit the FBI."

Also the cartoon of two Madison admen looking out of their office window at the granite canyon below and the sky above. "Well, Charles," says one of them, "it looks like a new and improved morning."

This doesn't happen at the Villager but we heard about a weekly newspaper that received the following communication from one of its readers: "Dear Sir: When I subscribed a year ago you stated that if I was not satisfied at the end of a year, I could have my money back. Well, I would like to have it back. On second thought, to save you trouble, you may apply it to my next year's subscription."

And a final thought—Establish an emergency fund and you'll be surprised how quickly an emergency develops.

How to get a grip on summer.

Mac welcomes Senior citizens to 'Elderhostel'

Macalester College will be one of 18 colleges and universities in Minnesota participating in the Elderhostel Program this summer. Elderhostel, a program for persons over 60, is a combination of the best traditions of education and hostelling. Inspired by the youth hostels and folk schools of Europe, the program provides one-week experiences of campus life and academic stimulation.

Elderhostel at Macalester will be held June 11-17. Courses to be offered are Diamonds in the Rough: the Significance of our National Pastime, which will explore the meaning of baseball in American life; Myths Ancient and Modern; and American Architecture: St. Paul's Historic Summit Avenue.

For more information, contact Kay Ziegler or Marji Toensing at 647-6330.

Two years ago, on May 11, 1976, Citizens for Community Action held its first rally to protest planned abortions at its Ford Parkway facility. This was the scene in front of PPM state headquarters on May 11, 1978, as CCA took advantage of the increased traffic a PPM-sponsored workshop on "Sexuality and Aging" created inside, by increasing its own traffic outside. At least one picketer on the pavement continues to be the order of the day, six days a week.

Truth-in-housing ordinance to aid city, protect homebuyer

A homebuyer's need to know if he's making a sound investment and a city's need to maintain its housing stock may both be answered by a program being planned for St. Paul.

Work is proceeding on the draft of a truth-in-housing ordinance which will require that a homebuyer be given a report on the condition of the home he's buying, according to a recent announcement from Mayor Latimer's office.

In the program envisioned for St. Paul, a private, certified inspector would look over a single or double family home being offered for sale and evaluate it on a form provided by the city. The form would list any major structural defects and any items which might pose a threat to the health and safety of the buyer.

Although the ordinance would not stipulate that a home be brought up to code before it can be sold, it would require the seller to let the buyer know what kind of shape the house is in prior to the sale.

Since the evaluation forms will be filed with the city, a clearer picture of the condition of the city's housing stock should also emerge over a period of time. This housing data will be used in planning for loan and grant programs, setting up rehabilitation areas, and applying for federal and state housing assistance.

The inspections, which will be conducted by private appraisers, are expected to cost about $50. Proponents of the ordinance contend that the benefits both to the homebuyer and to the city should outweigh the extra cost.

A workable ordinance will be introduced soon and public hearings will be held.

It was a close encounter of the political kind that found members of the Lexington-Hamline Community Council, who wanted to restore the Selby Avenue bridge, at odds with St. Paul's Public Works Department, which wanted to tear it down and replace it with what LHCC President Karl Grahek termed, "a modern concrete monstrosity. The bridge over the Short Line tracks was recently re-opened to motorized traffic under nine tons.

Metro Council gives preliminary nod to Great River Road route

The Minnesota Department of Transportation's (Mn/DOT's) proposed alignment of the metropolitan area portion of the "Great River Road" is consistent with regional plans and policies, according to a recent announcement by the Metropolitan Council, but further discussion on the Twin Cities route has been recommended.

The Great River Road is a project which has been approved by the U.S. Congress to provide a scenic, recreational and historic roadway along the Mississippi River from Lake Itasca to the Gulf of Mexico. Minnesota's portion of the road runs 426 miles from the source of the river at Lake Itasca to Point Douglas, south of the Twin Cities near Prescott, Wis.

The council reviewed the portion of the road which would run from Interstate Hwy. 694 in Fridley to Point Douglas; then asked Mn/DOT to study alternative routes for a Minneapolis portion of the road which would run along the river's edge from Chicago Ave. through Cedar-Riverside to West River Road.

The council said the east side of the river should be considered as the route because it would provide access to such scenic areas as the revitalized Main St. commercial center, Hennepin Island, scenic overlooks of St. Anthony Falls and restored historic buildings.

St. Paul has also asked Mn/DOT to consider alternative routes for the St. Paul portion of the road. The city has recommended that Mn/DOT designate Shepard Road between Fort Snelling and downtown St. Paul as the route instead of the proposed alignment along Hwy. 13 and Lilydale Pkwy.

The council said Mn/DOT has stated it will consider both sides of the river in the St. Paul area in preparing a master plan for the road. The plan will describe in detail specific improvements needed for the route in the metropolitan area.

The Mn/DOT planning process for the Great River Road project involves several stages. The Metropolitan Council will review all metropolitan area projects and recommendations at each stage. The state's federal allocation for the Minnesota portion of the road, which will use primarily existing roadways, is $19.5 million over a three-year period. Federal funds will cover 70 percent of the cost with 30 percent coming from state and local sources.

Paper drive set

The Immanuel Lutheran Church Hi-League will sponsor a paper drive from 8:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. Saturday, June 17 at the church, 104 S. Snelling Ave. Only phone books and newspapers will be accepted.

Divorce seminar offered at Merriam Community Center

"Perspectives on Divorce," a three-session program for persons and families involved in divorce, will be held from 7:00 to 9:15 p.m. on three successive Tuesday evenings, June 6, 13, and 20 at the Merriam Park Community Center, 2000 St. Anthony Ave.

The topics to be discussed are: Session 1—Reality of Personal Loss; Session 2—Reality of the Legal Structure; and Session 3—Reality of Parenting. A separate program for children will be offered during session 3.

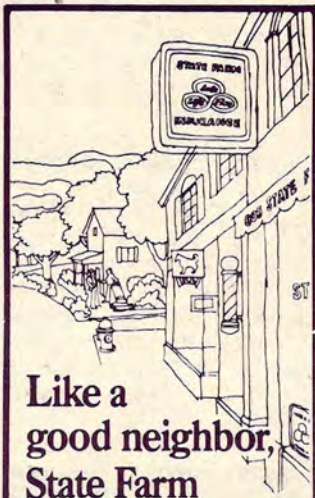

The free program is sponsored by the Ramsey County District Court and presented by the St. Paul, Catholic and Jewish Family Services. For further information, call 222-3001.

Israel's anniversary honored in photo show at JCC

"Jerusalem the Golden," a photo exhibit by noted Israeli photographer Ahron Zuckerman, will open at the St. Paul Jewish Community Center at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, May 31.

Sponsored by the Tarbut Club of the JCC senior high department, the exhibit honors the 30th anniversary of Israel and will include 30 photo murals depicting the events surrounding the 1967 Six-Day War. An informal discussion and reception will follow in the JCC's adult lounge.

"Jerusalem the Golden" will continue through the first half of June. For more information, call the Center (698-0651).

SELL HOME YOURSELF?

I'm sure you've heard it said: "Why should I sell my home through a REALTOR? I can sell it myself and save a lot of money."

Right? . . . Wrong.

This kind of thinking usually turns out to be financially unwise. The buyers will usually start by mentally deducting the commission, and then start negotiating from there. On the average, a homeowner saves NO money when he sells his own home, in fact, the opposite is true. Studies over a ten-year period show that the net proceeds from owner-sold property are LESS than the REALTOR-sold piece of real estate, even after the payment of commission.

As a private seller you're at a great disadvantage in the intricate areas of financing, negotiating and protecting yourself from all sorts of do-it-yourself pitfalls. You've got a lot invested in your home. It makes sense to market your property with JAMBOR REALTORS. We'll sell it for you—without hitches—for the best price, and in the shortest amount of time.

James Laurie, Bookseller opens

by Roger Fuller

After operating a rare book store above a bakery in Stillwater for five years, James Laurie decided to open a second store in St. Paul at 243 S. Snelling Ave.

"I had thought there was a need for a store of this type in St. Paul for a long time," he said. The store, which trades under the name of James Laurie, Bookseller, deals in rare and out-of-print books, especially literature and criticism.

Until he opened his St. Paul store a few weeks back, Laurie was primarily a mail order dealer. "About 90 percent of my business was handled through my catalogues which were distributed to college libraries, collectors and other dealers," he said.

Laurie got into the business the way most collectors do. He first began collecting books in his home in Stillwater, then took over the second floor of the bakery after he had amassed more books than available shelf space.

His first professional contact with books was in California where he spent two years after he finished college at St. Olaf's. "I was working at the Tro Harper Book Store in San Francisco when I was offered the position of manager of a new book store out there," he said. "I turned it down because I had already decided to return to Minnesota to go to grad school."

"I had applied to grad school at San Francisco State, but didn't follow through," he said. "It was the period of all the riots on campus and I didn't need the interruptions."

Today the largest portion of Laurie's book stock consists of those that are out-of-print. "It's the decision of the publisher whether or not a book is allowed to go out-of-print," he explained. "If an out-of-print book has value, it becomes all the more valuable with time and the increasing difficulty of finding it in book stores."

According to Laurie, publishers periodically order a new printing of previously out-of-print books if their value reaches a certain level. The reprinting in turn reduces the value of the older books. However, a first edition of a book by a well known author is immune from the deflation a reprinting usually brings about.

Laurie explained that when the sale of new book has run its course, the unsold volumes are "remaindered," a trade term which means the publisher sells them for a fraction of the listed price to another party who passes them on to a book store, which then sells them for a discount. Books bought in this manner can become very valuable if the author later becomes an established writer.

"However, a book such as Hemingway's Old Man and the Sea will never become valuable because 50,000 copies were run off in the first printing," he said. "The first edition of the first book by an author who later becomes famous can be a good buy because there usually aren't many printed. A publisher is taking a big risk with an untied author. He can't run up his costs with a lot of leftover books no one wants."

One aspect of the rare book trade which especially interests Laurie is the signed edition, in which a few copies are individually signed by the author. "For instance, we have a volume of H.L. Mencken's Prejudices," he said. "It says here 190 were signed by the author and this one's number 75."

Another aspect of the rare book trade is the bound set of volumes which includes an original manuscript in the author's handwriting. "The 22-volume collected works of Ralph Waldo Emerson had a printing of 600," Laurie said. "Each set had a piece of original manuscript which could range anywhere from a laundry list to something of value. In the edition we had, Emerson writes about his attitude toward politicians."

When James Laurie is away from the store, his wife, Mary, is in charge. "Running a store like this is more than one person can handle," Mary said. "He has to go to estate sales, give appraisals, and keep up with what's happening in the trade."

For her husband, that particular trade is a lot more than just a livelihood. "When a person becomes a collector of anything, he is dealing with something he can relate to," Laurie said. "It helps his establish his identity and makes him feel he is a part of something."

Altered states of consciousness discussed May 30

Some 400 trees will be planted at the College of St. Catherine during the next five years to help make up for the large number of trees lost to Dutch elm disease. The college, long proud of its beautiful campus, was cited in 1975 by the Society of Professional Grounds Management for having one of the five best-kept campuses in the U.S. To maintain that reputation, the college began planting maple, Ohio hawthorn, linden, pine, and ash trees earlier this month. Seen planting a maple in front of Derham hall are (left) grounds supervisor Ed Bies and groundskeeper Dan Kayser.

This week's Talking Out of School Traveling Trophy, the "Having Their Cake and Eating It Too Award," goes out to the St. Paul Federation of Teachers for a resolution its members recently passed opposing performance objectives for teachers.

For some time now, teachers have been able to wrap themselves in a mystique, asking us to look at them and their jobs in several different ways at once. We are first told that they are professionals; yet they also unionize themselves and, in many instances, hold to the letter of the contract when asked to do something additional for children. (To be fair, we must point out that this group is a very small minority, though their actions often influence the majority.)

The resolution which the teachers passed provided that "the Federation will not support the implementation of...any plan which has performance objectives as the model for the PER Instructional Plan."

Talking Out of School interprets this to mean the Federation will oppose any attempt by the community to set performance objectives for classroom teachers. However, we believe that the community, as the consumers in our educational system, has every right to demand some reasonable form of accountability from those who are entrusted with the educational future of our children.

We have a problem with presenting this week's trophy, though, since we're not sure how many teachers agree with the Federation's position, and consequently, how many trophies will have to be made. Therefore, we're asking those in agreement with the Federation to follow these simple, step-by-step directions:

- 1) go to your local grocery store and purchase one package of 32-ounce cake mix.
- 2) Proceed to the school district's central commissary (at a time to be announced at a later date) and following the directions on the back of the box, bake that cake.
- 3) Don't frost it, however. We'll provide the facilities for having it bronzed, and across the top, we'll have inscribed the word, "PROFESSIONAL," thereby insuring its preservation, even at classroom temperatures.

Unfortunately, you won't be able to consume your creation, but then, there are others who aren't always able to have their cake and eat it too.

TRAVELING TROPHY

WHAT'S GOOD?

A recent "refresher" weekend at the Concordia Language Village with about 30 Webster Magnet grade school French students, that's what's good. Though the chaperone's French was refreshed very little, the knowledge relearned by students and chaperone alike was much more fundamental—knowledge about people and human development.

Students are complicated, emotional, intelligent, developing individuals. Experiences that taught this important lesson: The boy you disciplined one night for his part in a pillow fight you hugged the next night because he had a stomach ache and was homesick; The 12 boys in your cabin who seemed to be by and large interested in everything except learning, then got excited about a self-developed French skit and were filled with joy and self-esteem because they received an ovation from their fellow campers and teachers.

Teachers must have a commitment to children and their development; the maturity to assert external discipline, and the ability to help build self responsibility, to communicate knowledge, and to create learning experiences. Those good teachers are in our schools—as they were at French camp. However, even the best teachers can only handle a manageable load. They can adequately teach and help with the development of a finite number of students, each with his or her own individual strengths and weaknesses.

Teaching can be and must be the role of all of us. An example: The bus driver to camp understood the value of positive reinforcement; she complimented the students for their good behavior. Parents and guardians are the most important teachers; only they can contribute fundamentally to many developmental needs.

WHAT'S NEEDED? Continued support for school programs such as elementary school French; continued support for class sizes that permit teachers to effectively teach; parents who are involved with the schools and their children; all of us joining in a learning/teaching society.

WHAT'S GOOD? A school system which gives priority to learning math and English, the development of self-esteem and a learning orientation...but also supports programs such as foreign language instruction; teachers and parents who care and have skills to support and teach. But most importantly, those very special vital students—especially "les garçons de Soufflenheim."

One of the great zoos of the world?

Minnesota's new zoo meets its public

by George Dixon

Beverly Rongren, a staff member of the new Minnesota Zoological Garden with the jawbreaking title of Director of Educational and Interpretive Services, is filling out a research questionnaire for Great Zoos of the World, a book to be published by a Swiss firm.

"They wrote us a letter and said that they had been made aware that this was going to be one of the great zoos of the world and would we please provide them with some information," she off-handedly explains as we sit in an office in the administrative wing of the new zoo on the southern edge of the Twin Cities, just barely skirting an explosion of frenzied suburban development.

There is nothing immodest in the remark; Rongren and other staffers fully expect the new zoo to be an experience, an event of both intellectual and sensual excitement, a place to compete with the best of zoos and set standards of animal management and exhibition for years to come. There is a calm confidence here that Minnesota's new zoo will be, in the zoo world, a very big deal.

The slow loris' round eyes and frosted hair makes it a very appealing primate. This loris gets its name from its slow and deliberate movements. These animals can be found in the nocturnal exhibit area of the Tropics at the new zoo.

The opening of the MZG, a $30-million complex of elaborately simulated animal habitats and educational and research facilities, is the culmination of a long process. There was talk initially of a need for a new zoo as early as 1961. In 1966 a metropolitan area zoo was proposed after studies indicated that St. Paul's Como Park Zoo could not be expanded into a major zoo facility. A year later the first zoo bill floundered then failed in the state legislature. Another attempt failed by one vote in 1971.

Finally in 1973 a zoo bill succeeded. Money was quickly appropriated, the design was finalized, and ground was broken on a 500-acre Apple Valley site donated by Dakota County.

Now, almost four years later, the zoo is open. It was still quiet out here in the remaining weeks before the first wave of an expected two million annual visitors pass through the gates. The metropolitan area is evident by only a thin band of red haze on the northern horizon. The tranquility of the wooded, rolling landscape and the subdued functional architecture give the site an atmosphere of calm precision. It is obvious that great care was taken to make the buildings fit in with the natural topography of the land—a thinking man's zoo, for lack of a more descriptive phrase. People expecting Valley Fair with animals will be disappointed.

Rongren, in all seriousness, tells me: "People, we hope, will go away with a feeling of their oneness with nature and the need to preserve natural things and resources. The stress will not be necessarily on the animals or the plants, but on how all these things flow into a balance."

If that is possible, if people can react to a zoo as something other than one of a number of planned amusements, one gets the feeling it might happen here.

Other staff members I spoke with echoed Rongren's sentiments. There is much talk of the zoo's philosophy and of demonstrating to other zoos how it should be done. Almost a sense of urgency, as if all possible resources are being marshalled to make a meaningful statement on wildlife before it disappears completely.

"An environmental education, conservation, research and recreation center of national scope," as the zoo's press kit proclaims. Not just another zoo.

The hope that people will not just drive out here, park their cars, spend a few hours gawking at some of nature's exotica and then drive off, thinking about their next weekend diversion at some other entertainment complex, has been translated into a host of intricate and unusual exhibit mechanisms.

Technology and state of the art design are omnipresent throughout the zoo. Animals are viewable from numerous levels and angles and, in some cases, in the privacy of simulated dens by video cameras. The beaver lodge is bugged in this way, as is the polar bear den. Maternity wards, hidden away in the off-limits, internal services area where it is hoped that quiet and privacy will encourage natural rearing (most zoo born animals must be hand-reared), are also scrutinized by cameras.

The "MZG network," as Rongren calls it, has a 35 channel potential which is used to broadcast animal intimacies to monitors in "graphics clusters" placed strategically around the site. The system also has a research and educational function. It will be used in conjunction with extensive teaching activities planned to complement the exhibits. One wing of the main building is devoted to classrooms and laboratories and includes a studio where presentations will be taped and sent out to the region's schools. "The whole communications base here," says Steve Schuster, who oversees marketing and public relations, "is fantastic; this isn't Buck Rodgers, this is for real."

A telemetry system will also make it possible to monitor the animals' vital signs. Some of this information will be fed into ISIS

(the International Special Inventory System), a sort of computer dating bank for zoo animals which will be headquartered here. ISIS, which has been in existence for several years, collects information on animal health and sexual proclivity from about 100 zoos, private breeders and aquariums, setting up long-distance trusts for unrequited zoo life and thus helps to insure a stable breeding population of future attractions.

(Animals trapped in the wild make poor exhibitionists, so most of MZG's residents are zoo born. Two notable exceptions are the beluga whales, trapped last August in the Canadian arctic. The whales became a minor media event in a slow news summer and quickly cashed in on their new found stardom. Already they ham it up for workmen and others wandering by their underwater viewing windows.)

Much of the technology used by the zoo will be unseen, falling into the realm of "animal management," one aspect of the zoo that associate director Brad House feels may be the best in the world.

The physical and mental well-being of the zoo's animals was a critical factor in the design. Happy animals make better exhibits loosely paraphrases the rationale behind the zoo's physical layout. Thus much of the zoo site will be devoted to making the animals happy.

The sheer size of the zoo will help; most major zoos vary in size from about 125 to 250 acres—MZG's 500 acres should provide plenty of room for the "internal services" needed to maintain a couple of thousand well-adjusted animals.

Still, the MZG is a zoo, and despite all the talk of animal psychology and ecological awareness, it was built for the purpose of having people watch animals. In this respect it will probably be a revelation to those of us used to "postage stamp zoos," as St. Paul's Como Zoo has been called. (Como, a free municipal zoo, is an enjoyable way to spend an afternoon and will continue to be so, but it can't compare with MZG in terms of scope and physical spaciousness.)

The MZG is actually four complete zoos, encompassing 60 types of mammals, 120 types of birds, 30 types of reptiles, 75 types of fish and 24 types of assorted amphibians and invertebrates—all ensconced in an imaginative, almost bewildering array of artfully assembled fake showcases.

One of the zoo's biggest selling points is the fact that everything can be seen in heated indoor comfort, including the sprawling Northern Trek, where large northern hemisphere animals (siberian tigers, bactrian camels, moose, mongolian wild horses and others) will roam mini-steppes, prairieland and marshes under the watchful eyes of visitors gliding silently by in an elevated monorail.

The Northern Trek and other exhibits are zoogeographic, meaning simply that people won't see just an indiscriminate mix of species. The animals in each exhibit are from particular geographic regions, predominantly northern hemisphere, and represent a sort of microcosm of what the region is like, or once was like, in the wild.

In one exhibit the zoo abandons the frozen north and dips spectacularly into the tropics of southeast Asia. To walk into the oriental tropics exhibit out of the lifeless, numbingly cold Minnesota winter is an exercise in breathtaking disorientation.

The freestanding roof shelters an acre and a half of jungle plants, ravines, babbling brooks, and 80 different species of swimming, crawling, leaping, flying creatures from places most people have never heard of. The concrete walkway which dizzily winds through this surrealistic, climate-controlled, sky-lighted landscape allows visitors a genuinely intimate view of the inmates. In some of the exhibit areas, the low waist-level walls of glass and concrete between the viewers and the viewed seem designed to confuse the issue of exactly who is on display—a reflection of the zoo's attempt to minimize cages, bars and the rigid constraints of more traditional zoos.

"If you put animals in the right setting, then people will perceive those animals in the correct perspective," explains Rongren in a fairly concise summation of "new zoo" philosophy. The right setting in this exhibit required a lot of painstakingly faked scenery and an ingenious manipulation of viewing and exhibit areas which may or may not inspire the correct perspective, but which is, in any event, a visual feast well worth the trip out here along with the zoo's modest ticket prices ($2.50 for adults, which may be one of the biggest bargains around).

The other exhibits, while more subdued than the awesome profusion of sight and sound in the tropic building, are equally impressive. The 560,000 gallon aquarium home of the now famous beluga whales is equipped with hydrophones to pick up their aquatic conversations and underwater viewing windows that actually extend over the viewer's head, making it possible to look up and see whales peering down at you—something that has to be seen to be believed.

A nocturnal animal exhibit, an eerie cave-like area that simulates night during the day and vice-versa, will house night creatures going about their business under artificial moonlight. The Minnesota exhibit, a sequential microcosm of prairie and north woods, will display 200 species of "local" wildlife in a reconstructed Minnesota landscape bereft of snowmobiles and RV's.

Wednesday, May 24, 1978

Powerful and beautiful, Siberian tigers are exhibited in a four-acre wooded ravine of mixed forest in the Northern Trek area of the new zoo. The Siberian is the largest of all tigers, and sadly, an endangered species. There are only about 300 of these magnificent creatures living in the wild today.

Then there's the aforementioned monorailed Northern Trek (which can also be walked), an exhibit of Japanese macaques—snow monkeys, as they're called, a children's zoo, polar, temperate and tropical aquaria...a list of highlights that would seemingly eliminate any possibility of boredom.

So, Minnesota has entered the zoo age. Anticipation has been running high for awhile now and it's finally happened. Few people will be disappointed; no one will be indifferent. It is a very unusual place.

"People are always amazed when they come out here and see the facilities for the first time," commented a staffer—the validity of this remark is apparent on even a cursory visit. Perhaps the best way to describe the MZG is to say that all the best zoo ideas have been brought together in one place.

There will be problems—the prospects of avoiding traffic jams and the zoo's impact on the surrounding area are uncertain and some people may not know how to act in exhibits like the Tropic building, where the impulse to reach out and tickle a red panda or river otter may prove irresistible—but with all new endeavors, especially those as refined and complex as the MZG, the kinks will have to be worked out over time.

Those of you who don't make it out here can read about it in Great Zoos of the World.

LEARNING DISABILITIES PROGRAM

The Jewish Community Center will again offer a program for children with special learning disabilities this summer. The program this year is made possible through the JCC's "Michael Falk Memorial Fund." Michael, who helped make the 1977 program a success, was a group leader with a tremendous understanding and compassion for children. He asked his parents, prior to his death in November, 1977, to establish this fund in his memory so these special children would have even more opportunities to learn to use all of their skills.

A shady business blossoms in area

Sponsors of a bulk discount tree buying program say their recent drive will mean that more than 60 trees will grace area lawns this summer. That's the number of area homeowners who purchased trees through the program, which was co-sponsored by the Randolph Heights Neighborhood Association and a group known as the District 14 Coalition.

Janet Johnson of the RHNA reported receipts totaling $2,168 and "a very busy telephone." Peter Kenyon of the District 14 Coalition negotiated the tree purchase with Margolies Brothers Nursery in Roseville.

All 60 trees were delivered on May 20 to the doorsteps of their buyers, who were responsible for planting the new shade tree on their own property.

The response to the drive has prompted the two sponsoring groups to plan another purchase next fall. Area residents who want more information should call Johnson at 699-2648 or Kenyon at 698-0014.

Homecroft carnival

Homecroft School will hold its annual Carnival from 4:00 to 8:00 p.m. Friday, June 2 at the school, 1845 Sheridan Ave. The festivities will include a magic act, a book fair, drawings and a moonwalk.

St. Kate's student gets 'U' fellowship

Mary Kappel, a junior chemistry major at the College of St. Catherine, was recently awarded a 1978 Lando Summer Research Fellowship from the University of Minnesota's chemistry department. She was one of nine undergraduate students, recruited nationally, to receive the honor.

Beginning on June 13, and continuing for a period of 10 weeks, Kappel will work with a university research group in the new area of vibrational circular dichroism, a new spectroscopic technique that permits one to obtain information about the arrangement of atoms in molecules.

Kappel was recently elected to Phi Beta Kappa, the nation's oldest honor society, and to Iota Sigma Pi, the national honor society in chemistry.

Sister Agnes Pierre Iten, C.S.J., a teacher at St. Mark's Catholic School for the past 15 years, will soon be leaving the school to teach at St. Anthony's School in Kailua, Oahu, Hawaii. A prayer service will be held in her honor at 7:30 p.m. Monday, June 5 at the Church of St. Mark, Dayton and Moore St. A reception will follow in the school cafeteria.

Letters to the editor are always welcome, but must be signed to be considered for publication. Please include your address and phone number with the letter so its source may be verified. To avoid the unkind cut of the editor's pencil, please keep your letters brief and to the point. Letters may be brought or mailed to: The Highland Villager, 790 So. Cleveland Ave., St. Paul, MN 55116.

OVERSIGHT CITED

Dear sir,

In the May 10, 1978 edition of the Highland Villager, you published an article about area students who turned a profit from Junior Achievement. I felt badly that you missed my daughter in your article. I'm a proud father.

Virginia M. Veith, 1805 Laurel Ave., was chosen Best Vice President of Personnel by the Twin City Personnel Association. She is the recipient of a trip to the National Junior Achievement Conference in Bloomington, Indiana, August 6 to 11 and a $500 scholarship from Gould, Inc. In addition, her company, Shirts, was chosen "Company of the Year." She is 17, and a graduating senior at St. Agnes High School.

I am sorry that you did not include her in your article, since I regularly read the Villager which is delivered to my door, and I do shop in Highland Village quite often.

JVS sets annual meeting May 24

The 32nd annual meeting of the Jewish Vocational Service will be held at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, May 24 in the Veterans Room of the Jewish Community Center, 1375 St. Paul Ave. Stuart Marofsky, JVS President, will preside, and Sherman Marrinson, Chairman of the Nominating Committee, will present the slate of officer nominees for 1978-79.

The Jewish Vocational Service, with offices at 1821 University Ave., provides such services to the Jewish community as educational and vocational counseling, psychological and aptitude testing, job placement, scholarship services and group guidance. JVS administers the North Star Workshop, Leisure League Workshop, Career Guidance and Training Center and Career Opportunities Preparation for Employment (COPE).

Soap from scratch

The Ramsey County Historical Society will present an old-fashioned soap-making demonstration from 1:00 to 4:00 p.m. Sunday, May 28 at the Gibb's Farm Museum, 2079 Larpentur Ave.

Staff members will make the soap over an open fire and will be available to answer questions about the process. Admission is $1.50 for adults, $1.25 for senior citizens and 50 cents for children age 12 and under.

Ed. note: Sorry about that, George. You too, Virginia. We shirtainly didn't mean to overlook anyone. Fact is, it was an oversight on the part of JA, which apparently distributed its news releases to various Twin Cities community newspapers on the basis of school rather than home address. Anyway, we're happy to oblige by giving recognition where recognition is obviously due. Congratulations—to both of you.

SISTER CAROLYN TO RETIRE

Last year about this time, a notice appeared in this paper announcing a Mass, program and reception being held in honor of Sister Carolyn Wittman, principal of St. Mark's School, on the occasion of her 50th anniversary as a Sister of Saint Joseph of Carondelet. This year she is retiring as principal of St. Mark's, a position she has held for the past 20 years.

For those of you who don't know Sister Carolyn, your reaction to her resigning might be: "Well, isn't it about time? She must be past retirement age." For those of you who do know her, your reaction might be: "I can't believe it. She doesn't look or act any older than when I had her years ago."

Both statements are correct. Sister Carolyn is past retirement age, but no one would believe it by talking to her or watching her in action. She has chosen to retire at this time to pursue her other interests more fully. In the past 50 years as teacher and principal, her keen interest in art, theater, gardening and reading always took second place to her dedication to her students, their families and the many professional organizations to which she belonged.

Families at St. Mark's are happy for Sister. Yes, happy that she is in good health to enjoy her many interests more fully. However, they are sad for themselves. They will miss her firm but loving guidance in the school.

Many present students, as well as their parents and grandparents who had Sister Carolyn, had hoped that she would still be principal for their graduation. The class of 1978 has that final distinction.

A BETTER IDEA

More than $7,000 has already been spent this spring by the Ford Motor Company to upgrade the playing field of the Highland-Hilltopper Little League. Improvements to date include: smoothing out the driveway with several loads of gravel, adding to the infield surface to improve the drainage system, replacing old scoreboards and repairing, painting or replacing bleachers.

On behalf of the members of the little league board of directors, the parents, and especially the ballplayers, I would like to take this opportunity to thank all the people at Ford. Their contribution has greatly added to the success of our program.

Lower your air-conditioning costs — have us install a Nutone Attic Ventilator Fan

Summer heat is also reduced in homes without air-conditioning

Intense summer attic heat often builds up to 140°F or more. As this heat presses down on ceiling areas, it warms the entire house. A Powerful NuTone Attic Ventilator Fan can flush out this superheated air...reducing attic heat to a temperature approaching that outside. Control by Humidstat or Thermostat may be installed for more efficient operation at a minimum additional cost.

The 1978 Highland-Hilltopper Little League season has yet to begin, but improvements to the field worth an estimated $7,000 are now complete. The Ford Motor Company, which donated the acreage to the little league over 25 years ago, supplied the workers, equipment and materials to complete the job before the season opens next month. Pictured above as little league try-outs resumed are, left to right: Bob Marrs, Ford's Industrial Relations Manager; Chris Georgantones, Highland-Hilltopper Treasurer; Larry Paul, Vice President of the league's Mustang Division; Jim O'Connor, League President; and Harlon Amundson, Ford's Production Engineer Representative.

The center will offer an eight-week dog obedience class from 7:00 to 8:30 p.m. on Wednesday evenings beginning May 31. Any breed of dog is accepted, provided it is over six-months-old. The cost is $18.00, payable in advance by May 30.

Jacket Day set for Met

Two Twins promotions planned for this week should finally give area baseball fans something to cheer about.

Cal's club will sponsor the fourth annual Jacket Day on Sunday, May 28 when the boys from Bloomington meet the Kansas City Royals in a 1:15 p.m. contest. Any youngster age 16 and under who buys any priced ticket will receive a free jacket, made of sturdy vinyl with the Twins' script lettering in bright red trimmed in blue. The jackets will be available in two sizes and distributed at the stadium gates.

The Twins will open the gates at 11:15 a.m., two hours before the game, to ease the distribution of jackets and to make sure that the more than 35,000 expected fans get to see the entire game.

The first Ladies, Family and Senior Citizens' Day of the season is set for Thursday, May 25 with the Twins taking on the Texas Rangers in a 1:15 p.m. game. For this and every Thursday home game throughout the season, all ladies, men over 65 and youngsters age 16 and under may buy any ticket for half price, provided it's purchased at the ballpark that day.

Registration opens June 12 for area tennis lessons

Beginning and intermediate tennis lessons will be offered by the St. Paul Division of Parks and Recreation from June 26 through August 4 at 5:30, 6:30 and 7:30 p.m. at the following area parks: Mondays at Merriam, Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursdays at Highland and Fridays at Linwood. The fees for the six one-hour lessons are $12.00 for beginners and $16.00 for intermediates.

Registration will be held from June 12-23—by mail or in person—at Midway Stadium, 1000 N. Snelling Ave., St. Paul, 55108. If registering by mail, state name, address, phone number, time and location preferred (first and second choice) and either the beginner or intermediate class. Make your check payable to the City of St. Paul. For more information, call the Special Services Office at 645-5631.

You make me feel like dancing... and twirling?

The Palace Playground dance and baton twirling students, under the direction of Pat Spurr, will present their annual recital at 7:00 p.m. Monday, June 5 in the Highland Park Senior High School auditorium.

The program will include tap, ballet, jazz and acrobatic dancing from beginner to advanced levels. A special feature will be variations in the art of baton twirling including rope, cape, flag and two-baton. The theme of the show is (what else?) "You make us feel like dancing and twirling."

John D. Turner has been elected treasurer of Chimera Theatre's Board of Directors for 1978-79. President of Mid America State Bank of Highland Park, Turner lives with his family at 1862 Fairmount Ave.

Registration opens for Camp Superkids

Registration is now open for Camp Superkids, a summer camp for children with asthma who might otherwise be denied a regular camping experience.

Two sessions are offered through the YMCA Camp Ihduhapi on the shores of Lake Independence in Loretto, Minnesota—a 12-day session, July 10-21, for ages 8 to 15; and a six-day session, July 16-21, for campers ages 7 to 9.

The Superkids program is approved by the American Camping Association. For applications, call the Ramsey County Lung Association at 224-4901.

Hart Johnson (left) receives one of three first place plaques he earned recently in racquetball competition. Making the presentation is Steve Speth, the director of the Rochester Minnesota YMCA Tournament, in which Hart captured the boys' 14 and under state crown. Hart was also the only double winner in the International Racquetball Association's Northern Regional Tournament in Neenah, Wisconsin, taking both the men's "B" and the boys' 15 and under division. Hart is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Johnson, 1961 Morgan Ave.

Much of the music for the production was composed by Riccardo. With musical accompaniment, Lehman will read from a variety of sources including haiku poetry and the writing of Mark Twain. Jorgenson will express through mime and dance-like movement the "journey into the toy room that is hidden within each adult."

Admission is $3.00, $2.00 for students and senior citizens.

Children's Theatre grows up with Sheridan's 'The Rivals'

Richard Brinsley Sheridan's 1775 adult comedy The Rivals is now showing at the Children's Theatre Company, 2400 Third Ave. S., Mpls.

Produced and directed by CTC Artistic Director John Clarke Donahue, the play will be performed at 8:00 p.m. Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays through July 8. There will also be three matinees at 1:00 p.m. Fridays, May 26, June 2 and 9.

The Rivals, the second of two CTC productions this season designed for adult audiences, will play in repertory with The Pied Piper of Hamelin through June 10 and with Punch and Judy & The Three Sillies after that date.

Sheridan's popular and successful comedy of wit and intrigue follows the adventures of Captain Jack Absolute, his rival Bob Acres, the romantic Lydia Languish, and many other characters involved in disguises, duels and the complications resulting from mistaken identity. Spicing the proceedings throughout is Mrs. Malaprop, whose amazing misuse of words as she makes pronouncements on manners, society and marriage introduced the term "malapropism" to the English Language.

The cast of The Rivals features Sara Schimke as Lydia Languish, Wendy Lehr as Mrs. Malaprop, George Muschamp as Sir Anthony Absolute, Gerald Drake as Captain Jack Absolute, Carl Beck as Bob Acres and Martin Ruben as Sir Lucius O'Trigger.

Reserved seating tickets for the evening performances are $6.95, $5.95 and $4.95, with discounts available for students, senior citizens and groups. General seating tickets for the three matinee performances are $3.45. For tickets, call the Children's Theatre Company box office at 874-0400 or any Dayton's ticket office.

The first part of the show will revolve around its spring theme, featuring such selections as "Singing in the Rain" and "Take Me Out To The Ball Game," a production number finale.

The second part will include a group of country western numbers based on music from well-known Broadway shows and movies. Shows represented include Paint Your Wagon, Oklahoma, Annie Get Your Gun, and Seven Brides for Seven Brothers, as well as random popular western songs.

The show will be colorfully costumed and will conclude with a country hoe down finale featuring 20 performers.

Nine area high school students received awards for their performance in the recent state-wide competition of the 1978 American Association of Teachers of German (AATG) national testing program.

Craig Peterson, Minnehaha Academy, won an all-expense-paid, four-week study trip to Germany. Craig will live with a German family and receive formal language instruction.

Spring Cleaning

Your car's surface can be clean with a regular car wash. But if you're concerned about actually improving your car's finish, we recommend our professional 3-step treatment. We:

1. remove oxidation and grime from your car's surface with a pre-wax cleaner
2. hand apply a high quality polish
3. buff on a hard finish sealer which protects your car from wind, weather, soot, salt and air pollutants.

WE DO

Highland's Angie Giuliani is still a big hit today

by Jane Rachner

Parents and grandparents of the 8 to 18 set share an oft-quoted lament: "Where have all the heroes gone?"

Youths have no models to admire, they say. Are they right? Certainly some recipients of today's fickle fame and inflated fortune are so lacking in character that they fail to satisfy the idealism of youth.

So what can we do about it? Perhaps the best we can do is to cherish heroes still around, those who attract admiration and respect because of what they are, not because of what they earn.

One such man is Angelo (Angie) Giuliani, whose achievements and personal charm have made him a hero from the start of his professional baseball career at age 19, throughout his years in the big leagues, and over the past 18 years as a scout for the Minnesota Twins and director of the Midwest Federal-Minnesota Twins Baseball Clinics.

Angie got his start on St. Paul sandlots under the auspices of the Parochial Baseball League, the American Legion, and the St. Paul Amateur Baseball Program. He was discovered by the Saints, developed into a brilliant performer, and rose to national fame as a catcher, first for the St. Louis Browns, then the Washington Senators, and finally rose to national fame as a catcher, for the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Unfortunately, in 1943 Angie sustained a back injury in a pre-season game against the Boston Red Sox. Within a year, the consequences of that injury forced him out of big league play. He then returned to St. Paul, settling in a home at 1985 Norfolk Avenue with his wife, Genevieve.

"It was on Norfolk that we raised our family," said Angie when I spoke with him recently in West St. Paul, right before the first of this season's Twins clinics. "Our oldest son, John, was born 38 years ago. Then came Mickey, Tim, and finally our daughter, Mary Jo.

"Ours was the first house in the Edgewood area outside of farmhouses," Angie continued, "and I was able to build a pigeon loft on our property and continue breeding homing pigeons, a hobby that I began at the age of 15 and have continued to this day. Right now I have 21 pairs that I train and race."

As Angie was talking, his colleagues and fellow Twins scouts, Bill Kane and John Mauer, arrived for the clinic. Bill is a former University of Minnesota baseball player, and John coached baseball for Hill Murray.

Angie and his two assistants have taught over 400,000 youngsters age 8 to 18 every spring and summer since 1961 in the clinics that Midwest Federal and the Minnesota Twins sponsor throughout the five-state midwest region. Dave Goltz, Gary Serum, Tommy Johnson, and Jerry Terrell were all products of these clinics.

Several good players came out of our own Highland Park area," said Angie. "John Morris, for instance. He's now pitching for Detroit. Rich Allen and Pete La Nasa came out of Highland, too. They had a lot of potential but didn't stay in the game.

"Of course, we didn't create the talent of any of these players. Talent is God-given. All we can do is spot it and enhance it."

It was talent like this that led Saints President Bob Connery to latch onto Angie in 1932 when the 19-year old was playing on the Northern Pacific team. When Bob signed Angie for the Saints, he described him to the St. Paul Daily News as "the sweetest-looking prospect I've had in years." Cedric Durst (former Yankee outfielder, then playing for the Saints) was equally enthusiastic. "Giuliani is one of those naturals," he said.

In 1933, a news story describing a banquet given in Angie's honor reported that "Giuliani spoke a few words and captivated the hearts of the youngsters... He had a difficult time tearing himself away, so completely was he surrounded by the boys."

When I met Angelo Giuliani at the clinic, I saw that he hasn't changed. He is still the kind of guy who never disappoints a youngster and never shatters a kid's illusions about baseball's big times.

After the clinic, Angie was surrounded by boys and girls with baseballs to be autographed. There was nothing perfunctory about the way he handled it. Everyone got a pat or a smile or a special word of encouragement or praise.

After most of the kids and their parents had left and Angie was getting into his car, a lone little straggler with a scrap of paper ran up to the car to get his autograph. Without the slightest impatience, Angie took as much time as with the others. Smiling broadly he said, "I saw you out there and you were great."

Those who attend the clinic at the Highland Hill-topper Little League field on Wednesday, May 24 at 6:30 p.m., or the clinic at Edgumbe playground the evening of June 7 will see the same Angie in action. "You participate very well," Angie will say. "You paid attention every minute." Indeed they do. And then, when Angie says, "It's time the grown-ups give you a hand," the kids get a round of well-deserved applause.

The main ingredients of this great ballplayer's charm are the courtesy that seems to be bred into his bones and an agile mind which habitually focuses on the other person's needs. This agility of mind stood him in good stead as a catcher and led one newspaper reporter to point out that Angie not only "caught nice ball" but also "kept the entire team on its toes with its deep bass chatter."

Angie himself had a hero he modeled his own career after—Babe Ruth.

Angie's interest in the Babe began almost as soon as he learned the word "baseball." Italian was Angie's first language because as a toddler he traveled to Italy to visit his grandmother, and with his mother and baby sister was trapped there for four and a half years during World War I.

Angie's mother didn't know a baseball from a bocci ball, but she was anxious to help her son get into the sport of the American hero he so admired, so she sewed him a knicker-kneed uniform and applied eight big letters on the front to spell BABE RUTH.

"But even without my mother's well-intentioned help I found it easy to identify with Babe Ruth," Angie said. "His nose was just like mine."

The next time you hear the complaint that young people today have no models, mention Angie. Or better yet, bring the kids down to the Highland Little League field May 24 and see for yourself what yesterday's star is doing for tomorrow's today.
