Donovan: Dozen-year election cycle is right on schedule

by Roger Fuller

When Joseph Donovan was first elected Secretary of State in 1954, he was part of a Democratic-Farmer-Labor Party sweep which knocked every Republican out of statewide office except auditor Stafford King. It was the first major breakthrough for the party since its creation in the early 1940s when the Democratic and Farmer-Labor parties merged.

In 1966, the DFL was back on the defensive due to the split caused when Lieutenant Governor Sandy Keith challenged Governor Karl Rolvaag for the party's endorsement. That November, the Republicans took all of the statewide offices except Secretary of State.

"It was pretty lonesome campaigning out there that year," said Donovan, 2085 Eleanor Ave., who last week took some time to look back on political trends during his time in office. "I pretty well had to run my own campaign in 1966," he said. "At one meeting with members of the Keith group, I was referred to as a renegade."

Donovan's re-election that year was probably due to the fact that he was the only endorsed candidate for statewide office who supported Rolvaag. Donovan was not challenged by the Rolvaag forces because he supported them. The Keith forces accepted him reluctantly because he was a member of their endorsed slate.

Donovan traced the failures of the Republicans in 1954 and the DFL in 1966 to a feeling of dissatisfaction on the part of Minnesota voters. According to him the conflict caused by the Short-Fraser primary fight for the four-year Senate seat—and the resulting party infighting—indicates the 12-year pattern might be repeating. "Maybe the party has left the people," he said.

Although Donovan held the position of Secretary of State for 16 years (1954 to 1970), he did not feel secure in office until he won election to his third term in 1958. "I thought the first two were flukes," he said. "We didn't move down from Duluth to the Cities until I won the third time. For four years I'd go back home to Duluth every Friday night."

Donovan said he had no intention of running for office in 1954 when the DFL state convention endorsed its slate of candidates. Shortly after the convention, Cozey Marsh of White Bear Lake, the candidate for secretary of state, came out for pari-mutuel betting.

"The people in the state were in no position to accept it at that time," said Donovan. "A few party leaders went to him and asked him to drop it. To his credit, bless his soul, he stuck to it."

"Then the party called a meeting to take away the endorsement from him, which meant the DFL had no choice for secretary of state even though Cozey was going ahead and run anyway."

"I was working on the floor plan for a retail establishment in Duluth when I received a call from Minneapolis a few days before the filing deadline," Donovan said. The caller was Gerald Heaney, who later became a member of the U.S. Eighth District Judicial Circuit Court of St. Louis. "Jerry asked me if I would run. I told him no."

"I received calls for the next few days until the day before the filing deadline," he said. "Jerry would call me and say this is my chance to do something for the party. He said both Humphrey and John Blatnik told him to get hold of me."

"Finally I said I would file, but I wouldn't quit my job and I wouldn't borrow any money to run," said Donovan. "The next day, the filing deadline, I was driving around with some of the people who asked me to run when one of them said, 'For all we know we may be looking at the next Secretary of State.' I told them, 'Don't kid me, you want a sacrificial lamb.'"

"When I finally went up to the Secretary of State's office to file, I was wearing dark glasses because I had pink eye," he said. "The press kept asking where this so-called endorsed candidate was. No one recognized me because of the glasses."

"At 4:30 p.m., a half hour before the deadline, I walked up and said I wanted to file for Secretary of State. You could have heard a pin drop."

"During that campaign, I gave only three speeches, in Eveleth, Duluth and Ely," said Donovan, who eventually won by more than 100,000 votes over Marsh, primarily due to the endorsement and his opponent's stand on horse racing.

His opponent in the general election was the incumbent, Mrs. Mike Holm, a Republican. She had been appointed to the position in 1951 after the death of her husband, who had held the post for 31 years.

Donovan thought his chances of victory over Mrs. Holm were not good. "At 3:00 a.m. the night of the election they called me in Duluth and told me to come down to Minneapolis because I had won," he said. "I asked them how many precincts were out. They said about 800. I asked where they were. They said mostly in southern Minnesota. I went back to sleep."

"At 7:30 the next morning, I went outside to go to work when my next door neighbor told me I was elected," said Donovan, who had won by about 30,000 votes in a DFL landslide which also elected Orville Freeman as governor, Karl Rolvaag as lieutenant governor, and Miles Lord as attorney general.

In 1958 Donovan defeated C. Elmer Anderson, the former governor who had lost to Freeman in 1954. When Donovan spoke about the 1960 election, he turned to the Legislative Manual and showed obvious satisfaction as he read that year's election results. He was the highest vote-getter in 1960 in an election in which Freeman (DFL) was defeated for re-election as governor, Kennedy narrowly edged Nixon for the state's electoral votes, and Humphrey was elected to a third term in the Senate.

Donovan said he tried to have a good relationship with all governors, regardless of party. "Once you enter the meetings of the Executive Council, you usually leave your party labels at the door," he said. "I've found the members usually try to cooperate and come up with the best solution they can to the problem at hand."

During the 1966 split, Donovan remained loyal to Rolvaag even though Sandy Keith won the endorsement. "I don't think a party has any business throwing its governor out for no good reason," he said.

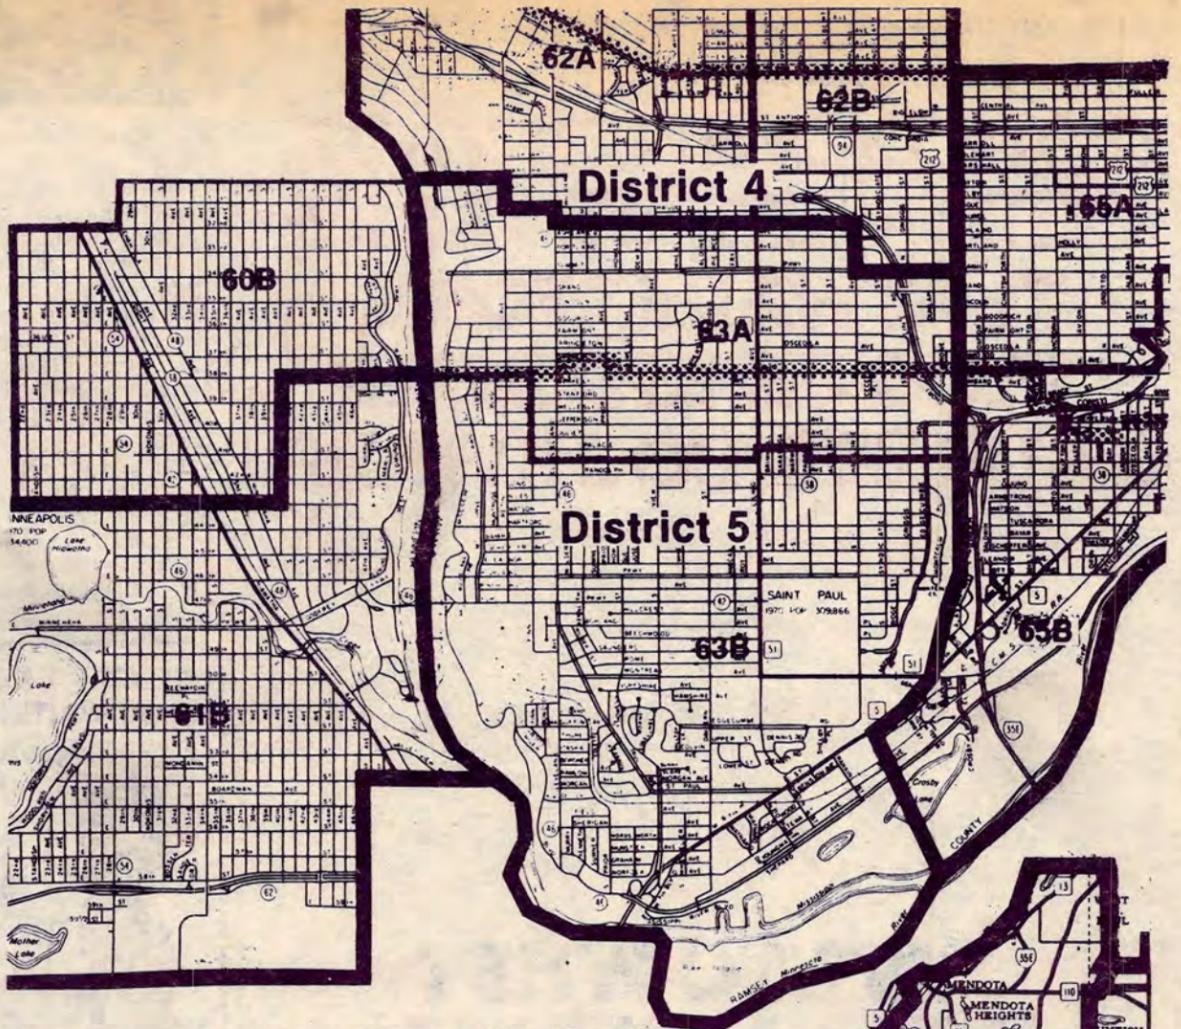

Before he was elected to state office, Donovan worked for the federal government. "First I was head of the salvage division for the National Production Board here," he said. "Then in 1950 I worked on the census."

"Since I never went through the traditional channels, the patronage boys in Duluth always asked me how I got these good jobs," he said. "You see, I had good relations with Congressman Blatnik and others."

"You must always be aware of the element of human relations in politics," Donovan emphasized several times. "People who get elected to office have to keep remembering that they are not that important. There are some that get carried away, and feel they must show how smart they are. I'll make you a wager that with few exceptions, the attendance at their funeral will be determined primarily by the condition of the weather."

At age 85, Joe Donovan, who has been married to his wife, Mary for 62 years, remains active in DFL affairs. This past June he was elected a delegate to the DFL state convention from District 63.

General election Nov. 7

It's been a dozen years since an "off-year" election in Minnesota has been so hotly contested and generated as much statewide interest as the current political campaign. And the climax is yet to come — a dozen more days of feverish activity, a dozen more days to sway the swing vote and get wandering party members back into line. For the benefit of those who are unsure, the map above indicates the nine Minnesota House districts within the area served by the Highland Villager. Boundaries of Ramsey County Commissioner Districts 4 and 5 in St. Paul are also indicated.

Raiders run to 2nd straight Saint Paul conference title

Cretin's cross country team scored a repeat as the St. Paul City conference champions this season, winning the conference meet last Wednesday with 37 points against runner-up St. Thomas' 56 (lowest total wins). Senior Mike Frederickson won the three-plus mile race with a time of 16.03.

The Raiders ran up a 9-0 dual meet record against their conference foes this year. Cretin's dual meet record now stands at 38 straight victories over the past 4 years.

The top seven runners for the Raiders this season are seniors Mike Frederickson, Pat Galatowitsch, and Mark Delaney; juniors Hank Metzger and Ray Faricy; sophomore Paul Galatowitsch; and freshman Bob Lee. Coaches are Tim Miles, a 1972 Cretin grad, and John Tomars, class of '75.

The future looks bright for the Cretin harriers—as their Junior Varsity team was also undefeated in dual meets this year, and took the JV conference meet title.

CIB PLAUDITS

Dear sirs:

Thank you for your article covering the Capital Improvement Budget. You explained very clearly the process utilized to arrive at the funding of specific projects.

I was pleased that projects rated by the Community Facilities Task Force which are located in or have an impact on District 14 were rated very highly. Design of a new fire station at Laurel and Snelling and completion of the site work at the Groveland School recreation area were the first and second priorities of the task force.

I also wish to express my thanks to the CIB Committee (especially Joseph Pangal) and the city staff (especially John Wirka) for their efforts in securing the additional funds needed for the current year in order to insure completion of the new gym at Groveland.

Team B-4 POLICE REPORT

by Lt. John Sturner
Team B-4 Commander

St. Paul's Team Policing Program recently celebrated its first anniversary. From all indications, it has been a most successful and productive year for the program as a whole, and especially for Team B-4. Several recent reports and studies have highlighted some very encouraging results of the efforts of each member of Team B-4 and the enthusiasm and cooperation of the residents and businesses we serve in the Highland, Groveland, Macalester, Merriam Park and West Seventh communities.

We have doubled, and in some areas tripled, the number of squad cars on the street in our Team area with the advent of Team Policing. The resultant increased visibility of your police produces several desirable benefits: reduction in property crimes, better control of driving behavior, and much quicker responses to calls for service.

You may ask, "But is it working?" The answer is absolutely yes. A recent study showed that B-4 had the fewest serious crimes per population in the entire city. In addition, during the past several months, the number of serious crimes has shown a marked decrease over last year in our Team area. Especially encouraging is a decrease in burglaries in B-4's area, while St. Paul as a whole showed an increase.

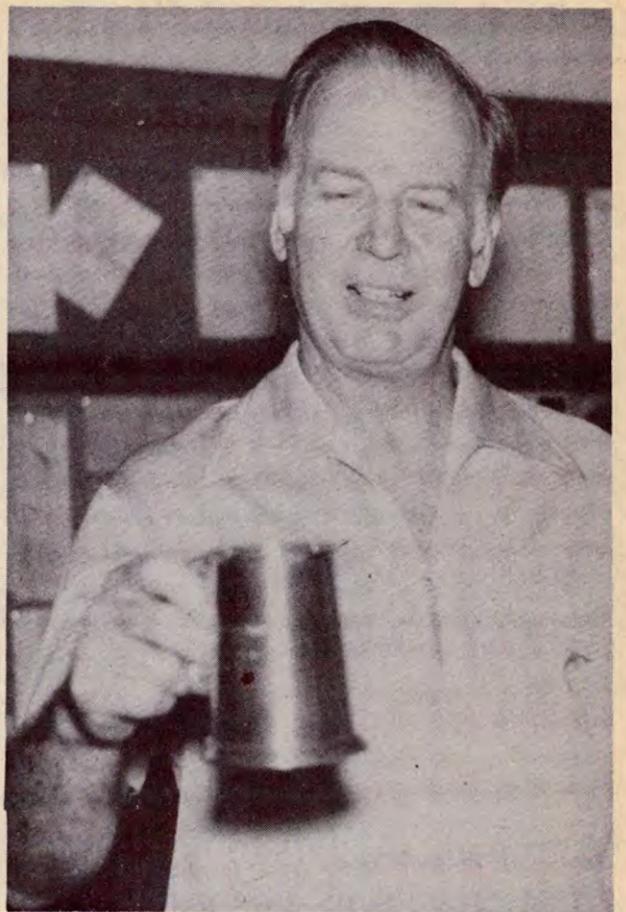

Although the causes of crime are myriad and subject to many variables, I feel the favorable patterns of decreasing criminal activity in our Team area are in large part due to three factors:

First, as I mentioned earlier, the greatly increased police visibility Team Policing has brought to our area.

Second, the dedication and hard work the officers of B-4 have exhibited in dealing with our area's crime problem. This is a direct result of the Team concept and the interaction between Team members, and between the public and the Team.

The third area I see as having a direct bearing on our lower crime rate is the intensive Crime Prevention Program we have developed. During the past year, great efforts were made to educate the public about crime in their communities, and what to look for and do when suspicious activity occurs. In addition, the Team has participated in numerous block watch meetings and has presented our crime prevention slide show to many neighborhood groups and organizations.

What all this means is that your neighborhood is now one of the safest places in the city to live. Recent trends show crime is going down in B-4's area. Through the continued efforts and cooperation of the residents of our area and the efforts of the Team, I am confident we can continue to reduce crime in our community.

Sgt. Bill Konopatzi casts an admiring eye, and maybe a wishful thought, on an inscribed, but empty, pewter mug given to him by his B-4 teammates at a recent ceremony. After 30 years of service on the St. Paul Police force, including one term on the city council, Bill decided to hang up his badge for a well-deserved retirement.

A debate between candidates for the six-year Senate seat now held by Wendell Anderson (DFL) will be broadcast November 1. Rudy Boschwitz (IR) and Sal Carlone (American Party) are expected to debate Anderson.

MISCH- MASCH

by Maurice F. Mischke

THE LAST WORD... that's what you've sure to get when you read this column. Not necessarily the last word in terms of sheer brilliance, startling opinions or sensation-ally new information. But certainly the very last word to reach the typesetter as this final pre-election issue goes to press.

If we could have arranged our fortnightly schedule in such a way as to hit the streets a week later, it would have been easier to make some meaningful comments on the possible outcome. After all, the campaign is only now coming into the all-important stretch drive.

But you don't need any forecast from me. Not when you've got the Minnesota poll calling the shots! The most recent poll, however, does confirm a feeling I've had right along... Dave Durenberger is coming on strong enough to win the four-year senate seat and could even top the state-wide slate of I-R contenders. A month ago I would have expected Rudy Boschwitz to take those honors.

There seem to be a lot of factors at work to make the Boschwitz-Anderson Senate race a lot closer than anyone would have figured, say, even two months ago. For one thing, so much fury has been spent on Bob Short's defeat of Don Fraser, that many DFLers have lost their previous urge to purge the self-appointed Wendy. Certainly Anderson's chances were improved a bit by Fraser's defeat, especially among those who don't want to see two IR senators from a state that for so many years carried the triple H brand. Only time will tell whether the Boschwitz campaign peaked too soon, or still has plenty of ammo left in its arsenal for the days ahead. But don't place any bets on our self-appointed incumbent, either. He's still got quite a lot of problems to overcome.

In that connection, I often wonder if Wendy thinks about the might-have-beens—had he not decided to put himself in the Senate. Suppose that, instead, he had appointed Fraser two years ago. It wouldn't have made everybody happy, but it wouldn't have created a big brouhaha either. As an incumbent senator who had learned to be a shade more conservative, Fraser wouldn't have been all that easy to beat. And after completing eight years as governor, Wendy would have gotten the nod for HHH's senate seat with hardly a murmur. Who would be running for governor? Warren Spannaus, of course... it's the job he always wanted. Rudy Perpich? Either still lieutenant-governor or back to filling teeth.

With a line-up like that the DFL would have been a lot tougher to beat this year, wouldn't you agree? So, here's a special thank you to Wendy Anderson for his part in helping to preserve the two-party system in Minnesota. It would have been a lot tougher without a little help.

Now that isn't being partisan, folks. It's just that I appreciate the need for a Republican victory now and then. Without that, the IR will eventually have trouble fielding a decent team (like in St. Paul) and before long the DFL would be winning all of its contests by virtue of forfeit.

Most amazing to me has been the way Perpich has stayed out of trouble, way above the battle. We know he's all in favor of the family and pretty much on the side of Motherhood, too. So far, though, he still hasn't taken a stand on apple pie or Chevrolet. That could cost him some votes.

Actually, Perpich could well be considered a mid-western, poor man's version of Governor Jerry Brown. He has the same sure-fire instinct of finding out which way the crowd is going, getting out in front, and then making them believe they went in that direction because of his indispensable leadership. Really, the ultimate in political craftsmanship.

It must be that kind of resiliency that's making it difficult for challengers to unseat legislative and congressional incumbents. In spite of all the complaints on inflation, government spending and taxes, nobody expects a gigantic upheaval on November 7. According to all the polls we've seen, the people of this country are about evenly split on whether the Democrats or Republicans can or will do a better job of coping with our national financial crises. The edge, if any, goes to the Democrats, in spite of the fact that they've been in the driver's seat all this time. What many voters seem to be saying is that they'd just as soon go for a reformed, turned-conservative Democrat, than violate their traditional voting patterns in favor of a "free enterprise" Republican. Maybe it'll work, too. But if those legislators and those congressmen don't produce in line with their 1978 promises, I'd hate to be with them on the hustings in 1980. You know the old saying, "Fool me once, shame on you; fool me twice, shame on me."

Were you looking for political endorsements from the Villager? Somehow I can't bring myself to believe I could change your mind or anyone else's on how you want to vote this time around. I'm inclined to agree with Charles Seib of the Washington Post—something he wrote in a Saturday column, to wit: "One of the less endearing qualities of the American press is its obsession with its own importance." What's more, if our "editorial board" were inclined to endorse specific candidates, I'd hope to do a better job of it than I saw done in the Star last week, when they endorsed Perpich in a split decision, with some left-handed compliments (some of them deserved), and all the while praising Quie on his qualities, abilities and enviable record. Hardly worthy of the first-page placement, or, at least, so it seemed to me.

There is one endorsement I would like to make, though, in the interest of better candidates, better competition and better assurance for majority rule in St. Paul. We have an opportunity to amend our city Charter and undo the damage done to our political system by state legislative action just a few short years ago. On November 7, the City Charter Commission has provided us with an opportunity to rescind that action, originally aimed at hobbling the reelection efforts of then Mayor Stenvig of Minneapolis. To the best of my knowledge, nobody in St. Paul gave it high marks. The endorsement process had always been equal to the task for those who wanted party blessing on their efforts. By voting YES for a non-partisan basis, with no party designation, you can again be certain that a city primary will adequately serve the function of reducing the field of candidates to just two finalists, with a majority vote required to win in the general election. The present situation is just a mess. Independents automatically go on the final ballot, along with two or more party candidates. Why even have a primary when four, five candidates or more could conceivably be contesting for the same position in the final? That Charter Amendment, by the way, is the second on the ballot. The first is a move to change the Mayor of St. Paul's term of office from two years to four. I have no strong feelings in favor of that one. George Latimer had no campaign to contend with this year, so what's the problem? Two years is really a short term for administrative purposes, 'tis true, but it would seem a long time if we ever elected a real lemon. Think hard on that one. OK?

Maybe it's time to give you a few paragraphs of respite from the purely political realm. Did you know, for instance, that the city council recently passed a resolution designating the street leading to the Highland Park outdoor swimming pool as Otto Hummer Drive, in recognition of his years of service to the city and the Long-Range Capital Improvement Budget Committee. The main building at the pool facility is also to be dedicated in Otto's memory. Fitting final tributes to a man who saw no need to retire from voluntary service, just because he retired from "work."

How do you like the way things are shaping up in and around the Highland Shopping area? Most conspicuous current improvement is the new facade for the canopy in the Highland Center, but there's been some worthwhile esthetic improvement on the back side, too—entering Lee's Village Inn, Highland Drug and Hoigaard's from the rear parking lot. Check it out, if you haven't already.

Some new stores will be opening in November, too. R. Sykes (gourmet cookery) may well be the first... about November 10, where Red Robin Cleaners used to be. Who owns it? Rick Myerburg. (Have I got the spelling right this time, Rick?... it wasn't a typo, just a bum steer). Soon to follow, maybe even the same weekend with a little luck, will be Village Home & Hardware, the second of two stores in the Satterstrom "chain." As we understand it, Dalton Bookstores (around December 1) and Dell Fabrics (January 1979) will occupy virtually the balance of the space leased to Red owl for many years.

So what's moving into the Hove's site? Snyder Drug from up the street, that's who. Congratulations, incidentally, to the landlord, tenants, or whoever undertook to de-weed that site before the Art Fair came along. The Fine property south of Cecil's has certainly been well manicured and maintained of late, too. It all adds to Highland's "environmental appeal"—at least it's a major step in the right direction.

Speaking of canopies and facades... Sibley Plaza looks a lot sharper, too, since Paster Enterprises gave that center a major face lift.

Politics again—we got in the middle of a few misunderstandings recently, relating to facts in one of the local county commissioner races. Biggest point of issue was how much the county budget for next year had actually increased. Contention was $10,000,000... but that was preceding final approval by the commissioners. By then the added increment had been reduced to about $7,900,000... just to keep the record straight. Incidentally, we had quite a few letters to the editor this time for and against certain candidates, good letters all. But it wouldn't be cricket to allow charges or criticisms to be made at this stage, when the "offended" candidate would no longer have an opportunity to reply. I hope all you correspondents understand the need for that type of fairness on the part of the Villager.

Happy election night party to you all... impossible though that may be! Aufwiedersehen.

Guthrie props and scenery now on view at Concordia

A Guthrie Theatre exhibition of stage props and scenery used in past productions will be on display at Concordia College-St. Paul through November 10. Exhibit hours are 8:00 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. on weekdays. Exhibit-goers will see firsthand how props and sets are handmade from the designer's blueprints to actual construction in the Guthrie's scenery shop. The Guthrie is one of three theaters in North America that can construct almost every object that appears onstage. Only the Metropolitan Opera in New York and the Stratford National Theatre in Canada compare in size to the technical operations under the Guthrie's roof. The Guthrie makes all its own scenery and props so that color, texture and theme coordinate together on stage. Guthrie designers also strive for authenticity, making every prop and set piece look as though it came from the actual time period in which the play is set. Included in the display are props from past productions designed by Guthrie propmaster Michael Beery; Actual scenery remnants showing how various techniques are used to create textures; and productions photographs showing the displayed props and set pieces in use onstage. The National Endowment for the Arts and the Dayton-Hudson Foundation provided major support for the production and operation of this exhibit. For more information call the Fine Arts Division of Concordia College at 641-8428.

Alumnus returns to Mac to discuss Brecht's early work

W. Stuart McDowell, artistic director and founder of the New York's Riverside Shakespeare Company, will present a special lecture and a multimedia recreation of the early cabaret and theater work of Bertolt Brecht at Macalester College on Tuesday, October 31.

McDowell's presentation, The Early Theater of Poor B.B. (or Bertolt Brecht), will be held at 4:30 p.m. in the Macalester Theatre in the Janet Wallace Fine Arts Center. It is open and free to the public.

The presentation examines Brecht's work in Munich from 1919 to 1924, the heyday of German cabaret and the rise of Adolf Hitler in Bavaria.

It also includes early production photographs and firsthand interviews with Brecht's early collaborators that McDowell conducted while a Fulbright Scholar in Germany a few years ago.

A question-and-answer session will follow the presentation.

This past year, McDowell, a 1969 Macalester graduate, directed the Riverside Shakespeare Company's production of "Romeo and Juliet" and a torchlit outdoor production of "Hamlet." He has also translated, produced and directed Brecht's theater works in New York, Los Angeles and the San Francisco Bay area.

Ichabod Crane to pace marathon racers as they wind through area

Ichabod Crane, the bow-legged character from Children's Theatre's current production of The Legend of Sleepy Hollow, will mount a steed to pace the competitors in the Big Green Team Y-to-Y Halloween Run this Saturday, October 28.

Spectators are invited to wear Halloween masks and costumes. A grand prize of a one-year adult Y membership will be awarded to the person whom judges deem the most outlandishly costumed at the starting line.

The race begins at 9:00 a.m. in front of the downtown Minneapolis YMCA, 9th and LaSalle Ave., and ends at the State Capitol.

Co-sponsored by the YMCAs of the Twin Cities and National Car Rental System, Inc., the event will actually include three races:

A two-mile run from the Minneapolis Y to Willey Hall on the West Bank of the University of Minnesota.

A 10-kilometer (6.2 mile) run over the initial course and along Mississippi River Blvd. to the College of St. Thomas;

And an 18-kilometer (slightly more than 11-miles) run following the first two stretches and continuing to the finish line in front of the State Capitol.

Runners entering the 10-K and 18-K runs will compete in six age groups: 18 and under, 19-29, 30-39, 40-49, 50-59, and 60 and over. Medals will be awarded to the top three men and top three women finishers in each group.

Additional awards go to the fastest male and female finishers in both the 10-K and 18-K runs.

Those who complete the two-mile segment will receive certificates of participation and all registered entrants will receive "Big Green Team Y-to-Y Halloween Run" T-shirts prior to the race.

Entry fees are $1.00 for the two-mile run and $3.00 for the 10-K and 18-K runs. Registration forms are available at Twin Cities YMCAs or by calling National Car Rental at 830-2537.

Talking out of school

by Bill Rosenbloom & Carl Nelson

During the last session, the Minnesota Legislature enacted a law which requires school districts to complete a long-range planning process. In July, the St. Paul public school administration released its long-range proposal which included the closing of 14 schools (among them were Mattocks, Jefferson, Linwood Park and Highland elementary schools and Monroe Junior High.)

The administration had spent approximately eight months assembling this plan, yet tossed the ball to a Citizens' Committee and scheduled final approval for the long-range plan at the end of November, 1978.

This Citizens' Committee held its first meeting on August 22, which meant the committee would have less than three months to analyze the full implications of the plan, involve local schools in the process, and make a final decision on which schools to close.

Unfortunately, the committee has spent more time to date planning which schools to close, than on future planning. In fact, some have dubbed this committee the "School Closing Committee" after it added several other local schools to its own potential closing "hit list," including Homecroft, Mann and Randolph Heights elementary schools and Ramsey Junior High.

We feel this exercise is being done in reverse, i.e., that the first thing we need is a plan. Only then should we decide what schools, within the context of the plan, should be closed. By putting school closings first, the local communities involved have become threatened by the plan. They are now reacting out of fear and uncertainty.

As proof of this, we cite the meetings of several weeks. The prevalent concern expressed at these meetings is NOT "how do we best educate our children," but rather, "how do we close 'their' school instead of ours?"

The rhetoric is becoming more and more bitter—and more and more predictable. It is the type which pits Highland Elementary parents against Mann and Homecroft's, and Ramsey and Monroe's against Wilson and Murray's.

What we need now is a positive atmosphere and a re-dedication to finding an answer to "what is the best way to educate our children?" We suggest the following change of direction:

1. The committee should reverse its present direction and devise a plan for the future which speaks to the question of what kind of programs and education can best be obtained for our children.

2. Individual schools should be exploring possible alternatives for program and format changes which might attract students back to the public schools. One proposal being discussed would make Highland Elementary a center for gifted children.

3. There should be some exploration of means communities might take to control their own financial destiny. For instance, the 1977-78 average district cost per pupil was $1803.00. One option, "The Rosenbloom Proposal," would give each school $1803.00 per pupil and let that community decide how to most effectively spend those dollars. It would be their decision as to how they allocate their financial resources, whether it be for books, teachers, or teacher aides. Under this proposal it would cost the school district no more per student whether the student went to Highland Elementary, Mattocks, Homecroft or Mann. Obviously, when the school population got too small, the program would become inadequate and there would be no choice for parents but to close the school. But let it be a local community decision.

An alternate option, "The Nelson Proposal," would reduce the number of schools to correspond to enrollment declines and guarantee reallocation of net savings to improved educational programs. Enrollment will decline. School closings should be based simply on three factors: demographics, geography, and physical quality of the buildings and grounds. Energies can then be devoted to creative efforts for long-range program improvement. The planning committee should develop a formula to compute actual savings from closings. The School Board should enact some principles that govern the use of the savings, e.g., a) None of the money can be reallocated to overhead or administrative expenses; b) It must be spent directly on educational programs; c) Priorities for programs using the funds created by savings should be given to programs affecting the attendance areas in which schools were closed. We fear, given the deadlines the Long-Range Planning Committee is working under, they will rush pell-mell into closing schools without adequate reflection and community involvement.

The extra dollars we may spend in the next year or two to keep some small schools open is a small fraction of the total school budget, and will be well spent if it assures a thoughtful solution to long-range problems.

Many area parents know how long it takes the administration to make a mere program change within a school. In fact, it took Highland Junior High parents over a year to convince administrators of the folly of Modular Flexible Scheduling. Yet they want the community to decide to close 14 schools in three months.

Let's throw back at them one of their favorite words—"process"—and tell them it will take us awhile to complete the "process" of deciding which schools, if any, we should close.

Can your child tell you what he did today?

Many children can't. Many children between the ages of two and five find it difficult to talk to the rest of the world. They have many things to say, but they aren't able to say them.

If your child is two and a half years old and still not talking, if he is three years old and speaking in one-word sentences, if he is four years old and understood only by his parents — then your child might have a speech or language problem.

We can help him. The St. Paul School District's Preschool Language and Speech Program is designed to help children who have difficulty communicating. To find out if your child qualifies for help, contact Allen Saunders, Pre-School Facilitator, at 298-5921 or Janis Cram, Program Director at 690-3849.

Give your child the chance to tell you about his world. Call today..

Let's look at county issues

Since June, I have visited with thousands of people in District 5. (With the help of my family and many dedicated volunteers.)"

These are the issues people raise:

Taxes. Since my opponent took office, property taxes have soared. He advocated spending $12 million on a new jail and juvenile center. On October 10, 1978, he voted for a $7.9 million increase in the county budget.

Cronyism. "Unfortunately, there are some members of the county board whose instincts for cronyism are insatiable." St. Paul Pioneer Press, Thursday, Dec. 15, 1977. "...Behind the scenes, Commissioners John Finley and Tony Danna are expected to be working hard with an old ally, Lou McKenna, ... in hopes of building a new majority. We wouldn't like to see that." St. Paul Dispatch, Sept. 14, 1978.

Quality. Ramsey County is our biggest local government. What is it doing to maintain the high quality of community life it takes to hold and attract the families we need.?"

This is Connie Waterous' response:

Taxes. I favor an immediate, one-year freeze on property taxes. I will insist on a joint county-city-school district task force to keep the lid on property taxes.

Cronyism. Taking the politics out of county administration is critical. I support reorganization to bring county business out in the open, and to make the county more efficient.

Quality. The county can help — by holding the line on taxes, and by working closely with community and neighborhood groups. I have worked with community groups and with public officials. I know that together, we can maintain quality services without increased spending.

County Commissioner

Old Mexico Shop fashion benefit yields over $500 for youth home

Thirty-nine Mexican high school students are eating better today thanks to the generosity of St. Paul donors to a fashion benefit at the Old Mexico Shop, 1053 Grand Ave.

More than $500 was raised recently for the Student Center of Saltillo, Mexico, a project organized and run by Rosemary Olson Fishburn, daughter of two former St. Paul residents.

Ten years ago Mrs. Fishburn, a widow with limited means and two small children, opened her Saltillo home to youth from Mexico's poverty-stricken rural areas so they could attend the secondary and technical schools of Saltillo.

Since these young people literally had no more than the clothes on their backs, she soon found herself providing not only room and board, but books, clothes, tuition and most important of all, an atmosphere where the students would develop good study and work habits.

Mrs. Fishburn was a high school classmate of Mrs. George P. Young, one of the owners of the Old Mexico Shop. When she and Mrs. Perry Wilson began their craft-buying trips to Mexico, they made regular visits to the Student Center in the Fishburn home and soon began contributing to the project.

Early help was in the form of clothing donations. The two partners still collect clothes from friends and drive them down to Saltillo on their trips.

Because of the good response to the first benefit, the Old Mexico Shop plans to sponsor an annual benefit fashion show for the Saltillo Student Center.

CST reports record enrollment

Official St. Thomas enrollment figures compiled recently by College Registrar Evelyn Obst verify earlier predictions of undergraduate and total enrollment records expected for this fall.

The official fall semester headcount shows Minnesota's largest independent college has an undergraduate enrollment of 2962 students. The college's previous record was established last fall with 2686 students.

St. Thomas' graduate programs in management, religious education and education and community services boost the college's total enrollment to a record 4482.

The same college estimates that accurately predicted the past three record years of enrollment indicate St. Thomas should expect a slight drop in undergraduate enrollment through the mid-1980s.

To keep enrollment growth within the acceptable limits of the college's projections, St. Thomas was forced to set a March 1 deadline for 1978 freshman student applications.

The college's graduate studies in education and community services has 727 students enrolled in courses this fall. Graduate students in management number 761, 110 more than last fall. A total of 32 students are involved in graduate courses in religious education.

New College, St. Thomas' undergraduate evening division, accounts for 215 of the undergraduate students enrolled this fall.

Women undergraduates constitute 22 percent of the entire undergraduate student population. Over 37 percent of the 1978 freshman class admitted this fall are women. The college's daytime undergraduate program was first opened to women last fall.

Cohen's campaign rhetoric: An open letter to Highland Park voters

Dear neighbor and fellow taxpayer,

We call the attention of voters in District 63B to the fact that there are serious discrepancies between the claims made in Representative Richard Cohen's campaign literature and his voting record. Voters should not be misled by Cohen's brochure which has been distributed door-to-door and his October campaign letter mailed under the Minnesota House of Representatives letterhead, which attempt to portray him as a fiscal conservative who has been working hard to reduce the tax load of his constituents.

His voting record proves that he is neither a fiscal conservative nor has he worked to reduce our tax load. Here are the facts:

- Although Cohen says he has "sought a 10% across the board reduction in personal and corporate income tax rates," he actually voted to increase personal income taxes as well as to increase taxes on capital gains resulting from the sale of a home, and to abolish the freeze in senior citizens' property tax. (HF 1475 - Omnibus Tax Bill.)
- Furthermore, Cohen failed to vote at all in an important role call which would have called the Tax Limitation Amendment (HF 2186) from committee to the house floor... this, despite his professed interest in tax relief and his claim of "an outstanding attendance record" in the legislature.
- Cohen's claim of representing the interests of the taxpayer does not square with the fact that he voted to more than double legislative salaries which resulted in his own salary increasing about 120% to $18,500. Most taxpayers agree that this is an over-generous wage for a part-time legislator.
- In both his handout literature and his campaign letter, Cohen boasts of his authorship of "Sunset legislation which provides automatic termination of unnecessary governmental departments." Presumably he is referring to HF 1106 and HF 2400 which never received separate hearings. These bills were submitted very late... almost at the end of each session. (HF 1106 was submitted in March '77 and HF 2400 in February '78.) Furthermore, they apparently were "me too" bills in a rash of such bills, and were lost among the many in committee and never got to the floor despite the fact that Cohen claims for himself "leadership and the ability to gain support and passage for these positions in the legislature." Under the circumstances, one cannot avoid believing that these bills were introduced for the purpose of winning votes rather than as serious legislation.

A comparison of Cohen's claims in his campaign literature with his accomplishments makes it obvious that his political activities are largely empty rhetoric. The recent emphasis on truth in advertising makes his representations about his positions and capabilities particularly inappropriate and unseemly. We urge his defeat November 7.

An exhibition of more than 200 photographs taken by members of the Photo League, a photographic organization active in New York from 1936 to 1951, will continue through December 30 in the Photography Gallery of the Minneapolis Institute of Arts.

The Photo League was a volunteer membership organization of amateur and professional photographers who maintained a headquarters, ran a school, directed exhibitions, published a newsletter, sponsored lectures and symposia, produced photo documentary features and preserved the Lewis W. Hine Memorial Collection. Their members and guests included almost every prominent photographer in America from the late 1930s through the late 1940s.

The Photo League show includes works by Paul Strand, Aaron Siskind, W. Eugene Smith, Weegee, Arnold Newman, Sid Grossman, Arthur Leipzig, Walter Rosenblum, Jerome Leibling and 60 other artists. Also on view will be photographs made by members of the Film and Photo League, a group of radical documentary filmmakers which existed from 1930 to 1937 and from which the Photo League grew.

The Photo League developed during the Depression years out of a desire for social change and a belief that photographs could effect that change. The politics that fostered this growth were considered the League to be suspect as political attitudes changed in America.

The group was listed as a Communist front organization in 1947 by the U.S. Attorney General because some of the changes the League supported were also supported by the Communist Party, and because some League members were also Party members.

League support and opportunities for self-defense diminished during the McCarthy era, until the organization disbanded in 1951. This is the first exhibition on the Photo League since its demise in 1951.

"Shoemaker's Lunch," a 1944 photograph by Bernard Cole, one of the artists represented in a Minneapolis Institute of Arts entitled "Photographic Crossroads: The Photo League." The works of over 60 photographers who were active from the late 1930s through the late '40s will be on exhibit until December 30.

ELECT BILL

Essling

RAMSEY COUNTY
COMMISSIONER — DISTRICT 4

Bill Essling

Why are we taxed so much?

Because the Ramsey County Board is now dominated by free-wheeling, liberal spenders. (Example: Commissioner Diane Ahrens has voted for all annual budget increases, all tax levy increases, and a resulting 25 percent increase in the number of Ramsey County employees.

Where does all the money go?

1. Ramsey County now has a debt of $36,000,000.00. In 1960 there was no county debt. The debt payments now cost $10,000.00 per day.
2. In the current four-year term (through Sept. 15, 1978), the County Board has paid itself salaries and expenses totaling $748,410.70. The board gives itself a raise each year. In the next term, assuming continuation of the 7 percent annual increases, they will pay themselves (salaries, raises, expenses) a total of $1,274,357.00. (Example: In this, her first term, Diane Ahrens and her aide received a total of $112,357.57 for salaries and personal expenses through Sept. 15, 1978.)
3. Although the County Board has an executive secretary whose salary exceeds $30,000.00 and who has several salaried aides, the board recently created a new job—executive director—at a salary of $42,000.00 and gave him authority to hire seven new assistants at $22,000.00 each.
4. Although there are over 5,000 county employees, the board spent $58,751.65 for outside help and consultation during the current term.
5. The 1979 proposed budget includes $242,108.00 for lobbying, travel, meetings and membership.

What should be done?

We must replace the spenders.

We need some common sense in county government.

ELECT JOHN DREW

HOLD THE INCUMBENT ACCOUNTABLE

Richard Cohen voted for the stadium tax.

Richard Cohen, the incumbent state representative from District 63B, voted for the metropolitan area tax to finance a new stadium for professional sports. Of the 12 representatives from St. Paul, he was the only one to vote in favor of the Stadium Bill (SF 895, House Journal, p. 2475, May 10, 1977).

But now that the election is near, Richard Cohen would have you believe he opposes the stadium tax.

Richard Cohen voted to increase taxes when the state had a large projected budget surplus.

When Richard Cohen took office, the State was piling up a surplus of several hundred million dollars. Despite the surplus, he voted for the tax bill which:

- Raised personal income tax rates.
- Imposed income taxes on public pensions.
- Increased income taxes on members of the armed services.
- Increased the tax on capital gains on the sale of homes and other property.
- Abolished the Senior Citizens Property Tax Freeze. (HF 1475, House Journal, p. 3485-3486, May 21, 1977)

But now that the election is near, Richard Cohen would have you believe he favors tax cuts and the reinstatement of the Senior Citizens Property Tax Freeze.

Richard Cohen voted to more than double his own salary and to liberalize his own pension.

Within four months after he was sworn into office, Richard Cohen voted to more than double his own salary from $8,400 per year to $18,500, effective in the coming legislative session. One year later, Richard Cohen voted to liberalize his own pension by decreasing to six years the time he must hold office to receive a legislative pension. (SF 483, House Journal, p. 1178-1179, April 18, 1977; HF 1861, House Journal, p. 6710-6711, March 23, 1978).

But now that the election is near, Richard Cohen would have you believe that he would work to abolish legislative pensions.

John Drew disagrees with Richard Cohen

Legislative candidate John Drew disagrees with Richard Cohen's votes on the Stadium Bill, on the 1977 Tax Bill, on the Salary Bill, and on the 1978 Pension Bill. But no matter how you feel about these issues, one point about Richard Cohen cannot be disputed: His record does not square with his rhetoric.

Richard Cohen's own political literature states: "Political rhetoric is easy to come by; all politicians have a reserve of it. The test is in the doing..."

Richard Cohen's record shows what HE has been doing. Voters must hold him accountable on Election Day, November 7.

ENOUGH'S ENOUGH!

Join the taxpayers' rebellion.

John Berg

for Fourth District Congressman

Enough's enough with the oppressive tax burden, runaway inflation and wasteful government spending. John Berg is concerned about rising inflation and taxes here in Minnesota but the real problem lies in Washington. That's why he wants to go to Congress to vote for a 30% across-the-board tax reduction, graduated over three years.

Let the people know that this year we have a candidate willing to listen to the voice of the grassroots; one who is concerned about neighborhood problems too. And that this year, their vote will count. Let them also know that on the moral issues, John Berg stands for what is right!

John Berg is for you...first!

Players of 'Viva La Mamma' intent on winning opera haters

The Minnesota Opera Touring Ensemble hopes to win new fans by presenting Donizetti's comedy Viva La Mamma—billed as "an opera for people who don't like operas"—in two performances this weekend.

The ensemble will present the opera on Friday, October 27 at 8:00 p.m. and on Sunday, October 29 at 2:00 p.m. at the Minnesota Opera Company, 850 Grand Ave.

Written in 1827 and 1831 as a parody of grand opera, Mamma was a hit in its day and is still a riot of fun and entertainment—rather like watching the Marx Brothers and Laurel and Hardy put to music.

Viva La Mamma is an opera within an opera. The story centers around Mamma Agatha, a highly aggressive stage mother who is obsessed with pushing her daughter's career in a provincial opera company ever upward. To add to the humor, Donizetti wrote the title role to be performed by a man.

Donations for Viva La Mamma are $3.50 and reservations may now be made at the Minnesota Opera Company box office. Make your reservations early by calling 221-0256.

The Home Team draft nets Hanten and Smith

Tom Hanten

Having lived most of his 28 years in the Macalester-Groveland area of St. Paul, the Home Team's territory also serves as home base for Tom Hanten, one of two new additions to our professional sales staff.

Tom graduated from Highland Senior High and the University of Minnesota where he majored in business. Following three years climbing the corporate ladder of 3M's aviation and consumer products divisions, Tom decided to put his major interest to work by launching a business of his own—Horsehead Sports on Grand Ave. After he sold the sporting goods store 11 months ago, he continued to service some of his large accounts on his own. His sales savvy and close ties to the neighborhood he grew up in eventually led him to The Home Team, where his previous experience and interest in working with people are already proving profitable—for both him and the clients he serves.

Jeanne Smith

Jeanne Smith claims fewer ties to this end of town, but very close ties to real estate, since she recently sold her own home on St. Paul's East Side.

A graduate of Archbishop Murray High School, she comes to The Home Team following a ten-year stint in expediting and inventory control for the Amoco Chemical Corporation.

According to Jeanne, it was the experience of selling her own home that led to her pursuit of a real estate license.

"Anyone who's sold their own home can relate to what the buyer and seller go through while making the transaction," she says. "I see the most important part of my job as making the sale go as smoothly as possible for both parties—and to their mutual satisfaction."

The next time you're thinking of buying or selling a home, check out what these two energetic people can do for you. They're both committed to going that extra mile for your best interests.

Lectures to treat science, religion

The Rev. Calvin W. Didier, senior pastor of the House of Hope Presbyterian Church, will give a series of four lectures this month on the theme "Science and Religion: Friends or Foes?" Lecture times will be Mondays at 9:30 a.m. from November 6 through November 27, in the Kirk Parlor at the church, 797 Summit Ave.

Bill Faulkner, former chairperson of Minnesota Diversified Industries, presents a recognition award to Highland resident Jane Birks, whose retirement from the MDI board was announced at that organization's annual meeting. Birks, a ten-year board member, was instrumental in MDI's evolution into a model employer of handicapped people.

Film society to screen 2 on Jews

An unusual look at the cultural problem of Arab Jews in Israel and the story of a French Catholic mistaken for a Jew and arrested during the 1942 German occupation of France will premiere in the Twin Cities this week at the University Film Society.

Both films will be shown at the Bell Museum, 17th and University Aves. S. E. on the University of Minnesota campus.

We Are Arab Jews in Israel will be screened at 7:30 and 9:45 p.m. on Wednesday, October 25 and Thursday, October 26. Made by Moroccan Jew Igal Niddam, who grew up in an Israeli kibbutz, the film deals with a little-known cultural group that will become increasingly important in the Middle East.

Mr. Klein, a 1977 prizewinning film by American director Joseph Losey, will be shown Friday through Sunday, October 27-29 at 7:30 and 9:40 p.m.

Admission to each film is $2.25.

Why are Henry's Pizza's SO Good?

Well, for openers, we use a blend of specially ground whole wheat and unbleached white flours, natural sea salt, not chemical sodium; and we use sweet Canadian honey instead of processed sugar.

Our cheeses are all natural, whole milk cheeses. We use no artificial colors or additives. As we use less oil, you won't find a Henry's Pizza with that greasy taste.

COUNTRY FRESH CHICKEN...

EVERYTHING YOU'VE WISHED FOR

FRESHNESS.... When you buy chickens, you want them fresh because "fresh" has more flavor. Gold'n Plump chickens are Minnesota grown, Minnesota fresh. They're not shipped from way down south. They get to Applebaums' meat case fast and fresh. That's why they cook up so juicy, tasty and tender. They stay fresher longer because they're packaged specially... a tight packaging that insures a longer freshness life.

FLAVOR... A quality chicken like our fresh Minnesota grown Gold'n Plump chicken has an incredible taste... a melt-in-your-mouth flavor that comes from careful feeding. Top quality Minnesota-grown corn is the diet for these lucky chickens. And they're larger and plumper than most chickens. That's because these chickens are taken care of a little better and fed a little longer. That means a fresher, juicier, better-tasting chicken for you and your family.

COUNTRY FRIED CHICKEN

Super crispy Country Fried Chicken is double dipped for extra crispy exterior and extra moist interior. It's so good, you may never want to eat out again!

- | | |
|------------------------------------|----------------------------|
| 1 Frying Chicken (2 1/2 to 3 Lbs.) | 2 tsp. Garlic Salt |
| cut-up, or use chicken pieces | 2 tsp. MSG |
| Crisco Shortening | 1 tsp. Paprika |
| 1/2 c. Milk | 1/4 tsp. Poultry Seasoning |
| 1 Egg | 1 tsp. Black Pepper |
| 1 c. Flour | |

FOR EXTRA SPICY CHICKEN:
Increase poultry seasoning to 1/2 tsp; and black pepper to 2 tsp.

TO PREPARE:
Blend milk and egg. Combine flour and seasonings in plastic or paper bag. Shake chicken in seasoned flour. Dip chicken pieces in milk/egg mixture. Shake chicken a second time in seasoning mixture to coat thoroughly and evenly.

TO PAN FRY:
Melt Crisco in skillet to about 1/2 to 1 inch deep and heat to 365°. Brown chicken on all sides. Reduce heat (275°) and continue cooking until chicken is tender, about 30-40 minutes. Do not cover. Turn chicken several times during cooking. Drain on paper towels.

TO DEEP FRY:
Prepare as above and cook in deep Crisco heated to 365° for 15 to 18 minutes. Drain on paper towels. SERVES 4. © P&G

Eugene McCarthy opens three-day war and society symposium at Normandale

Former senator Eugene McCarthy is the keynote speaker for a three-day symposium to be held November 3, 4 and 5 at Normandale Community College, 9700 France Ave. S. in Bloomington.

The symposium, which will address a variety of war and society themes, is being held in conjunction with a photographic exhibition prepared by Normandale sophomore Stephen Lassonde. The exhibition deals with the Minnesota-Wisconsin homefront during the four major wars of the 20th century.

McCarthy will speak on Literature and the Wars at 8:00 p.m. Thursday, November 2 in the college's fine arts auditorium.

The symposium is free and open to the public and continues on Friday at 3:00 p.m. when Bruce Larson from the history department at Mankato State University speaks on "Two Lindberghs and Two World Wars."

At 4:00 p.m., David Brye from the history department at Luther College will discuss ethnic responses to the 20th century wars.

Friday evening's sessions include a 7:30 talk by Paul Murphy, historian from the University of Minnesota, on civil liberties during wartime; an 8:30 discussion by National Review's contributing editor M.J. Sobran; and a 9:30 panel discussion on wartime dissent.

University of Michigan history professor Gerald Linderman will speak at 9:00 a.m. Saturday. His topic is World War II, Vietnam and the Misuse of History. He will be followed at 11:00 a.m. by David Culbert, historian from Louisiana State University, who will talk on American Propaganda during World War II.

The event concludes at 1:30 p.m. Saturday with a panel discussion related directly to Lassonde's exhibit, The Use of Photographs as Historical Documents. Taking part in the discussion are Judith Gutman from the graduate center of City University of New York; F. Jack Hurley, department of history, Memphis State University; and George Talbot, Curator of Iconography at the State Historical Society of Wisconsin.

William M. Gydesen, 561 Winston Ct. in Mendota Heights, was recently elected vice president of the Minnesota Association of Realtors for 1979. Senior Vice President of Rothschild Realtors, Gydesen also serves on the Board of Governors for the Homes for Living Network, an international affiliation.

Candlelight dinner to throw a shadow on Italian decor

Italian decor, cuisine and music will greet guests at the 17th annual Twin Cities Opera Guild Candlelight Dinner this Saturday, October 28 at the St. Paul Radisson Hotel. The theme selected for this year's black-tie benefit, "La Festa Italiana," will honor the 200th anniversary of La Scala, Italy's leading opera house.

In place of the traditional silent auction, Guild members have planned a drawing as this year's fundraising scheme. The drawing offers an opportunity to win a color TV, a La Scala commemorative plate, and a vacation to any of a number of resort areas around the United States.

Chances for the drawing, proceeds from which will finance the Twin Cities Opera Guild's numerous educational programs throughout the state, are $10 apiece, three for $25. All donations are tax deductible. The evening will begin with cocktails just prior to an 8:00 p.m. Italian feast. After dinner entertainment will be provided by tenor Dana Talley and his wife, concert pianist Sue Lane Talley.

Last minute reservations for the event may still be made by phoning Ceil Gesell at 291-7936 or Lou Hart at 699-0551. For information on the drawing, call Cindy Gorman at 291-7478.

Tour of Israel offered by CST

Significant sites in the life of Christ will be emphasized in a tour of Israel led by Sister Regina Ecker, SSND, a scholar on scripture, from December 26 through January 4.

A stopover and short sightseeing tour of Rome will be part of the round trip from the Twin Cities. Cost for the tour is $1250.

For more information or reservations, call the Center for Religious Education at the College of St. Thomas (647-5715).

Ice-skating lessons slated for beginners

All instruction will run for 16 sessions. The four professional instructors are U.S. Figure Skating Association gold medalists.

Students must register and obtain a permission slip for parents to sign. For more information, call 459-1187 or 459-5370.

Future of seven area schools in jeopardy

by Paul Riemerman

Six Highland area elementary schools and a junior high school stand a chance of being closed by the end of the 1979-80 school year until the St. Paul School Board decides the fate of 27 public schools currently suffering from dwindling enrollments.

Presently, school closing plans include Linwood Park, Mattocks, Highland Park, Horace Mann, Homecroft and Randolph Heights elementary schools, and Ramsey Junior High. The administration's original proposal called for closing only the first three schools. The last four were added later by the Long-Range Planning Advisory Committee, usually referred to as the "School Closing Committee," a group formed from concerned St. Paul parents and educators.

According to school officials, some St. Paul public schools must be closed soon, since the number of public school students is declining each year and State aid to education is based on a pupil-per-school basis.

The number of students currently enrolled in St. Paul public schools has dropped by 8,000 since 1973-74. By 1982, total enrollment is expected to fall by another 9,000.

All seven Highland area schools won't be closed, according to Kathy Tarnowski, a member of the committee. Tarnowski said the criteria being used by the committee to decide which schools should be closed include a belief that no grade school should remain open if it has less than 13 teachers, or two classes per grade level.

Linwood Park, which had less than one class per grade this year due to the doubling up of some grades, provides a good example of the kinds of issues the committee must face in deciding which schools to close in this area.

Highland Women's Club to convene

The Highland Park Women's Club will hold its monthly meeting at 12:30 p.m. Thursday, November 2 at the home of Mrs. Emory Powell, 1585 Pinehurst Ave. Mrs. John De Pauw of the Bouquet Garni Shop will speak.

One of 27 St. Paul public schools whose fate is still unknown, Linwood Park presents a particularly difficult decision for School Closing Committee and School Board members alike.

According to Tarnowski, one idea that's been tossed around with regard to Linwood's future involves a pairing with Longfellow School.

However, one area resident who wished to remain anonymous said that the proposal would only cause parents to send their children to private schools. If that happened, he said, the minority percentages of the student population at the two schools could be sent up even higher than the present levels of 38 percent at Longfellow and 25 percent at Linwood. Thirty-two percent is the maximum allowed by state law before a school must make a demonstrable effort to reduce the minority percentage.

"School closings should help, not hurt desegregation," the person continued.

"I wouldn't want to be the one telling the Black kids at Linwood they can't transfer with their classmates because of a quota."

The proposal to close Linwood is a controversial one. Kitty Goodrich, former chairperson of the School Closing committee, quit her position over a disagreement with the committee's criterion of closing a school with less than two classes per grade, according to Tarnowski.

The final decision on any school closings will be made by the St. Paul School Board. The committee is scheduled to make its recommendations known to the board on November 6. The final decision will be made sometime after that.

$1M worth of coins for show and sale

A million dollars' worth of coins and medals will go on exhibit at the St. Paul Holiday Inn in early November.

The admission-free coin show, sponsored annually by the Twin City Collectors Club, will run from 10:00 a.m. to 8:00 p.m. on Saturday, November 4, and from 10:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. on Sunday, November 5.

Coins and medals to be exhibited this year date from ancient Roman times to the present year and are representative of most countries of the world. Participating dealers number 32 and hail from ten states and two Canadian provinces.

In addition to seeing and perhaps pricing rare coins, the public is also encouraged to bring in old coins to be identified or sold.

The budget-minded and lovers of the unusual in numismatics (coin lore) may find demonstrations of the penny-stretching machine to be of interest.

Mac enrollment hits five-year high

Enrollment at Macalester College has climbed above last year's total and stands at the highest level in five years, Macalester President John B. Davis, Jr., told the College's Board of Trustees at a recent meeting.

The final count of students enrolled at the four-year liberal arts college is now 1,763, up from 1,744 last year. Four-hundred sixty freshmen entered Macalester this fall.

Davis also reported that the college's dormitories are full, with five students currently living in temporary quarters until rooms in the residence halls can be found for them. There are 1,063 students living in the eight Macalester dormitories and the four off-campus college foreign language houses.

The statistics also show that 44 percent of Macalester students are from Minnesota—a slight rise from recent years—but the majority of students are still from out of state and from

International cooking course to be offered

Cuisines of Haiti, Syria, South Africa, the Orient, Germany and Italy will be featured in International Cooking, a six-week course which will meet from 7:00 to 9:00 p.m. Mondays beginning November 6 at the International Institute of Minnesota, 1694 Como Ave.

Registration is required by Friday, November 3, and the class costs $23 plus supplies.

foreign countries. This fall, 47 percent of the students come from 46 other states, the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico. Also, 163 foreign students from 38 different countries—9 percent of the total—are enrolled in the college.

There are 128 minority students on the Macalester campus this fall, or 7.2 percent of the total student population, Davis said.

Anne Scott, Macalester registrar, told the trustees that of the 460 frosh, there are equal numbers—230—of men and women. Overall, women at Macalester slightly outnumber the men, with 896 females and 867 males.

Scott also reported that there were 110 new transfer students and 33 new special students, for an overall total of 603 new Macalester students this year.

She said the final enrollment statistics are determined after a September 21 cutoff date for registration and a September 28 deadline for class changes.

Mac to display 'wood paintings' of St. Paul artist

"Impressions," an exhibition of the rubbings based on the wooden relief constructions of St. Paul artist George Morrison, will open at the Macalester College Galleries in the Janet Wallace Fine Arts Center on Friday, October 27 from 8:00 to 10:00 p.m.

Morrison, 2050 Stanford Ave., is a member of the art faculty at the University of Minnesota. Famous for his "wood paintings" that suggest landscape images, Morrison has used different colored crayons and papers to capture the various grains and textures of the wooden sculptures.

The show, which is open 9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. weekdays and selected evenings and weekends, will run through November 19.

Foundation gives schools $75,076 for Nova gifted children program

St. Paul's intellectually gifted children have received another gift — $75,076 from the St. Paul Foundation.

The St. Paul School Board will use the grant to establish the Nova Program for 40 intellectually gifted first- and second-graders. The program will be offered in Chelsea Heights Elementary School, 1557 Huron Ave.

Children eligible for the Nova Program should be alert and eager to learn, and should have advanced ability in reading, vocabulary and math and should have an excellent memory.

Those who have been recommended by their parents, teachers and principals will be screened through a general academic inventory by psychologists.

Students in the Nova Program will follow a regular curriculum, but their ability to learn new material quickly and easily will enable them to spend more time on enriched or advanced studies.

Interested parents should act now, as Nova classes are scheduled to begin November 20. Call Chelsea High School at 489-1323 or Ray Firnstahl at 298-5144 for more information.

The program will expand by one grade level each year until it spans grades one through six.

Depression-era photos now on view at Hamline University

The Minnesota Depression Scrapbook, an exhibition of photographs from the 1930s and '40s, will be displayed through November 30 in Hamline University's Bush Library, located just off Hewitt and N. Snelling Aves.

The show includes 53 photographs that capture the realities of everyday life during the Depression. Children are seen laboring beside parents and grandparents. Mealtime is depicted in the city, on the farm, in the fields, at gas stations and in log cabins.

The exhibition offers portraits of the young and old, of fatigue and despair, loneliness and joy.

Selected from photographs taken by the Farm Security Administration, the Depression Scrapbook was organized by the University of Minnesota gallery and is circulated by agricultural extension service and continuing education.

Hours for the second-floor library gallery are Monday through Thursday from 8:15 a.m. to midnight; Friday from 8:15 a.m. to 5:00 p.m.; Saturday from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.; and from 2:00 to 11:00 p.m. Sunday.

CHIROPRACTORS SEEK RESEARCH VOLUNTEERS

The International Pain Control Institute in conjunction with New York Chiropractic College is presently engaged in what is the most extensive research program ever undertaken by the chiropractic profession. This research is directed toward determining the relationship between health problems and spinal misalignments and utilizes a screening process called Contour Analysis.

Volunteers are being sought for screening. Contour Analysis enables taking a three-dimensional picture (called Moire photography) of the topography of the surface of the spine to detect spinal stress deviations. This analysis will be correlated with leg deficiency, patient symptomatology, and levels of spinal tenderness. An analysis of this type can reveal such things as normal and abnormal stress patterns, spinal curvature, muscle spasms, muscle imbalance, spinal distortions, and scoliosis.

There is no charge to participating volunteers, since the doctors are contributing their time, service, and facilities for the program. Final processing and evaluation will be done at the New York Chiropractic College.

Anyone wishing to be a volunteer may telephone participating doctors directly for information or an appointment.

Day care needed for area children

Forty-five new requests for child care in the Highland-Groveland-Macalester area—20 for children under 16 months of age—were received in the last month by the Child Care Council of Ramsey County.

Because of the limited supply of day care openings available for infants, many parents have not found satisfactory child care arrangements.

If you would be interested in caring for a child in the child's home, caring for one in your own home, working in a day care center, or forming a parent co-op for child care, call Gary Winget or Maxine Bardsley at the Child Care Council of Ramsey County (222-0541).

Hill elementary students get an aerodynamic education

"Ten, nine, eight," chanted a chorus of youthful voices as raindrops began splattering the asphalt launch pad.

"Seven, six, five," the children yelled. A biting October wind whipped across the playground.

"Four, three, two..." Their voices rose and the countdown quickened with anticipation.

"One...BLAST OFF!" First a frizzle, then a burst of yellow flame, and whoosh—the rockets rose into the gray skies above Hill Elementary School.

Two third grade classes at Hill conducted an experiment earlier this month to demonstrate the basic principles of aerodynamics. Each of the 45 students constructed, painted and launched his own rocket, powered by a small engine fitted into the bottom and wired to an electric igniter. Most were able to recover their missiles still intact.

"A string inside holds the three peices together," explained Sharon Kleyweg, one of the young aerospace engineers. "The engine stays in so you can take it out after it cools."

Sharon's instructor is Rosemarie Linn, one of three Hill teachers who took part in an aerospace workshop last summer at the University of Wisconsin in River Falls.

The workshop, sponsored each year by NASA, was designed to help teachers incorporate aerospace studies into their classrooms. According to Linn, the teachers not only learned about the subject, but about new methods for teaching it.

One fringe benefit from the workshop was the classroom supplies made available to the children by NASA. The kits for the rockets were ordered through NASA's educational division. The kids were also able to view several films provided by NASA and the Federal Aviation Administration.

The science classes at Hill have since moved on to a study of the planets. From there? Well, there's always the stars and beyond.

DeMain to guest conduct next SPCO Capital Series concert

Saint Paul Chamber Orchestra music director Dennis Russell Davies has announced the complete program for the November 4 Capital Series concert featuring soprano Eri Mills and guest conductor John DeMain.

This concert is the third in a series of ten Capital Series concerts performed in O'Shaughnessy Auditorium at the College of St. Catherine. Concert time is 8:00 p.m. Coffee and Commentary will precede the concert at 7:00 p.m.

The program will open with Franz Joseph Haydn's "Symphony No. 87 in A Major" followed by a contemporary piece by Gerhard Samuel, "Cold When the Drum Sounds for Dawn."

Following intermission, soprano Eri Mills will perform with the orchestra in Samuel Barber's "Knoxville, Summer of 1915," Opus 24. The program will conclude with Jacques Ibert's "Divertissement." Bizet's Symphony No. 1 will not be performed as previously announced.

Composer Gerhard Samuel was associate conductor of the Minneapolis Symphony under Antal Dorati from 1949-59. He was also conductor for the Collegium Musicum, Minneapolis Civic Opera and the Minneapolis Ballet. The Samuel composition to be heard on November 4 received its debut in 1975 with the Los Angeles Chamber Orchestra.

Soprano Eri Mills, at age 24, already has performed in more than 10 operas within the past three years and has won acclaim as a lyrical soprano. She received a National Opera Institute Grant to Young Singers this year and first prize in the National MNTA Voice Competition in 1977.

John DeMain, guest conductor for this concert, was Exxon/Arts Endowment Conductor for the St. Paul Chamber Orchestra from 1973-75.

Sponsored by the Friends of the Saint Paul Chamber Orchestra, "Coffee and Commentary" is held before each Capital Series concert. The November 4 speaker, Curt Oliver, studied music composition at the University of Minnesota. He is now music director of KUOM Radio and organist of Macalester-Plymouth Church.

Tickets priced at $8.50, $6.50 and $4.50 are available at all Dayton's ticket outlets; at the SPCO ticket office, 328 Landmark Center (75 West Fifth Street); and at the O'Shaughnessy ticket office on November 4 from 10:00 a.m. to concert time.

Quality Auto Painting Center brings a new shine to E. Lake

Norton Neff knows what it takes to make an older car look like a million. He should. He's probably sold that many of 'em.

Neff has kicked a few tires and bought and sold his share of autos in his years as a car dealer, and he knows what a new paint job can do for the old jalopy. He also knows that most re-conditioning and auto paint outfits charge too much. That's why he left the wheelin' and dealin' end of the auto business and recently opened Quality Auto Painting Center at 1855 E. Lake St.

Neff doesn't cut corners on the quality, he just drives a hard bargain with his suppliers. According to Neff, whatever deals he can get on paint and materials, sometimes as much as 60 percent, he applies to the customer's car. The end result—a paint job at half the cost.

But not half the quality. In that department, Neff doesn't scrimp. Every vehicle he re-paints—compacts, mid-size, vans or pickups—undergoes a thorough machine sanding and rust removal process before it is given a seal coat and a generous coat of acrylic enamel. To ensure a super shine, the exterior is then baked to a factory-like finish. For a few dollars more, Neff will sand the rougher nicks and scratches and then apply a special coat of polyurethane hardener.

Neff can do much more than just give Ol' Betsy a new shine, however. He can apply new vinyl roofs, custom pin-striping and artwork, and even add a second color.

When you drop off your car at Neff's Quality Auto Painting Center, be sure to take a real close look, before you leave. You just might not recognize it when you get it back.

The women's and children's used clothing sale will be held from 6:00 to 9:00 p.m. October 28 and from 9:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. October 29 at the St. Paul Hotel, 363 St. Peter St. All Mendota Heights residents, the committee includes, left to right: Naomi Arnold, Nancy Burnstein, Marda Lovich, Sandy Loewenstein and Jane Mogol.

Post Office sets new minimum size for envelopes and cards

The U.S. Post Office has set new minimum size regulations that will go into effect November 30. As of that date, envelopes or cards which are less than 3½ inches high and 5 inches long will not be accepted. The present rules allow a minimum size of 3 x 4½ inches.

for each piece of nonstandard mail. The surcharge would apply only to first-class mail weighing one ounce or less and single-piece rate third-class mail weighing two ounces or less and measuring 6 1/8 inches high, 11½ inches long or ¾ inch thick.

Other regulations will require mailed items to be thicker than .007 of an inch and to be rectangular in shape.

The Postal Rate Commission has yet to act on a surcharge proposal of 13 cents

Also subject to surcharge would be pieces with a length less than 1.3 times the height or more than 2.5 times the height. The commission is not expected to act on the surcharge proposals until after the first of the year.

MHS awarded federal, state funds to buy J.J. Hill House

The Minnesota Historical Society was recently awarded $125,000 in federal funds for the acquisition of the James J. Hill house, 240 Summit Ave.

Made by the U.S. Department of the Interior's heritage conservation division, the grant was matched by the state legislature to cover the total cost of the Hill mansion, estimated at more than a quarter of a million dollars.

The four-story structure, built between 1889 and 1891, was the home of James J. Hill, builder of the Great Northern Railroad and a leader in the development of the Great Northwest.

Mrs. Hill left the mansion to the Archdiocese of St. Paul, which used it for offices for about 50 years. The Richardsonian Romanesque style building was declared a national landmark in 1961.

The Historical Society plans to use the third floor and part of the second floor for its offices. The main floor and the remainder of the second floor will be open to the public. Long-range plans call for opening the mansion's fourth floor, its ballroom and stage to the public.

Russell Fridley, the state's historic preservation officer, is in charge of bringing the building up to code, installing ramps and an elevator for access to the handicapped, and putting in fire and security alarms.

Slide show on old Rome slated

Dr. Horace Zinneman will present the second of his slide programs on life in Ancient Rome at 1:00 p.m. on Saturday, November 4 at the Highland Park Library, 1974 Ford Pkwy.

Zinneman, a professor at the University of Minnesota medical school, makes annual treks to the cradle of western civilization and is a local authority on classical civilizations.

BRUCE VENTO--an effective U.S. Representative.

What does it take to be an effective Representative in the U.S. Congress?

It takes experience — the kind of experience gained through serving in the Minnesota House of Representatives and the United States House of Representatives.

It takes knowledge — the kind gained from active community involvement, from reading, listening and learning about problems and solutions.

It takes hard work — something some people shy away from. But most of all...

It takes a person who cares.

What does that mean?

It means... understanding and support of America's workers. Caring about our environment. Concern for the economy. Remembering that people will retire and, perhaps, need a little help. It means knowing that tax dollars must be wisely spent, because they come from hard workers.

It takes the kind of caring found in a person who was raised in a working family... who's worked in factories and breweries... who has learned the many needs of children through a teaching career and through the irreplaceable experience of being a parent.

Bruce Vento — a laborer — a hockey coach — a teacher — a husband — a father. A good man... and an effective U.S. Representative.

Come, look us over!
(and take home
a FREE PUMPKIN)

If you haven't seen our new quarters in the old Post Office, now is the perfect time. The coffee is always on 'til 8 p.m. six days a week (Saturday - 5 p.m.) and a pumpkin is also yours for your effort. Come see and feel why we're the Hot Ones!

Anti-smoking group plans Highland area leaflet drop

Volunteers from the Association for Non-Smokers' Rights (ANSR) will distribute flyers this Saturday in the Highland Park area explaining the Minnesota Clean Indoor Air Act and how it relates to retail establishments.

"When patrons enter one of our neighborhood stores," said ANSR President Jeanne Weigum, "we shouldn't have to worry about having the environment contaminated by tobacco smoke. The law has provisions to protect us."

"The law specifically prohibits smoking in retail establishments," said Harry Evanoff, ANSR coordinator for the Ramsey County Lung Association. "When buying clothes, groceries or getting a haircut, all of which I personally do in the Highland area, I should never have to worry about an allergic reaction to tobacco smoke. But it does happen."

Weigum pointed out that smoking is prohibited in almost all places where things are being sold or a public service is offered for sale.

"Every retailer has a vested interest in creating a bright, attractive environment," Weigum said. "But an uneducated public can make this difficult and sometimes impossible. On Saturday we will be trying to educate the public about the law and about the rights of the non-smoker."

Mount Zion sets annual lectureship

Composer, musician and author Max Janowski will present a lecture-demonstration entitled "The Role of Music in Jewish Religious Observance" at 8:15 p.m. Friday, November 3 at Mount Zion Temple, 1300 Summit Ave.

The 19th Annual Melamed Lectureship will be divided into sections on Shabbat, High Holy Days, Hassidic and Israeli music. The music for the program, written by Janowski, will be sung by the Congregational Choir, Professional Choir and Cantor Holly Callen.

The Louis Melamed Lectureship and Board Room will be re-dedicated that night to include the name of Sylvia Melamed, wife of the late president of Mount Zion Temple.

Donn J. Eiden, 2164 Juliet Ave., has been appointed General Business Division Chairman for the United Way of the St. Paul Area's 1978 fall fundraising drive. Assistant to the vice president of division operations at NSP, Eiden is active in the American Cancer Society, Big Brothers of Greater St. Paul and the Indianhead Council of the Boy Scouts of America.

Winterize your home.

You winterize your car. Why not your home? It's simple enough that you can do some of it yourself. And winterizing prevents heat loss, so you'll save yourself some energy.

Lets start at the top.

Your attic. Maybe it needs insulation. If your ceiling joists are showing, you need more insulation. (NSP recommends a total R-value of 38.) Once you've checked your insulation, you can do one of two things: Call a qualified contractor in to do the job for you. Or do the job yourself. In either case, call NSP and we'll give you the answers or the help you need.

Now, about your windows and doors...

Even the most inexperienced do-it-yourselfer can reduce heat loss around windows and doors by weatherstripping and caulking up drafty leaks. All you need are some relatively inexpensive materials (available at your hardware store or building supply dealer), some tools you probably already have, and a little time.

Tune-up your furnace.

No kidding. You can cut 5% off your heat use by having your furnace tuned-up at least every two years by a qualified heating contractor.

And you can keep it running efficiently by checking the filter each month and cleaning or changing it when necessary.

Two more quick suggestions.

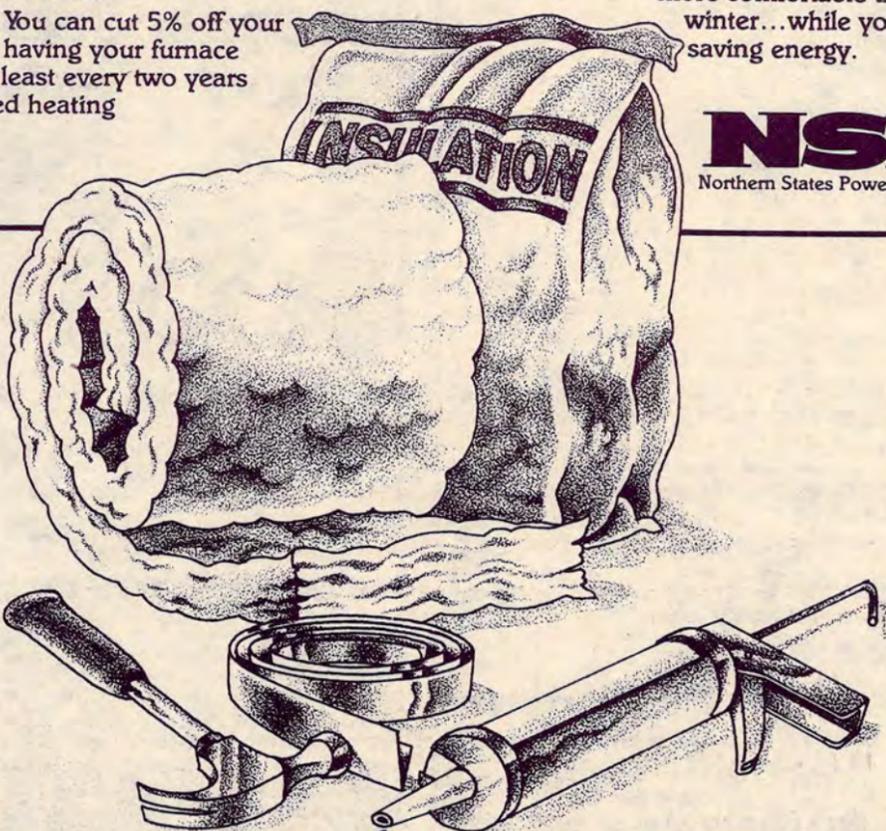

Keep your thermostat as low as is comfortable this winter. But remember: the lower you set it, the more energy you save. Turn it down 5 to 8 degrees when you're sleeping or away from the house for even greater savings. You can even buy an automatic clock thermostat for convenience.

And lower the thermostat on your water heater to medium setting or 140°.

Any questions? Just ASK NSP.

There are other things you can do to winterize your home. And there are specific things you should know before you tackle any of the projects you've just read about. So if you need more information... or if you have any questions... just call 330-6000 and ASK NSP. (If you live outside the Twin Cities area, call collect 0-612-330-6000.) We'll be glad to help you make your home warmer and more comfortable this winter... while you're saving energy.

Vinyl siding is a barrier against heat and cold.

In winter, vinyl traps heat in and keeps cold air out. In summer, less heat penetrates.

Metal sidings allow heat and cold to penetrate more than vinyl.

Ambassador Vinyl Siding by VIPCO

"New Horizons in Home Siding"

In tests conducted by the American Society for Testing and Materials, vinyl provided 24.8% more insulation against heat and cold than metal siding.

Residents aid B-4 parking lot plans

Work was recently completed on a new blacktop parking lot at Police Team B-4 headquarters at Hamline Ave. and Ford Parkway.

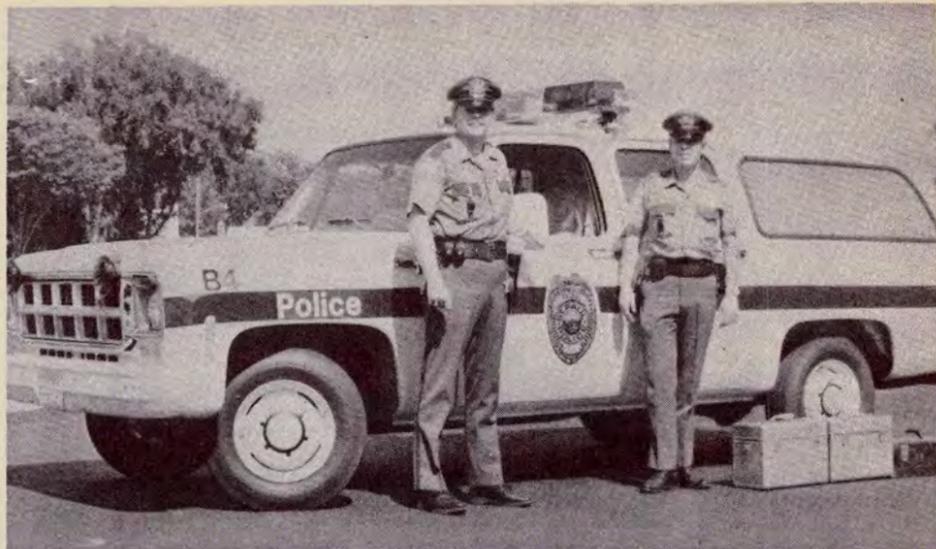

The parking lot holds 20 cars and will be shielded by a five-foot hedge. A committee of residents who live near the team headquarters helped design the landscaping around the new lot.

- Maximum controlled draft for easy lighting and ultimate combustion
- Heavy gauge steel construction for lasting durability
- A glass-enclosed flame to minimize heat loss and allow full view of the fire
- Completely assembled units available in a variety of porcelain colors

Fantasy

FOR COMBINED esthetic appeal and heating efficiency, the Fantasy double heat converter supplies 60,000 BTUs per hour from both coals and flame.

We also handle glass doors, unique heating devices for masonry fireplaces and other accessories.

CST community ed center gets two grants totalling $59,500

One-year grants totaling $59,500 were recently awarded to the College of St. Thomas Community Education Center.

A $49,500 grant from the Charles Stewart Mott Foundation of Flint Michigan will finance an internship program and will allow for the development of training materials for community educators.

A $10,000 award from the National Endowment for the Humanities will go to studying the relationship between community education and the humanities.

Dr. Thomas Fish, director of St. Thomas' Community Education Center, will serve as project director. He and project researcher Martha Stanley will investigate the use of community education as a vehicle for programs in the humanities.

The Community Education Center began operations at St. Thomas in 1972 with Mott Foundation funds. The recent Mott grant, according to Stanley, will help the center provide new educational experiences and materials to community educators.
