Reno Rossini takes the helm at Highland Senior High School

by Deanne Becker

They're predictable feelings—that mixture of delight and dismay—that accompany students and teachers at the beginning of each new school year. But at Highland Park Senior High School, there's at least one person who stands out by virtue of his unabashed enthusiasm for the 1979-80 school year. He is Reno Rossini, Highland Park's new principal.

"Moves are good," Rossini said last week from behind a desk piled high with papers. "Generally speaking, they're made for the good of the school district."

Rossini's 31-year career with the St. Paul public school system has seen many moves. He began as a teacher at St. Paul Marshall in 1948. In 1953 he moved to Murray High School where he coached football and taught math, chemistry and physics until 1965, when he became the school's assistant principal. Rossini was appointed principal of Central High School in 1968, where he served until 1972. Then it was back to Murray as its principal from 1972-78, and on to the same job at Monroe Junior High for the 1978-79 school year.

Former Highland principal Dr. David Frye, who is now at Johnson Senior High, sent a letter of introduction to parents of all Highland students at the close of the last school year. In it, Frye described his colleague as "a veteran school administrator" who would "bring a wealth of educational experience to Highland."

But Rossini believes he's bringing more than just broad experience in various St. Paul schools to Highland Senior High. "My strengths are a strong academic and humanities background," he said. "I believe that for students, personal development comes first and academic achievement ranks a close second. I am committed to these concepts."

Rossini, who will be working with Highland's two assistant principals, James Palmer and Fred Kaiser, said "a fairly good number" of the school's staff are already familiar to him.

Asked what changes, if any, might be expected with the appointment of a new administrator at Highland, Rossini said, "For me to come in and turn the school upside down would insult the staff and the system here. I will make changes only after I see how the school operates. Right now, I think they do a fine job of maintaining academic standards here."

A life-long resident of St. Paul, Rossini is a direct, well-spoken man with a no-nonsense style. He emphasizes his words with steady hand movements, and when discussing a subject that is especially important to him, displays an even greater intensity with his eyes and his voice.

12th Highland Village Art Fair scheduled to start this Friday

More than 125 of the Midwest's leading artists and craftsmen will be on hand when the twelfth annual Highland Village Art Fair opens this Friday, September 14. Tens of thousands of area art buyers and browsers are expected to join them on the sidewalks leading in all four directions from the corner of Ford Parkway and Cleveland Avenue, where the art show and sale will once again be centered.

Scheduled to be held on Friday, Saturday and Sunday, September 14, 15 and 16, the annual outdoor, admission-free event will serve as a showcase for oil, watercolor and acrylic painters, silversmiths and goldsmiths, cabinet and furniture makers, portrait artists, tole painters, weavers, children's toymakers, stained glass artists, potters, photographers, sculptors, glass blowers and batik artists.

According to Highland Village Art Fair Coordinator Mike Liptak, each of these artists has been allocated more sidewalk space than in years past, thereby enabling them to display a wider range of art within their respective specialties.

Among the artists who will be exhibiting this year is Myron Lunning, marine artist par excellence. A native Minnesotan, Lunning says he was always fascinated by the sea's "timeless" quality. As a result, he's spent a good portion of his professional career before an easel placed in the sand by the ocean.

As good portrait artists study anatomy, Lunning has logged countless hours studying oceanography, in order that he might "understand more deeply the moods of the ocean." Today, his seascapes are ranked with the very best.

Also appearing at the Highland Village Art Fair will be two artists of no small stature who have made this part of the Twin Cities their stomping grounds: Highland area artist Nancy Winterer and Mendota Heights stained glass craftsman Pat Coonan.

These three will join the rest of the best from morn til nightfall, all three days of the fair.

Free health fair

Midway Hospital's third annual health fair is scheduled for noon to 5:00 p.m. Tuesday, September 25 in the main lobby of the hospital, 1700 University Ave. Admission and parking are free.

Services provided will include blood pressure and diabetes screening, breathing tests, a presentation by the American Cancer Society and other health information programs.

Weekend College tells all

An informational meeting for anyone interested in Weekend College will be held on Saturday morning, September 15 at the College of St. Catherine. The meeting will run from 9:30 to 12:00 noon in West Marian Lounge in St. Joseph's Hall.

Offered by the College of St. Catherine's Office of Continuing Education, Weekend College gives adult students the opportunity to earn a college degree in four years by attending classes every other weekend from September through June.

At the meeting on September 15, participants will learn about the various degree programs available through Weekend College, how to get started, how to transfer credits already earned, and how to apply for financial aid.

For any further information, call the Office of Continuing Education at 690-6542.

Organizational meeting set Tangletown residents form new neighborhood group

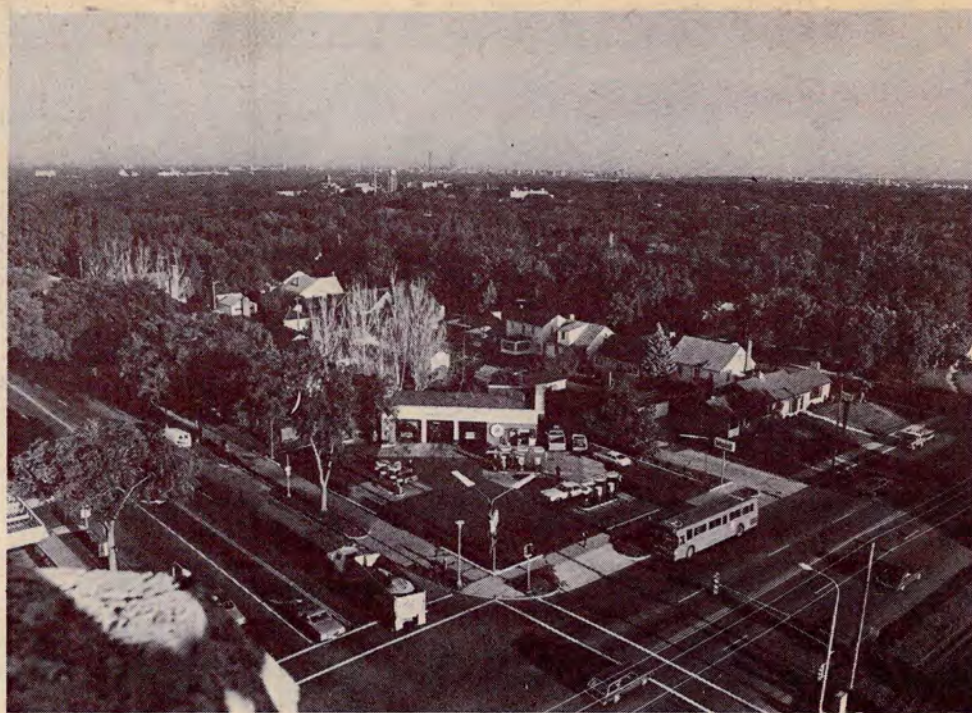

Residents from the 16-block anomaly of wooded, winding streets commonly called Tangletown will gather to discuss the makeup and purposes of the new Tangletown Neighborhood Association at an organizational meeting on Monday, September 17. The meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m. in Weyerhaeuser Chapel on the campus of Macalester College.

The neighborhood represented by the new community group includes approximately 400 homes and apartments in the area bounded by Summit on the north, St. Clair on the south, Snelling on the east and Fairview on the west. All residents of this area are invited to attend the meeting, at which time a charter will be presented for discussion and approval.

The purposes of the Tangletown Neighborhood Association, as set down at a previous meeting, are: to facilitate and regularize relations with neighboring Macalester College, to represent the neighborhood to the Southwest Area District Council, to serve as a vehicle to deal with all matters of community interest, and to make available money-saving opportunities through group contracting for various services and goods.

For any further information about the association, contact Scott Ross (699-7700) or Betsey Boyle (699-6825).

Highland Tower opens Saturday

A view from the top can be yours this week, should you take advantage of the St. Paul Water Utility's decision to open the Highland Water Tower to tours in conjunction with the annual Highland Village Art Fair. According to City Councilman Len Levine, who also wears the hat of president of the city's Board of Water Commissioners, the tower will be open from 9:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. on Saturday, September 15. Water utility personnel will be on hand during those hours to assist all who drop by to climb the 155 winding steps to the open-air observation deck. Built in 1928, the water tower rests on the second highest point in St. Paul and offers a panoramic view of a large portion of the metropolitan area. The photo at the top looks northwest from the corner of Snelling and Ford Parkway.

Groveland deemed fit for award

Groveland Park Elementary School has been named as one of three schools in Minnesota to win the 1979 State Champion Physical Fitness Award, given to one school in each of three enrollment categories that qualifies the highest percentage of students ages 10-17 for the Presidential Physical Fitness Award.

Groveland took the award in the middle category (101-500 students) with 50 out of 167 students qualifying. To qualify, a student must score at or above the 85th percentile on each of six events: sit-ups, pull-ups, standing long jump, 50-yard dash, 600-yard run-walk and shuttle run.

Groveland will receive a plaque and a certificate, and each Presidential Award-winner at Groveland will receive a State Champion emblem.

AN 'UNCOVERED' STADIUM

To the editor:

Readers, a big question: Who in the Minnesota political leadership wants to get into a higher office more than anyone else in the state? Who wants it so bad he can taste it?

Nick Coleman, of course, and he's started to build his "good guy" image by coming out against the domed stadium planning process after pushing the actual plan through the legislature just four months ago.

Tricky Nicky has known—just like the rest of us—that the stadium could not be built within the legal limits without skullduggery. The Senate majority leader, we all know, either plants the Pope's blessing or the kiss of death on any state project. We have his approval on the way the stadium bill was written; now he can point to some judge as the fall guy however it ends up. This way, he can steer clear of the whole dirty issue—and that goes for all those who go along with him.

I wonder if serious-minded DFLers are going to be fooled by Tricky Nicky's actions. Will they accept his antics because they hope he can lead them to gain back some lost prestige?

One doesn't have to be a political analyst (a paid prognosticator who is right once in a while) to see through Nick Coleman. As far as the stadium goes, it may indeed be too late to stop this trick being played on the citizens of our state, particularly those in Minneapolis. But as time goes by and excavation for the stadium begins, we may well be surprised at what we'll see uncovered.

Community Ed. Notice

Dozens of different courses and activities—designed with your body and mind in mind—have been scheduled as part of the 1979 fall session of the Groveland, Homecroft and Edgumbe/Randolph Heights Community Education programs. Registration for all programs begins next week, with most courses set to start the following week.

Residents of the three Community Education program areas will find a copy of their class schedules inserted in this issue of the Highland Villager. For Groveland's district, that includes the area bounded by Summit, Snelling, Randolph and the Mississippi River. For Homecroft's, it's the area south of Montreal from the Mississippi to the Pleasant Avenue corridor and the area between Cleveland and Snelling as far north as Ford Parkway. The Randolph Heights program area is bounded by Summit, Snelling, Highland Parkway and the Pleasant Avenue corridor.

Those Villager readers living outside the areas defined above who would like to obtain a copy of the program schedule, should call Jim Martin at Groveland (690-5037), Mike Rossberg at Homecroft (690-2879) or Ruth Wiltfang at Randolph Heights (690-4081).

Highland Senior High's new principal

its staff and students is one of those subjects. Rossini said his goals have always included both exposure and involvement in school and student matters, and he will continue to promote teacher participation through various activities this year.

Speaking about the variable role of a school directorate, Rossini said that "Discipline is unimportant for 98 percent of the kids. It's the two percent that need attention, and that's what we're here for—the administration."

If Highland's new principal is anything, he's optimistic about his new position. "There's a very, very positive attitude toward the student body, and staff relations are very good," he said. "And from what I've seen so far, that staff is an accomplished one."

Although Rossini's office is down the only reasonably quiet hallway at Highland, Rossini says he intends to be a very visible and available principal to the approximately 1380 students at Highland this year. His wide range of experiences with the problems and needs of high school students will no doubt contribute to his endeavors at Highland. Community and parental support can only add to his—and his school's—success.

McMahon's ascendancy to City Council is saga of setbacks, surprises, success

by Roger Fuller

News analysis

The two-year quest of George McMahon to become a St. Paul City Councilman has been a roller coaster ride since he first challenged the late Rosalie Butler for her council seat in the fall of 1977.

McMahon took turns in playing the roles of the outsider, the apparent favorite, the upset victim, and the candidate in limbo until the council appointed him to serve out the duration of Butler's term for Council Seat F.

Shortly before Butler died on August 3, rumors circulated downtown that McMahon, 339 Pelham Blvd., was the preferred choice of the six remaining council members if the seat became vacant. Since the voting would be restricted to the six members, the matter appeared to be settled except for one thing: Would the council members think twice before appointing McMahon if the DFL or Labor endorsements went to other candidates?

The status of McMahon's position was revealed in part by the absence of Jim Scheibel as a candidate. Scheibel, now the legislative aide to Councilwoman Joanne Showalter, showed strong support within the DFL when he narrowly missed winning the party endorsement for Seat A at the city convention last year.

After Butler's funeral, four established contenders announced their candidacy for the appointment and a fifth, Mary Osiecki, Butler's legislative aide, said she would not seek the appointment but instead would run in the election next spring.

The four contenders were McMahon; Carol Connolly, who was endorsed by the Ramsey County Women's Political Caucus; Robert Battle, a well-known political figure in the black community; and Jo Anne Cardenas de Enos, a candidate of the Hispanic community who also received backing from the women's caucus.

After the list of candidates became apparent, the campaign entered into a lull period as attention shifted to a trip down the river from St. Paul to St. Louis, Mo., by President and Mrs. Carter and their daughter Amy.

The effort to stop the McMahon candidacy attained a degree of plausibility when former councilman Patrick Roedler said he would seek the appointment. The anticipated boost to his chances never materialized, however, because Roedler had allowed his ties with labor to slack off after he stepped down from the council last year. Also, his former colleagues on the council did not seem willing to go out of their way to welcome him back.

Although Roedler was screened before labor's Committee on Political Education (COPE), only two ballots were needed before McMahon received the necessary two-thirds votes on August 27. Scattered backing for Roedler and Dick Kadris did not cancel the fact that McMahon was acceptable to labor. Last year, all COPE members supported him when he sought their endorsement.

The DFL endorsement, to be decided the following week by the 4th District DFL Central Committee, then seemed to have questionable value. McMahon's built-in advantages might be great enough to overshadow any challenger that might win the party endorsement.

The three principal challengers to McMahon all came from the party's liberal wing. Connolly, Battle, and Cardenas de Enos represented women, blacks, and Hispanics respectively, now the three most visible minority factions active in St. Paul politics.

On August 27, before the first ballot was called at the St. Paul Labor Center, McMahon looked around at the 93 members of the 45th District DFL Central Committee and predicted, "There will be no endorsement tonight."

He was right. On the first ballot McMahon had 37 votes, 15 more than the second place finisher but 19 shy of the 60 percent needed for party endorsement.

Connolly finished second with 22 votes, a disappointing total considering the effort she put forth courting the delegates of the central committee. Battle showed surprising strength with his 21 votes, and de Enos finished fourth with 8.

The liberals found themselves in a weak position to challenge McMahon because they violated one of their principal guidelines—presenting a unified front. When one seat is open, they seek to get all liberal candidates out of the race but one, to focus attention on the opponent (in this case McMahon, backed by the party's moderates and conservatives).

On the second ballot, McMahon remained at 37 while Connolly gained six and Battle three. On subsequent ballots, Battle's strength slowly shifted to Connolly. After the fifth ballot, Battle withdrew. On the sixth ballot, McMahon and Connolly were deadlocked at 42 each, 14 shy of the 60 percent vote needed.

Connolly pulled ahead by five votes on the sixth ballot. On the seventh, her lead fell back to 44-41. By this time, her candidacy was running into difficulties. The endorsement was deadlocked and the restless delegates were beginning to indicate a willingness to go home. After the seventh ballot, some parliamentary maneuvers were attempted until the motion to adjourn was made, seconded, and passed.

Had the liberals been able to focus their support on one candidate, they might have had a better chance of stopping McMahon, who clearly had less than 50 percent of the committee behind him. Because their vote was split between two strong candidates, the liberals had to spend most of the evening catching up to McMahon. When they finally drew even, their energy was gone.

A unified liberal thrust would have made a victory more plausible but it would not necessarily have guaranteed it. Since the endorsement was for council appointment and not election by the public, a blocked endorsement was almost as valuable to McMahon as a victory. His goal was to control 40 percent of the votes, a quota he reached on the third ballot.

On August 30, the council appointed McMahon to the Butler seat by a 5-1 vote. Ruby Hunt, the dissenter, backed Connolly.

Until McMahon announced his candidacy for Seat F in the fall of 1977, he was not regarded as a likely candidate for elective office. In 1976 he was interested in the legislative seat in District 62A but his moderate-to-conservative base of support made little headway in a liberal district. The endorsement went to Ann Wynia.

At the time he made his announcement as a candidate for the City Council, he was working as grants administrator for Ramsey County. His candidacy began to build due to opposition to Butler within the DFL plus controversy over pornography ordinances she had introduced several months earlier.

At the DFL City Convention in January 1978, his speech given in a quiet voice before a hushed crowd was the high point of the day. After the convention endorsed him on the first ballot, Butler decided to bypass the party primary and run as an independent in the general election.

Butler was believed to have made a wrong move in bypassing the party because the primary turnout was exceptionally low. Since Virginia Zasada, a little-known Butler protege, came within 200 votes of defeating Ron Maddox for Seat A, Butler herself would have been expected to beat McMahon with that type of a voter turnout.

Shortly after the primary the focus shifted. The controversial Gay Rights Referendum began to dominate the election. The large voter turnout attracted many who shared Butler's position on the pornography ordinances as well as many who voted for her based on name recognition. The defeat caught McMahon and his supporters by surprise because almost to a person, they expected to win the election.

When McMahon conceded on election night, he vowed to oppose Butler in 1980, then changed his mind and said he would wait until a vacancy developed on the council. When Butler died on August 3, he was the first contender to announce his candidacy.

Hillcrest, library offer ceramics classes for kids

Hillcrest Recreation Center and the Highland Park Branch Library have joined hands to offer two sessions of ceramics classes for children in third grade and up this fall.

The first session will be conducted from 3:30 to 5:00 p.m. each Thursday from September 13 through October 4. The second session will be offered on Thursdays at the same times, but from October 11 through October 25.

The cost for both is 25 cents per class (students should bring their quarters each time), and both will be held at the Highland Park Branch Library, 1974 Ford Parkway. The instructor is Marge Pedersen, craft specialist with the St. Paul Division of Parks and Recreation.

Registration for the two sessions is now being accepted at the library. To register, stop by the branch or call their new phone number, 292-6622.

Misch- Masch

by Maurice Mischke

The next few weeks in these parts are bound to be interesting. There are decisions to be made in the voting booths of Minneapolis, crucial struggles ahead on both diamond and gridiron, plus a vital verbal battle between high-powered, high-priced attorneys, with an inevitable court decision on the legality of the white elephantine domed stadium after the "arrangements" are scrutinized in relation to the legislative statutes.

People I've talked to in Minneapolis seem to feel that Fraser should be favored in Tuesday's primary—after all, it's pretty hard to surprise a guy twice in a row. By the time you read this you may already know the results, but I got a kick out of one comment from a young Mill City professional man who, I guess, personally favored Rice. "The best mayor we've had in recent years," he told me, "was Stenvig. He didn't do anything!"

Meanwhile our Twins, after being gunned down three times in a row via the bullets thrown by Jim Kern of the Texas Rangers, have to meet Kansas City and the Rangers again—in two consecutive series away from home. Just last Friday, Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn authorized the Twins to print Championship Series and World Series tickets. Now our home-town favorites have to be almost as concerned about holding third place as they have been about gunning for the top.

And all the Gopher gridders have to do the next two weeks is maintain their self-respect as a team while taking on ever-tough Ohio State, and then everybody's pre-season favorite for the national championship, Southern California. Did anyone tell you there were some thorns in those rose stems Smoky Joe Salem has in his mouth on those TCF billboards? Well, it doesn't say what year!

And, oh yes, the Vikings. All they've got to do is regroup against the invading Miami Dolphins, then hold off the Packers, Detroit away, and then the Big-D, Dallas. Anybody in his right mind would be deliriously happy with a split in those four games. With less than that, we may start building for next year, or... oh that's right, they don't try to build character in the pro ranks, do they?

Now that we've once again qualified ourselves as having an adequate interest in sports, what about that other decision—on the artificial (carpeted?) turf of the court room, right here in this provincial, prejudiced old city of St. Paul?

Oh yeah? For weeks I've been reading in the Minneapolis press about how Mill Citians generally favor the Dome, and St. Paul residents oppose it. Since I felt that this was an unjustified bad rap, I decided to do a little digging with some of my operatives across the ravine which forms the route of the Mississippi through these parts. Turns out they don't know anybody that favors it. So I checked in with a downtown executive who, I know, opposes the Industry Square site. He tells me that he undertook a survey of 300 Minneapolis Athletic Club members, in person and by phone, and came up with 273 opposed, 12 definitely in favor, nine or ten who said they didn't care or "let 'em have it if they want it," and a couple of no-comments. I'm beginning to wonder what a secret ballot of the Minneapolis Club would show?

For those of you who haven't had occasion to cross the river with any frequency, don't read Klobuchar, and are otherwise culturally suspect, I should explain that the Minneapolis Club is the rough equivalent of St. Paul's Minnesota Club, and I suppose the membership make-up of the MAC would be comparable to the St. Paul Athletic Club. Now if the MAC members don't favor the dome, wherein lies the support? It could only be fear of offending the top echelon that has kept so many of these people from speaking out.

But I didn't stop there, dear readers. Saturday afternoon I happened to drive by the corner of Cedar and Riverside in Minneapolis on my way to pick up some advertising copy at Cowles Crossing, also known as the Star & Tribune. What did I see on the window but the fact that Senator Nick Coleman was going to appear at a meeting on Sunday night, right in the torrid hot-bed of opposition to the Dome; right in the neighborhood that would be most adversely affected by the lidded monster, and had lobbied and labored hard and long to "build homes, not domes," or maybe industry in "Industry Square."

Busy as I knew I would be with press day coming up, I said to myself, "This I gotta see!" Their own legislators were on hand, but they had been consistent in opposition—Sen. Allan Spear and Rep. Lee Greenfield. But I came away from that meeting of some 100 neighborhood activists, feeling that Coleman almost wishes he had never put that compromise package together during the session last Spring. I think he's beginning to resent the high-level heat and wonder why he didn't go with the wishes of the vast majority. The meeting chairman complimented him on his courage and willingness to appear there after what he had done to them, and was willing to accept a firm purpose of amendment from the prodigal son.

So now the whole dome issue rests in the courts, where almost anything and everything of consequence seems to wind up these days. The first presentations to Judge Warren Saetre of Thief River Falls are being made even as I write these words. You and I could live quite a while on the legal fees this case will cause in just a few weeks. Some sixteen attorneys at what... maybe $150 to $200 per hour of direct chargeable time? If that issue carries and the dome passes muster in its present contractual form, we may have to sit down and rewrite the dictionary. It seems to me, the legal eagles would have to sell the judge on reading between the lines rather than on the lines themselves, in order to move that project ahead. Or are you betting that the sale of bonds will proceed and groundbreaking will occur—as scheduled—on the morning of October 15th?

You can hardly escape the knowledge that September is fair time if you read thru the pages of this Villager issue... The all new Highland Village Art Fair this coming weekend and the Nativity "County" Fair a week later. Incidentally, kids, if coloring is your bag, you're a sure-fire cinch to win a bag of popcorn, and maybe more if you do it well... in Nativity's artistic come-on—pages 16 and 21 of this issue.

I got to see a lot of fair action as a kid, since Sauk Centre was home base for the annual Stearns County Fair. But during those depression years, there was one activity that was almost more popular among the kids than the fair itself. That was the morning-after "treasure hunt." I remember being asked if I'd like to get up real early and join the gang... everyone was going out to the fair grounds to scrounge around for money and/or any other goodies under the grandstand, around the concession areas and anywhere else on the well-traveled grounds. After all, it was dark on Sunday night when the crowds and the carnies pulled stakes. Some of the kids came up with a pretty good haul... mostly in small change, of course.

You'd be surprised at how many people have been coming in or sending in subscriptions to the Highland Villager for their sons or daughters going away to college. Guess it serves as a reasonable facsimile, at times, to a letter from home. Not a bad idea, but do be sure to write them, too... at least in the off week. The cost for nine months? Just $6.00, as against the yearly rate of $7.50.

There was a mighty fine turnout recently when Bob Johnson, Highland legislator for some 12 years and a 1978 gubernatorial candidate, was recognized at an appreciation function in The Landmark Center. Sponsored by his many friends and political acquaintances, the event was marked by the appearance of honored guests Senator Dave Durenberger and Governor Al Quie, both of them adversaries of his in the pre-primary period of 1977-78. It all helped to offset some of the campaign costs Bob had incurred personally as he attempted to alert Minnesotans to some of our problems as he saw them. It's nice to see you don't always have to win to be appreciated.

I received several calls this week regarding neighborhood problems. One woman called about the incessant late-evening and post-midnight noises around and about the intersection of Randolph and Cleveland. I made some suggestions that I hope will be helpful and perhaps allow her an opportunity to sleep a bit better.

But there was another visitor whose problem stymied me as it certainly does her. Marie Mohr of 1887 St. Clair Avenue came in with a plaintive plea directed at her neighbors. It seems that over the past several years, she has been consistently burglarized, in spite of a series of lock changes and other protective measures. It seemed like a real security challenge, and another case where a neighborhood block watch might be effective. The next day I got a release in the mail from a magazine. "Homeowners can slow a thief, but they can't stop him," the headline said... this according to an ex-burglar writing in the July/August issue of the Family Handyman. O.K. you security specialists—what are the answers?

Time for our pilfered parting punchlines... like this graffiti spotted in London: "The meek shall inherit the earth" and next to it in a different hand, "If that's O.K. with the rest of you." And from Samuel Johnson: "The next best thing to knowing something is knowing where to find it." And, please don't forget... to err is human; to really foul things up takes a computer. (Though personally, I can do pretty well on that score without one.) Until next time, Aufwiedersehen.

you could be dead wrong.

More than one in four of us have potentially fatal high blood pressure. Of those who have it, 30 per cent don't know it.

Now you can know. Easily. At Twin City Federal, in all of our offices, we have installed automatic blood pressure computers. Come use them free. In about one minute you will have an accurate blood pressure reading and a chart indicating low, normal and high ranges.

Only a physician, of course, can help you evaluate your reading. If your blood pressure is too high, it can be treated and controlled. And that could help you avoid a life-threatening stroke, heart attack or kidney disease.

Do you have high blood pressure? Now you can know. Easily. Free. Just stop in at any TCF office. It will only take a minute. Knowing could save your life.

Minnesota Irish National Caucus aims to foster people's awareness of 'troubles'

by Molly O'Brien

True or false: The conflict in Northern Ireland centers around Catholics fighting Protestants, with the Protestants on the side of their mother-country, Great Britain.

That's what most Americans are led to believe, according to Norah McCafferty, 136 S. Mississippi River Blvd., secretary of the Minnesota Irish National Caucus (MINC).

Wire service stories in this country about the "troubles," as the conflict is called in Ireland, repeat the same clichés that subtly portray the Irish as "idiots," Americans as "fools who accept anything they hear," and the British as "caught in a trap," McCafferty said.

But it goes much deeper than that, she said, explaining that the caucus is dedicated to "keeping Minnesotans informed about the Irish situation" and educating Americans so they have a realistic view of the war-like conflict.

"It (the caucus) is rigidly non-sectarian and is affiliated with no political group here or abroad," MINC state coordinator Charles McCafferty, husband of Norah, wrote in a recent press release. The caucus was founded in 1975 and now numbers about 1,000, concentrated mostly in the Twin Cities area.

The great majority of news coming out of Northern Ireland is handled through the British Army Barracks at Lisburn, about 12 miles from Belfast, according to the McCaffertys and Leah Curtin, a present member of the caucus board.

Norah McCafferty

The two American news services, United Press International and the Associated Press, have no full-time staff in Northern Ireland and rely on free-lance writers or reporters from Irish papers called "feeders."

Media people who travel to Northern Ireland usually stay in the only really modern accommodation in Belfast, the British government-built Europa Hotel. Instead of talking directly to people, the media often get news communiques over the desk that originated in Lisburn, Curtin said.

The "troubles" have not gained the widespread attention or sympathy of Americans because this country has no apparent economic interest there, according to Mrs. McCafferty.

"The Middle East has a lot more oil," she said.

"There's simply no issue here to involve people's awareness, except a moral one."

Northern Ireland is the only country in the free world with prison camps, according to Dr. McCafferty. One of the largest is Long Kesh or Her Majesty's Maze Prison. The name was recently changed to make it appear more respectable, he said.

To date, over 300 men have been sent to the "H blocks" there, cement buildings whose inhabitants are called "the men on the blanket." These men have no clothes, no toilet facilities, no contact with their families, and are given one blanket at night, Curtin said.

They claim to be political prisoners. Under the United Nations Code of Ethics, political prisoners cannot be required to wear prison clothes or do prison work. They must be given family visitation rights, the right to a fair trial and the right to know what charges are filed against them.

Britain declared three years ago that anyone convicted of a crime was not a political prisoner but a common criminal, Curtin said.

The International Court of Justice, principal judicial organ of the United Nations, convicted Britain of torture in January 1978, according to Curtin and the McCaffertys.

The three say that British troops are trained in guerrilla warfare tactics at Camp La Jeune in North Carolina and shipped to Northern Ireland.

Taking the moral issues a step further, in the six counties that make up Northern Ireland (an area about the size of Minnesota's Iron Range), Britain has stationed 18,000 troops, according to Dr. McCafferty. In order to keep up the supply, England has reneged on the number of troops the NATO treaty requires it to send to Europe. The U.S. is filling in that gap with American soldiers, he said, and draws this conclusion: "We as taxpayers are supporting the British army in Northern Ireland."

From news reports, most Americans believe that the conflict centers around Catholics fighting Protestants, with the Protestants on the British side. This is not always the case.

For example, some Protestants, including the 30,000-strong paramilitary Ulster Defense Association (the rough counterpart to the Irish Republican Army) "want the Brits out," Dr. McCafferty said.

The best way to change the American conception of the Northern Ireland "troubles," he added, is to directly expose them to "present points of view." And that's where the caucus comes in.

Among those whose visits to Minnesota have been sponsored by MINC are John Montague, one of Ireland's leading contemporary poets; civil rights leader Bernadette Devlin; John Robb, founder of the New Ireland Movement; a group Mrs. McCafferty says "aspires to an independent Ulster as the first step to an independent Ireland"; and Tomas MacAnna, director of Dublin's Abbey Theatre.

MacAnna has visited Minnesota more than once. Last April and May he designed and directed a production of Freedom of the City at the Chimera Theatre. Written by Brian Friel, the play is based on the 1972 "Bloody Sunday" massacre in Derry.

In February, five members of the New Ulster Political Research Group came to town to present their peaceful solution to the conflict—a constitution patterned after the American system. This group includes UDA leaders.

To the McCaffertys, this was the most important visit MINC has sponsored because it "proved that we're fulfilling our purpose, not taking sides."

"They recognized that we are an organization trying to be an information group," Mrs. McCafferty said. "Other Irish-American groups are either sectarian, accused of supporting the IRA, or purely social."

To maintain its nonprofit status and apolitical educational purpose, MINC's activities do not include lobbying.

There are caucus chapters in 27 other states, many of them concentrated in the east. And there is a national chapter in Washington, D.C. However, the Minnesota Irish National Caucus is autonomous.

"The national office has no credibility because its officers are on record supporting a military organization," Mrs. McCafferty said. "I'm not sure the national chapter realizes it can't support politics."

According to her, the national caucus does not favor the independent six-county Ulster proposed by a faction of Northern Irish. In contrast, there are those who believe Northern Ireland should be freed of British rule and incorporated into the rest of Ireland.

"It's none of their (the national caucus) damn business," Mrs. McCafferty said. "Even if Ulster is independent, it's in the hands of Irishmen and the moral purpose of the caucus is fulfilled."

Highland AA hosts open house for new clubrooms

All Highland area residents are invited to attend an open house for the new clubrooms of the Highland Alcoholics Anonymous (AA) group on Saturday, September 15. The event, which begins at 8:00 p.m., will be held in the gym of St. Gregory's School, 1668 Montreal Ave.

Father George C., who is affiliated with St. Mary's and St. John's hospitals, will serve as the guest speaker for the occasion. A buffet, refreshments, and the presentation of sobriety awards will round out the program.

The Highland AA, which numbers about 150 members, recently moved from its former quarters at 1050 So. Cleveland Ave. into three classrooms at St.

Gregory's School which the group is renting from the parish.

The new clubrooms will be used for regular AA meetings on Monday through Thursday nights, a woman's group which meets at 10:00 a.m. Mondays, brown-bag lunch meetings at 11:30 a.m. Tuesdays, and Al-Anon meetings on Monday and Friday evenings.

For any further information about the open house, or for a complete schedule of AA meetings and activities, call Burt at 690-5446.

Experts lecture on the rare and unusual in free series at library

Mary Niles Maack, formerly reference librarian at the New York Public Library's Schomburg Collection, will give a lecture on the history of the book and fine printing at 7:00 p.m. Thursday, September 13 at the Highland Park Branch Library, 1974 Ford Pkwy.

Maack presently teaches courses on the history of the book and fine printing at the University of Minnesota's graduate library school. Her lecture, which will be followed by a tour of the library's Rare Book Collection, is the first in a series of lectures and special collection tours offered to the public free of charge at the St. Paul Public Library and its branches.

Next up in the series is Patricia Kane, professor and chairman of the English department at Macalester College, who will give a lecture on "F. Scott Fitzgerald and his St. Paul Roots" at 7:00 p.m. Thursday, September 20 at the Highland Park Branch Library, 1974 Ford Pkwy.

A specialist in the field of 20th century American literature, Kane is the author of Fitzgerald's St. Paul: A Writer's Use of Material and Three Cheers for Fitzgerald. Her lecture will be followed by an introduction to the F. Scott Fitzgerald First Editions in the library's Rare Book Collection.

Ernest Sandeen, professor of history at Macalester College, will present a lecture and slide presentation on "St. Paul's History in its Architecture" at 7:00 p.m. Thursday, September 27 in the auditorium of the St. Paul Public Library, 90 W. 4th St.

A specialist in American religious and architectural history, Sandeen is the author of St. Paul's Historic Summit Avenue (1978), The Lake District of Minneapolis: A History of the Calhoun-Isle Community (1979), and is one of the authors of a forthcoming guidebook to the history of St. Paul, which is being published by Old Town Restorations. A tour of the St. Paul Collection will follow Sandeen's talk.

Other lectures in the series will be given on "The Creation of the Children's Classic," October 4; and "The Bible as Literature," on October 11. For more information or to register, call 292-6332.

Our 'Summer Vacation' essay contest winners

Editor's note: The last time you had occasion to riffle these pages, the Highland Villager was offering prizes of $25 and $10 for the best entries in our first annual "What Did You Do On Your Summer Vacation?" contest. Well, school's in and so are the results.

While the number of adult entries was a bit of a disappointment, the kids really outdid themselves. (To those students whose teachers assigned our contest as homework: Sorry about that.) From the content of their entries, we figured the typical Highland area kid's summer looked like this: Summer camp, sunburns, trips to the lake, baseball, incredible successes while fishing, and a rousing trip to the State Fair. Somehow in the midst of all this activity, a fair number of kids managed to hold down some kind of job.

We also learned a few things: How a certain hotel bills its guests, that some students still count words, and that at least one eighth-grader considers the Villager staff "weirdos" for cooking up the contest in the first place.

At any rate, here are the three winners, who will receive $25 each, plus those whose entries were deemed worthy of honorable mention. Excerpts from these are also reprinted below, and their authors will receive $10 each. We hope you enjoy reading them as much as we did...

SUMMER PLANS, AMENDED

by Kris Burns

Like other model American women, I had spent the last five years struggling with a career plus being a wife and mother, domestic engineer, butcher, baker, candlestick maker and so on... and decided, this spring, that I owed it to myself and my family to take a real live summer vacation. I took a leave of absence from my job.

Fantasies filled my head about being a lady of leisure and a SuperMom. With this in mind, I set up the following schedule for my typical day:

8:00 a.m. — Jog down to the tennis courts in my raspberry-pink velour jogging suit (a breeze to whip up on the sewing machine the previous night), play a set or two and jog home.

9:00 a.m. — Sit down to a leisurely breakfast on the deck, with freshly brewed "French market" coffee, homemade granola muffins and marmalade (all of which I prepared in my kitchen yesterday).

10:00 a.m. — Do the laundry, dust, vacuum, repot the plants, line the cupboard shelves, hang new drapes, wash all the windows and mow the lawn.

11:00 a.m. — Do some shopping in the Village, go to the farmer's market for produce, the co-op for fresh grains, the butcher for meat and the bakery for fresh baked goods.

Noon — Have 12 friends in for lunch.

1:00 p.m. — Take the children to a matinee, and then to the beach.

3:00 p.m. — Come home and work on a project already in progress. Examples: Remodeling the house, sewing for a local shop, or perhaps building a houseboat out of things you find in your kitchen (reference to my copy of Good Housekeeping).

4:00 p.m. — Take an hour-long bubble bath.

5:00 p.m. — Prepare dinner. (Tonight: Crepes, with assorted fresh fruit toppings.)

6:00 p.m. — Ride bicycles with the family, stop and play frisbee in the park, swim at the beach.

7:00 p.m. — Invite friends over. Play cards and show home movies.

9:00 p.m. — Sew new jogging suit for tomorrow.

10:00 p.m. — Retire for the evening, only to awaken refreshed and ready to resume the same schedule tomorrow.

Actually, my real summer schedule didn't go quite this well. There were some small changes in plans. My daily itinerary looked more like this:

8:00 a.m. — Jog? I could barely stumble out of bed to get to the coffee pot. And tennis? The closest I came to tennis was using an old racket from the garage to kill a bat on the porch.

9:00 a.m. — "Breakfast on the deck" turned out to be eating the soggy frosted flakes the kids didn't finish, and occasionally a banana — the kind you'd find on the counter behind the toaster. You know. The black one.

10:00 a.m. — Dusting, vacuuming, laundry. Household hint: Never leave even one article of clothing in the hamper. It will grow into a new load in less than 24 hours. And I only vacuum when the cats and dog are too full to eat any more crumbs off the floor.

11:00 a.m. — I shopped at the Quik 'n' Ezy and the 7-Eleven. There was never time for anything else.

Noon — I don't have 12 friends.

1:00 p.m. — I'd usually take a nap and let the kids watch the afternoon movie on the tube or run through the sprinkler. I did take the kids to the beach once. They had a wonderful time. I came home with prickly heat. The beach towels and sand are still in the back seat of the VW.

3:00 p.m. — Aha! I did do one project this summer. I cleaned and organized the kitchen junk drawer—while looking for a postage stamp and a pen that would write.

4:00 p.m. — My luxurious hour-long bubble bath was more like a washcloth quickly run across the face, and a quick change into a clean top and cutoffs.

5:00 p.m. — Crepes turned into microwave pancakes with Welch's grape jelly (when the kids or ants hadn't gotten to it first).

6:00 p.m. — We never did bike this summer. Bob's bike has had a flat since last year's Bike-a-thon. And we never rounded up the kids.

7:00 p.m. — We invited friends over for cards once. But after going through six decks and never finding more than 47 cards per deck, we didn't play. We don't have home movies either. All we have is a few photos from our first year of marriage and a couple from when our oldest was born. After he came home from the hospital, we stopped taking pictures.

9:00 p.m. — I never got to sew this summer. My machine broke last Christmas. That was the time I decided to try making sleeping bags for everyone in the family.

10:00 p.m. — There was one thing I did consistently all summer. That was to fall asleep during the news or while reading in bed.

I don't know where these women whose stories appear in Family Circle, or whatever, get the energy to follow a schedule like the one I'd planned. But I'll bet they never spent their summer vacation learning that they are only human.

Boy, what a relief that is.

HONORABLE MENTION TO:

Anna Lauer, 20, of 1936 Juliet Ave., who described her summer job thusly:

I don't know if I would call it a vacation, but working with mentally retarded and physically handicapped people of all ages certainly is exciting—and challenging. Camp New Hope, a donation-supported camp north of McGregor, provides an outdoor experience for individuals from Cambridge State Hospital and county group homes around the state...

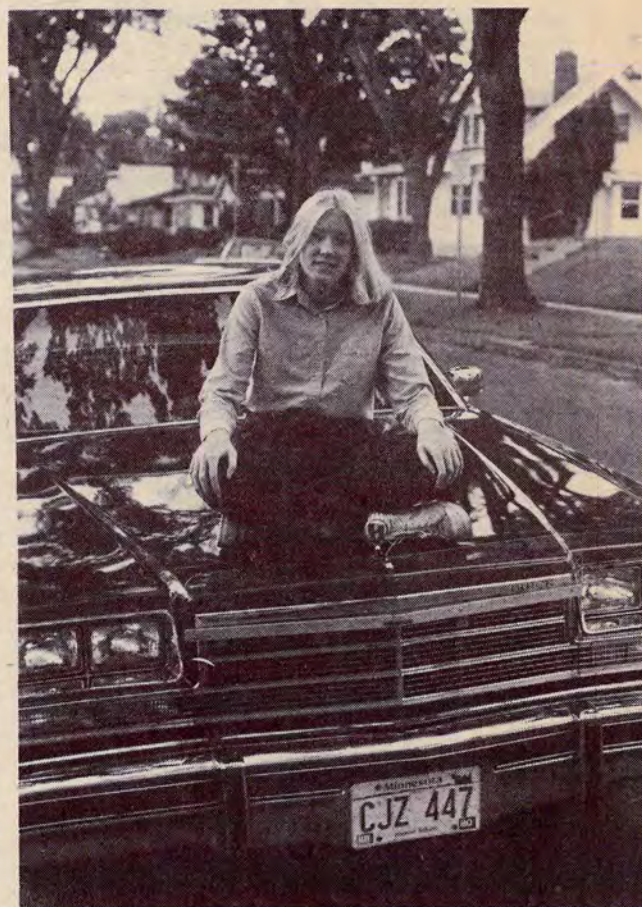

Contrast intensifies life, and camp was full of contrast. Feelings of stress and tranquillity, pain and pleasure, joy and sorrow were all part of my counseling experience. Would I do it again? This was my second summer working there and yes, I'd do it all again.

RUMBLINGS FROM A CAR

by Anne Hirte

When summer began, all was dandy. I ran a lot of miles and downed a lot of fossil fuel. However, for reasons I will never comprehend, I soon fell into disfavor with my owners. They claimed I was a good-for-nothing gas hog, and banished me to the garage. This made me most unhappy. Never again could I skip along the highway with delightful ease or guzzle and guzzle 'til I just simply had to guzzle some more. I became a pestilential scourge, a beast so dreadful that the only thing I was fit for was errands.

Near August, however, I was allowed to accompany my owners on a trip east. I thought to myself: "Freedom at last!" Some freedom. First, they led me out into a raging thunderstorm. While my window-wipers struggled in vain, they bloated my abdomen with six overstuffed suitcases. Even though my axle ligaments were pulled, I still managed to whisk them across vast expanses of highway, and what thanks did I get? I heard nothing but "I'm tired of watching boggle-eyed cows chewing their cud in pastures" and "I'm thirsty." Thirsty, eh? My carburetor boiled over. Thirsty? I drove 'em to Niagara Falls. Then they quieted down and became all sweet and docile.

Tenth-grader Anne Hirte, 1384 Sargent Ave., put herself in her family car's shoes (er, wheels) and found the vehicle for the first-place award in our grade 7-12 category.

As for the rest of the trip, well, I was as happy as a honking horn. I had many adventures, got into a few scrapes and largely ignored my owners. I traveled around the blue-green Catskills and over the slowly swirling Hudson River. However, I must complain once more. On the way back, I gained 30 pounds from all the junky trinkets they crammed against my ribs. And after all that work, I didn't get one thing.

Not even a nice bumper sticker that read, "I like OPEC."

HONORABLE MENTIONS TO:

Fellow St. Mark's eighth-grader Matthew Courtney played baseball:

So you want to know what I did on my summer vacation? Well, I'll tell you, but you'll wish you never asked.

I started my vacation by joining a baseball team... I don't like to say it, but our team was not very good. We ended up with a 3-7 record. (Two of our wins were forfeits.) By the way, my record at the end of the year was one out of six in batting. (I walked a lot.) I had one error in right field, and didn't catch any fly balls in my entire career. I have to admit, though, I had a good time playing even if our team wasn't very good.

David Kern, also of the eight-grade class at St. Mark's, worked:

I have 14 lawn-mowing jobs and they pull in a lot of money. I do them every week, or at least try to. One of my jobs is an old lady of 83 years, and she sure is nice. I figure I will get five or six dollars for her lawn but instead she gives me $10 plus 50 cents for pop.

There's another old lady that could talk for years. She always has to tell me to leave or she will talk to me all day. Her lawn is really steep. I have to wear baseball shoes to get traction.

Twelfth-grader Barb Keyport, 1987 Summit Ave., who visited her sister in Ecuador:

How would you like to spend two months where gas is only 18 cents a gallon, where few people have cars, where the pace of life is 10 times slower than ours, and where most of the food will make you sick? Well, I did and I loved every minute of it...

Walking and the irregular bus system are the only usual means of transportation in and around town. Vendors are always getting on the buses selling oranges, shoes, watches and even meals... There are signs on the buses that read, "Senor Pasajero, por favor tire su basara por la ventana," which means, "Mr. Passenger, please throw your garbage out the window."

Michael Farley, an eighth-grader at St. Mark's School, learned something about golf:

The thing I did this summer was caddy. That's really not (cont'd next page)

Summer (from p. 10)

the greatest job. The hours are long, the golf bags are heavy and the pay so-so. However, you do get exercise and meet interesting people.

One person I'll never forget is a woman who made a hole-in-one while I was her caddy. She was so surprised she planted a kiss on my forehead and a very generous tip in my hand.

CAMPING, AND ALL THAT

by Michelle Binns

When I went to camp, boy was that a small, small smash. The minute I got there I wanted to come back home but I took it as it came. We talked about things like obeying the rules and the activities. So we went rollerskating.

So one night at camp it was bedtime so everybody was to go to sleep. And my friends and I were laughing and giggling so we had to get up and do 50 jumping jacks. We were still laughing so we had to go outside and hug trees.

So camp was over so we went home. I was glad. So time went on, then came July 4 and lots of neat-looking fireworks. We popped bottle rockets, jumping jacks, firecrackers and other stuff.

Then came my birthday and we went go-carting, my friends and I. After that we had cake and ice cream.

The biggest smash was the state fair. I went on the Enterprise and got so sick I wished they'd stop the ride. So I got over my sickness, we rode the slide and the other rides and watched the fireworks and went home. So here I am back in school. 'Bye!

HONORABLE MENTIONS TO:

Five-year-old Jacqui Morley of 1631 Saunders Ave., who attends kindergarten at Highland Park Elementary, dictated her summer story to her mother, Pat. Here's part of our youngest contestant's entry:

I went to Disneyland. Then it was time to leave California and go to our new home in Minnesota... We went on the plane. It was a little scary... The pilot took us into the front of the plane and he let me pretend to be the co-pilot and my brother was the pilot...

When we got inside my dad said, "This is your bedroom." Then we went downstairs and we opened up the closets and shut them, and then we went to sleep on the floor, because we didn't have furniture. Then at last our furniture came from Los Angeles and then I asked the man if I could ride my bike. We have a nice neighbor with a dog across the alley. I am happy!

Helen Aleen Thompson, a sixth-grader at Highland Elementary, viewed her summer as something of a happy accident. Well, make that a pretty decent summer during which she had a series of accidents:

Michelle Binns, a sixth-grader at Highland Elementary, took first in the "sixth-grade-and-under" category for her offhand description of summer camp.

I went to Utah, Omaha, Nebraska and Topeka, Kansas. I went to all these places for two days. I got sick in Kansas and I caught a cold in Omaha which I still have. I lost my shoes in Utah. In Nebraska I ordered salad in a restaurant and the waitress spilled it all over me. I looked like an orange sea monster.

Rich Schaefer, who also attends sixth grade at Highland Elementary, told a story of moderately good times in a summer that revolved around the Great American Pastime:

I played baseball for Highland Little League. I played good ball in the field and at bat. We started out in last place but ended in second. I got a Most Valuable Player trophy, and so did everyone else. I should say we were all good ballplayers, then.

Portnoy's compilation opens September 15

A collection of works by Barbara Portnoy, 1890 Bohland Ave., will open with a reception at 9:00 p.m. Saturday, September 15 at the Temple of Aaron, 616 S. Mississippi River Blvd.

The show, which continues through the month of October, consists of paintings, drawings and collages which incorporate sayings in Yiddish with English translations.

Scenes like these at Groveland Park Elementary were duplicated throughout the Highland area last week, as summer came to its sudden end—at the doorstep of the local neighborhood school.

Mark Jambor

You don't have to be a graybeard to attain a measure of success in the real estate field. Mark Jambor knows that now—if he didn't before—after taking top honors for the month in both listing and sales. Actually Mark has been a real estate counselor for our firm since 1972, except for periods in which he succumbed to the lure of the big sky and mountains of Montana, Glacier Park and other parts of the still wide open Pacific Northwest.

But now he's settled down in his own home on Jefferson Avenue, with ample incentive to concentrate on his chosen profession. And ready to concentrate on serving you well whenever you're ready to buy or sell.

Catholic club to meet in Mendota

Members of the Twin Cities Catholic Alumni Club will convene for an evening of jazz—Hall Brothers' style—at 8:42 p.m. Friday, September 14 at the Emporium of Jazz, 400 D St. in Mendota.

Club membership is open to all single Catholics age 21 and older who have graduated from a four-year college and are "free to marry in the Catholic church." For further information, call the club at 645-4914.

Gymnastics club sets classes

Gymnastics classes for girls and boys age 4-16 will begin Monday, September 17 at St. Anthony Park Elementary School, 2180 Knapp St.

Offered by the St. Anthony Park Gymnastics Club, the program will be directed by Curt Adams, former University of Minnesota gymnast and Big Ten floor exercise champion. Four other coaches, all with competitive experience on U of M men's and women's teams, will serve as his assistants.

The gymnastics program, now in its fifth year, will offer classes ranging from one hour per week for beginners to extensive team training schedules.

For registration information and materials, call Joanne Laird (644-6433) or Esther Kellogg (699-6006).

Volunteers sought for Family Tree

Volunteers are currently being sought by the staff of the Family Tree to serve as patient educators, interviewers and lab workers. A community health clinic located at 1599 Selby Ave., the Family Tree will train volunteers in communication skills and consumer health advocacy, and provide them with the technical information needed to perform their tasks.

All interested persons should contact Susan Harper (645-0478) for an application before September 24.

Annual fashion bash launched

The eighth annual fall fashion show, sponsored by the Downtown Council of the St. Paul Area Chamber of Commerce, has been scheduled to coincide with the city's 125th Anniversary Celebration.

Entitled "Fall Port O'Call," the fashion show will be launched with a 6:00 p.m. wine and cheese reception on Thursday, October 4 at the downtown Radisson. The show itself will feature the season's fashions for men, women and children in four categories: Swift Currents (sportswear), Mitey Mates (the small fry), All Decked Out (daywear) and Night Lights on the Levee (evening wear).

As part of the event, Captain William Bowell of the Jonathan Padelford will tell

HGRA players to pass the hat

The annual can collection for the benefit of the Highland Groveland Recreation Association (HGRA) football program is scheduled for 10:00 a.m. to 2:00 p.m. this Saturday, September 15. Team members, who will all be wearing name tags, will be going door to door soliciting donations to help defray the costs of the annual pigskin program.

"Our players should also be readily distinguishable because of their polite manners," said Mike Windey, program coordinator. If you have any questions about the collection, or if you believe someone is misrepresenting HGRA, you can call Windey at 699-4633 between 10:00 a.m. and 2:00 p.m. The goal of this year's drive is $1,500.

Grand Avenue eateries mushroom with plans for Victoria, St. Albans malls

by Roger Fuller

The stretch of Grand Avenue from Victoria to Dale may soon see half again as many eateries as the eight the street now sports should plans presently on the drawing board come to fruition.

A building permit has already been granted the Grand Gazebo to convert the former Li'l General Store at 777 Grand into a pizza parlor. (Earlier this year, an attempt by William Heine to transfer his liquor license from the site of his former downtown bar to 777 Grand failed due to opposition from the Summit Hill Association/District 16.)

But that's just the start. A proposal to transfer the liquor license held by the former Criterion Restaurant to Grand Avenue will be presented to the Summit Hill Association during its monthly meeting this Thursday, September 13 at the University Club, 420 Summit Ave. If the neighborhood council approves the proposal, it can recommend to the St. Paul City Council that the license transfer be approved.

Bob Sandler, owner of the license, said plans currently call for a 275-seat Chinese-American restaurant to be located in the proposed Victoria Crossing East building, on the northeast corner of Grand and Victoria. Sandler will be joined in the operation of "The Royal Garden" by Russ Weaver and Dennis Ko, who operate the Seasons restaurant in Coon Rapids and the Jack Yee restaurant in Hopkins.

The Victoria Crossing East building will complement the present Victoria Crossing shopping mall which opened 1½ years ago on the northwest corner of the intersection, in a building that had housed an auto body shop before that.

Shortly after Victoria Crossing opened, its developer, Jim Wengler, announced plans to turn the former auto dealership on the northeast corner into Victoria Crossing East, and the former supermarket at Grand and St. Albans into St. Albans Crossing.

Wengler said an opening date for Victoria Crossing East has not yet been set, but the first tenant in the St. Albans Mall expects to be open for business by the end of the year. That would be the Saji-Ya, a Japanese-style restaurant which will have a seating capacity of about 130.

"Right now, we have optional plans for the rest of the building," Wengler said. "We might bring in another ethnic restaurant and just have the two restaurants, or we might have a second smaller restaurant and put in a few shops like we have at Victoria Crossing."

Wengler doesn't see the abundance of restaurants already on Grand Avenue as a problem. "It's been proven that many restaurants together can survive," he said. "For instance, in Phoenix there's a mall with nothing but restaurants. Six or seven of them, each representing a different nationality."

If the Criterion license is eventually transferred to Grand Avenue by the City Council, it will mark the final chapter of the Criterion restaurant on University Avenue, which was destroyed by fire last year. Shortly after the fire, Sandler opened a restaurant under the same name in Bloomington. The liquor license issued by the City of St. Paul has not been in use since the University Avenue building burned.

The light at the end...

Construction of the long-awaited traffic light at the intersection of Grand and Victoria is expected to be complete within the next two weeks.

"Obtaining a traffic light for that corner has been a major project of the Summit Hill Association for several years," said Talley Rhame, the Summit Hill/District 16 organizer. Rhame indicated that a "pedestrian party" is in the offing once the green light is given.

Rabbi Kelman visits Temple of Aaron as scholar-in-residence

Rabbi Wolfe Kelman, considered to be one of the world's preeminent Jewish leaders, will serve as scholar-in-residence for the weekend of September 14-16 at the Temple of Aaron, 616 So. Mississippi River Blvd. Ordained at the Jewish Theological Seminary of America, he has been executive vice president of the Rabbinical Assembly since 1951.

Rabbi Kelman was born in Vienna, educated at the University of Toronto and has participated in post-graduate studies in history and philosophy at Columbia University. He has served as a visiting rabbi of the West London Synagogue of British Jews and was also a participant in the Oxford Center for post-graduate Hebrew studies.

Rabbi Kelman was recently honored by the Rabbinical Assembly with a book dedicated to him entitled Perspectives on Jews and Judaism: Essays in Honor of Wolfe Kelman.

Rabbi Wolfe Kelman

This Friday evening, September 14 he will speak on the topic, "The Bible Comes Alive." On Saturday, he will lead a discussion on a passage from the Talmud at the traditional Sabbath meal, and on Saturday evening, he will lecture on "The Best of Abraham Joshua Heschel."

Hill House home for daytime class

Among the courses offered off campus this fall by the University of Minnesota's Continuing Education for Women program is "American Architecture and Decorative Arts of the 17th, 18th and 19th Centuries." The class will meet from 9:30 a.m. to noon Wednesdays starting October 3 at the James J. Hill House, 240 Summit Ave.

Taught by Barbara Kaerwer, the course will examine American architectural styles in eight lecture sessions and two field trips. For details, call the CEW office at 373-9743.

Hook up with the Happy Highlanders

Area parents and their children are invited to attend an informational meeting of the Happy Highlanders 4-H Club at 7:30 p.m. Monday, September 17 in the Resource Center of Highland Catholic School, 2017 Bohland Ave.

All boys and girls between the ages of 8 and 19 are eligible to enroll and further their interests in the creative arts, woodworking, photography, cooking and rocketry, to name just a few of the activities the local 4-Hers are into at present. If you'd like any further information on 4-H, call 698-0497.

Registration to open for Merriam Park's fall season programs

Registration begins the week of September 17 for fall programs and services at the Merriam Park Community Center, 2000 St. Anthony Ave., and will continue through the end of the month. Registration will be conducted during these hours:

From 5:00 to 8:00 p.m. Monday, September 17; 9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. and 7:00 to 9:00 p.m. Tuesday through Thursday, September 18-20; and 9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. Friday, September 21.

Programs offered include adult dance classes, crafts for adults and children, team volleyball and basketball, and an open gym and game room for teens, as well as other courses. If you didn't receive the Center's course listing in the mail, call 645-0349.

NATIVITY COUNTY FAIR

Celebrate Th

1979 has been designated as The Year Of The Child by the United Nations. This year, Nativity Parish is dedicating its annual Nativity County Fair to the children. On September 21st, 22nd and 23rd your entire family is invited to help us celebrate at the Fair. In years past the Nativity County Fair has been a great success. This year, it's going to be bigger and better than ever before. We've added new events, new rides, and more to the regular events that have made this county fair so enjoyable in the past.

Captain Cookie will be back this year to entertain all with music and merriment with a message. The Captain has produced a new album this year especially for the Nativity County Fair. A special song on the album is entitled: "The One and Only, Genuine, Original Nativity County Fair Waltz." Needless to say, the Nativity County Fair is close to the Captain's heart.

Talking Out of School

by Bill Rosenbloom and Carl Nelson

This week's Talking Out of School Traveling Trophy, the Hansel and Gretel Award, goes to a most deserving duo, School Superintendent George P. Young and Food Services Director Virginia Ball, for providing us with a fairy tale without an apparent ending—happy or otherwise.

Our story goes like this...

Once upon a time (January 1976 to be exact), George and Virginia set out on an afternoon hike from 360 Colborne, the home of the St. Paul school administration. Well-versed in urban survival tactics, they scattered a trail of breadcrumbs behind them as they meandered through the city's maze of alleys and avenues.

They had just turned onto Como Ave. when (lo and behold!) they discovered a gingerbread house much like the one they had read about back in grammar school. Just the sight of the structure, its white icing trim, chocolate chip roof, candy cane fence, and a loading dock made entirely of peanut brittle, convinced them that it would be sweet indeed if the building could become the new central kitchen for the St. Paul School District and replace the 12 satellite facilities operating at schools throughout the district.

George and Virginia were about to return to 360 Colborne to tell all their friends about the remarkable find, when they discovered that a flock of hungry sparrows had made off with their breadcrumb trail.

While wandering aimlessly through the Midway district, George spied a phone booth, and with his last dime, called Deputy Superintendent Ken Berg, who immediately summoned all seven members of the St. Paul School Board. Together, they boarded an orange school bus and came to the rescue of Virginia and George—with $3,000,000 in tax dollars so they could buy the house the two had told them about.

The money had just changed hands when a blizzard descended from out of the north, blowing big chunks of the gingerbread off the building and a good number of chocolate chips off the roof. The surface damages soon revealed structural deficiencies that had not been noticed before. Upon closer inspection of the premises, it was found that the kitchen freezer wasn't functioning properly.

Alas and alack! The St. Paul School District already owned the gingerbread house.

Moving ahead now to 1979, we discover Mrs. Ball bemoaning the failure of the school district to restore the gingerbread house to the shape it was in when she and Dr. Young first spotted it back in 1976. The fact is, things are in such rough shape that the district isn't even able to make gingerbread at the site. In addition, those 12 satellite kitchens which were to be phased out with the purchase of the central commissary have been sadly neglected. "How can we provide adequate service to our students?" she asks.

How indeed. Yet in spite of all these problems, the district contracted to provide lunches to two private schools last year, and to another three this year. It seems it's not only in fairy tales that our heroine could claim our kitchens are failing us, and at the same time be able to provide more and more lunches. Back in the real world, Mrs. Ball was recently quoted as saying:

"Right this minute, I'm not sure where the food will come from for the three new schools we have agreed to service. We'll do it, but I'll be on the first plane out of town if anything goes wrong."

What can we say?

P.S. to "An Admirer": We hope to have translated your letter by next week after consulting the Chicago Lexicon of Street Talk. In the meantime, we have placed your letter on file as a candidate for our 1980 Sick Award.

Punt, Pass 'n' Kick-ers paged

Area youngsters between the ages of 8 and 13 are urged to get on their toes and enter the 1979 Punt, Pass and Kick Competition, sponsored by the St. Paul Division of Parks and Recreation and Ron Saxon Ford. Competition is scheduled to begin at 4:00 p.m. Tuesday, September 25 at all neighborhood recreation centers.

Participants can sign up for free at all the city playgrounds, and no equipment is needed. Kids will compete within their own age

Calling all Scouts

A Scout Roundup Night is scheduled for 7:00 p.m. Thursday, September 13 at Randolph Heights School, 348 Hamline Ave. S. Dues will be collected at that time for boy, girl and cub scouts who register. Kids and parents are invited. For details, call Paul Bougie at 690-2966.

categories, and the top two finishers in each age group will compete in district finals, set for 6:30 p.m. Monday, October 1 at Edgumbe Playground.

Following the district finals are several more levels of competition, right on up to the national finals, which take place annually during half-time at the Super Bowl.

For details, call your local recreation center or the city parks people at 645-4689.

JCC Happenings

REGISTRATION OPENS

Registration for the JCC's fall program begins Sunday, September 16 and continues through Wednesday, September 26. Hours are 9:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. September 16; 9:00 a.m. to 9:30 p.m. Monday through Thursday, September 17-20; 9:00 a.m. to 3:00 p.m. Friday, September 21; and 9:00 a.m. to 9:30 p.m. Monday through Wednesday, September 24-26. Registration must be made in person at the Center during these time periods, with the exception of adult activities. (There will be a $1.00 late fee after September 26.) Consult the new fall-winter program book for a description of the more than 200 classes and activities, or call the Center at 698-0751. The first day of registration is "Centerrific Day," from 10:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m., September 16 — a time to try out classes, meet instructors and take part in a tailgate party while the Vikings play Miami on color television.

AFTER-SCHOOL TRANSPORTATION

If your child will be coming to the JCC after school, he or she can now ride the Talmud Torah buses Monday through Thursday. Transportation will also be provided from the Center. Right now, this service is free.

Buses stop at these schools: Randolph, Highland Elementary, Homecroft, Horace Mann, Webster, Mendota Elementary, Moreland, Garlough, Somerset, St. Paul Academy (upper and lower campus) and Highland Junior High. For more information, call Adolfo Cheistwer at 698-0751.

YOUNG MARRIED COUPLES

A Let's Make a Deal party for Jewish Young Married Couples is planned for 8:15 p.m. Saturday, September 15 at the home of Joanne and Bob Gillman, 2215 Highland Pkwy. Couples are asked to bring items to trade for an evening of wheeling and dealing. Admission is a bottle of wine and a chunk of cheese. Sign up by Friday, September 14 by calling Marilyn Dickel at 224-1108 or the JCC at 698-0751.

Information on nursing homes and their alternatives available

The Metropolitan Council has published a booklet that contains information about nursing homes and services that make it possible for elderly people to remain in their own homes.

The booklet, I Think I Need a Nursing Home: What Do I Do Now? lists 14 factors to consider when selecting a nursing home. It describes alternative services which can provide enough assistance to enable elderly people to remain in their own homes, and lists telephone numbers of agencies with information about such services.

Examples of alternative services listed in the booklet include home delivery of meals, transportation, and in-home health and chore services.

Copies of the booklet are available free of charge from the Metropolitan Council's Public Information Office by calling 291-6464.

One Year Of The Child

There are very few activities these days that can be enjoyed by the entire family; what's right for grownups isn't necessarily right for kids. With that thought in mind, the Nativity County Fair was created to provide a weekend of fun and togetherness for the entire family. Whatever the age, the fair has a lot to offer. Everything is there - from clowns and the merry-go-round to the Saturday night dance.

You could even win a 1979 Chevy Chevette!

But the most important part of the Nativity County Fair is that it brings people together; neighbors, friends and family. So make a date now to visit the Fair with the entire family.

Nativity parish celebrates the year of the child with a county fair for kids - of all ages.

Temple of Aaron Sisterhood meets

Mort Ryweck, executive director of the Jewish Community Relations Council Anti-Defamation League, will be the guest speaker for the Temple of Aaron Sisterhood's opening meeting at noon Monday, September 17 at the Temple of Aaron, 616 So. Mississippi River Blvd.

Ryweck, with the aid of Bill Cosby's educational film on prejudice, will ask those participating in the program to put aside the prejudices of others and deal directly with their own.

Reservations for the lunch and program may be made by calling the Temple of Aaron office at 698-8874.

Investment course set at Highland Jr.

An adult education course on investing will be offered from 7:00 to 9:00 p.m. Mondays, September 24 through November 12 at Highland Park Junior High School, Snelling and Montreal Ave.

The course, which will be conducted by David Sloane, an investment broker with Paine, Webber, Jackson and Curtis Inc., will include an overview of various investment vehicles, such as stocks, bonds and mutual funds, and will also touch on portfolio management.

To register, call Patti Edman at 222-1511.

Golden Kephah wearers gather

The 103 men and women who have earned the Golden Kephah since the Temple of Aaron began awarding the gold-colored head covering ten years ago, will gather for an anniversary celebration at 8:00 p.m. Saturday, September 15 at the temple, 616 So. Mississippi River Blvd.

The Golden Kephah is given to a young person who has acquired the skill of reading the Torah (the Hebrew Bible) in the original Hebrew from the scroll itself—not an easy task, since the Hebrew on the scroll is written just as it was in Moses' time, without vowels or musical notes.

Team B-4's NAOs get around

It wouldn't appear as if our local Neighborhood Assistance Officers have found a whole lot of time to unwind this summer. Much of their patrol time in the Team B-4 area has been spent on bicycles, patrolling alleys and leaving reminders with residents whose garages have been left open—the number one invitation to burglary.

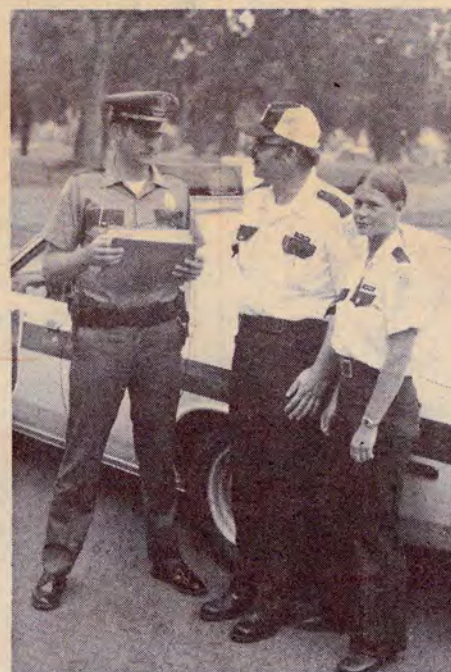

The NAOs' second major project has been to make frequent checks on the homes of people who go on vacation for a period of time. The house watch program is available to any area resident who simply asks for it.

Recently, too, the B-4 volunteers helped with a door-to-door canvassing campaign of residences near Planned Parenthood of Minnesota, 1965 Ford Pkwy., in search of any information that might help the St. Paul Police in its investigation of the August 13 arson at PPM.

No, they're not cops, but they do work for the St. Paul Police Department. Maybe you've spotted Neighborhood Assistance Officers Paul Cepelch and Virginia Ronning (above), pedaling up your alley or down your street on bike patrol. Or perhaps you've seen NAOs Gordy Berg or Rose Madison, shown below left with Lt. John Sturner going over some last-minute details before starting their tour of duty. Below right, Madison drops off some crime prevention literature at a local Q Petroleum station.

'Tis the seasoning that makes the fire

Looking forward to those long, cold nights and bone-chilling wins of winter? Don't think so.

Then how about this: a quiet, cozy evening in front of a crackling fireplace, sipping a hot toddy?

If that's the case, the Minnesota Energy Information Center has come up with a few suggestions to make those mid-winter eves both warmer and safer.

No eager beaver should be out cutting wood now for burning this winter, the center advises. Wood's "seasoning," or drying out process, is a lengthy one, and cannot be effectively rushed between now and the first descent of winter's white stuff.

Wood, as you've no doubt noticed, does not automatically begin to burn when a log is tossed on the fire. In fact, heat is actually robbed from the existing fire to get the new log burning. The robbery occurs while heat from the fire turns excess water in the new log to steam. Still absorbing heat, the wood then begins to break down into flammable gases and charcoal.

In the third stage, these gases begin to burn and produce some heat. The point at which you begin to benefit from a wood fire doesn't occur until the fourth and final stage, when the charcoal residue begins to burn and give off significant heat.

Cut wood that is given an adequate chance to season reduces the length of time it takes to turn water in the log to steam. It then becomes a matter of basic economics to avoid burning green (or wet) wood which produces a lot of steam and little heat.

Burning green wood is more than an energy drain, however. Steam from a fire contains many wood by-products, collectively called creosote, which collect on the inner surface of the chimney. Creosote attacks metal and mortar, and if allowed to collect over a period of years, can seriously weaken any chimney, and even result in a chimney fire. This risk is reduced considerably by using seasoned wood, which produces little creosote.

If wood is not already cut, stored and well-seasoned, your best bet at this point is to locate a reputable log supplier who has cut wood with low moisture content.

You can test the logs for dryness yourself by inspecting the butt ends. Radial cracks running from the log's center outward to the bark are keys to its dryness. The wider and deeper the cracks, the dryer the wood.

Public schools' family education programs offered at two area sites

The Adult Vocation Education and Community Education programs of the St. Paul Public Schools will again offer their Early Childhood and Family Education sessions this fall. Designed to provide an opportunity for St. Paul area adults to develop their skills and parents, and for young children to develop their potential as people, the sessions will begin the week of September 24 at two Highland area locations.

The Randolph Heights/Homcroft program will be held at Gloria Dei Lutheran Church, 700 So. Snelling Ave., on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. The Groveland Park program will be held at Groveland School, 2045 St. Clair Ave., Mondays through Thursdays from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m., Tuesdays through Thursdays from 1:00 to 3:00 p.m., and Tuesdays from 6:15 to 8:15 p.m.

Additional evening discussion sessions for parents only will be held as follows: Building Self-Esteem and Responsibility in Children—Wednesdays, September 26 through November 15 (eight sessions) from 7:00 to 9:00 p.m. at Randolph Heights School, 348 So. Hamline Ave.;

Children's Books—Wednesday, October 10 (one session) from 7:00 to 9:00 p.m. at Groveland School.

Special sessions for parents and children will include:

Father/Child Together (children ages 2-5)—Thursdays, September 27 through November 1 (six sessions) from 6:15 to 8:15 p.m. at Groveland;

Father/Infant Stimulation—Wednesdays, September 26 through October 17 (four sessions) from 6:15 to 8:15 p.m. at Groveland;

Halloween Workshop—

Friday, October 26 from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. at Groveland.

"Heart of the Beast" Puppet Show—Friday, November 2 from 9:30 to 10:30 a.m. at Groveland;

Dodge Nature Center Field Trip—Friday, October 12 from 9:15 to 11:00 a.m.

Bell Museum Field Trip—Friday, November 16 from 10:00 to 11:00 a.m.

Parents interested in obtaining any further information about the Early Childhood and Family Education programs may consult the Community Education flyer found in this issue of the Highland Villager (for those living within the program areas' distribution boundaries) or call Verne Melberg, Early Childhood/Family Education coordinator, at 221-1353.

Parents Anonymous finds alternatives to abusive behavior

Parents Anonymous, a self-help and support group for parents who are searching out positive alternatives to the abusive or potentially abusive behavior in their lives, meets every Monday from 7:00 to 9:00 p.m. at Children's Hospital, 345 No. Smith Ave.

Offering a program designed to help participants overcome their inner turmoil, Parents Anonymous provides a place where they can sort through painful experiences of the past, and someone to call for help during the week should a crisis arise.

The meetings are free and group members have complete anonymity. For more information on this group, call Children's Hospital Social Services Department at 298-8720.

St. Mary's Home seeks volunteers

New volunteers are needed this fall at St. Mary's Home, 1925 Norfolk Ave. Any area resident who cares about the elderly is invited to sign up for as many or as few hours as can be spared.

Volunteers will read to residents, talk to them, and participate in their activities. St. Mary's also needs those who could teach hobby crafts.

If you're interested, call Sister Mary Anne, director of volunteer services, at 698-5508.

Day and night classes offered by Field-Regina

The Field-Regina Community School program will offer both daytime and evening classes for adults beginning October 1 at Regina High School, 4225 Third Ave. S., Minneapolis.

Daytime classes, offered for the first time this year, will include bridge, ceramics, office skills for women returning to work, effective speaking, interviewing techniques, and a nutrition workshop.

Among the evening classes will be automotive basics, crocheting, knitting, cross country skiing, disco dancing, home maintenance, slimnastics, upholstery, volleyball, nutrition, bridge, and the making of bread, candy and Christmas crafts.

For a complete class schedule, call Sister Marie Lee at 827-2677.

Mass for Derham

Students, faculty, parents and friends of Derham Hall High School are invited to celebrate the new school year at a 1:30 p.m. Mass on Sunday, September 16 at Holy Spirit Church, Randolph and Albert St. Father John Forliti will be the celebrant. A reception at the school will follow.

Amory, who most recently wrote The Trouble with Nowadays: A Curmudgeon Strikes Back, will autograph copies and meet people after the business meeting. He will speak at 8:00 p.m., after dinner.

Cleveland Amory

Rummage for fall

The meeting and dinner are open to the public as well as members, but reservations must be made by September 20. You can make arrangements to attend the entire meeting or just the program part. Call 224-5463 for details.

The St. Paul Chapter of Rosetta Epstein Rossoff B'nai Brith Women has scheduled a rummage sale for 9:00 to 4:00 p.m. on Sunday and Monday, September 16 and 17 at Sibley Plaza, 2447 W. Seventh St.

Van to perform at Merriam-Lexington

Classical guitarist Jeffrey Van will appear in concert at 7:30 p.m. Monday, September 17 at Merriam-Lexington Presbyterian Church, located at the corner of Dayton and Howell Ave. N.

Free schoolin' for grownups offered

Free Adult Basic Education and GED Preparation classes are currently being offered by the St. Paul Public Schools from 9:00 a.m. to noon every Monday and Thursday at the Lexington Branch Library, 1080 University Ave.

Basic Education classes teach reading, math and English skills. The GED classes prepare participants for their high school equivalency certificates. All teaching is individualized.

Registration may be made any Monday or Thursday in the conference room of the library, for the classes start whenever you do. For more information, call the Adult Basic Education and Continuing Education Program at 646-7456, ext. 11.

Sisterhood to see one-woman show

Bee Bentzen will perform an original program entitled Queens without Crowns at the opening luncheon meeting of the Mt. Zion Temple Sisterhood at 11:45 a.m. Monday, September 17 at the temple, 1300 Summit Ave.

Queens without Crowns, a dramatization of some of the most colorful U.S. presidents' wives, makes use of many authentic costumes and accessories, and Bentzen's talent for vivid characterization.

Reservations for the meeting, at which new members will be welcomed, can be made by calling Nancy Novak at 455-2242 or Jane Kirschbaum at 457-1322. The cost is $3.75, babysitting service will be available, and transportation can be arranged upon request.

The Hillel Hustle

The Hillel Foundation will hold an evening of "Disco Under a Tent" from 8:00 p.m. to 1:00 a.m. Sunday, September 16 at the home of the organization's new president Amy Miller, 657 Sumner Ave. All are invited.

Bingo the Clown

Grand opening planned for new Fantasia Clothes for Children

Fantasia Clothes for Children will hold its grand opening celebration Wednesday through Saturday, September 12-15 at the new store, 2053 Ford Parkway (just east of Jackson Graves).

"We're very excited to be a part of the Highland Village business community," said Livia Fahadrich, president of Fantasia, Inc., which also operates a children's store in Golden Valley.

Like its twin, Highland's Fantasia Clothes for Children offers an extensive selection of infants-wear and novelties, in addition to outerwear and sportswear for boys and girls up to size 14. According to Fahadrich, it's been Fantasia's intention from the start to "carry merchandise which is not only attractive and durable, but which both mother and grandmother could afford."

In addition to the traditional grand opening savings, customers (and their kids) who drop by this week will delight in the antics of Bingo the Clown. Familiar to many as the clown who performed for children's day grandstand shows at the Minnesota State Fair, Bingo has entertained countless thousands from across the United States since he first joined the Coles Brothers (now the Clyde Beatty) Circus at the age of 11.

He'll be at Fantasia on Wednesday, September 12 from 3:00 to 5:00 p.m. and on Saturday, September 15 from 10:00 a.m. to 1:00 p.m.

Registration set for boys' hockey

The Highland Area Hockey Association (HAHA) will hold registration for its 1979-80 season from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. on Tuesday and Wednesday, September 18 and 19 at Groveland playground, Prior and St. Clair Ave.

Registration for HAHA is open to all boys ages 7 through 14 who live within the Highland Park Senior High School attendance area, bounded by Summit Ave., Lexington Pkwy., Mississippi River Blvd. and Shepard Road.

The registration fee is $10.00 for Mites and $20.00 for Squirrels, PeeWees and Bantams. The first night of skating is October 22. For more information, call Tom Albrecht at 699-8566.

Hi-rise officers

The following officers were recently elected to two-year terms at the Highland High-Rise, 899 S. Cleveland Ave.: Violet Gaylord, president; Ruth Pfeifer, vice president; Louise Councilman, secretary; and Sadie Murray, treasurer.

Chimera gambles with 'Guys and Dolls' as season opener

Frank Loesser's musical comedy Guys and Dolls will open Chimera Theatre's 1979-80 season at 8:00 p.m. Friday, September 14. Subtitled "A Musical Fable of Broadway," the play will run for six weeks through October 21 in the Crawford Livingston Theatre of the St. Paul Arts and Science Center, 30 E. 10th St.

The action starts when the outrageous wagerer Sky Masterson bets that any doll Nathan Detroit can think of would be willing to accompany Sky on a short jaunt to Havana. Desperate to keep his floating crap game alive, Detroit picks Sarah Brown, the prim head of the local Save-A-Soul Mission.

Directed by Larry Whiteley, the cast for Guys and Dolls includes Elizabeth Phalen as Sarah Brown; Bob Wills, 2041 Wellesley Ave., as Sky Masterson; David Ira Goldstein as Nathan Detroit; and Cynthia Horton as Miss Adelaide, Nathan's longtime fiancée.

Performances are at 8:00 p.m. Thursdays through Saturdays and at 7:00 p.m. on Sundays. Matinees have also been scheduled for 3:00 p.m. on September 30 and October 7, 14 and 21.

For more information or reservations, call Chimera's box office at 222-0792 or any Donaldson's ticket office. Discounts for groups of 25 or more can be arranged by calling 777-1105 during regular business hours.

'Look Homeward Angel' to open September 21 at Mac

The Macalester College Theater will open its first production of the season, Look Homeward Angel, on Friday, September 21, with a cast made up of Macalester alumni and members of the Twin Cities community.

Performances will continue on September 22, 28, 29 and on October 5 and 6, all at 8:00 p.m. The final performance will be presented at 3:00 p.m. October 7.

All shows will be held in the Macalester Theater of the Janet Wallace Fine Arts Center on the campus.

Look Homeward Angel is the stage version by Ketti Frings of the internationally popular novel by Thomas Wolfe. The play won both the Pulitzer Prize and the New York Critic's Award.

This is the fourth annual community and alumni production of the Macalester Theater, proceeds from which will go toward a Macalester dramatic arts scholarship fund.

Playing the role of Thomas Wolfe is Gregory J. Schauf of Minneapolis. Val

Kotsenowsky, also of Minneapolis, will play the colorful role of the father, and Pat Slater Edwards of St. Paul will perform as the mother.

Others in the community cast include: Jillyne Thomson, Darell Hanson, Neil De Groot, Eve Johnson, Len Engman, Roland Hanson, Tom Michelson, Mitzi Olson, Kay L. Furrer, Robert Cowles, Pat Mastro, Kirby Bennett, Jan Kieper, Stephne Beyers, and Laura Girard.

For reservations or further information, call 647-6359.

'Merchant' actors and crew sought

Auditions for the next production of the Park Square Theater, Shakespeare's The Merchant of Venice, are scheduled for 2:00 p.m. Saturday and Sunday, September 15 and 16, and for 7:30 p.m. Monday, September 17 at the theater, 400 Sibley St.

The Villager's Guide to Food, Fun & Entertainment

Sarah Brown (Joan Elizabeth Phalen), head of the local Save-A-Soul Mission, hesitantly accepts an I.O.U. from high stakes gambler Sky Masterson (Bob Wills), guaranteeing one dozen genuine sinners at an upcoming mission meeting in Chimera Theatre's production of Guys and Dolls. The musical comedy opens September 14 for a six-week run at the St. Paul Arts and Science Center.

Moon makes music at Walker Sept. 16

Pianist Ick Choo Moon, winner of the 1978 Grand Award in the Young Artists Competition sponsored by the Women's Association of the Minnesota Orchestra, will perform at 3:00 p.m. Sunday, September 16 in a free concert in the Walker Art Center Auditorium.

As a winner of the award, Moon performed with the Minnesota Orchestra and received a scholarship to the San Francisco Conservatory of Music as well as a cash prize of $1,500 from Young Artists.

Impressionist art displayed at Mac

Impressionist paintings and drawings by David Johnson, an assistant professor of art at Bethel College, are on view from 9:00 a.m. to 9:00 p.m. Monday through Friday, now through September 27 in the Macalester Galleries of the Janet Wallace Fine Arts Center.

Almost mural-scaled, Johnson's paintings are dominated by large areas of bold and unlikely colors, and vary from the hauntingly mysterious to the playful and primitive. Johnson often uses ordinary references, like doors and windows, and transforms them into gates and "other worldly" archways.

The artist will be at the Macalester Galleries at 4:00 p.m. Tuesday, September 18 to discuss his work. Area residents are invited to the discussion and to the reception which follows.

Punk put in perspective

As a prelude to the Marathon 80 rock festival September 22-23, the Walker Art Center will present a film program entitled "The Decline of the West: Punk and Beyond." The show begins at 8:00 p.m. Thursday, September 20 in the Art Center Auditorium.

Included on the program are Punking Out by Maggi Carson, Juliusz Kossakowski and Frederic A. Shore, an "irreverent documentary" shot at CBGB's in New York featuring The Romones, The Dead Boys and Richard Hell & the Voidoids; Still Moving/Patti Smith, a portrait of the artist by Robert Mapplethorpe; Mongoloid by Bruce Conner, with music by Devo; and a number of works by Twin Cities filmmaker Chuck Statler featuring The Suicide Commandos, Devo, Elvis Costello, Graham Parker and others.

Tickets are $2.25; students and senior citizens $1.25.

Square dancing taught at Luke's

Square dance lessons for beginners, sponsored by the Merri Parquer, Mid-City, Midway Wheeler and Polar Promenader square dance clubs, will be offered this fall at St. Luke's School, 1065 Summit Ave.

The first session is free and slated for 8:00 p.m. Thursday, September 27. The sponsors ask that you bring a partner with you and that you use the Oxford entrance of the school.

For more information, call either Dwayne or Barb O'Donovan (226-8162), Karen Rieff (776-0843) or Don Ellis (631-0959).

Palace Theater's new season opens to laughs and cries

The Palace Theater's 1979-80 season opens Friday, September 21 with a new work by Ben Kreilkamp entitled Laugh Your Head Off, Cry Your Eyes Out. The play will be presented at 8:00 p.m. that night and throughout its month-long run at The Southern (formerly The Guthrie 2), 1420 Washington Ave. So., Minneapolis.

An emotionally charged story of a small community in rural America, Laugh is a comedy that comes to a surprising conclusion in the somber town tavern run by Shade Straight, a sleazy, double-crossing entrepreneur, and his mother, Granny Grin.

Admission is $4.00. For advance tickets, call the Palace Theater at 375-0343.

Watts and a world premiere open SPCO's Capital Series

Pianist Andre Watts will be the featured performer when the Saint Paul Chamber Orchestra opens its 1979-80 season with a Capital Series concert at 8:00 p.m. Saturday, September 15 in O'Shaughnessy Auditorium. The concert, under the direction of SPCO Music Director Dennis Russell Davies, will include the world premiere of William Bolcom's Symphony as well.

Preceding the concert will be "Coffee and Commentary" led by Curt Oliver, music director of KUOM-Radio and organist of Macalester-Plymouth Church. Sponsored by the Friends of the SPCO, "Coffee and Commentary" is held in the auditorium's Recital Room one hour before each Capital Series concert.

Richard Wagner's Siegfried Idyll will open the concert, and will be followed by Beethoven's Piano Concerto No. 4 in G Major, Op. 58, featuring the 33-year-old Watts. Bolcom's Symphony, commissioned by the SPCO, will receive its premiere performance in the second half of the program.

Following the opening Capital Series concert, the Friends of the SPCO will sponsor a champagne buffet at a cost of $7.50 per person. One must be a Friend to attend. For more information regarding the reception or membership in the organization, call 292-3246.

Season tickets for the Capital Series, with price ranges from $35 to $65 ($20 to $50 for students and senior citizens with I.D.), are still available from the SPCO ticket office, 328 Landmark Center, 75 West Fifth Street, St. Paul, MN 55102. Single tickets are also available from the SPCO Ticket Office (291-1144) or from 10:00 a.m. to concert time on September 15 at the O'Shaughnessy ticket office. A student rush at $3.00 per person will begin at 7:45 that evening.

25 new wave bands roll in for 'Marathon 80' rock fest

"Marathon 80," the international new wave rock festival to be held inside the University of Minnesota Field House on September 22 and 23, represents the most comprehensive gathering of experimental and high energy new rock bands held in the United States in this decade.

The bands hail from London, Edinburgh, New York City, Boston, Atlanta, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Winnipeg, Chicago, Lincoln and Minneapolis. They represent an eclectic variety of current rock trends, from power pop to avant-garde rock, from post-punk political music to jazz-funk fusion.

The bands scheduled to perform on Saturday, September 22 from 1:30 pm to midnight are (in alphabetical order):

Curtiss A, The Brains, Robin Crutchfield's Dark Day, The Fleshtones, The Girls, Joan Jett and Band, Monochrome Set, New Psychonauts, The Pop, The Records, The Suburbs, and the Minneapolis Rockestra.

Performing on Sunday, September 23 from 1:30 pm to midnight will be:

Charlie Burton & Rock Therapy, The Contortions, The Feelies, Fingerprints, Flamingo, The Know with Gary Valentine, Richard Lloyd Quintet, NNB, Judy Nylon, Skafish, Chris Stamey and the dBs, Tuxedo Moon, plus The Now Wave All-Stars, an international jam band formed for the concert, featuring members of participating bands and special guests, including members of the Ramones, Devo and more.

The concerts will be documented by rock filmmaker Chuck Statler and be recorded for radio and album release by Minneapolis-based Twin/Tone Records. Proceeds from posters and T-shirts sold will be donated to Amnesty International.

Tickets for Marathon 80 are $8.00 per day in advance (students $6.00) and $9.00 on the day of show (students $7.00). Two-day passes for the event will be sold in advance at $14.00 and $10.00.

Everybody is a star

School starts next week at Chimera's Bush Theatre

Beginning next week, Chimera's Edyth Bush Theatre will offer eight weeks of classes in singing, dancing and acting to potential stage and screen stars of all ages and abilities.

Classes for kids age 3-5 will include: ABC Dramatics, a new class that uses drama, well known nursery rhymes and tales to develop creativity, concentration and awareness of others; and Creative Movement for Pre-Schoolers, designed to enhance the student's creativity, self-confidence and coordination through music and movement.

Older children will have a variety of classes from which to choose. Paddington Takes the Stage gives kids age 6-8 a chance to learn improvisation and characterization skills as they embark on assorted adventures with Paddington Bear, a popular figure in children's literature. In American Tall (and Short) Tales, children age 9-11 will use improvisation and creative movement to recreate the worlds of Paul Bunyan, Pecos Bill and other heroes of American folklore. Young people (age 12-15) enrolled in Let's Do A Show will create and then present a show to an invited audience on the last day of class.

The Edyth Bush Theatre will also offer several classes for high school and adult students. Improvisational Acting will take a close look at the exercises and techniques that make "Saturday Night Live" happen and introduce the use of improvisation in traditional theatre.

In Voice for the Musical Theatre, students will use basic vocal techniques and exercises to learn the art of creating a character through song. Voice for the Musical Theatre II, as its name suggests, is intended for those who have completed level I or its equivalent. Beginning Acting will focus on the development of a character through movement, acting and vocal exercises, and will include some basic scene work.

In addition to these classes offered at the Edyth Bush, 690 S. Cleveland Ave., two dance classes will be held at the Arts and Science Center in downtown St. Paul. Musical Theatre Dance will introduce junior and senior high school students to the music and dance styles employed in many of the world's best-loved musicals. Contemporary Dance will expose students 16 years old and up to the basics of movement, body awareness and alignment, and the correct ways to stretch and strengthen muscles.

For detailed information on class times and registration procedures, call the Edyth Bush Theatre at 690-1516.

Cricket mounts a fundraising bash in new Hennepin Center

In honor of its move into the Hennepin Center for the Arts, the Cricket Theatre is sponsoring its first major fundraiser, "Metromorphosis," beginning at 6:00 p.m. Sunday, September 23 with champagne and hors d'oeuvres in the eighth-floor lobby of the center, Sixth and Hennepin Ave. in Minneapolis.

Events will include a silent auction and a 7:00 p.m. performance of Le Sacre D'Automne, a new musical revue by Jimmie Martin and John Davidson, followed by From Studio to Stage presented by the Minnesota Dance Theatre as the theater's first production in its new quarters.

An 8:00 p.m. buffet supper on the sixth floor will be followed by an encore performance of Le Sacre D'Automne, and by dancing to the music of the Lou Johnson Orchestra. Theatre staff members will then conduct tours of the new Cricket.

Tickets at $30 each ($15 of which is tax-deductible) can be reserved by calling the theater at 333-5241.

WHERE TO WHAT TO GO & DO The Villager's Guide to Food, Fun & Entertainment

Cecily (Cindy Quilling, left) and Gwendolyn (Joy Guffey) face off in an argument over which of them is engaged to "Earnest" in the Oscar Wilde classic, The Importance of Being Earnest. The play opens at the Park Square Theatre on September 14, and will continue its 8:00 p.m. performances on Fridays and Saturdays through October 13. For tickets call the theater at 291-7005.

Park Square's 6th season opens with 1920s version of 'Earnest'

Oscar Wilde's comedy of manners, The Importance of Being Earnest, will kick off the sixth season of the Park Square Theatre at 8:00 p.m. Friday, September 14.

Director Steven Kent Lockwood, in the interest of bringing a certain freshness to Wilde's 1880s script, ordered the costumes and scenery updated to the Roaring Twenties in England.

Earnest will be performed at 8:00 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays through October 13 in the 80-seat theater, 400 Sibley St.

Other productions to be mounted this season are: Shakespeare's comedy The Merchant of Venice, November 2 through December 1; the musical drama Marat/Sade by Peter Weiss, January 18 through February 16; Edward Albee's Pulitzer Prize-winner A Delicate Balance, February 29 through March 29; Spoon River Anthology by Edgar Lee Masters, April 25 through May 24; and Moliere's comic satire The Imaginary Invalid, May 30 through June 28.

For information about individual tickets, or the theater's new $15 season ticket, call the Park Square Theatre at 291-7005.

How and Rial show continues

The art of Florence Page Rial and Elizabeth Halvorsen How can be viewed in the College of St. Thomas' Murray Hall Lounge through Friday, October 5. The exhibit is open free to the public from 9:00 a.m. to 9:00 p.m. weekdays.

Rial, a graduate of the College of St. Catherine, has also studied at the St. Paul Arts and Science Center and the University of Minnesota. She has been awarded numerous honors in juried competitions, including the Minnesota Artists exhibits and the Criterion Portrait contest.

She has exhibited one-woman shows at Unity Church, the Sky Gallery, and most recently at the Washington Federal Bank.

How has studied at the St. Paul School of Art, the Minneapolis College of Art and Design, and the University of Minnesota. She has held one-woman shows for the Minnesota Association of Artists and at the West Lake Gallery in Minneapolis. She also writes poetry in conjunction with her painting. One of her poems, "Snow Children," is included in the St. Thomas exhibit.

As seen through the pen of William Saroyan, the people above, (left to right) Kitty (Terry Tautges), Tom (Randy Linstrom) and Joe (Stephen Roeser), are people you're likely to see any day in any part of America. You're sure to see them in The Time of Your Life, which opens on Friday, September 21 at the Theatre in the Round.

Harpichordist James to launch first of SPCO's Recital Series

A program of harpichord music will be presented by St. Paul Chamber Orchestra harpichordist Layton James at 2:30 p.m. Sunday, September 23 in the Calhoun Beach Club's Boulevard Room. The performance, the first in the SPCO's Recital Series, will be preceded by a 1:00 p.m. brunch.

James will play various dance suites from the 16th to 18th centuries, including Froberger's Suite in E minor, Variations on "Die Mayerin," Rameau's Pieces de Clavecin, a selection of dances by William Byrd and Bach's Overture in the French Manner.

Now in his eleventh season with the SPCO, James has become an expert in baroque and classical performance techniques and styles. An organist, pianist and conductor as well, he conducts and performs in many recital and chamber ensemble programs in the Twin Cities, and also as harpichord soloist. Last season, James appeared as guest artist with both the Atlanta Symphony and Minnesota Orchestra in their performances of Messiah.

The Recital Series, one of the orchestra's newest series, will combine dining with music and will be presented on five Sundays with brunch, or five Tuesday evenings with hors d'oeuvres, in the Boulevard Room of the Calhoun Beach Club.

Season tickets for either day are still available at $50 (price includes meal, tax, gratuity and recital) from the SPCO ticket office, 328 Landmark Center, 75 W. Fifth St., St. Paul 55102. Single tickets are also available at $11 from the SPCO ticket office or Donaldson's.

A discount price of $45 for season tickets or $9.50 for single tickets is available to students and senior citizens with ID. For further information, call the ticket office at 291-1144.

Saroyan's 'Time of Your Life' opens TRP's season Sept. 21

Theatre in the Round's 27th season will open with William Saroyan's The Time of Your Life at 8:00 p.m. Friday, September 21. The play will continue at 8:00 p.m. Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays through October 14 at the theatre, 245 Cedar Ave. in Minneapolis.

A nostalgic picture of San Francisco, The Time of Your Life is an old-fashioned, sentimental play about people you're likely to see any day in any part of America. It delights in the friendliness of the neighborhood bar, and ponders the shadow of impending war.

Michael Kennedy returns to direct the production, which stars Steve Roser, Hobe Harden, Joseph Franken and an array of newcomers to Theatre in the Round.

Tickets are $4.00; $3.00 on Fridays and Sundays for students and senior citizens. Group rates and theatre parties are available. For more information and reservations, call 336-9123.

Lecture set on Eskimo exhibit

Linda Crawford will deliver a lecture on "Spiritual Imagery in Eskimo Art" at 10:00 a.m. Tuesday, September 18 in the Permanent Collection Gallery of the Minnesota Museum of Art, 305 St. Peter St.

The lecture is being held in connection with an exhibition of stonecut and stencil prints by Eskimos of the Canadian Arctic. Called "Shamans and Spirits," the show will be on view in the gallery through October 19. Make reservations for the lecture and lunch afterwards by calling 224-7431.

Gallery hours are from 11:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. weekdays. Docents tours for adult and school groups can be arranged by calling 224-7431.

Free three-for-one show set at Walker

Three plays written by Tom Dunn for actress Dancy Gormley will be presented by the Playwrights' Lab at 3:00 p.m. Sunday, September 23 and 30 in the Walker Art Center Auditorium. Both performances are free.

The three plays for one actress—The Greenhouse Keeper, The Lady Who Didn't Cut Her Grass and Went Crazy, and Letters From The Cold—attempt to stretch the boundaries between the writer, actor and audience. Dunn, who is director of the Playwrights' Lab, has used idiosyncratic and stylistic variations to create three distinct and very different women.

Astonishment opens wide the mouths of Psyche's two "sisters" (left, Ron Morris and Michael Dahl) as Psyche (Jan Farrell) lifts the lid of the royal casket of beauty in the comic operetta Cupid and Psyche. The local theatre group Clyde Digit and Family will perform this one-act play along with Broadway Musical, a one-act 1930's version of the Parable of Talents, at 8:00 p.m. September 12, 14, 15, 16 and 19 in Jacob's Well at the Catholic Youth Center, 150 No. Smith Ave. Tickets will be available at the door.

Opera company diversifies with varied season schedule

The magic of Mozart, the sparkle of Gilbert and Sullivan, the romantic power of Puccini, and a world premiere by Hiram Titus make the Minnesota Opera's 1979-80 season the most diversified in the company's history.

The season will open with The Abduction from the Seraglio by W.A. Mozart. This opera, which reads like yesterday's headlines, centers around two women trapped in a Turkish Harem. Their lovers try in vain to rescue them and are caught by the Pasha's guards. The fast moving plot, combined with some seedy characters and the music of Mozart, make this opera a true Turkish delight.

The Abduction will be performed November 3, 9 and 10 in O'Shaughnessy Auditorium at the College of St. Catherine. Music direction will be by Bruce Ferden, and stage direction by H. Wesley Balk.

Next up is the brilliant operetta The Pirates of Penzance by Gilbert and Sullivan. One of the prolific duo's most popular pieces, the opera tells the story of young Frederic's plans to escape a band of friendly pirates—an endeavor that runs afoul due to certain amorous young maidens, an unhappy policeman, and a modern major-general.

The Pirates of Penzance will be performed February 8, 9, 15 and 16, also at O'Shaughnessy Auditorium. Music direction will be by Philip Brunelle with stage direction by Robert Moulton.

The Minnesota Opera's traditional piece this season is one of the most beloved operas of all time, La Boheme by Giacomo Puccini. La Boheme is a poignant love story about Mimi, a seamstress, and the poet Rodolfo, whose romance has been retold to countless thousands since the opera's debut in 1896.

La Boheme will be staged at the Guthrie Theater March 15, 21, 22, 28 and 29. Music direction will be by Philip Brunelle with stage direction by H. Wesley Balk.

The final production of the 1979-80 season is a world premiere by Hiram Titus and Barbara Field entitled Rosina. Based on the third of the Beaumarchais trilogy, Rosina picks up where The Barber of Seville and The Marriage of Figaro left off. Rosina is torn between two lovers. She and Cherubino decide to run away to Madrid. Count Almaviva, in hot pursuit, arrives in disguise with his latest amour. Rosina is forced to choose, and in doing so, takes charge of her own life at last—rather like "Upstairs, Downstairs" with the Almavivas.

The production will be presented at the Guthrie Theater April 26, May 2 and 3.

Season tickets for the Minnesota Opera Company's 1979-80 season are now on sale at the Minnesota Opera Company box office, 850 Grand Ave.

'Bleacher Bums' brought back

Even though the Twins are out of town, you can still see a comedy in nine innings by attending one of Mixed Blood's performances of Bleacher Bums. The play will be presented at 8:00 p.m. Thursdays through Sundays, September 20 through October 7 at the Firehouse, 1501 So. 4th St. in Minneapolis.

Taking center stage are the fanatic fans of Wrigley field—bettors, sunners, slobbers and comics—all thoroughly unengrossed in a game between the Cardinals and the Cubs. To add to the atmosphere, vendors yelling "beer, pop and peanuts here" will move through the theatre peddling their wares before the game and at the seventh inning stretch.

Tickets for the "ball game" (complete with rain checks) are $3.75, and seating, just like the bleachers, is unreserved.

Film in the Cities opens Atget exhibit

Photographs by turn-of-the-century French photographer Eugene Atget will be on view from 10:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. Monday through Friday, September 17 through 21 at the Film in the Cities Gallery, 2388 University Ave.

In conjunction with the exhibit, Don Neal, a photographic historian and artist, will give a lecture on the work of Atget at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, September 19 at Film in the Cities. Admission to the lecture is $1.50.

Callahan recital set at Cathedral

Organist James Callahan, a teacher in the music departments of the colleges of St. Thomas and St. Catherine, will give a recital at 2:00 p.m. Sunday, September 23 at the Cathedral of St. Paul, 239 Selby Ave.

Free and open to the public, the recital will include works by Bach, Vivaldi and Franz Schmidt and the premiere of Callahan's own composition, Fantasia.

A graduate of St. John's University, Callahan received a Master of Fine Arts degree and a doctorate in composition from the University of Minnesota. He studied organ with Anton Heiller at the Vienna Academy, and piano and conducting at the Salzburg Mozarteum.

Considering Contacts?

It's not a decision you'll want to make without first getting some professional advice. With soft lenses, conventional lenses, gas permeables and so many others now available, it takes a specialist in fitting contacts to help determine which lens, if in fact any, would be best for your eyes.

That's where we come in. Highland Optical technicians make it their business to work with you in making that decision. We're trained to identify those who will predictably be problem contact wearers, and to prescribe the right lens for those who should have no trouble with them.

If you're a candidate for contacts, you'll soon be opening your eyes to a whole new world of trouble-free vision, not to mention ridding yourself of the hassle glasses can often be.

If we can help answer your questions concerning contacts, just drop by or give us a call.

Area churches combine to launch 'Centerpoint' youth ministry program

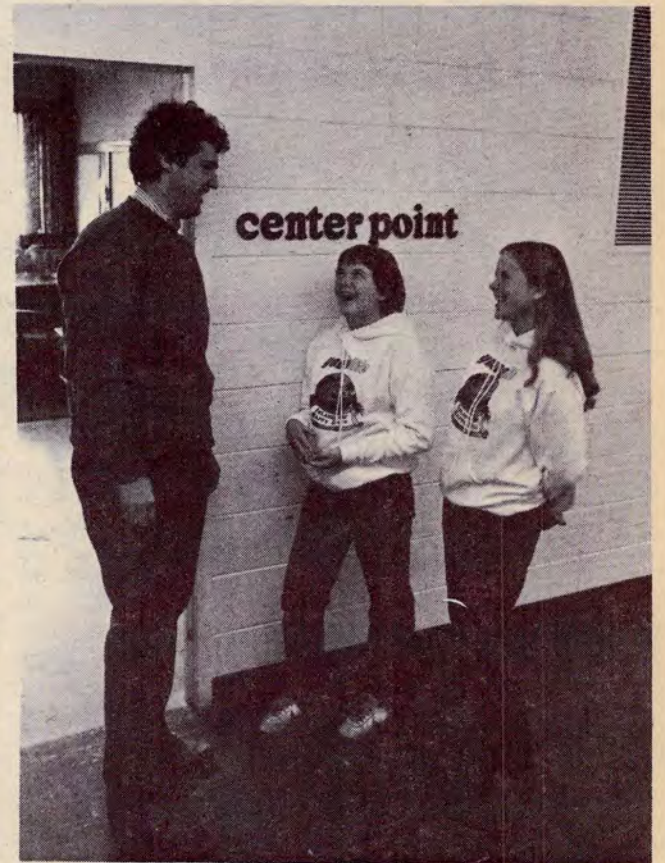

Four Highland area churches recently joined together in an ecumenical "outreach" program for Highland's teenagers called "Centerpoint." Directing the program is Joe Erickson, a 1979 graduate of the College of St. Thomas and now a student in Luther-Northwestern Seminary's youth ministry program.

St. Gregory's Catholic Church, 1668 Montreal Ave., has donated the office space for the program, and with Edgcombe Presbyterian Church, is providing a good share of the financial support. According to Erickson, both congregations "felt challenged to do something more for area youths because of their proximity to Highland Junior and Senior High School."

Also contributing to Centerpoint are the congregations of Messiah Episcopal and Ford Parkway Baptist churches. Three other area churches are currently considering joining the effort.

Centerpoint takes its name from the description of Jesus Christ as "the centerpoint in an ever-changing universe," Erickson said. The program itself is an outgrowth of Young Life, a youth ministry which has operated nationwide for nearly 40 years, and locally for about 25.

Five Young Life volunteers from the Highland area will serve as Centerpoint's staff initially. Their ministry will be based "on personal relationships with teens, rather than on highly structured programs," Erickson said. Centerpoint will also attempt to strengthen its relationships with the four sponsoring churches.

Centerpoint Director Joe Erickson shares a lighter moment with Young Life volunteers Kelley Lindell (left) and Patty Laughlin. The office and clubrooms of the new ecumenical outreach program for Highland area teenagers is now open in the former St. Gregory's school building, 1668 Montreal Ave.

"We are committed to bridging the gap between high schoolers and the Church," Erickson said. "To do that, we hope to find other committed adults from each of the four churches and offer them a vehicle for doing relational youth work."

The best way to bring teenagers back to their churches is to get to know them individually," he continued. "If they know us personally, and know we care about them, they'll also want to know where that concern comes from."

In addition to the spiritual needs of area teenagers, Erickson and Centerpoint's volunteer leaders hope to be able to address some specific temporal concerns. Already in the formative stages is a job placement service, established in collaboration with the Highland Business Association, which will match jobs with teens who want work.

Centerpoint members also plan periodic camping trips, sports activities, and a Young Life club. Erickson also hopes to eventually establish a community-based tutoring program.

Centerpoint is now open in Room 107 of the former St. Gregory's School building. Anyone who would like more information about the program and about how they can get involved, can call Erickson at 698-3767 or 644-7695.

SOUTHWEST AREA DISTRICT Council Capsule

As every parent is aware—and eternally grateful for—school is back in session. A few auto safety notes: Watch out for that little one who may come dashing out of what seems like nowhere. Also, take extra care when making right turns on red lights.

Remember, Kenneth St. between Bohland and Hillcrest will be closed during the morning and the noon recess, to protect students from Highland Catholic as they cross the street to Hillcrest playground.

On Saturday, September 22, Mayor George Latimer will be spending the day touring the Southwest Area District. In the morning he will visit some areas which may get Capital Improvement Budget funds for next year. In the afternoon he plans to visit neighborhoods and residents. If you and the other people on your block would like Latimer to drop in, call the SWAD office at 698-7973 and coordinator Gayle Summers will try to work out a time.

At the regular SWAD Council meeting last Monday, task forces were formed in areas such as land use, housing, transportation, public service, economic development, crime and education. The next "Council Capsule" will further describe these task forces. In the meantime, they need members. If you're interested, call the office or attend the next Council meeting, scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Monday, October 8 in St. Joseph's Hall at the College of St. Catherine.

In August, the SWAD Council endorsed a district-wide project to do battle with the small but destructive worms that ate so many elm and fruit tree leaves this past summer. The project involves a product called "Tanglefoot," a sticky substance that comes in a can, which is painted in a band around tree trunks. To be effective, it must be done before the first frost (which will be here sooner than we think). Tanglefoot is available at several area hardware stores or by calling Carl Englund at 690-0435. It can't hurt to try it.

Remember, we are your community council and we're here to help. If you need any information, call the SWAD Council office at 698-7973 and talk to coordinator Gayle Summers.

Group sessions offered for kids in chemically dependent families

A series of weekly group sessions for children from chemically dependent families will begin meeting on Thursday evening, September 20 at Children Are People, Inc., 1595 Selby Ave. All kids age 5-12 are eligible to take part.

The seven-week program is designed to help children learn to cope with the chemical dependency within their families, and not blame themselves for its existence as often happens. Discussions, games, poetry, music and art will be used to help teach the children about feelings, defenses, risk-taking, families and chemical dependency itself.

But according to co-directors Barbara Naiditch and Rokelle Lerner, the primary goal of the groups will be to help children find satisfying alternatives for coping with stress, so that they may never need to turn to drugs.

The groups will meet for six Thursdays from 6:00 to 7:30 p.m. On the seventh week, parents will be invited to join their youngsters to learn more about the changing chemically dependent family.

For any further information about the program, contact the Children Are People office at 644-3033.

Color Guards hawk 'Happening' books

Members of the Color Guards of Merriam Park are now selling the 1979-80 edition of "Happening" coupon books. The books, which offer discount tickets for use at more than 200 metro area restaurants, theaters, businesses and recreational places, sell for $10 each and are good until next September. To order a copy, call Joe Albrecht at 645-0349 or Joe Langevin at 646-4319.

Kids' puppet show, crafts class planned

"The Frog Prince" and "The Strange Story of the Frog Who Became a Prince" will be the attractions in a double feature puppet show for young frog fanciers at 4:00 p.m. Tuesday, September 18 at the Highland Park Branch Library, 1974 Ford Pkwy.

The library will also offer a two-session nature craft program for third-graders and up, at 3:30 p.m. Tuesday and Thursday, September 25 and 27.

Authors to sign in at Odegard Books

James Taylor Dunn, author of The St. Croix: Midwest Border River (Minnesota Historical Society Press), will autograph copies of his new book from 1:00 to 3:00 p.m. Saturday, September 15 at Odegard Books, 867 Grand Ave.

Best-selling author Stephen King (Carrie, Salem's Lot, The Shining, Night Shift and The Stand) takes pen in hand to do likewise on Monday, September 17 from 2:30 to 3:30 p.m.

Readers needed to lead non-readers

According to national and state surveys, 20 percent of all adults can't read well enough to function adequately in our society. If you've waded through to this page, you could become a volunteer tutor and help one of those non-readers become literate.

The Minnesota Literacy Council invites you to sign up for a 12-hour tutor training workshop, which will begin at 7:00 p.m. Thursday, September 20 at Fairmont Avenue United Methodist Church, 1523 Fairmont Ave. Call 636-3499 for further details.

Inver Hills/Oneida offers college courses for adults

This fall, the Inver Hills/Oneida St. Paul Learning Center will offer the largest number of college level courses to date in the St. Paul area. More than 30 scheduled courses cover a wide variety of interests, including American Sign Language, Small Business Management, English, The History of Sports, Child Psychology, Women in Business, The History of St. Paul, typing, ballet and many more.

Classes begin between September 13 and 20 and will run for 11 weeks. Since most Inver Hills/Oneida students work or have family responsibilities, the majority of classes are held in the evening at various neighborhood locations throughout St. Paul.

The classes, which stress practical information that can be used day to day at home or at work, are designed for people of all ages who are interested in returning to school for a variety of reasons—to upgrade their job skills, as an asset in changing careers, or simply for personal enjoyment.

Cost for these courses is reasonable ($12.00 per credit), and financial aid and grants are available through Inver Hills Community College for those who cannot afford the full cost. In addition, education and career counseling are available at Oneida Education Center.

For a complete course schedule or further information, call Kathy Moore at 227-7803.

John J. Regnier, left, has been appointed director of the Cooperative Education program at the College of St. Thomas, where he has served as field coordinator for the past year. Mark VanBeusekom, right, of 215 S. Fairview Ave., has been named the program's placement and work study director. Also new in the program are coordinators Louis Huether and Ruth Rounds. The program recently received a $53,103 grant from the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Overeaters meet

If your eating habits have you worried about the possibility of becoming a "foodaholic," Overeaters Anonymous invites you to attend a meeting at 7:30 p.m. Sunday, September 16 at Unity Church, 732 Holly Ave. There are no dues, fees, or weigh-ins, just the understanding and friendship of the other members.

DOWN AT THE Playground

HILLCREST

Sayonara summer—hello homework! Hello, too, to Pete Winecke, our resident Minnesota College of Art and Design student and part-time helper-outer. Pete invites everybody to stop by and say hi.

Program brochures for the fall and winter schedule will be done in two weeks. Hillcrest and the Highland Park Branch Library are again offering some excellent programs for children, teens and adults. Stop in at the playground or at the library for more information.

Pat Spurr will again teach dancing, tap, baton-twirling, jazz and ballet at Hillcrest this fall. For details, call Mike Windey at 698-1435.

GROVELAND

There's a new staff at Groveland Playground—local boys Bill McCann, Brian Dean and Pat Bettenberg. All are students and all bring to their jobs a healthy dose of enthusiasm, spelled with a capital "E." Stop in and meet them if you haven't already.

The soccer season has begun for second through ninth graders, but it's not too late for interested kids to join the Groveland "Kicks." Coaches are Messrs. Kelly, Hilbert, DeRosier and Walker and Mrs. Connolly.

The latest on the "new addition" from a reliable source: Keep your fingers crossed for December 1, 19??

Have a look-see at the Groveland Community Education and Recreation brochure (the tan insert in this issue of the Villager).

Libraries list new numbers

St. Paul public libraries have a few new numbers you may want to jot down until Ma Bell puts out next year's edition. The new phone numbers, which began operation on September 1, are as follows:

- Highland Park Branch: 292-6622
- Merriam Park Branch: 292-6224
- Lexington Branch: 292-6620
- Central Library: 292-6311

Study skills class offered at SPA/SS

An eight-week class for adults and mature high school students who want to improve their reading, spelling, handwriting, and related study skills, will meet from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. Tuesdays beginning September 25 at St. Paul Academy/Summit School, 1712 Randolph Ave.

Tuition is $90. For more information or to register, call instructors Arlene Sonday (455-9361) or Caroline Roetzel (690-1382).

Earn up to $100 per month

Donate plasma. This procedure is not the same as donating blood. It is administered by a professional medical staff and may be safely repeated more than once per week. Plasma is used in manufacture of a substance critical to treatment of hemophiliacs (bleeders). Also used for burn and shock victims.

$10 CASH FOR EACH DONATION
New donors should call for an appt.
$10 also for 2nd visit same week.
