It's just our job to fit your hair into the picture. Of course you can't do it alone. But you don't have to — you've got us.

THE ARTS

Guthrie Super Tour

The Minnesota Theatre Company will hold its second open house of the 1969 season, Sunday, October 26, from 2 to 4 in the afternoon at the Tyrone Guthrie Theatre.

Coordinated by the Stagehands (the Guthrie women's volunteer group), SUPER TOUR will feature tours of the backstage and shop areas of the theatre as well as a continuous slide presentation on the history and concept of the Tyrone Guthrie Theatre, held in the theatre auditorium. Stagehand volunteers will be stationed throughout the theatre to explain the various Guthrie departments and functions and ushers will guide the general public through the theatre in 15 minute intervals.

After an absence of almost nine years, since the Broadway Theatre Alliance toured "J.B." by Archibald MacLeish, the legitimate theatre will return to Northrop Auditorium on Monday, Nov. 3 when the APA Repertory Company presents Ionesco's "Exit the King" on the Masterpiece Series.

The following night the company will present a special performance of Moliere's "The Misanthrope."

Both performances will conform to the new Artists Course starting time of 8 p.m.

Ionesco's "Exit the King" finds an aging monarch facing impending death with his two wives at odds over how it should be met.

"The Misanthrope" is considered to be Moliere's best comedy. On Broadway the APA production of it earned critical recognition by ignoring the play's reputation as a masterpiece and playing it as something to be enjoyed by both the cast and audience.

Tickets are now on sale for both productions at 105 Northrop Memorial Auditorium, University of Minnesota and at all Dayton's Stores.

Stuttgart Ballet

The Stuttgart Ballet company that will be seen in Northrop Auditorium Saturday, Oct. 25 and Sunday, Oct. 26 presenting "The Taming of the Shrew" and "Romeo and Juliet" is unlike any of the other major ballet troupes in that it draws upon a group of dancers who are truly international in origin and background.

The man responsible for this, John Cranko, the director, is himself a South African.

About 20 different nations are represented in this Stuttgart ensemble; Cranko likes the term "Commonwealth Company of Dancers."

Marx Brothers

"Night at the Opera" featuring the Marx Brothers, will be shown to the public free of charge at The Minneapolis Institute of Arts, Tuesday evening, October 28, at 8 p.m.

This is the second in the American Film Series from the movie-making studios of the 1930's.

Edith Bush

"A Thousand Clowns," a comedy by Herb Gardner, is currently at the Edyth Bush Theatre of Hamline University, 690 S. Cleveland, St. Paul.

EDITORIALS

All the residents of Highland, Groveland, Macalester and Hill are being asked by the Mayor and City Council and Charter Commission to pay for the old and the poor and the young by sharing their earnings as achievers with those who in some cases cannot earn, in others do not want to earn their way in this city. The proposed Earnings Surtax is a medieval approach to a contemporary problem—city budgeting—and, undoubtedly a sales tax would be better, but nobody has yet delved deep enough into the every day finances of the City. For example, why do we buy yellow salt instead of white salt for our city streets, when the yellow salt costs us so much more? White salt is good enough for the state of Minnesota, but the poor bedraggled cities buy the more expensive salt. We say, pass the pepper, please, and before we are all asked to cough up a good share of our earnings, let's not sneeze at those little things that get bought "down there" every day!

Turkey Is "In"

At the first Thanksgiving dinner, historians tell us, the Pilgrims sat down to a feast that prominently featured turkey. (The year was 1621.)

Today turkey is finding increased popularity with hostesses, who serve it as the main dish for dinner parties or family gatherings whether the events fall on a holiday or not; and with the man of the house, who finds turkey-on-a-spit an interesting addition to his list of yard barbecue specialties.

What has caused this traditional holiday favorite to become an "in" dish for a year-round basis? There are several factors.

The domesticated turkey, bred and raised for discriminating palates, is a more tender, fleshier fowl than his wild cousin. The domestic turkey benefits from protected environment, modern feeds with vitamin and mineral supplements, and scientific drugs which combat disease.

Another factor in the increased popularity is the quick freezing of turkeys at the processing plant, which preserves flavor while permitting the housewife to buy turkey when it is convenient for her. She can keep the bird in her home freezer until she is ready to prepare it. And preparation itself is easy; the frozen bird is virtually ready for the oven, broiler or rotisserie as soon as it is thawed out.

Ironically, the advent of frozen turkeys, while solving many problems for the housewife, created new ones. In selecting a frozen turkey at the supermarket, the housewife frequently had to bend over a waist-high freezer cabinet, reach inside to grab an ice-cold frozen bird by the slippery film overwrap, and then try to successfully lift it out of the freezer into the shopping cart. If a bird weighed fifteen pounds, this was no small wrestling match for a petite young matron.

The film wrap, if it became punctured, would frequently tear. This would expose a segment of the fowl to "freezer burn," an unsightly darkening of the flesh.

Packaging specialists have solved even these problems, however, by placing an attractive plastic netting over the film. The net is looped at one end to form a convenient handle — the housewife can slip her fingers through the loop and easily pick up the frozen turkey of her choice.

The colorful netting serves an additional functional purpose. By clinging tightly, the netting prevents small punctures in the protective film overwrap from developing into large tears. Thus, freezer burn becomes no problem.

Citizens League Plans Studies

The likelihood of state or federal government making additional sources of revenue available to local governments, and how that revenue might be distributed, will form the basis for one of eight projects in the Citizens League's 1969-70 research program.

The League, a non-partisan organization that studies and recommends solutions for urban problems in the Twin Cities metropolitan area, will begin five of the projects as soon as it can form committees from among its membership.

Three other studies will be phased in later during the year, following completion of three carryover studies on the Metropolitan Airports Commission, minority representation in local government, and criminal justice planning.

Projects with first priority, in addition to the one on revenue distribution, will involve studies of Minneapolis and St. Paul school building programs, urban transportation needs and proposals, the role of the public hospital in the health care system, and protection of the natural environment against pollution.

Scheduled for later study will be: the need for a state senior college in the Twin Cities area, the proposal to consolidate the governments or services of Ramsey County and its municipalities, and the problem of assembling parcels of land for housing, particularly low-priced housing.

The year's work program was approved by the Board of Directors of the 3,600 member League, following a screening of 110 projects identified by the League's research staff.

CARE Week

Schizophrenia CARE week (Oct. 19-26) is being designated with the hope that all readers will give and show more CARE for this extremely cruel and costly psychobiological disease, which fills half the beds in our mental hospitals, and which has been called "the plague of the twentieth century."

Family Life, Sex Education Workshop At U

"Why do they teach sex education in schools for 12 years when I can tell my children all they need to know in five minutes?" irate parents have been known to ask.

Elizabeth Peterson, director of parent and family life education in the University of Minnesota General Extension Division, is always ready with an answer to that question.

"It's true that the biological facts can be taught briefly," Mrs. Peterson says. "But when you are also concerned with values and attitudes, it takes longer. The real goal of family life and sex education is a good family to bring up the next generation with wholesome attitudes."

Though grade school sex education sometimes elicits community and parental opposition, Mrs. Peterson sees the early grades as the natural place to start. She points to Minnesota Department of Education endorsement of sex education in grades kindergarten through three with emphasis mainly on family life and in grades four through six with emphasis on anatomy, physiology and basic genetics, and continuing concern for values and attitudes.

A work shop in family life and sex education for elementary school teachers—and also parents, social workers, religious leaders and anyone else concerned—will be held under Mrs. Peterson's direction at the University Nov. 14 and 15, with financial support from the Minnesota Department of Health.

Nationally known family life and sex education experts and local teachers will be on the faculty to talk about the facts and feelings that are part of sex education—including basic information on reproduction, the attitude of the teacher who passes on that information, curriculum materials, and questions and responses that can be expected from children.

Freda Kehm, author and former director (1948-65) of the Association for Family Living, a Chicago-based organization, and Jessie Porter, director of a sex education consultants' and speakers' bureau in Chicago, will each give several talks on Friday, Nov. 14.

Panels composed of teachers from the Twin Cities area will discuss developing receptive community attitudes toward family life and sex education, methods of presentation, and moral values, on Saturday morning (Nov. 15).

Registration is limited but still open, according to Mrs. Peterson. Information is available from the extension division's Department of Conferences and Institutes, Nolte Center, University of Minnesota, Minneapolis, Minnesota 55455; telephone 373-3151.

Exhibition at JCC

Over 25 collectors will be represented in the Second Collector's Exhibition scheduled to open in the Gallery at the Jewish Community Center of Greater Minneapolis, Monday, October 27.

Many internationally famous artists will have their works represented in this exhibition. Paintings, sculpture, prints and lithographs by such artists as Picasso, Leger, Miro and Chagall will be seen at this four-week exhibition which opens with an evening reception on October 27 at 7:30 p.m.

This selection of works from the personal art collections of Jewish Community Center members will be the first in a series of exhibitions scheduled for the coming year in the Gallery at 4330 South Cedar Lake Road.

Enjoys Art Fair

Dear Sirs:

I do not know who was responsible for the Art Fair in the Village last week. I would like to say that I certainly enjoyed it and many of my friends did also.

I thought possibly you could pass my message on.

Thank you.

Historical Society 20th Anniversary

The 20th anniversary of the founding of the Ramsey County Historical Society will be commemorated during October and November with a special series of events, Hayden L. Stright, Society president, said.

A new historic site marker will be installed and dedicated in St. Paul's downtown area late in October, said Mr. Stright, 2541 Taylor Avenue, White Bear Lake.

The Society's 20th anniversary dinner, followed by election of officers and a special program, will be Nov. 12. Speaker of the evening will be Dr. Walker Wyman, professor of history at Wisconsin State University, River Falls. An expert on the history and folklore of the north country, Dr. Wyman's topic will be "Water-witching and Body-finding, Hodgepodge and Bed-cats and Other Local History and Lore," said Mr. Stright.

The Ramsey County Historical Society was formed in 1949 as an outgrowth of the St. Anthony Park Historical Association. One of its purposes was to acquire, preserve and restore the old Gibbs Homestead, now the Society's museum, to represent the farming era which played a major role in the history of Minnesota.

St. Paul JCC to Sponsor Adult Classes

Registration is now being taken at the St. Paul Jewish Community Center (JCC) for three new adult classes: yoga, painting and sketching, and Israeli folk dancing. These programs will be held for ten consecutive sessions, starting next week.

Yoga class will meet from 9:30 until 11 a.m. on Monday mornings, starting October 27. Joan Larson, well-trained instructor, will lead the class. Fee: members, $15; non-members, $25.

Rochelle Woldorsky, freelance artist and graduate of the Minneapolis School of Art, will teach the painting and sketching course set for 3 p.m. on Tuesdays, starting October 28. Both novice and experienced artists are welcome.

Israeli folk dancing will be led by Mosha Goor, Israeli native. Thursday, October 23, 1969 tive now attending the University of Minnesota. Sessions will be held from 8 - 9:30 p.m. on Mondays, starting October 27.

Pre-Holiday Gift Bazaar

A Pre-Holiday Gift Bazaar is being held by the Day Club of the St. Paul Hearing Society on Thursday, November 6, in the group's headquarters at 496 Endicott-on Robert Building. Time will be from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Open to the public, the gift bazaar is an annual fund-raising event to help the Hearing Society carry on its work in remedial communications therapy.

Being offered for sale are a wide variety of fresh baked goods and small gifts suitable for Christmas.

"We will present," Miss Froats says, "our popular pound-gift-fruit cakes, fresh breads, hand-worked linens, mittens, party aprons, fancy dish towels, stuffed toys, and assorted gift novelties."

A hot luncheon will be served from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m.
