

Statement from Eric Jones – Dec. 4, 2025

A young college student and campaign volunteer was asked to observe Congressman Thompson at publicly accessible events. At no point did he step onto the Congressman's property or approach him directly.

I take responsibility for the over-enthusiasm of a young volunteer, and we have addressed the matter internally. Once questions emerged about these observations, the volunteer immediately stopped.

We are disappointed that a young student is now being publicly targeted and falsely accused of stealing a public official's calendar—months after the fact and without any evidence of wrongdoing. Our focus remains on the issues voters care about: getting corporate money out of politics, protecting working-class families, securing affordable housing, and ensuring every community across our district has a voice in Washington.
