An aging patriarch fights for his company in HBO's 'Succession'

By Kyla Brewer
TV Media

Wealthy families make for excellent prime-time viewing, especially dysfunctional ones. Leave it to HBO to elevate the ensemble family drama to new heights as the cable giant takes a look at a family battling for control of a media empire in a new high-profile series.

Brian Cox ("Troy," 2004) stars as Logan Roy, a self-made billionaire who sits at the top of family-controlled media conglomerate Waystar Royco in the new series "Succession," which begins its 10-episode run on Sunday, June 3, on HBO. As the aging patriarch approaches his twilight years, his potential heirs jockey for a position at the head of one of the biggest media and entertainment organizations in the world.

The series was created by Oscar nominee Jesse Armstrong ("In the Loop," 2009), who also penned the script for the pilot and serves as an executive producer on a team that includes Will Ferrell ("Saturday Night Live"), Adam McKay ("The Big Short," 2015) and Frank Rich ("Veep"). McKay, who directed the pilot, explained the focus of the series in an HBO news release.

"There's no question that 'Succession,' at its root, is a family story," McKay noted. "There's also a tragic side to it, where you see how massive wealth and power distorts and wounds this family."

Set in New York City, HBO's newest drama takes a look at politics, money and power as the characters consider what the future might hold for them when Logan steps down from Waystar. Kendall Roy (Jeremy Strong, "Parkland," 2013) is Logan's oldest son from his second marriage and heir apparent to the family business. Already a division president within the company, he seems poised to take over when Logan takes a step back. Kendall's younger brother, Roman (Kieran Culkin, " Fargo"), still sits on the board of directors at Waystar, though he no longer works there.

Meanwhile, Logan's sole daughter, Shiv ("Sarah Snook," "Predestination," 2014), has been focusing on her political career. Her ambitious partner, Tom (Matthew Macfadyen, "Pride & Prejudice" 2005), works as a senior executive at the firm.

Alan Ruck ("Spin City") stars as Connor, Logan's only child from his first marriage. He, too, sits on Waystar's board of directors, but he's left the family firm to make his own way in New Mexico. The main cast also features Hiam Abbass ("Lemon Tree," 2008) as Logan's third wife, Marcy, a formidable force in her own right.

The remaining staff includes COO Frank (Peter Friedman, "Safe," 1995), who acts as a mentor for Kendall. Alessandro (Parker Sawyers, "Southside With You," 2016) is an up-and-coming executive at the firm. In the debut episode of "Succession," the Roy siblings welcome cousin Greg (Nicholas Braun, "Sky High," 2005) to the fold as he moves from Canada to New York to work in the theme park division. Other key players include Rava Roy (Natalie Gold, "Rubicon"), Kendall's estranged wife and the mother of his two children. As Kendall works to solidify his takeover of Waystar, he wheels and deals with Lawrence (Rob Yang, "The Americans"), the founder and CEO of a digital media outfit.

The ensemble cast is supported by a top-notch team behind the scenes, from an Oscar winner to television veterans. Creator Armstrong has been better known for his comedy work across the pond. Early on in his career, he wrote for the Channel 4 sketch show "Smack the Pony" with writing partner Sam Bain, with whom he went on to create "Peep Show," "The Old Guys," "Fresh Meat" and "Babylon." Armstrong's other notable writing credits include the Oscar-nominated film "In the Loop" (2009) and the BAFTA-winning comedy "The Thick of It." He also wrote an episode of the popular British anthology series "Black Mirror" and authored the 2015 novel "Love, Sex and Other Foreign Policy Goals."

Like Armstrong, McKay's background is in comedy. He served as head writer for two seasons of NBC's legendary sketch comedy series "Saturday Night Live," and he's directed a number of big-screen comedies, including "Anchorman: The Legend of Ron Burgundy" (2004), "Step Brothers" (2008) and "The Other Guys" (2010). He and creative partner Ferrell founded the comedy website Funny or Die in 2007, along with Michael Kvamme and Chris Henchy. However, McKay has had success with his dramatic work as well, winning an Oscar for his work on the film "The Big Short" (2015).

Of course, TV fans have come to expect comedy from funnyman Ferrell, but "Succession" isn't his first foray into more dramatic territory. He surprised audiences in his first major dramatic role in the 2006 film "Stranger Than Fiction," and has been cast in the comedy-drama film "Zeroville," which is expected to be released in 2018 or 2019.

With a stellar ensemble cast and a strong crew behind the scenes, "Succession" seems to be poised for success, but it isn't the only series about ailing patriarchs and strife within wealthy families. FX's "Trust" followed the story of the Gettys, oil tycoons dealing with the kidnapping of J. Paul Getty's (Donald Sutherland, "M.A.S.H.," 1970) grandson. Fox's "Empire" has been chronicling the saga of hip-hop mogul Lucious Lyon (Terrence Howard, "Hustle & Flow," 2005) for four seasons. Now that both of those series have wrapped up for the season, viewers in search of more wealthy family drama can tune in to "Succession," premiering Sunday, June 3, on HBO.

A Wrinkle in Time

Ever since her scientist father (Pine) disappeared, Meg (Reid) has found it difficult to stay focused on school and her life at home — especially since she believes that his astrophysics studies resulted in him being teleported to another world. When three strange but kindly women, who call themselves Mrs. Which (Winfrey), Mrs. Whatsit (Witherspoon) and Mrs. Who (Kaling), appear and reveal to Meg that her father is trapped on a faraway planet by a powerful evil force, she sets out on a journey across the cosmos with her brother Charles Wallace (McCabe) and schoolmate Calvin (Miller) to find and rescue him from the all-consuming darkness.

Death Wish

After his wife is killed and his daughter is put into a coma during a violent home invasion, trauma surgeon Paul Kersey

(Willis) becomes outraged when the police confess that it's unlikely that they'll solve the horrific crime. He decides to take justice into his own hands, using his access to injured criminals at his hospital to gain information and becoming a vigilante who turns into a local sensation when his actions are caught on camera and uploaded to the internet.

Director: Eli Roth. Stars: Bruce Willis, Vincent D'onofrio, Elisabeth Shue, Camila Morrone, Dean Norris, Beau Knapp. 2018. 107 min. Action.

The Hurricane Heist

With a catastrophic Category 5 hurricane bearing down on a beach town, a group of criminals plan a massive heist against the local U.S. treasury facility left guarded by a lone agent (Grace). When the well-armed thieves arrive at the facility, it's up to her, along with a meteorologist (Kebbell) and an ex-Marine (Kwanten) who have also stayed behind, to stop them while one of the most powerful and destructive forces in nature threatens to destroy them all.

Seaside cravings

Katie Lee hunts down the tastiest beach grub

By Andrew Warren
TV Media

OK, so summer may not officially start for a couple of weeks yet, but let's face it, the sizzling season is unofficially here. With the sun high in the sky and the mercury rising, nothing says "summer" better than a day at the beach.

Of course, even just lounging next to the surf will work up an appetite, and chef Katie Lee continues her search for the tastiest seaside nibbles in the new season of "Beach Bites with Katie Lee," which premieres Thursday, June 7, on Cooking Channel. Each episode finds the host of "The Kitchen" heading to a different oceanfront destination, where she tracks down some of the most delectable spots to stop by after a day in the sun.

In the premiere, Katie visits Mississippi's Gulf Coast, where she discovers that the region has become a hot spot for diverse and eclectic restaurants. Her first stop is in Biloxi, a historic town with incredible beaches where she gushes over gumbo made with crab fished right out of the nearby waters. She even gets the chance to head out and fish for her own seafood — you can't get any fresher than that!

A little further east, in beautiful Ocean Springs, Katie tries another local specialty that isn't plucked from the sea: some of the best barbecue ribs that she's ever had below the Mason Dixon line. High praise, that! Her tour of the Mississippi coast is topped off with some fall-apart homemade buttery biscuits, cooling ice pops and a rich cup of chicory coffee.

In later episodes this season, Katie heads out to California's Catalina Island for Mexican-inspired carnitas nachos, digs into succulent fried chicken and shrimp off the coast of South Carolina, and even takes a trip to the Bahamas where she tastes the freshest conch salad imaginable.

Wherever she ends up, Katie finds the best beach-side food — and always makes time for some sweet treats and tasty cocktails, of course. Catch the best grub that seaside destinations have to offer in the new season of "Beach Bites with Katie Lee," premiering Thursday, June 7, on Cooking Channel.

Q&A

By Adam Thomlison
TV Media

Q: I've seen Jemaine in a lot of things since "Flight of the Conchords" ended, but what's the other one been up to?

A: The "other one" in "Flight of the Conchords," the HBO series about a New Zealand folk duo trying to make it big in New York, is Bret McKenzie, and he's definitely been keeping a lower profile than co-star Jemaine Clement.

The show was a cult hit when it aired on HBO from 2007 to 2009, with fans taking to its somewhat innovative musical-comedy format. It seems that McKenzie leaned more toward the musical side of that combination; most of his work since the end of the show has been behind the scenes as a composer.

His two biggest projects allowed him to continue the sort of work he was doing on "Conchords," and indeed put his name among the musical-comedy greats of our time: he worked on Muppet movies.

He was the musical mind behind 2011's "The Muppet Movie" and 2014's "Muppets Most Wanted," serving as music supervisor and penning numerous original tunes for Kermit and company to perform.

Among the company of performers in "Muppets Most Wanted" was his old partner Clement, who appeared in the film as the Prison King.

McKenzie also wrote music for 2012's "The Pirates! Band of Misfits" and the 2016 straight-to-video comedy "Sainsburys: The Greatest Gift."

He hasn't just been behind the scenes, though. He had one notable on-screen appearance in a little movie called "The Hobbit: An Unexpected Journey" (2012), the smash-hit adventure movie filmed in his native New Zealand.

Q: When is "The Wall" coming back? It's fun and exciting. I've not seen it being promoted as a summer replacement and hope it hasn't been dropped.

A: I'm going to assume your use of "dropped" was an intentional pun, and I love it. And so, you've earned the good news you're about to receive: the show, in which contestants' success is measured in balls being dropped down a towering wall, has been renewed for another season.

The problem is, the return date might well be as hard to predict as the game itself.

NBC announced the renewal in March without giving a date. The last season was already airing by this point last year, so the network isn't following a pattern at which we can guess.

Indeed, when the renewal was announced, the Hollywood Reporter said this ability to be moved around the schedule is what makes the show valuable to NBC: "Unlike flagship alternative series 'The Voice' and 'America's Got Talent,' 'The Wall' has done NBC a service in its ability to fill scheduling holes where needed."

It was first needed in the winter of 2017, which is when the freshman season aired. The second was split between the summer of 2017 and the winter of 2018, and it has switched nights repeatedly over that time as well.

NBC Reverie

When users refuse to leave the elaborate fantasy worlds they've created for themselves inside a virtual reality game, former hostage negotiator Mara Kint (Sarah Shahi) is called in to help in a new episode of "Reverie," airing Wednesday, June 6, on NBC. She uses her knowledge of human behavior to bring them out of the game before it's too late.
