'Chicago Med' returns after last season's cliffhanger finale

By Francis Babin
TV Media

It can't be easy working in the health-care field. Between the long shifts, medical emergencies, strange characters, innovative treatments and life-saving procedures, it's easy to see why television audiences are captivated by these courageous professionals.

The first televised medical drama, "City Hospital," aired nearly 70 years ago and ran from 1951 to 1953. Since then, there has been a steady stream of medical dramas on the air, and among them is "Chicago Med," which debuts its third season Tuesday, Nov. 21, on NBC.

"Chicago Med" officially launched in the fall of 2015, but that wasn't our first exposure to the brave and dedicated souls of the emergency department. The staff of the Gaffney Chicago Medical Center were first seen in "Chicago Fire's" third season episode "I Am the Apocalypse."

"Chicago Med" is the third series in the Chicago franchise. The show follows "Chicago Fire," now in its sixth season, and "Chicago P.D.," currently in its fifth. Like its fellow stablemates, "Chicago Med" deals with those who work tirelessly to protect and save the citizens of their great city. The series offers viewers a glimpse into the chaotic lives of the doctors, nurses and staff members of the Gaffney Chicago Medical Center.

"Chicago Med" was created by Emmy Award winner Dick Wolf (the man behind the Law & Order franchise) and Matt Olmstead (who used to write for "NYPD Blue"), in response to their other extremely popular Chicago shows. During a news conference at the Cinespace Chicago Film Studios with mayor Rahm Emanuel, Wolf explained to a crowd of eager reporters why he chose the Second City for a setting, explaining that "[it's] a cleaner, politer New York with slightly heavier people." He continued by saying, "it's believable in Chicago more than the strips on the coast. This is literally the heart of the country."

Dawning the scrubs once again this season is the always reliable Dr. Will Halstead (Nick Gehlfuss, "Shameless"). After abandoning the plastic surgery profession in New York City, the Ivy League-trained surgeon returned to his Windy City roots to serve as the emergency department's attending physician. By his side is Dr. Natalie Manning (Torrey DeVitto, "Pretty Little Liars"), a widowed mother and former Seattle-based pediatrician who's a fellow at the medical center.

Joining them is "Arrow's" Colin Donnell as rising star Dr. Connor Rhodes, a brilliant surgery fellow currently transitioning into the world of cardiothoracic surgery, and who is trained to handle anything and everything that comes through the hospital's doors. Lt.-Cmdr. Dr. Ethan Choi (Brian Tee, "Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles: Out of the Shadows," 2016) brings his battlefield experience and expertise in the field of infectious diseases to the chaotic and always busy emergency department after serving aboard the USS Carl Vinson. The doctors are assisted by April Sexton (Yaya DaCosta, "Whitney," 2015), a nurse whose brother is also a student at the hospital.

Rounding out the emergency department is Rachel DiPillo ("Jane the Virgin") as Dr. Sarah Reese, a medical student, psychiatry resident and Dr. Daniel Charles' (Oliver Platt, "The West Wing") protege. The committed nurses and doctors work under the watchful eye of Gaffney Chicago Medical Center's chief administrator Sharon Goodwin (S. Epatha Merkerson, "Law & Order"), who ensures everything runs smoothly.

Season 3 picks up immediately after last season's cliffhanger finale, which saw the chief of the psychiatry department, Dr. Charles, get shot by an enraged psychiatric patient after leaving the hospital. His epidemiologist daughter, Dr. Robin Charles (Mekia Cox, "Once Upon a Time"), has her own recovery to go through following a major operation removing a psychosis-inducing brain tumor.

On the romantic front, the new season promises to address the kiss between Dr. Choi and nurse April, and the return of former marine and "Chicago Fire's" Firehouse 25 firefighter Jeff Clarke (Jeff Hephner) is likely to cause issues with Dr. Halstead and Dr. Manning's long-teased relationship.

Screen legend Malcolm McDowell ("A Clockwork Orange," 1971) is set to join the third season as Dr. Jaffrey, a distinguished, world-renowned heart surgeon and Dr. Bekker's (Norma Kuhling, "Fallen," 2016) mentor. His presence is sure to intensify her and Dr. Rhodes' professional rivalry. Roland Buck III, star of National Geographic's upcoming series "The Long Road Home," reprises his recurring role as Noah Sexton, a medical student and April's younger brother.

"Chicago Med" continues Wolf's fruitful relationship with the peacock network. The prolific producer has worked with NBC for more than 30 years, starting with production and writing duties on "Hill Street Blues" and "Miami Vice." After creating the original "Law & Order" in 1990, he went on to produce and create four spinoffs and a true crime anthology series, in addition to many other ensemble dramas.

"Chicago Med" returns to its original Tuesday night slot with hopes of continuing the trend of great, long-running Chicago-based medical dramas, following in the footsteps of "Chicago Hope" and "ER." Catch the season 3 premiere of "Chicago Med" when it airs Tuesday, Nov. 21, on NBC.

The Hitman's Bodyguard

Once one of the most sought-after professional bodyguards in the European Union, Michael Bryce (Reynolds) has lived the past few years in disgrace after one of his clients was assassinated on his watch. He's called back to duty when all of the witnesses being called to the trial of a brutal dictator at the International Criminal Court keep turning up dead. His new job is to safely transport a former assassin (Jackson) to the court, but the two men have a long history of being on the opposite ends of gun barrels from each other and need to figure out how to put their complicated past behind them. Director: Patrick Hughes. Stars: Ryan Reynolds, Samuel L. Jackson, Elodie Yung, Gary Oldman, Salma Hayek. 2017. 118 min. Action.

Valerian and the City of a Thousand Planets

In the 28th century, countless different species from planets spread across the galaxy all come together on Alpha, a space station that serves as a home for millions of creatures.

Valerian (DeHaan) and Laureline (Delevingne) are members of a special police division mandated to preserve the peace throughout the universe, but when the usually happy-go-lucky Valerian has a dream that seems to be a harbinger of events that are actually happening, the long-held peace that's held Alpha together is threatened like never before. Director: Luc Besson. Stars: Dane DeHaan, Cara Delevingne, Clive Owen, Ethan Hawke, Rihanna. 2017. 137 min. Action.

Good Time

After Connie (Pattinson) and his mentally disabled brother Nick (Safdie) pull off a bank robbery, Nick is apprehended and sent to prison. Driven by the guilt of getting his brother caught up in the crime, Connie recruits his girlfriend, Corey (Leigh), to help him secure the $10,000 he needs to post bail for his brother. Securing that much money proves to be a problem, however, until he learns that Nick has been hospitalized after a fight with another inmate, leading Connie to attempt to break his brother out of the hospital. Directors: Benny Safdie, Josh Safdie. Stars: Robert Pattinson, Benny Safdie, Jennifer Jason Leigh, Taliah Webster. 2017. 101 min. Crime.

Hosting for the holidays

Giada De Laurentiis shares holiday tips in seasonal series

By Andrew Warren
TV Media

It's beginning to look a lot like Christmas, especially on Food Network where special programs celebrating the holiday are in full swing. Whether baked sweets, savory delights or a little bit of both are what's tempting your taste buds with only a month or so to go until the big day, there's definitely something to satisfy almost any taste on TV screens these days.

This year, Giada De Laurentiis is back for a third season of "Giada's Holiday Handbook," airing Sundays on Food Network. This time of year is prime time for hosting get-togethers with friends and family, and Giada is full of great advice for how to make sure that guests never leave with empty stomachs.

This week's episode, airing Sunday, Nov. 19, is all about the day after Thanksgiving. With that classic American holiday fast approaching, the question of what to do with all those leftovers is probably far from most people's minds, but Giada is never one to leave planning until the last minute. Black Friday marks the start of the Christmas season, but rather than shopping, Giada has friends and family over to start the gift wrapping — and, of course, to enjoy some delicious homemade food.

For the festive gathering, Giada transforms her Thanksgiving leftovers into an incredible buffet. The host makes it look all too easy as she makes Italian hot brown crostini, mashed potato zeppole and antipasti skewers. She even makes cranberry and rosemary juleps to really help get her guests into the holiday spirit.

Speaking of cocktails, they're the focus of next week's episode when Giada hosts a Christmas cocktail party. Of course, a cocktail party needs appetizers, and she doesn't disappoint on that front with spinach and artichoke panini bites, citrus-marinated olives and chocolate coconut cake.

As the season continues, Giada also showcases some of her sugar cookies that are perfect for making with children, and she even gives an Italian tradition a California vibe when she plays host on Christmas Eve.

For Giada De Laurentiis, it really is the most wonderful time of the year. "Giada's Holiday Handbook" airs Sundays on Food Network.

By Adam Thomlison
TV Media

Q: My husband and I were just wondering why “The Sting” is not being shown on any of the networks. We would love to be able to see this movie again without having to pay a fee!

A: It can be incredibly frustrating that network programmers don’t have to explain their decisions to us. It’s certainly fair — they’re just trying to run businesses, after all — but because of this fact, I have no definitive answer for why we don’t see the genre-defining 1973 heist classic “The Sting” more often.

I can offer a couple of completely contradictory theories, though. It’s possible programmers think we’re tired of it. Based on your question, they’d be wrong, but the fact is that once upon a time, this movie was unavoidable on TV. Having killed at the box office and cleaned up at the Oscars in the mid-’70s, “The Sting” was a cultural phenomenon by the time the ’80s rolled around, and it’s certainly had more than its share of airtime since then. Perhaps programmers think it needs a break.

A related theory: it might be a victim of its own success in a different way. “The Sting” has basically become the template for the heist movie, and it has led to a huge number of popular successors, such as “Reservoir Dogs” (1992) and “Ocean’s Eleven” (2001). (Note that I say “The Sting” popularized the heist-movie template — “Ocean’s Eleven” is, of course, a remake of an even older movie, but one that wasn’t nearly as popular or influential.) The airwaves these days are full of subsequent heist movies that owe a debt to “The Sting,” but ones that may also be squeezing it out of the schedule.

Q: Is it true Roy Scheider ad-libbed the “bigger boat” line in Jaws?

A: It’s true that the line wasn’t in the script, but “Jaws” (1975) star Roy Scheider didn’t come up with it on his own. “You’re gonna need a bigger boat” was actually a complaint that many of the crew members had been making to the producers about the little barge they were given to film the horror classic’s open-water scenes.

Script writer Carl Gottlieb told the story to The Hollywood Reporter: “[Richard] Zanuck and [David] Brown were very stingy producers, so everyone kept telling them, ‘You’re gonna need a bigger boat.’ It became a catchphrase for anytime anything went wrong — if lunch was late or the swells were rocking the camera, someone would say, ‘You’re gonna need a bigger boat.’”

Scheider apparently dropped the line several times during filming, but the instance that made the final cut — when Scheider’s character first sets eyes on the monstrous shark they’re trying to catch from the deck of their little fishing boat — was deemed to be perfect.

However, Gottlieb is still unwilling to give Scheider all the credit for it. “It was so appropriate and so real and it came at the right moment, thanks to Verna Fields’s editing.”
