Money problems

Four friends strike it rich in AMC's 'Loaded'

By Kyla Brewer
TV Media

Ever since Jed Clampett (Buddy Ebsen) struck oil in the classic series "The Beverly Hillbillies," television viewers have imagined going from rags to riches in style. Swimming pools. Fancy cars. Lavish vacations. Just about everyone dreams about what they'd spend money on if they suddenly found themselves rich, but a new comedy is serving as a cautionary tale for those who think money can buy happiness.

Four friends struggle with their new status as multimillionaires after they sell their hit iPhone game and video game company in "Loaded," airing Monday, Aug. 14, on AMC. Unfortunately, the thirtysomethings have more money than sense and end up spending their fortune on frivolous toys, vacations and other nonsensical things as they try to impress those around them.

Based on the Keshet International award-winning Israeli series "Mesudarim" by Muli Segev ("Hayom BaLayla," 2015) and Asaf Harel ("Shotetut," 2001), the British comedy was co-produced by Keshet UK, AMC, Channel 4 and Hillbilly Television. Executive producers Kate Norrish ("The Level") and Polly Leys ("The Full Monty," 1997) had high praise for the series when the eight-episode deal for the English-language version was announced.

"It is a fresh, funny and pertinent take on four friends trying to cling on to the slats of their friendship in the eye of a hurricane of money and excess," Norrish and Leys said.

Eight episodes is a pretty short run, even for a summer series, but the talented cast has managed to pack a lot of laughs, and even a little social commentary, into "Loaded." Jim Howick ("Horrible Histories") stars as Josh, the leader and moral compass of the group, who almost seems to suffer under the weight of his new wealth.

"No one deserves millions for a cat game that mums play on the toilet," Josh quips in a trailer for the series.

Still, he hopes to impress ex-girlfriend Abi (Aimee Ffion-Edwards, "Peaky Blinders") with fancy dinners and charitable donations.

His best friend, Leon, played by Samuel Anderson ("Doctor Who"), is a charismatic snappy dresser who enlisted the help of a barbershop quartet to mock all of the people who refused to invest in the game before the guys hit it big. As the business development director, Leon rewards himself for his success with a Ferrari and other expensive toys.

Jonny Sweet ("Together") portrays technical whiz Ewan, a sweet and sensitive soul who is in charge of the coding team at Idyl Hands. A stereotypical nerd, Ewan is a tad awkward and feels unrecognized for his contributions.

In contrast, Nick Helm's ("Uncle") character, Watto, is a recently sober, over-the-top personality whose artwork graces the team's hit game Cat Factory. He enjoys the thrill of spending his money flamboyantly, but quickly realizes the things he buys leave him feeling empty.

The main cast also includes American actress Mary McCormack ("The West Wing") as the guys' new high-powered boss, Casey, a self-proclaimed "sexy Darth Vader." The seemingly heartless vice president boasts some of the most memorable lines in the series, including: "There's only one way to climb to the top: treading on people's faces." Scarlett Alice Johnson ("EastEnders") and Lolly Adefope ("Rovers") round out the cast.

With people spending more and more time on their phones and tablets, the app and video game business has become a hugely important global industry, and "Loaded" isn't the first series to take a look at the rise of startup technology companies. Since its North American premiere on AMC Monday, July 17, the comedy has been compared to HBO's "Silicon Valley," which also follows friends struggling to develop a product that will make them rich. Created by Mike Judge ("King of the Hill"), John Altschuler ("The Goode Family") and Dave Krinsky ("Lopez"), the show has been a big hit for HBO, earning a 100 percent approval rating on popular review aggregator website rottentomatoes.com for seasons 2, 3 and 4. Season 4 wrapped up at the end of June, and season 5 is slated to premiere in 2018.

AMC also offers viewers a look at life in the technology industry in "Halt and Catch Fire," a drama set in the 1980s that presents a fictional account of the beginning of the personal computer revolution. Starring Lee Pace ("The Fall," 2006), Scoot McNairy ("Monsters," 2010) and Mackenzie Davis ("The Martian," 2015), the period piece is scheduled to return to AMC's prime-time lineup Saturday, Aug. 19.

The "Loaded" collaboration isn't the first time AMC has partnered with Channel 4. The two networks also worked together on "Humans," a futuristic science fiction series about anthropomorphic robots known as synths. While "Humans" has been a hit on both sides of the Atlantic, it remains to be seen how the first season of "Loaded" will fare with North American audiences.

The guys from Idyl Hands prove that money may not be everything as they continue to struggle in spite of — or perhaps because of — their newfound wealth. Don't miss their latest adventure as Leon invites the gang on his luxury yacht in the hopes they'll focus on developing a new game in a new episode of "Loaded," airing Monday, Aug. 14, on AMC. What follows is 24 hours of drugs, sex and murder.

Alien: Covenant

In the future, the colonization spaceship Covenant picks up a strange radio transmission from a previously unknown planet. When some of the Covenant's crew members descend to the planet's surface to investigate, they find a crashed alien spacecraft, along with David (Fassbender), an android from the earlier Prometheus mission, who crashed there many years prior. When some members of the crew begin coming down with an unknown illness, they are put in quarantine, but that won't be enough to stop the alien menace that is unleashed upon the unsuspecting colonists.

Director: Ridley Scott. Stars: Michael Fassbender, Katherine Waterston, Billy Crudup, Danny McBride, Carmen Ejogo, Demián Bichir. 2017. 122 min. Sci-fi.

Everything, Everything

When a new family moves into the house next door, 18-year-old Maddy (Stenberg) catches the eye of the family's handsome son, Olly (Robinson), and it doesn't take long before he shows up on Maddy's doorstep offering a neighborly greeting. Maddy's mother, Pauline (Rose), turns Olly away due to Maddy's severe immunodeficiency disease, an illness that's kept her indoors her entire life and allowed her only minimal contact with people outside of her immediate family. The two young lovers, however, won't let the disease get in the way of their romance, no matter the consequences to Maddy's health or life.

Director: Stella Meghie. Stars: Amandla Stenberg, Nick Robinson, Anika Noni Rose, Ana de la Reguera, Taylor Hickson. 2017. 96 min. Drama.

How to Be a Latin Lover

Twenty-five years after he married a rich woman more than twice his age, Maximo (Derbez) is thrown out of her opulent mansion when she takes a new, younger lover. Although he was once a womanizer who made a career out of seducing rich older women, in his many years of marriage Maximo let himself get out of shape and out of practice and finds it a struggle to return to his old lifestyle. Luckily, his nephew's (Alejandro) crush has a wealthy grandmother (Welch), upon whom Maximo sets his sights as he tries to get back to his old tricks.

Director: Ken Marino. Stars: Eugenio Derbez, Salma Hayek, Rob Lowe, Kristen Bell, Raphael Alejandro, Raquel Welch, Michael Cera, Rob Riggle, Rob Huebel. 2017. 115 min. Comedy.

Food with 'Hart'

YouTube star Hannah Hart explores culinary hot spots

By Andrew Warren
TV Media

Here's a confession that shouldn't come as much of a surprise: I love food. As much as I do, though, Hannah Hart probably loves it more. Heck, she has her own cooking-oriented YouTube channel with millions of subscribers and hundreds of millions of views.

That channel, "My Drunk Kitchen," is pretty much just what its title advertises: Hart cooks while intoxicated, to great comedic and culinary effect. Concerns about overindulgence aside, it's been a huge hit since its first episodes in 2011, and now Hart has made the transition from web to television with a new Food Network show.

"I Hart Food" premieres Monday, Aug. 14, on Food Network, and Hart serves as both host and executive producer. Over six episodes, the media personality with a laugh-out-loud sense of humor follows her stomach to some of the country's top regional food hot spots, where she finds some amazing local dishes, and equally amazing people.

In Monday's premiere, Hart is in Santa Fe, New Mexico, where the food is just as hot as it is outdoors. She's there to check out a local culinary tradition: red and green chilies on everything. Whether it's on an all-American hamburger or a Mexican chili relleno, the little heat bombs are everywhere, giving the city's culinary scene a vibrantly colorful and oh-so-spicy personality.

Over the next five episodes, Hart heads to Portland, Maine; Asheville, North Carolina; Minneapolis, Minnesota; Eugene, Oregon; and Missoula, Montana. At each stop, she not only checks out the city's eclectic food scene but also its people. Hart's an entertaining, outgoing personality and has no trouble at all finding an "in" with the locals. After all, to truly experience a city's food, you also have to experience the people who get to enjoy it every day.

Hart may be best known for the award-winning "My Drunk Kitchen," but that's just one of her accomplishments. Her books "My Drunk Kitchen: A Guide to Eating, Drinking and Going with Your Gut" and "Buffering: Unshared Tales of a Life Fully Loaded," are both New York Times bestsellers, and she's created a philanthropic community, "Have a Hart Day," which pushes young people to volunteer in their communities.

Hannah Hart loves food and she loves people. The two come together in "I Hart Food," premiering Monday, Aug. 14, on Food Network.

By Adam Thomlison
TV Media

Q: Is there going to be another season of "Berlin Station"?

A: It's fair to wonder. "Berlin Station," starring Leland Orser ("Ray Donovan"), Rhys Ifans ("Elementary"), Richard Armitage ("MI-5") and Michelle Forbes ("True Blood"), told a (more or less) complete story in its first season on Epix, and these days all sorts of networks are playing the "limited series" trick, where they produce a season of TV that comes to some sort of conclusion, and, if it's not a hit, just drop the show at the end and say that was the plan all along. If it is a hit, they renew it.

Fortunately, "Berlin Station" was a hit, and so it's been renewed for a second season, though Epix hasn't offered a return date any firmer than "2017."

That might be because the renewal came all the way back in November, when the first season was still airing — such was the channel's confidence in the show and satisfaction in the early numbers.

We do have some interesting details about the new season, namely the actors who are joining the cast.

Most notable among them is film star Ashley Judd ("Divergent," 2014), who will play BB Yates, the new CIA station chief.

Keke Palmer, fresh off a co-starring turn in the now-canceled "Scream Queens," joins the cast as well as a character named April Lewis — and that's all we know about her.

Scott William Winters, best known for his central role in the prestige-drama classic "Oz," or his recent recurring role in "The Americans," joins the cast in a recurring role as the tough chief of station in Oslo, Norway.

Q: Can you please tell me why Alex Price and Nancy Carroll have left "Father Brown"?

A: Neither actor has given reasons for leaving "Father Brown," but it seems to boil down to a desire for change. Both have simply moved on to new roles.

Alex Price, who played the petty criminal-turned-chauffeur Sid, has a pretty high-profile stage gig, playing an aged Draco Malfoy in "Harry Potter and the Cursed Child." While plays are often seen as a step down from film and TV work, starring in anything Potter-related, particularly in London, will always be a special case.

Nancy Carroll, who played the glamorous (and amorous) Lady Felicia in "Father Brown," has stuck with television, appearing in two somewhat similar productions. Most recently, she's been appearing in the TNT drama "Will," a period historical-literary drama set in England (much like "Father Brown") — it tells the story of the early days of a young William Shakespeare. Earlier this year she appeared in four episodes of "Prime Suspect: Tennison," a '70s-set prequel series to the classic cop show "Prime Suspect," based on the mystery novel series by Lynda La Plante.

The common thread here is literature — all these roles are based on books. That says something about the British culture industry (although "Will" is produced by an American channel, it's filmed in Wales, set in London and features mostly British actors), but it also says something about the actors' backgrounds.
