Welcome back, Jess

'New Girl' kicks off its final season

By Kyla Brewer
TV Media

A few prime-time romances go, few are as compelling as the friends-first budding relationships that take years to develop. One of television's sweetest couples is about to return to the airwaves, and fans couldn't be happier.

After years of will-they-won't-they angst, it looks as if Jess (Zooey Deschanel, "Elf," 2003) and Nick (Jake Johnson, "Paper Heart," 2009) might finally live happily ever after in a new season of "New Girl," premiering Tuesday, April 10, on Fox. The season 7 opener will be a bittersweet beginning for fans, as it marks the debut of the show's final season. What's worse is that there are just eight episodes to look forward to, as opposed to the usual 22 to 25.

Nevertheless, loyal "New Girl" viewers will likely cherish these last moments with Jess and the gang. At the end of season 6, Jess confessed her feelings for Nick, and season 7 makes a big time jump to three years into the future. Jess and Nick are just returning from a European book tour, while friends Cece (Hannah Simone, "Kicking & Screaming") and Schmidt (Max Greenfield, "Modern Men") are busy raising their young daughter, Ruth. Also, Winston (Lamorne Morris, "The Assistants") and Aly (Nasim Pedrad, "Saturday Night Live") are now married with a baby on the way.

In typical Jess Day fashion, series star Deschanel has a positive outlook on "New Girl's" last hurrah. In an exclusive interview at the 2018 Winter Television Critics Association Press Tour, she told "ET's" Leanne Aguilera that she was very happy with the show's final season.

"I feel like we covered a lot of our classic sort of scenarios in the last season," she said. "The writers did a good job. There are a lot of 'Easter eggs.'"

Fans should be on the lookout for so-called Easter eggs, which are special hidden messages or jokes referring to previous seasons of the show. It's been a long haul for the cast and crew of the comedy, and a lot has happened since it premiered in 2011. It all started when young schoolteacher Jess came home to find her boyfriend in bed with another woman and left to find a new home. She ended up moving into a loft with three strangers — Nick, Schmidt and Coach (Damon Wayans Jr., "Happy Endings"), the latter of whom left the loft to move in with his girlfriend in the second episode, making room for Winston to move in. Jess's childhood bestie, Cece, is a frequent visitor to the loft and a core member of the cast of characters.

Throughout the first six seasons, the relationships between the friends evolved as the initial physical attraction between Cece and Schmidt became much deeper and Nick and Jess realized they were meant to be together. Meanwhile, Winston worked a variety of jobs before becoming an LAPD officer and falling in love with his colleague, Aly.

In addition to Pedrad, the final season features a number of memorable returning guest stars, including Wayans Jr., Dermot Mulroney ("My Best Friend's Wedding," 1997), Nelson Franklin ("The Millers"), Sam Richardson ("Veep"), David Walton ("Perfect Couples"), Jamie Lee Curtis ("True Lies," 1994) and Rob Reiner ("All in the Family"). Tig Notaro ("One Mississippi") also makes a special guest appearance, and J.B. Smoove ("Curb Your Enthusiasm") portrays Winston's father, whom Winston meets for the very first time.

The wrap-up season promises plenty of laughs as the award-winning cast and crew bid adieu to characters that have captured the hearts of TV viewers for years. A breakout hit of its debut fall season, "New Girl" drew more than 10 million viewers to the premiere. The show was particularly popular with critics, who've praised the performances of Deschanel, Schmidt and Johnson in particular. Entertainment industry pundits have taken notice over the years, honoring the show with numerous nominations, including five Golden

Globe nods and five

Emmy nominations. The program won the 2011 Critics' Choice Television Award for Most Exciting New Series, Deschanel won the 2012 Critics' Choice Television Award for Best Actress in a Comedy Series and Simone won the 2012 Teen Choice Award for Choice TV Breakout Star — Female.

Unfortunately, the ratings have waned over the years, clocking in around two million for the season 6 finale, which led to the show almost being canceled at the end of last season. Luckily for fans, "New Girl" has been granted a short reprieve to say farewell.

Fans of Deschanel may be interested to know that the actress has been cast as Belle in a live concert version of Disney's "Beauty and the Beast," alongside Kelsey Grammer ("Frasier") as Lumiere, Rebel Wilson ("Pitch Perfect," 2012) as LeFou and Anthony Evans ("The Voice") as The Beast. The concert will take place over two nights at the legendary Hollywood Bowl, but no plans for a television broadcast have yet been announced.

Saying goodbye to this beloved cast of characters won't be easy, but fans should take heart in the knowledge that there are eight whole episodes of "New Girl" left to enjoy. Catch the show's final season premiere when it airs Tuesday, April 10, on Fox.

The Greatest Showman

Legendary showman P.T. Barnum's (Jackman) rise to fame comes to life in this musical adventure. A man from humble beginnings, Barnum loses his job as a clerk and buys a museum that struggles to attract interest until he begins showcasing "freaks." The new performers are a hit with lower classes, and the entertainer hires a playwright (Efron) to help turn the show into one that all classes can enjoy. However, when Barnum's success with a Swedish singer finally brings him the high-class fame that he's always craved, his circus begins to suffer.

Director: Michael Gracey. Stars: Hugh Jackman, Zac Efron, Michelle Williams, Zendaya, Rebecca Ferguson, Austyn Johnson, Sam Humphrey. 2017. 105 min. Biography.

Molly's Game

After an injury prevents her from qualifying for the Winter Olympics, skier Molly Bloom (Chastain) begins working for a real estate developer who runs underground poker games for wealthy and famous people on the side. It doesn't take long for her to become an integral part of hosting the games, and after her boss lets her go, she takes most of the wealthy players with her and uses her experience to start running her own games that only become more popular as time goes on. After members of the Russian mob begin showing up for her games, though, her activities begin to attract the attention of the FBI.

Director: Aaron Sorkin. Stars: Jessica Chastain, Idris Elba, Kevin Costner, Michael Cera, Chris O'Dowd, Jeremy Strong. 2017. 140 min. Biography.

All the Money in the World

When John Paul Getty III (Charlie Plummer) is kidnaped while in Rome, his mother, Gail (Williams), approaches his wealthy grandfather, J. Paul Getty (Christopher Plummer), to secure the ransom money. Convinced that paying the ransom would just embolden other potential kidnapers to come after his large family, the elder Getty refuses, and instead sends one of his company's negotiators to investigate the kidnapping and secure his grandson's release.

Director: Ridley Scott. Stars: Michelle Williams, Christopher Plummer, Charlie Plummer, Mark Wahlberg, Timothy Hutton, Romain Duris. 2017. 132 min. Biography.

Sweet, sweet desserts

Cakes are edible art in 'Vegas Cakes'

By Andrew Warren
TV Media

Viva Las Vegas, baby! Everything is bigger, brighter and bolder in Sin City, and the food is no exception. World-renowned chefs such as Gordon Ramsay, Tom Colicchio and Wolfgang Puck all have restaurants there, and the desserts can be some of the most elaborate culinary creations to be found anywhere on the planet.

When it comes to sweets for special occasions, cakes will always be a favorite, and in Vegas there's only one place to go for the biggest and most awe-inducing cakes around: Freed's Bakery. In business since 1959, the dessert hot spot is the focus of Food Network's "Vegas Cakes," which premiered a new season last week and currently airs Monday evenings.

From the front, Freed's looks like a typical neighborhood bakery, albeit one with desserts that really stand out. The cameras, though, get to go where walk-in customers never do: into the back room where the artists make some of the city's most elaborate cakes.

Previous episodes have seen the crew make some of the most jaw-dropping and beautiful cakes imaginable. We've seen them build and decorate a three-foot-long classic car, come up with a unique beer unicorn and even a cake made of giant tacos.

A bakery as established and well-known as Freed's is guaranteed to attract celebrities, and Las Vegas certainly has those in spades. Whether it's magicians Penn and Teller looking for a custom cake to celebrate their Vegas show's 25th anniversary,

Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Newton ordering a complicated dress cake for a bridal shower, or even Cirque du Soleil celebrating a performance milestone, big names are often attached to the desserts being prepared.

The real fun here, though, is watching the cakes come to life. These aren't just desserts — they really are works of art, and the planning and execution that has to go into each and every one of them can be mind-boggling. From conception to the baking to actual decorating, the team of bakers and decorators works like a well-oiled machine to create breathtaking wonders time after time.

Everything is bigger and brighter in Vegas, and the cakes are no exception. New episodes of "Vegas Cakes" currently air Monday evenings on Food Network.

Q&A hollywood

By Adam Thomlison
TV Media

Q: I heard a crazy rumor once that seems too good to be true: Did Rich Little do an impression of Stacy Keach to narrate episodes of "Mike Hammer" while Keach was in jail?

A: When you put it all together like that it does sound crazy, but ... OK, it's pretty crazy. Crazy but completely true.

Stacy Keach, whose life has occasionally been as rough as his gravelly voice, did indeed go to jail in 1984. According to news reports at the time, he was on his way to London to record the narration for "Mike Hammer" when he was caught at Heathrow Airport in London carrying 1.3 ounces of cocaine. He pleaded guilty to the charge and was sent to British prison.

That left CBS in a bind, though, as the "Mike Hammer" episodes needed to be finished before Keach was due for release. In what sounds like the plot to an '80s screwball comedy, they called celebrity impressionist Rich Little to "do" (in celebrity-impression parlance) Stacy Keach for the episodes. So what you hear in the narration of the last few episodes of the show's second season is Little pretending to be Keach pretending to be Hammer.

Even more incredibly, that wasn't the first time Little got that kind of call. According to his official website, he has twice stepped onto the sets of "Pink Panther" films, to replace two different actors — David Niven and Peter Sellers — and did Gene Kelly's voice for a Christmas special after Kelly got laryngitis.

Indeed, when interviewed about the "Mike Hammer" incident by the L.A. Times in 1985, shortly after the episodes aired, Little is surprisingly nonchalant about it all.

"All three shows have been on the air and nobody complained, so I guess it worked OK."

Q: What ever happened to the actress who played Whitley on "A Different World"? Is she still acting?

A: Jasmine Guy's career arc at the time of "A Different World" (that is, the late '80s) suggested great things for her future, but she's struggled since the show ended in 1993.

As a fan of her great sitcom success, you might enjoy knowing that one of her most recent roles reunites her with another "Different World" alumna. She has appeared in six episodes of the Disney Channel hit "K.C. Undercover," which features Kadeem Hardison as one of its stars — Hardison, you may remember, played Guy's long-running love interest, Dwayne Wayne, in "A Different World."

Even more recently, she's had a four-episode arc in BET's "The Quad."

This has been the shape of her career since 1993 — a series of arcs of varying lengths in other people's TV shows.

That said, "A Different World" started as another person's TV show, too. Guy was originally only supposed to appear in the first episode of the show, but fans loved her so much she was promoted to series regular. Then, when original star Lisa Bonet left the show (and the producers wanted to retool it), Guy was promoted from regular to star.
