Your Weekly Guide to TV Entertainment For the week of September 29 - October 5, 2018 • The cast of "The Neighborhood"

There goes 'The Neighborhood'

When Dave Johnson (Max Greenfield, "New Girl") and his wife, Gemma (Beth Behrs, "2 Broke Girls"), move their family across the country to a primarily black community, they rub their new neighbor the wrong way in the premiere of "The Neighborhood," airing Monday, Oct. 1, on CBS. Cedric the Entertainer ("The Steve Harvey Show") returns to prime time as the Johnson's cantankerous neighbor, Calvin, in the freshman sitcom.

Comedy with a purpose

It's a beautiful day in 'The Neighborhood'

t the end of the day, it's nice to kick back and enjoy a few laughs. Watching a TV comedy is a great way to unwind, but some sitcoms are more than just a string of snappy one-liners. A new series takes a humorous look at a serious issue as it tackles racism in America.

Max Greenfield ("New Girl") stars as Dave Johnson, a friendly conflict negotiator from the Midwest who cheerily moves his family to a primarily black neighborhood in L.A. when his wife gets a new job as a school principal in "The Neighborhood," premiering Monday, Oct. 1, on CBS. Unfortunately, his new neighbor Calvin, played by comedy legend Cedric the Entertainer ("The Steve Harvey Show"), isn't happy to see a white family move in next door.

Luckily for Dave, not everyone shares Calvin's point of view. Calvin's gracious wife, Tina (Tichina Arnold, "Everybody Hates Chris"), welcomes the Johnsons to the community. Calvin's young son, Marty (Marcel Spears, "The Mayor"), is happy to see Dave, his wife, Gemma (Beth Behrs, "2 Broke Girls"), and their young son, Grover (Hank Greenspan, "13 Reasons Why"). Meanwhile, Calvin's older unemployed son, Malcolm (Sheaun McKinney, "Great News"), finds it entertaining to watch his frustrated father interact with their new neighbors.

Despite his efforts, Dave just can't seem to ingratiate himself to Calvin, who is convinced that the white family's presence will disrupt the culture of their beloved neighborhood. While "The Neighborhood" could easily rely on the odd-couple banter between Calvin and Dave for predictable laughs and gags, series creator and showrunner Jim Reynolds ("The Big Bang Theory") has said the series has a deeper message. During this year's Television Critics Association summer press tour, he explained that he hoped the sitcom would open a dialogue about race relations.

'This is a traditional sitcom," Reynolds went on to say, "a comfortable and welcoming vehicle to bring people into a safe space and then talk about some difficult issues.'

Loosely based on Reynolds' own experience moving his family to a historically black neighborhood in Pasadena, Calif., "The Neighborhood" chronicles Dave's efforts to break through Calvin's gruff exterior to become his friend. Dave may be the friendliest guy in the Midwest, but Calvin is having none of it. Similar to Norman Lear's groundbreaking TV classic "All in the Family," the new comedy isn't afraid to explore hot button issues such as racism and reverse racism.

Cedric the Entertainer has had a huge influence on the show's direction since signing on to the project in March, and Revnolds has given him a lot of credit and praise for his contributions to the show's development. The dialogue between the two men reverberates through the show as the stories are told from the perspectives of both the black and the white families. In a July interview with Variety, the creator said he welcomed the comedian's input.

"He gave us the benefit of having an authentic African-American point of view," Reynolds said. He later added: "Cedric and my relationship is kind of a metaphor for the show. He's been instrumental to it." With a huge star and a noble objective, the comedy shows a lot of promise, but there have been some bumps on the road to prime time. After undergoing a few title changes from "Here Comes the Neighborhood" to "Welcome to the Neighborhood" to its current incarnation, the cast

was changed up. In May, it was he's directed more than 50 teleannounced that Greenfield replaced Australian actor Josh Lawson ("House of Lies"), who Dave back in March. Then, in June, reports surfaced that Behrs would take over the role of Gemma Johnson for Dreama Walker ("Don't Trust the Bin Apartment 23"), who had been originally cast in April. No definitive reason was given for the recastings other than the fact that CBS wanted to work

The cast shuffling meant the pilot had to be reshot, and luckily the cast and crew had an industry veteran at the helm. Legendary television director James Burrows, best known for co-creating the TV classic "Cheers," directed both pilots for "The Neigh-

vision pilots, and he reached a significant milestone when he directed his 1,000th TV episode in 2016 with an installment of NBC's "Crowded." It's clear the network has high hopes for "The Neighborhood." CBS gave the show a series order back in May, and it was featured at the 12th annual PaleyFest Fall Television Previews event in September. In addition to Reynolds and series star Cedric the Entertainer, the show's executive producers include Aaron Kaplan ("The Chi"), Dana Honor ("Me, Myself and I"), Wendi Trilling ("9JKL") and Eric Rhone ("The Honeymooners," 2005)

Just like Calvin's precious neighborhood, Monday nights may never be the same as the Johnson family settles in and adjusts to a new life in the big city. Dave may never win Calvin over, but it should be entertaining to watch him try. Don't miss the premiere of "The Neighborhood," airing Monday, Oct. 1, on CBS.

Extra treats: Food Network's 'Halloween Wars' is bigger than ever

By Andrew Warren

TV Media

Halloween tradition is back for even more scares, and this year it's brought friends. Every fall, "Halloween Wars" spooks audiences with its incredibly sugary creations, and this year's competition, which premieres Sunday, Sept. 30, on Food Network, promises to deliver.

Actor Jonathan Bennett ("Mean Girls," 2004) is back to host the competition that sees six teams building incredibly elaborate, detailed and spooky edible displays that definitely put the "treat" in "trick or treat." Each team is made up of a cake artist, a sugar master and an expert pumpkin carver, and over the series' five episodes they're tasked with making more and more displays that have to taste as good as they look.

Of course, every competition needs some judges, and this year's panel is comprised of horror film special effects master Todd Tucker and celebrated cake decorator Shinmin Li. A rotating panel of guest judges rounds out the panel, with Sean Gunn ("Gilmore Girls"), Gaten Matarazzo ("Stranger Things") and director

Mick Garris ("The Stand") all taking a turn.

This year, the trick-or-treating has managed to snag some extra treats. Immediately before Sunday's premiere, "Road to Halloween Wars" goes behind the scenes to give audiences a look at just what goes on in the lead-up to the series. From around the globe, some of the most skilled cake, pumpkin and sugar artists hone their ghoulish genius in hopes of wowing the judges and scaring off the competition.

Then, following Sunday's premiere, there's even more sweet treats with "Halloween Wars: Even More Monstrous Scares." The special takes a look back at some of the most memorable displays in the show's history, revisiting the terrifying witches, ghosts, werewolves and vampires that have graced the series since its first competition back in 2011.

That's three hours of Halloween trickery in one night, and there's a reason that "Halloween Wars" is such a seasonal favorite. The edible displays really are visual masterpieces, and with $50,000 up for grabs for the winning team, the competition is fierce. "Halloween Wars" premieres Sunday, Sept. 30, on Food Network.

By Adam Thomlison TV Media

Q: What came first, the Muppets, the Fraggles or the "Sesame Street" group?

A: That's harder to answer than it sounds. The Muppets came first — at least some of them — and indeed technically they're all Muppets. However, "Sesame Street" was Jim Henson's first ma-

The name Muppets refers to the pioneering kind of puppet Henson created along with his wife and early collaborator, Jane Nebel (the two incorporated under the name Muppets Inc. in 1958). However, "The Muppet Show" didn't debut until 1976, seven years after "Sesame Street."

But actually, by the time "Sesame Street" debuted in 1969, with now-legendary puppeteer Henson guiding his fabric-and-foam-rubber creations across the screen, he was already an established TV entertainer. And here's where it gets confusing.

He'd been doing guest appearances on the great '60s variety shows hosted by Steve Allen, Ed Sullivan and their ilk. It was while working this circuit that he introduced his first recurring character, Rowlf the Dog, in 1963, on "The Jimmy Dean Show."

Thus, a "Muppet Show" character was Henson's first famous creation, too. But he was born 13 years before the show.

Q: Is the mirror scene in "Conan the Destroyer" ripped off from "Enter the Dragon"?

A: It depends a lot on your point his brains instead of his brawn of view, but it's safe to say there are similarities.

We don't know if "Conan the Destroyer" (1984) director Richard Fleischer, or any of the film's various writers, had even seen the legendary martial arts flick "Enter the Dragon" (1973). However, the two movies do feature pretty similar showdowns with bad guys in halls of mirrors.

In both examples, scheming bad guy lures unstoppable-warrior good guy into a room full of mirrors to fight, so that the good guy is unsure where his enemy actually is It requires him to use — sort of.

In fact, the solution in both cases is to smash a bunch of mirrors, which eliminates the bad quy's advantage. (In Conan's case, smashing the mirrors actually wounds the bad guy, so maybe the mirrors are a part of him? This is also not known. It's not a very logic-based movie.)

Is this a rip-off? An homage? That's somewhat subjective. But in fact, neither film came up with the idea.

Entertainment trivia site TVTropes.org makes a business out of tracing these sorts of repeated ideas, and it points to either the 1947 Orson Welles noir film "The Lady From Shanghai" or the 1928 Charlie Chaplin film "The Circus" as the originator of the hall-of-mirrors showdown.

It goes on to list a whole pile of other films and TV shows that have used it over the years, including the 1974 James Bond film "The Man With the Golden Gun" and an old episode of "Doctor Who" (but at this point they've done just about everything in "Doctor Who").
