Defining an age

Fact flirts with fiction in 'Victoria' on PBS

By Kat Mulligan
TV Media

The British Monarchy is often explored through the cinematic lens, with the lives of numerous kings and queens regularly adapted for film and television. While the regal males of history may have a longer list of fictional representation, the lengthy legacies of Britain's queens have arguably provided far more captivating and immersive narratives.

In August 2016, British television powerhouse ITV continued this tradition, giving the life of one of the kingdom's most beloved monarchs a stunning series treatment. Thankfully, those of us in North America have also had the opportunity to fall for this majestic, spirited queen, as the story of "Victoria" continues to unfold Sunday, Feb. 11, on PBS.

A part of "Masterpiece," "Victoria" is a dramatic television series adaptation of the queen's life, following Alexandrina Victoria (Jenna Coleman, "Doctor Who") as she learns of the death of the king and her subsequent ascension to the throne at age 18. Still young, naive and not fully prepared, Victoria is determined to define her own reign and avoid the external influence of her mother's adviser, or others bent on persuading her. Early assistance from the dashing Lord Melbourne (Rufus Sewell, "The Illusionist," 2006) prepares her for both the court and the parliament, though it isn't long before concerns shift — though not her own — to the need for her to be wed and assisted by a husband.

Enter Prince Albert of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha (Tom Hughes, "Cemetery Junction," 2010), the choice of Victoria's uncle who initially seems an undesirable choice. Their first meeting is lukewarm, but as time passes, Albert is able to introduce Victoria to the world beyond the throne, providing an education on the poverty and trials of her subjects and encouraging her to be the kind of monarch who will finally be a voice for the people. With a newfound sense of maturity and resolve, Queen Victoria now finds herself a match and a king.

Season 2 of "Victoria" begins a month after the birth of her first child, and as Victoria discovers all that has been kept from her while she has been in recovery from childbirth. Eager to regain control, she takes the necessary steps to reassert power while reintroducing herself to the British people. As the season progresses, each passing moment seems to emphasize the growing weight of royal and motherly responsibilities, as Victoria juggles family and political matters.

In a "Masterpiece" PBS featurette leading up to the premiere of season 2, Coleman discussed these developments. For the still relatively fresh Queen, the "honeymoon period is now over," and Victoria's life is now comprised of "balancing motherhood, marriage, work, job [and] baby." A month away from her regal duties finds Victoria battling with "a bit of jealousy and ... quite a bit of insecurity" with regard to Albert's assertion of leadership in her absence. Their relationship continues to be tested and often strained, as both Victoria and Albert delve into parenthood and continually attempt to renegotiate their roles as both spouses and monarchs.

Historically accurate, visually elaborate productions of Great Britain's regal history seem to endlessly captivate audiences. Creator and writer Daisy Goodwin's "Victoria" now joins the ranks of works by Michael Hirst ("Elizabeth," 1998) and, more recently, Peter Morgan ("The Crown"). This is by no means the first depiction of Queen Victoria on the small or large screen, however. The Queen's first foray onto the big screen came through Rose Tapley's portrayal in the silent short "The Victoria Cross," which dates back to 1912. Small-screen depictions began much later, with the first of these occurring in 1951 in an episode of the American series "Robert Montgomery Presents" called "Victoria Regina," in which the queen is played by Helen Hayes.

The most successful film and television adaptations of royalty achieve greatness largely due to their carefully crafted narratives, which oh so elegantly dance over the boundary between fact and fiction. Goodwin addresses this dance in a Masterpiece Studio podcast episode, along with "Fact or Fiction: Inside Episode" posts on PBS's website. These posts examine pivotal moments from the noted episode, with Goodwin either emphasizing the historical significance or justifying the fictitious indulgences portrayed.

What Goodwin wisely notes while discussing season 2 on the podcast is the challenge of navigating and maintaining this balance, so that the result is a "show that is ... compulsively watchable, entertaining, funny ... that you will learn something from ... [that] will also make you feel emotionally involved." Subtle flourishes of fiction or factual exaggerations often make for a far more entertaining series, but, in order to have lasting resonance, a story grounded in truth can amplify the legacy of an already formidable historical figure.

Despite the western devotion to democracy, there is still a romantic allure attached to the reign of monarchy. Public fascination with royalty ebbs and flows, but the moment a royal wedding, birth or death is announced, it's rare to find someone unaware of it by day's end. Certainly, PBS had this in mind as it decided to bring the reign of Queen Victoria into North American homes, where it continues to receive a warm reception. Indulge in the life of the queen whose legacy defined an age, one that continues to be felt this very day. Prepare to receive a visit from the queen, when an all-new episode of "Victoria" airs Sunday, Feb. 11, on PBS.

Wonder

Fifth-grader Auggie (Tremblay) has always been homeschooled by his mom, Isabel (Roberts), due to the frequent surgeries required for his rare facial deformity, but as he approaches middle-school age, his mother and his father, Nate (Wilson), decide to enroll him in a private school. Although he's teased and ostracized by his classmates for his appearance, he eventually befriends a boy named Jack (Jupe) and a girl named Summer (Davis), but when he overhears Jack telling another student that he's only pretending to be his friend, he begins to think that maybe there isn't a place for someone like him at the school after all. Director: Stephen Chbosky. Stars: Owen Wilson, Julia Roberts, Jacob Tremblay, Noah Jupe, Millie Davis. 2017. 113 min. Drama.

The Florida Project

Six-year-old Moonee (Prince) lives a carefree life with her friends, spending her summer days engaging in mischief and living life to the fullest. She lives with her mother, Halley (Vinaite), in a cheap motel near Walt Disney World, where the hotel's manager, Bobby (Dafoe), acts as a father figure for her and the other children who live there. When Halley's financial situation grows increasingly dire, however, she's forced to take more and more drastic measures to support herself and her daughter, drawing Bobby's ire and attracting the attention of Child Protective Services.

Director: Sean Baker. Stars: Brooklynn Prince, Willem Dafoe, Bria Vinaite, Christopher Rivera, Aiden Malik, Valeria Cotto. 2017. 111 min. Drama.

Roman J. Israel, Esq.

Lawyer Roman J. Israel (Washington) has given up living a normal life in pursuit of his fight for justice. What he lacks in interpersonal skills, he more than makes up for with knowledge of the legal system, but when his partner has a heart attack, he discovers that his law firm isn't as financially sound as he'd been led to believe, forcing him to look for a new job in which he may have to compromise some of his deeply held convictions. Director: Dan Gilroy. Stars: Denzel Washington, Colin Farrell, Carmen Ejogo, Amari Cheatom, Amanda Warren. 2017. 122 min. Drama.

Sweet love

Food Network's competitions embrace Valentine's Day

By Andrew Warren
TV Media

It's that time of year again: romance is in the air and Food

Network is never one to let a good holiday go to waste. Food just has a place alongside every holiday, and the culinary channel's many cooking competitions are bringing some sweet, sweet love into their kitchens with "Chopped," "Guy's Grocery Games" and "Worst Cooks in America" all presenting special Valentine's Day episodes.

"Chopped" switches things up when four pastry chefs battle it out this week in the Tuesday, Feb. 13, Valentine's episode. The masters of sweets fall in love when they learn that host Ted Allen has thrown mealtime conventions aside and requires them to cook three sweet desserts rather than a three-course meal.

It's not just ice cream, candy and cake for the competitors, though. Each round's baskets, which contain secret ingredients that the chefs must use in their dishes, contain some sort of chocolate, but the real shocker comes with the other mystery ingredients. In the first round, they find a squirmly invader that's most unwelcome, while round 2's baskets contain hummus, a dip that's far from a typical chocolate pairing.

Guy Fieri is also in a lovey mood, and on Sunday, Feb. 11, he invites three of "Guy's Grocery Games'" regular judges to bring their significant others to Flavortown for a friendly competition. In the first challenge, Guy sends out the couples to shop together for a romantic dinner, but with one of them wearing a blindfold, that ticking clock adds a bit of urgency to what could otherwise be a fun shopping trip.

Over at boot camp, mentors Anne Burrell and Tyler Florence show the recruits how to make perfect sweets for their sweeties in the Sunday, Feb. 11, episode of "Worst Cooks in America." First, the recruits learn how to properly whip cream, with the mentors suffering the sweet, sweet consequences if they slip up. Then, they're tasked to put together multicomponent deserts that are capable of winning over their soft-hearted mentors.

Love really is in the air at this time of year, and on Food Network there are sweet Valentine's Day episodes happening all week.

By Adam Thomlison
TV Media

Q: Where did Julie Andrews get her start?

A: That’s an almost psychological question in Julie Andrews’ case, or maybe a biological one. You could argue she got her start before she was even born, to a mother who was a vaudeville performer. Julie’s own singing voice was an undeniable physical gift.

But psychologically, she grew up around show business. Her stepfather, from whom she received the Andrews name, was also a vaudevillian. When her parents discovered her talent, they brought her into the business with them.

So, as for the start of her career, it came on the stage in her native England.

Her fame, however, started on the American stage, when she starred as Eliza Doolittle in the Broadway smash “My Fair Lady” in the late 1950s.

Around the same time, she also made her first screen splash, playing the lead in a TV version of “Cinderella” on CBS in 1957.

She was still primarily a stage actress, though, until 1964, when she became Mary Poppins in the film of the same name, and her career would change forever. “The Sound of Music” followed in 1965, after which she was, for most people, a movie star above all else.

Q: A few years ago, there was a jewelry commercial on TV with an older couple walking down a lane and holding hands. A younger couple walking behind them sees the couple holding hands, then copies them. I would like to know the name of the nice song playing in the background.

A: It could be one of two songs, not because I’m not sure of the answer, nor because I’m not sure which commercial you’re referring to (though I was for a little while). I’m unsure of the answer because there were two versions of your commercial — the same footage over two different songs.

The song in your commercial is either a solo guitar rendition of Ben E. King’s classic “Stand by Me” or a variation on the slightly more obscure classical piece “Yumeji’s Theme,” by Shigeru Umebayashi.

Don’t despair, though — neither song is as hard to find as it sounds, if you want to track it down.

The version of “Stand by Me” was performed by the Grammy-winning guitarist Laurence Juber and is available on his album “Pop Goes Guitar,” which features similar adaptations of other popular tunes.

The other song is called “Yumeji’s Theme” because it’s from the soundtrack to the 2000 film “In the Mood for Love” (which features a character named Yumeji). This minimalist, classical waltz, which features a single violin backed by a few other stringed instruments, is pretty similar to the other songs on the album, which were also composed by Umebayashi.

All this is to say either album would be worth picking up, and either one would be (fairly) easy to find.

The commercial, by the way, was produced by DeBeers for its famous “Diamonds Are Forever” campaign.

TLC
Untold Stories of the ER
A woman receives a shocking diagnosis when she visits the ER with abdominal pain in a new episode of "Untold Stories of the ER," airing Friday, Feb. 16, on TLC. Elsewhere, a hospital's medical staff struggle to diagnose a yoga instructor who has a dangerously high temperature for no apparent reason.

Dr. Michael Guirguis in "Untold Stories of the E.R."

Open Your World TO BETTER HEARING

You Hear with Your Ears,
You Understand with Your Brain.

Hearing happens in the brain. AGX® technology works with your brain to recognize, separate, orient, and focus your hearing on the sounds around you, so you experience the sounds of your life — as nature intended.
