"Saturday Night Live" alum Jay Pharoah headlines "White Famous," a new comedy that draws loosely on the real-life experiences of megastar Jamie Foxx ("Django Unchained," 2012), who appears as himself in a recurring role. The series follows an up-and-coming black comedian trying to make it big in Hollywood without losing himself along the way. Catch the premiere of "White Famous" when it airs Sunday, Oct. 15, on Showtime.

Then Jay Pharoah said goodbye to his "Saturday Night Live" spot last year, fans were quick to voice their shock and disappointment. The rapper, standup comedian and impressionist extraordinaire had become a well-loved cog in the "SNL" machine during his six-year tenure, and his abrupt departure came as an unpleasant surprise to many.

Nobody stays on "SNL" forever, though, and for Pharoah, as for so many others before him, the long-running sketch show was simply a stepping stone to bigger things — assuming, that is, his latest venture takes off. "White Famous" is a new comedy coming to Showtime, and stars Pharoah in a role that draws loosely on the pre-fame life of megastar Jamie Foxx ("Django Unchained," 2012), who's an executive producer for the series. The show premieres Sunday, Oct. 15.

According to Showtime,

"White Famous" is "a new comedy

your soul.

Mooney, an up-and-coming black comedian trying to maintain his integrity — and his sanity — as he crosses the divide into achieving big-time fame. The series follows Floyd as he navigates that road to the next level of Hollywood success, without losing himself along the way way.

"You always root for Floyd. It feels like he can be himself and still make a way, somehow," Pharoah said of his character in a promo video for the show.

The series also stars Utkarsh Ambudkar ("Pitch Perfect," 2012) as Malcolm, Floyd's agent who wants him to do whatever it takes to achieve stardom, and Jacob Ming-Trent ("Feed the Beast") as Ron Balls, Floyd's voice-of-reason roommate. Cleopatra Coleman ("The Last Man on Earth") plays Sadie, Floyd's ex-girlfriend and baby mama to his young son, Trevor (Lonnie Chavis, "This Is Us").

Stephen Tobolowsky ("Silicon Valley") guest stars in the pilot, reprising his "Californication" role as movie producer Stu Beggs. Tom Kapinos, "Californication's" creator, also created — you guessed it — "White Famous," and Stu isn't the only character who crosses over this season:

Keep an eye out for Meagan Good ("Think Like a Man," 2012) and "They put people in boxes and whatever they want you to do, they expect you to do," he explained in a radio interview with Hot97 after his departure from "SNL." "And I'm fiery. I'm not a yes [man]."

Whatever bits he may have refused to participate in, Pharoah was a memorable presence in the "SNL" cast from the time that he first joined the show in 2010. His impressions are truly uncanny, and he quickly became known for his nearflawless portrayals of black celebrities and politicians, including Jay-Z, Ben Carson, Denzel Washington and Barack Obama. While viewers loved the bits, Pharoah felt he was being underutilized.

Safe to say that will hardly be the case in "White Famous," which is the network's second recent series about standup comedians. The dramedy "I'm Dying Up Here," produced by Jim Carrey ("The Truman Show," 1998), aired its first season over the summer, and follows a group of young comedians trying to find success in Los Angeles in the early 1970s. The series features Melissa Leo ("The Fighter," 2010), Clark Duke ("Hot Tub Time Machine." 2010), Ari Graynor ("Bad Teacher") and others, and has been renewed for a second season.

While landing a spot on the cast of "Saturday Night Live" was no doubt one of the highest points of Pharoah's career so far, leaving it may just prove to be even better for him. With a hot new comedy to headline on his own terms, the funnyman is going nowhere but up. Catch the premiere of "White Famous" when it airs Sunday, Oct. 15, on Showtime.

Spider-Man: Homecoming

High school student Peter Parker (Holland) has a secret: He's the crime-fighting Spider-Man with an awesome suit made for him by Iron Man himself. Tony Stark (Downey Jr.). Despite Stark's protests that he's too young to be a member of the world-protecting Avengers, Parker is determined to use his superpowers to protect the city from the villainous Vulture (Keaton), while also keeping up with his school's academic decathlon team, hanging out with his best friend Ned (Batalon), and keeping his vigilantism a secret from his Aunt May (Tomei). Without the experience that the older superheroes have, though, Spider-Man's crime-fighting antics are as likely to get him into sticky situations as they are to stop the bad guys.

Girls Trip

With dreams of rekindling their friendship and sisterhood, four lifelong friends — Ryan (Hall), Sasha (Latifah), Lisa (Pinkett Smith) and Dina (Haddish) — plan a girl's weekend to the Essence Music Festival in New Orleans. In a trip filled with wild parties, bad decisions and crazy hook-ups, the four friends reforge their lifelong bonds with each other and get crazy enough to make even the Big Easy blush.

Director: Malcolm D. Lee. Stars: Regina Hall, Queen Latifah, Jada Pinkett Smith, Tiffany Haddish, Larenz Tate, Mike Colter. 2017. 122 min. Comedy.

Lady Macbeth

Locked in a loveless marriage with an older husband (Hilton), Katherine (Pugh) is unhappy with her situation, and is sometimes scolded by her husband's elderly father, Boris (Fairbank), for not bearing him a son. While both men are away from their manor on a business trip, Katherine begins an affair with a handsome young laborer (Jarvis). When her father-in-law returns home, he discovers their secret romance and threatens them both, leading Katherine to murder him in cold blood, and setting her down a dark path to maintain both her romance and her position within the family. Director: William Oldroyd. Stars: Florence Pugh, Cosmo Jarvis, Paul Hilton, Naomi Ackie, Christopher Fairbank. 2016. 89 min. Drama.

'MasterChef Canada' gives a hit show distinct flair

By Andrew Warren

TV Media

een watching the latest season of "MasterChef?" Don's worry — new episodes of the Gordon Ramsay-headlined hit cooking show haven't snuck onto TV screens while you weren't looking, but its more northerly sibling might have creeped in under the radar.

This past spring's season of "MasterChef Canada" premiered south of the Canada-U.S. border with back-to-back episodes last week and continues to air Tuesdays on Cooking Channel. As with previous seasons of the Canadian version of the hit series, Cooking Channel is broadcasting the show a few months after it wrapped up in its home country, with a new episode airing Tuesday, Oct. 17.

But what's different about the Canadian version of "MasterChef?" Well, not much — but also a lot. The basic trappings are all the same: A group of talented home cooks with dreams of ca-advice. Of course, the show also has a healthy dose of Canadian culture. In this week's episode, the season's are just so much nicer, with their criticisms always accompanied by first team challenge celebrates Canada's 150th birthday by challenging the home cooks to prepare a meal for 150 new Canadians who have just had their citizenship ceremony — what a way to say "welcome home!"

And that's really "MasterChef Canada" in a nutshell: It's "MasterChef," but with some softer edges and a slightly different coat of paint. The fourth season of the northern hit airs Tuesdays on Cooking Channel.

Q: Is Horatio Sanz, the "SNL" alum and co-star of 2002 film "Boat Trip," the same bouncy, lawn-mowing guy in the Toujeo television ad?

A: He's not, but the resemblance is strong — they share the same stocky frame and dark, curly hair, and the same black beard that sort of fades its way up the face. But the guy in the Toujeo ad is much less famous, over here at least: He's Spanish actor Karlos Klaumannsmoller.

It makes sense that the company chose a European actor, since Toujeo is made by a European company.

And you'll note that he doesn't have any lines in the spot — all the talking is done in voice-over by another actor. That's so the global company can reuse the footage in its various other markets.

That's not to say Klaumannsmoller can't speak English. We know he can, thanks, oddly, to the fact that he's a struggling actor.

He's posted his own English and Spanish audition videos on YouTube — officially for casting directors to review, but there's no stopping fans like yourself from checking them

It's about the only place a North American can see more of him. His other work has been in Spanish TV and film.

Sanz's work is, of course, easier to come across. Though he was born in Santiago, Chile, his family moved to Chicago when he was quite young, and now he's very plugged into the American comedy scene.

He was a "Saturday Night Live" cast member for 13 years, and has appeared in literally dozens of other comedy shows since his start in the late '90s (thanks in part to his comedy connections — he was a founding member of the Upright Citizens Brigade comedy troupe, and was also part of Chicago's famed Second City troupe).

Q: In which Marvel movie did Stan Lee make his first cameo?

A: Aha! This question is a surprisingly controversial one, and the way your question is phrased adds a little extra. The internet (which loves a good list) is full of lists of Stan Lee's many cameos over the years — Lee is, of course, the creator of many of Marvel Comics's best-loved characters. These list-makers are split between those who start with his appearance in 2000's "X-Men," and those who reach back quite a bit further, to the 1989 telefilm "The Trial of the Incredible Hulk."

But regarding your exact question, it raises another one: Are telefilms technically "movies"? Some of the lists online only encompass his big-screen roles — an understandable choice, since the theatrical Maryel productions are quite a bit more lucrative than the TV ones.

Indeed, comparing 1989's "The Trial of the Incredible Hulk" to 2000's "X-Men" gives a sense of the quality gap that generally exists between Marvel's contributions to the two media. From the '70s to the '90s, Marvel was pretty indiscriminate about who it licensed its characters to, leading to a large number of rightly forgotten TV shows and telefilms. (Does anyone remember the Nick Fury telefilm starring David Hasselhoff from 1998?)
