Merry midwives

A Christmas tradition continues with a special holiday episode of "Call the Midwife," airing Monday, Dec. 25, on PBS. Participating in the convention of many British dramas, the series has created a standalone Christmas special each year since its conception. This year's special sees the midwives of Nonnatus House brave the "Big Freeze" of the winter of 1962 to dutifully care for the mothers and babies of Poplar in East London.

Christmas 'Call'

A holiday tradition continues for 'Call the Midwife'

By Sarah Passingham TV Media

premiere holiday tradition continues on PBS with a special Christmas Day episode of the popular British drama series "Call the Midwife." The midwives of Nonnatus House return to care for the babies and mothers of Poplar in London's East End as they brave the coldest winter in 300 years. Settle down in front of the fire to catch what's sure to be another heartwarming "Call the Midwife" holiday special, Monday, Dec. 25, on Executive producer Pippa Harris revealed at the BFI & Radio Times Television Festival that the special this year sees the characters experience the "Big Freeze" of the winter of 1962, which hit the U.K. with heavy snow and blizzards throughout December of that year. The busy midwives surely have a lot to handle between the extreme weather and their dedicated patient care. This year's chilly theme is a far cry from 2016's Christmas special. which sent the midwives to assist the struggling Hope Clinic in South Africa.

Actress Jenny Agutter ("Logan's Run," 1976) has portrayed Sister Julienne, the compassionate, steadfast Sister-in-charge of Nonnatus since the series' conception. Sister Julienne is in full form this Christmas, and has tasked herself with reuniting a family for the holiday. "Royal Shakespeare Company: Henry IV" (2014) actor Jennifer Kirby, a relative newcomer to the show, returns as nurse Valerie Dyer, who helps a young couple with a traumatic birth during the winter storm. Nurse Dyer joined the midwives during season 6, when she rose to the occasion in assisting them after an explosion. As a former Army nurse and local Poplar girl, she was keen to become a midwife to care for her community, and soon joined the others at Nonnatus.

Also starring are Charlotte Ritchie ("Siblings"), Helen George ("Hotel Babylon") and Emerald Fennell ("Chickens"), reprising their roles in the show as the midwives of Nonnatus House. Like Agutter, George has been with the show since the beginning, and her character Trixie Franklin has taken audiences on an emotional roller-coaster. Fans have seen Franklin through devastating breakups, alcoholism and treatment, and had the pleasure of watching her create meaningful friendships with the women of Nonnatus, helped by her nosey, busybody nature.

"Call the Midwife" doesn't just tell stories of difficult and joyous births in London's poverty-stricken East End. The show has expanded the narrative of the series beyond the source material of author and nurse Jennifer Worth's Midwife book trilogy to explore issues facing the community of Poplar and beyond. Over its six seasons, the series has become known for tackling touchy topics with compassion. Nonnatus House has been the framing device for stories exploring faith, poverty, prejudice, disability and equality that are told through the midwives and members of their community. Though the series is set in 1950s

London, the issues addressed have just as much impact and relevance today.

One such storyline handles homosexuality and how attitudes toward it in mid-century London affects one of the main characters on a very personal level. It is revealed that Patsy Mount's (Fennell) close friendship with surgical nurse Delia Busby (Kate Lamb "Red Heart," 2011) developed into a romantic relationship in season 4 of the show. The two experience the oppression of the time, forced to keep their relationship a secret from loved ones and out of the public eve. Like most tales told in "Call the Midwife," the drama of Mount and Busby is balanced with happy endings. After being separated due to an injury, Busby returns to Mount and Nonnatus House to work as a nurse, train as a midwife and live with her girlfriend.

One of the most controversial episodes of the show tackled domestic abuse to mixed opinions from the audience upon its air date. Though the fans may have criticisms of the show, they are a driving force for creator Heidi Thomas. In an interview at BBC Showcase 2016, she recalled her nerves when the show began, saying: "I don't think anyone was more surprised than us that we got eight million viewers on the air overnight." She continued: "I think it's not just the size of the audience, it's the loyalty, the passion you get from them." Those passionate fans have contributed to high series ratings for its entirety, keeping it enthusiastically renewed by its network and ensuring that they will receive more "Call the Midwife" for years to come, so long as showrunners have stories for the women of Nonnatus

House to tell.

The stories Thomas tells through the characters of "Call the Midwife" have hit home for the writer in many ways. The series is a family affair for the creator, as her husband, actor Steven McGann ("Emmerdale"), portrays Dr. Patrick Turner in the show. McGann revealed in his autobiography that he first fell for Thomas after reading a script of hers, and the difficulty of seeing her through medical emergencies had a profound effect on the long-married couple. Following her health scare, Thomas was inspired by her experience with the diligent nurses that she encountered throughout her recoverv to create "Call the Midwife" with all of the heart that has kept audiences in love with the show

The Mountain Between

When a storm grounds both of their flights, Ben (Elba), a doctor scheduled to perform an emergency surgery, and Alex (Winslet), a photojournalist on her way to her own wedding, hire a local pilot (Bridges) for an uncharted flight that they hope can get them to their destinations on time. Things take a turn for the worse when the pilot suffers a medical emergency mid-flight, crashing the plane on a mountainside, wounding both of his passengers and killing himself in the accident. For Ben and Alex, the situation couldn't be more dire, with deep snow, frigid temperatures and dangerous wildlife all working against them as they fight to make their way back to civilization. Director: Hanv Abu-Assad. Stars: Idris Elba, Kate Winslet, Beau Bridges. 2017. 112 min.

Flatliners

Medical student Courtney (Page) has a deep interest in both death and the concept of the afterlife, and she persuades two of her fellow students, Sophia (Clemons) and Jamie (Norton), to help her explore what happens after death. Using medical equipment, they stop Courtney's heart for 60 seconds before reviving her, and while dead, she finds herself reliving past events, which she vividly remembers upon being revived. Soon, she and her friends are frequently "killing" and reviving one another, but when the darker parts of their past begin returning to haunt them, the lines between the living and the dead begin to blur in terrifying ways. Director: Niels Arden Oplev. Stars: Ellen Page, Diego Luna, James Norton, Kiersey Clemons, Nina Dobrev, Kiefer Sutherland. 2017. 110 min. Drama.

Killing Gunther

Gunther (Schwarzenegger) is the deadliest and most successful assassin in the world. but even his well-honed skills are put to the test when an elite team of killers for hire assembles with one single-minded goal: to kill Gunther. Luckily for him, the attempts on his life are almost laughably inept, especially for a killer whose own skills have been honed through years of use.

Baking is made easy in 'Baked in Vermont'

Gesine Bullock-Prado hosts "Baked in Vermont"

By Andrew Warren TV Media

s there anything quite like the smell of freshly baked goods coming out of the oven? That warm, mouthwatering scent that fills countless homes at this time of year is definitely one of my favorites, and while the smells that are no doubt filling Gesine Bullock-Prado's kitchen don't make their way through the TV screen (where's my Smell-O-Vision television?), by the look of her baked goods, they probably smell absolutely amazing. The acclaimed pastry chef, baking instructor and cookbook author has been sharing some of her top baking tips all month in "Baked in Vermont," on Food Network. She believes that anyone can bake with just a bit of knowledge and some confidence — not to mention lots of flour and butter – and she's invited audiences into her Vermont home, where she shares tips and tricks to help make

In this week's episode, airing Saturday, Dec. 30, Prado invites some friends over to make tasty apple cider together in her barn. Always the perfect host, she bakes baking accessible to even the

up an amazing apple-inspired brunch to share with her quests - and invites us along, too. First on the menu are poached eggs on English muffins with hollandaise: all made from scratch, of course.

On the sweeter side of things are a batch of apple cider doughnuts, served alongside a latticed apple slab pie. Of course, any good spread of tasty treats also needs an equally good thirst quencher, and Prado's sparking apple cider cocktail certainly fits the bill.

Baking may have a reputation for being mostly sweets, but all month Pardo's been sharing tips on how to make perfect savory pastries. She's made fluffy cheese puffs, succulent steak hand pies and an incredible hearty pork pie. Of course, that doesn't mean that the sweet side of things has been neglected. Quite the contrary. With gingerbread cookies, a decadent interior cake and even homemade caramels all having found a home in her kitchen, this is a baker who gives both the savory and sweet sides of baking their due.

Gesine Bullock-Prado makes baking seem so easy, and with her sage advice it usually is. The latest episode of "Baked in Vermont" airs Saturday, Dec. 30, on Food Network.

Q: Is Mike Franks still alive and how old is he?

A: I'm a little unsure how to answer this. I'm assuming you mean the "NCIS" character Mike Franks (the only other Mike Frankses I could find are a former pro tennis player and track and field star). However, do you want to know about the age and aliveness of the character, or the actor? I'll do both, to be safe.

Muse Watson, the actor who played grizzled veteran agent Mike Franks in CBS's long-running action hit "NCIS," is 69 years old, alive and well — well enough, in fact, to be playing pranks on former co-stars.

This year marks the 20th anniversary of the horror flick "I Know What You Did Last Summer," in which Watson played the killer. As a joke, he sent a text message to co-star Ryan Phillippe, in character as the hook-handed killer. "I think he wrote something creepy like 'Hello, old friend," Phillippe told the Huffington Post. "I found it really weird and creepy."

As for the character Mike Franks, the answer's slightly less clear and he's up to the same creepy stuff as the actor is.

Franks is supposed to be dead, and yet he popped up at the end of an episode last month. He seemed to explain this when he told Gibbs that he was seeing dead people, but of course if he's supposed to be dead, he'd say that regardless, wouldn't he? Maybe, maybe not. Fans, of course, can hope that he's alive and just messing with his old protégé (rather than dead and messing with his old protégé).

It's a testament to the show's writers and their attention to character detail that I can actually tell you how old the character is, too: Like the actor who portrays him, he's 69.

Q: I really love the actor who plays Ali in "Ten Days in the Valley." What can you tell me about her?

A: Erika Christensen is a former child star who seems to have survived that often traumatizing experience and done some of her best work as an adult.

She was born in Seattle but soon moved with her family to the suburbs of L.A. She said in an interview with Buzzfeed that she decided on her own, at the age of 12, that she wanted to act. "I told my parents I wanted an agent, and they decided to let me have a go at rine Zeta-Jones, Don Cheadle and it. Then I started working right away."

Her first job was modest — a spot in a McDonald's commercial - but soon after, she had a coveted role in the big-screen "Leave It to Beaver" movie (1997). More roles followed, and at 17 she got to try out more serious fare, playing the drug-addicted daughter of the White House drug czar in the critically beloved 2000 film "Traffic." That meant her name was on the many best-ensemble-cast awards the movie raked in, written alongside such greats as Michael Douglas, Benicio del Toro, Cathe-

Sure enough, the roles got bigger from there, and in 2010 she landed her biggest adult role, in another great ensemble cast, playing Julia in NBC's "Parenthood."

How the Grinch Stole Christmas

Dr. Seuss's beloved holiday tale comes to life as the mean-spirited Grinch tries to ruin Christmas for the whimsical Whos in the classic animated special "How the Grinch Stole Christmas," airing Monday, Dec. 25, on NBC. In the end, it's the Grinch who learns an important lesson about the true meaning of the season.

Fox

The Orville

Two Union anthropologists go missing on a planet similar to 21st century Earth in this rebroadcast of "The Orville," airing Thursday, Dec. 28, on Fox, prompting Ed (Seth MacFarlane) to send Kelly (Adrianne Palicki) with a team to investigate. Their mission, however, quickly goes off the rails when they discover that the planet's society has some interesting quirks.
