Small town

"Midnight, Texas" premieres Monday, July 24, on NBC, and is based on the literary trilogy of the same name by Charlaine Harris. Starring Francois Arnaud ("Blindspot") as Manfred Bernardo, a man on the run from his mysterious past, the show features a colourful cast of strange characters, all of whom live in the small town and look out for one another. Peter Mensah ("Sleepy Hollow") and Parisa Fitz-Henley ("Jessica Jones") also star.

Extraordinary and supernatural beings stand their ground in 'Midnight, Texas'

ollywood has been turning novels into big- and small-screen sensations for decades, and while specialty cable channels may seem to have that market cornered at the moment (see "Game of Thrones," "Outlander" and oh so many more), NBC is about to give them a run for their money.

The peacock network has chosen a series by author Charlaine Harris as their subject matter, which is a pretty great way to hedge their bets — Harris's addictive Sookie Stackhouse novels (also known as the Southern Vampire Mysteries) served as the basis for HBO's incredibly popular "True Blood," so this new series should come with a built-in and very eager audience.

"Midnight, Texas" premieres Monday, July 24, on NBC, and is based on the literary trilogy of the same name. Once again, Harris uses her novels to weave a complex web of mystery and drama, using characters with supernatural qualities as her protagonists. The series stars broody Canadian hunk François Arnaud ("Blindspot") as Manfred Bernardo, a man on the run from his mysterious past. Bernardo is a psychic who, through his dead grandmother, Xylda (Joanne Camp, "Manhattan") can communicate with other deceased individuals, sometimes with terrifying results.

Led by Xylda to a tiny Texas crossroads town called Midnight, Bernardo is told by his ghostly gram that he'll be safe there. "Safe" probably isn't the right word, but he certainly finds a sense of purpose and belonging. Midnight, Texas, you see, is a haven town for others like Bernardo — supernatural humans inhabit the hamlet, and they take care of each other, protecting one another from interlopers and prying eyes, not to mention mortal danger.

It's Midnight's most prominent vampire who declares Barnardo the be "one of us." The striking Peter Mensah ("Sleepy Hollow") plays Lemuel Bridger, an old and very wise vamp whose opinion holds a lot of sway in the Texas town. He works at the local pawn shop (the night shift, of course) and is one of the oldest local inhabitants. Mensah is no stranger to sci-fi and supernatural roles, or roles originating in Harris's novels, for that matter — he had a significant character arc in "True Blood" back in 2012.

The rest of the town's residents are just as interesting. Fiji Cavanaugh (Parisa Fitz-Henley, "Jessica Jones") is the owner of The Inquiring Mind, a witch with a Wiccan shop who has some serious unrequited feelings for her neighbor. That neighbor is Bobo Winthrop (Dylan Bruce, "Orphan Black"), who owns the pawn shop and employs Mr. Bridger; though he seems to be a regular human, his past is mysterious, and he's an integral and stalwart part of the eclectic town.

Arielle Kebbel ("The Vampire Diaries") stars as Olivia Charity, a deadly and eerily effective assassin with a deep emotional and physical connection to Mr. Bridger. Sarah Ramos ("Parenthood") plays Creek Lovell, main love interest of Bernardo and a writer whose family harbors a deep, dark secret. Ýul Vázquez ("Bloodline") is Rev. Emilio Sheehan who watches over the town and oversees the Midnight Chapel and Pet Cemetery, while not-somysteriously disappearing every month during the full moon (werewolf alert!). Rounding out the cast is perhaps the most interesting character: Joe Strong (Jason Lewis, "Sex and the City") is a literal angel. He's been on Earth for thousands of years and lives with his husband, Chuy (Bernardo Saracino, "From Dusk Till Dawn: The Series"), while he who is destined to save Midnight and all humanity from a wins over the townspeople one by one. It isn't long before the town is threatened by outside forces, and Bernardo finds himself fighting alongside the strange inhabitants. The series is shaping up to be an excellent mix of weekly mysteries and threats, as well as long-running story arcs — a combination that has been network television's bread and butter for years — and while "Midnight, Texas" is by no means the raunchy, envelope-pushing, sexy extravaganza that "True"

Ghost in the Shell

It is the near future, and the line between humans and machines has grown increasingly blurred as people augment their bodies with advanced cybernetics. After her body is severely damaged in a terrorist attack, a woman (Johansson) has her undamaged brain integrated with a mechanical body in an experimental procedure. Now called Major, she quickly rises through the ranks of a counterterrorism organization, but soon she begins experiencing alarming hallucinations as the memories of her past continue to fade. When her body is hacked by an unknown assailant, she is set on a path that could lead her to the truth about her origins. Director: Rupert Sanders. Stars: Scarlett Johansson, Juliette Binoche, Michael Pitt, Pilou Asbæk, Takeshi Kitano. 2017. 107 min. Action.

The Boss Baby

When his parents bring home a business suit-wearing baby, seven-year-old Tim (Bakshi) is jealous, and more than a little suspicious of his new brother's (Baldwin) unusual behavior. His suspicions prove to be founded when the baby, also known as "The Boss," reveals that he can talk like an adult, and that he's actually an agent who's been sent by Baby Corp., an organization made up of babies of adult-level intelligence devoted to preserving the love of infants. His mission: to discover why puppies have been getting more love than infants. Director: Tom McGrath. Stars: Alec Baldwin, Miles Bakshi, Steve Buscemi, Jimmy Kimmel, Lisa Kudrow, Tobey Maguire. 2017. 97 min. Animation.

Gifted

Seven-year-old Mary (Grace) has been raised by her Uncle Frank (Evans) since her mother died when she was infant. Her mother was an accomplished mathematician, so when Mary shows a remarkable aptitude for mathematics, her teacher. Bonnie (Slate), secures a scholarship for her to a private school for gifted children. Frank, however, believes that attending a similar school prevented Mary's mother from having a normal childhood, and he turns down the scholarship, much to the chagrin of his own estranged mother (Duncan), who launches a battle for custody of her granddaughter. Director: Marc Webb. Stars: Chris Evans, Mckenna Grace, Lindsay Duncan, Jenny Slate, Octavia Spencer. 2017. 101 min. Drama.

Andrew Zimmern chows down on America's early eats

By Andrew Warren

ndrew Zimmern sure does get around. The chef is probably one of the more welltraveled TV personalities out there, with his long-running Travel Channel series "Bizarre Foods" taking him around the globe to sample some of the more unusual dishes and cuisines out there.

For the new season (its 21st!), premiering Tuesday, July 25, on Travel Channel, Zimmern stays close to home and sticks with all-American foods. In his cross-country trek, he doesn't just seek out modern cuisine, oh no — he heads out on an adventure through time, too, and looks for foods that are ripped right out of the nation's history.

In the July 25 season premiere, Zimmern seeks out the history of cowboy culture. With a cowboy hat on his head, he visits a modern-day vaguero, who shares with him a centuries-old dish: the barbacoa, which is a whole cow's head that's slowly roasted until it's perfectly tender.

Andrew Zimmern as seen in "Bizarre Foods"

Sound gross? Not for Zimmern, who's not averse to trying — and usually enjoying — any food, no matter how off-putting it may be to our modern sensibilities. That becomes apparent later in the same episode, when he chows down on an old-fashioned chuckwagon stew made of calf heart, stomach, liver, tongue and marrow.

Later this season, the fourtime James Beard Award-winning chef and TV host retraces Paul Revere's legendary ride, cruises down the Mississippi and recreates legendary pioneer Daniel Boone's famous journey. Every step of the way, he mixes history with modernity, with a special focus on the foods that were enjoyed as America was

This is far from the first time that "Bizarre Foods" has stayed home. Seasons 7 through 12 even had the title "Bizarre Foods America," and the last season, which aired earlier this year, also stayed in the United States. It just goes to show that in a country as large and diverse as this one, there's always more tasty — and bizarre — foods to be discovered. "Bizarre Foods" returns for season 21, premiering Tuesday, July 25, on Travel Channel.

Q: What happened to a favorite show of mine, "The Mysteries of Laura"? The last show was a real cliffhanger.

A: Sadly, cliffhanger or not, it was indeed the last show. NBC canceled "The Mysteries of Laura" at the end of its second

There's a little good news for fans, though: The events that would have taken place in season 3 aren't a total mystery, thanks to the uncommon courtesy of series creator Jeff Rake. In an interview with Deadline.com, he described some of the major plot points that were going to take place in the season that could have been (spoilers for season 2 ahead).

As you know, the second season ended with Jake getting engaged to his girlfriend, despite Laura's efforts to stop him. At the start of the third season, his girlfriend would have called the engagement off, freeing Jake to reconcile with Laura. But first, Jake was going to open up to her about the affair that broke them up in the first place, which would have a direct bearing on an old case they worked together. That would trigger a series of flashback episodes and result in them reopening the case in the present day.

If only more writers of canceled shows would share that kind of info

Clearly Rake was quite attached to the show, as was the rest of the cast and crew. He was among the many members who took to Twitter after the cancellation to thank fans and to do a little lamenting.

"My dear Diamonds," tweeted star Debra Messing (her character's name was Laura Diamond), "our story has ended but it was a joyous story to tell. We are so grateful to you for your love."

Q: I recently watched the movie "Interstellar" starring Matthew McConaughey, and was surprised to see Matt Damon in a minor role. He wasn't mentioned in the credits. What's up with that?

A: Depending on whom you ask, it was either a stroke of genius or much ado about nothing. But no one disagrees that it was a big deal.

"Interstellar" (2014) directorwriter-producer Christopher Nolan is passionate about secrecy, and he definitely wanted to keep this a secret — New York Times critic A.O. Scott said he had to sign a nondisclosure agreement before seeing the film so that he wouldn't reveal Damon's role in his review.

CinemaBlend's Eric Eisenberg said that casting Damon in the role was a smart dramatic choice that "worked on many levels." The fact that he's such a big star cast in such a seemingly small role "puts the moviegoer on the edge of their chair anticipating the drama that is to come."

However, Huffington Post writer Christopher Rosen couldn't disagree more. "There are plenty of actors in 'Interstellar,' and Damon is just one of them."

He was arguing that all the secrecy about the cameo was unnecessary. But it was certainly effective — it got plenty of coverage when the movie released in 2014, and here it is, getting more today.
