Fresh out of state prison, Ezekiel "EZ" Reyes (JD Pardo, "Twilight: Breaking Dawn — Part 2," 2012) sets his sights on being initiated into the Mayans Motorcycle Club. A long road lies ahead as he begins to climb the success ladder in a world of drug smuggling and gang violence, and navigates his own personal need for vengeance and his dangerous desire for an old flame, Emily (Sarah Bolger, "The Tudors"), in "Mayans M.C.," premiering Tuesday, Sept. 4, on FX.

'Sons of Anarchy' universe revived with new spinoff

By Joy Doonan

TV Media

ans of the wildly popular FX production "Sons of Anarchy," which premiered in 2008, have deeply felt the show's absence since it ended in 2015. It was one of the network's most successful series to date, pulling fans in with its gritty premise it followed the internal politics of an arms-dealing biker gang in the fictional town of Charming, California — and making them stay with its surprisingly enduring human stories. Now, the show's much-anticipated spinoff, "Mayans M.C.," will revive this rich fictional world when it premieres Tuesday, Sept. 4, on FX.

The new series, featuring a fresh batch of characters, exists within the same universe as its predecessor but tells a completely new and independent story, creator Kurt Sutter revealed at a Television Critics Association press tour. Fans who are hungry for a crossover won't be disappointed, however, as Sutter also revealed there will be cameos from familiar faces and flashbacks that clearly establish the two mythologies as part of the same world.

Notably, Emilio Rivera, who plays Marcus Alvarez, leader of a rival gang to the titular Sons of Anarchy, will be a recurring presence in "Mayans M.C." In an interview with Entertainment Tonight at Comic Con 2018, "Mayans" cast members agreed that Rivera's character "is the glue that cements the Sons of Anarchy with the Mayans." Adding to the fanfare, Sutter also teased that the premiere of "Mayans M.C." would feature an appearance from "Sons of Anarchy" character Gemma Teller Morrow (Katey Sagal, "Married... with Children"), whose reputation as a ruthless gang matriarch made her both a loved and hated fan

Sarah Bolger ("The Tudors") is a new face, infusing the plot with some scintillating drama as the high-profile wife of a cartel boss, as well as a love interest to protagonist Ezekiel "EZ" Reyes (JD Pardo, "The Twilight Saga: Breaking Dawn — Part 2," 2012). As the series opens, EZ, a young Chicano man, is a new prospect looking to join the Mayans Motorcycle Club. Flashbacks reveal that he was once a successful student looking forward to a promising future, but his vision for the road ahead was torn away from him by cartel violence on the California-Mexico border.

Having lost his former potential, he now seeks revenge, redemption and the respect of his childhood sweetheart, Emily (Bolger), by way of becoming a full-fledged Mayan, smuggling heroin for the Galdino cartel from the cover of his family's butcher shop business. EZ faces the pressure of family legacy to boot, as his older brother is already a prized member of the Mayans at the show's outset.

The "Sons of Anarchy" storyline ended with the death of Jax Teller, the Sons' leader whose character arch was defined by his gradual descent into ruthless violence and loss of a moral compass. While this plot has been laid to rest, EZ's beginnings as a naive young man on the brink of darkness gives fans a fresh context to invest in the same themes of redemption and loss of humanity that they loved in the original series. In the season 1 trailer recently released by FX, EZ's father, Felipe Reyes (Edward James Olmos, "Battlestar Gallactica"), is seen in the butcher shop, bathed in shadow and removing a gun from its case. "You're in this now, son," he then says to EZ, "there's no getting out." Viewers can expect Pardo to take on this challenge with the same fervor as his eager-to-please character. On a Comic Con panel, he regaled the audience with how he convinced Sutter to cast him for the lead role by pitching his passion. "How about you give me 45 minutes, I'll go outside, I'll memorize these lines and just kick

some [butt]," he recalled telling Sutter, according to CinemaBlend.

In an interview with Deadline, Sutter also explained that the new mythology and characters provide an important opportunity for "Mayans M.C." to exist in a context of political relevance. "Trump's been elected and all this stuff with the border is going on," he said. "There are these [...] vigilante groups on this side that have felt empowered to go hunting immigrants jumping the wall. So we have a whole episode about this group of [...] yahoos that are going out and picking people off hopping the fence.' He also noted that, as a

tongue-in-cheek nod to the current racial crises at the border, the message that characters are seen stamping on packages of smuggled heroin translates to "tiny hands." With this in mind, viewers can be sure to expect that "Mayans M.C." will step up to the challenge of not just reproducing the testosterone-fueled action of its predecessor, but also grappling with more complex and hard-hitting undertones.

While "Sons of Anarchy" is a thing of the past, show creators have expanded the fictional universe, giving fans a fresh perspective to explore. The cast of the new "Sons" spinoff, "Mayans

M.C." is pumped to delve into the action and intrique of the new Watch the premiere episode when it airs Tuesday, Sept. 4, on FX. Sarah Bolger stars in 'Mayans

M.C.

Tasty treats: Comedy and carbs collide in new Food Network series 'Baked'

By Andrew Warren TV Media

om Papa ("The Informant!," 2009) may be a comedian, but the mission that he's set for himself is no laughing matter. The head writer of nationally syndicated radio show "Live From Here" is traveling from coast to coast to find the best breads and pastries that the country has to offer, and while it may be serious business, that doesn't mean it has to be stale.

Papa's "Baked" premieres with back-to-back episodes on Monday, Sept. 3, on Food Network, and as the name suggests, the new series is focused entirely on carb-heavy baked goods. Sourdough is the comedian's specialty, but his passion for baked fare transcends yeast and flour types as he shines a light on local bakeries and the hoops that they jump through to make life sweeter for their customers.

In the premiere, the host is in New York City, where he hooks up with fellow comedian Jim Gaffigan ("The Jim Gaffigan Show") at a doughnut shop for the ultimate Big Apple treat: a glazed doughnut that's smothered in everything bagel topping. On the hunt for more carbs, he then heads to Gian Piero Bakery, where he helps make Italian American rainbow cookies before swinging by another local bakery for a bread boat filled with butter, eggs and cheese — a Georgian specialty (the country, not the state).

As if that isn't enough, Papa tops off his New York visit with a master class in old-world breads and mouthwatering croissants before he's off to Michigan for the night's second episode. His first stop is in Detroit, where he fills up on tasty chicken and red velvet waffles served by a former NFL player before heading to Dearborn, where Middle Eastern pastries and breads are on the menu, including freshly made pita stuffed with roasted lamb. Finally, the host enjoys a little taste of Poland when he learns how to make rich, filled doughnuts called paczki.

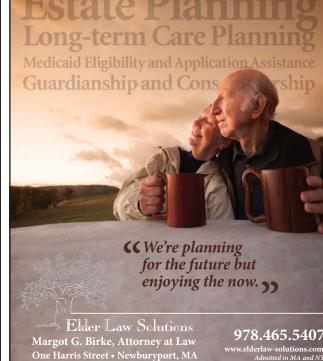

Comedy and carbs go together so well, and "Baked" is packed full of both. Join host Tom Papa as he brings two of life's greatest joys together starting Monday, Sept. 3, on Food Network.

By Adam Thomlison TV Media

Q: Where did Rosie O'Donnell get her start?

A: For the past several years, Rosie O'Donnell has been living the dream of so many of her cocompetitors on the classic talentcompetition show "Star Search."

comedian in an episode of the show in 1984, but she won that episode and so returned — five more times.

Her official biography says she used her "Star Search" winnings to move from her native New York to Los Angeles to pursue acting. And the plan worked: shortly after arriving, she landed a recurring role in the sitcom "Gimme a Break" in 1986 (her addition was an attempt to freshen up the show in what would be its final season).

After it ended, she landed a gig as a VJ on the VH1 music

Her TV debut was as a standup channel. She held that until the point when VH1 — ahead of its time — moved away from just playing videos and toward longer-form programming. They gave her her own show — one that played to her strengths called "Stand-Up Spotlight" which she hosted for four years.

Her next big role was really her breakout one, as wisecracking third basewoman Doris Murphy in the 1992 baseball classic "A League of Their Own."

Her star rose pretty rapidly from there to some major film roles, leading to her getting her own daytime talk show, the aptly named "The Rosie O'Donnell Show," in 1996. The rest — not all of it as good, as the tabloids will tell you — is modern-TV history.

Q: Is it true they're making a "When Calls the Heart" spinoff?

A: It is true. The show's working title is "When Hope Calls," and it's slated to premiere sometime in 2019.

In announcing the show, Hallmark admitted that it's being made because the Hearties are basically insatiable.

"Hearties" is the name fans of the show have given themselves, and Crown Media Family Networks are aware of their presence and their dedication. (For example, a #HeartieArt section of the show's website showcases original artwork of the show's characters, submitted by viewers.)

"'When Calls the Heart' has developed a passionate community of loyal viewers, and we wanted to serve their increased appetite by developing a spinoff series that we know will evolve into another beloved classic," Crown Media exec Michelle Vicary said.

However, this isn't just a gift to fans. The company is using it to boost the audience for its streaming-video service, Hallmark Movies Now. So, unlike its parent series, "When Hope Calls" won't actually be available on TV (at least not right away — anything's possible as Hallmark's media empire continues to spread). You'll have to subscribe to the service and watch it on an internet-enabled
