TV's big night

Television's biggest stars get together to celebrate some of the past year's most outstanding achievements at the 69th Primetime Emmy Awards, airing Sunday, Sept. 17, on CBS. Stephen Colbert ("The Late Show With Stephen Colbert") hosts this year's ceremony at L.A.'s Microsoft Theater, honoring the very best of television, which includes everything from traditional dramas and sitcoms to unscripted reality TV series and animated programs.

Emmy Awards kick off fall TV season

By Kyla Brewer TV Media

s the weather begins to cool and TV fans prepare to tuck into a whole new season of prime time, the stars of the small screen take a look back at the year's achievements and celebrate the outstanding work of their peers.

Stephen Colbert ("The Late Show With Stephen Colbert") welcomes some of the television industry's biggest names to the Microsoft Theater in Los Angeles as he hosts the 69th Annual Primetime Emmy Awards, airing Sunday, Sept. 17, on CBS. Bestowed annually by the Television Academy of Arts and Sciences, the awards recognize excellence in American prime-time programming in a variety of categories, which include acting, directing, writing and a "best of" category.

Colbert is the latest in a string of late-night personalities to helm a major awards ceremony this year. Jimmy Fallon ("The Tonight Show Starring Jimmy Fallon") hosted The 74th Golden Globe Awards, Jimmy Kimmel ("Jimmy Kimmel Live!") emceed The 89th Academy Awards and James Corden ("The Late Late Show With James Corden") took the reins of the 59th Annual Grammy Awards.

Now it's Colbert's turn, and the folks at CBS couldn't be happier. The network's head honchos sang Colbert's praises in January when news broke that he'd be the latest Emmy host.

"Stephen is the ultimate master of ceremonies with awardwinning creative talents, and as we've seen in the past few months, he has a fearless passion for live television," CBS executive Jack Sussman said.

When his Emmy gig was announced, Colbert responded in his trademark tongue-in-cheek fashion, saying: "This will be the largest audience to witness an Emmys, period." The quip was a not-so-subtle jab at the controversy surrounding attendance at President Trump's inauguration in January.

This year's ceremony could be very big for Colbert indeed. He's up for six of the coveted statuettes and is poised to make Emmy history should he win multiple awards while also hosting the show. "The Late Show With Stephen Colbert" has earned Emmy nominations for directing, writing and outstanding variety talk series. The comedian's Showtime election night special, "Stephen Colbert's Live Election Night Democracy's Series Finale: Who's Going to Clean Up This Sh*t," has been nominated in the same three categories.

Such a win would be stellar for Colbert, but there will be plenty of other excitement during this year's ceremony. Shemar Moore ("Criminal Minds") and Anna Chlumsky ("Veep") announced the nominees in July, revealing that NBC's "Saturday Night Live" and HBO's "Westworld" had each earned a whopping 22 nomina-

Milo Ventimiglia and Sterling K. Brown from "This Is Us" are both up for Outstanding Lead Actor in a Drama Series, a category which also includes Matthew Rhys ("The Americans"), Bob Odenkirk ("Better Call Saul"), Kevin Spacey ("House of Cards"), Liev Schreiber ("Ray Donovan") and Anthony Hopkins ("Westworld").

Jane Fonda and Lily Tomlin both made the cut for Outstanding Lead Actress in a Comedy Series for their work in the Netflix series "Grace and Frankie." Other nominees include Julia Louis-Dreyfus ("Veep"), Ellie Kemper ("Unbreakable Kimmy Schmidt"), Allison Janney ("Mom"), Tracee Ellis Ross ("Black-ish") and Pamela Adlon ("Better Things"). Oscar winner Viola Davis

("How to Get Away With Murder") represents broadcast television in the Outstanding Lead Actress in a Drama Series category, which also includes Keri

Russell ("The Americans"), Claire Foy ("The Crown"), Elisabeth Moss ("The Handmaid's Tale"), Robin Wright ("House of Cards") and Evan Rachel Wood ("Westworld"). Join Colbert to find out whether your favorites take home gold during the 69th Primetime Emmy Awards, airing Sunday, Sept. 17, on CBS.

Award-winning actress Valerie Bertinelli shares her favorite recipes

By Andrew Warren

TV Media

f you want to see what success looks like, look no further than Valerie Bertinelli. She's best known for her career as a TV actress, having starred in "One Day at a Time," "Touched by an Angel" and "Hot in Cleveland," but those varied shows are just a fraction of her claim to fame.

She's earned two Golden Globes for her acting, is a New York Times bestselling author and is a well-known advocate for healthy weight loss and lifestyles.

She's also an accomplished cook, and she loves to share her recipes, techniques and expertise in "Valerie's Home Cooking" — a new season of her culinary series premiered just last weekend. Now airing Saturdays on Food Network, in the series she invites viewers at home to join her as she interacts with her friends, family and neighbors and shares the tried-and-true recipes that she loves most, along with some exciting new ones that she comes up with along the way.

In this week's episode, airing Saturday, Sept. 23, Valerie shares

Valerie Bertinelli hosts "Valerie's Home Cooking"

some of her sources of culinary inspiration. Like any cooking enthusiast, she finds inspiration almost everywhere she looks, including her local farm stand. She heads on down there this week to see what fresh local produce is available, and she doesn't leave disappointed.

Once she's home, she gets to work coming up with recipes using the ingredients she found at the stand. On the menu are a plum slab pie, a gratin made with the freshest summer vegetables, and a spicy cucumber salad with spiced yogurt sauce.

The summer heat calls for a cold drink, of course, and Valerie has something to fill that need, too: a boozy frozen espresso that's sure to get any coffee lover's mouth watering.

And that's really what "Valerie's Home Cooking" is all about: just a food-loving home cook who happens to be famous, preparing recipes that can find a home on any family's menu. Last week, she helped her Cub Scout nephew earn his cooking badge by working with him to prepare some kidfriendly recipes, and the rest of the season finds the actress doing what she loves best: cooking for her loved ones.

"Valerie's Home Cooking" airs Saturday mornings on Food Network.

By Adam Thomlison TV Media

Q: Who plays Brianna in "Grace and Frankie"? I love that show, and I love her in it.

A: Grace's daughter Brianna in "Grace and Frankie" is played by longtime sketch comedy star June Diane Raphael. Being a female comic making a successful transition from sketch to sitcom puts her on a path blazed partly by her "Grace and Frankie" costar, the great Lily Tomlin. Tomlin became famous as a cast member in the sketch comedy classic "Laugh-In" in the late '60s and early '70s.

Raphael's background is a little less landmark filled, but no less successful. She first came to prominence in the mid-2000s for her stage shows at the Upright Citizens Brigade Theatre in her native New York.

However, she soon found increasingly large roles in TV and film. She had her first regular TV gig in the short-lived 2010 sitcom "Players" on Spike TV, but real success came the next year with the Cartoon Network cop-show parody "NTSF:SD:SUV," appearing alongside her husband, Paul Scheer.

Q: What song does Garth whistle when he and Wayne are lying on the car by the airport in "Wayne's World"? It's familiar but I can't figure it out.

A: The familiar tune Garth is whistling is the original "Star Trek" theme. He offers a fairly broad hint right afterward when he says, "Sometimes I wish I could boldly go where no man's gone before. But I'll probably stay in Aurora." Aurora is, of course, the suburban-Illinois setting of the smash-hit 1992 film.

This seemingly random inclusion makes more sense in the context of the film. The scene begins with a shot of the starry night sky and the whistling, which is note-perfect and has studio-sounding effects on it, so that for a second we aren't sure if they're watching "Star Trek" on television or if the film has suddenly turned into sci-fi or something. Only after a full bar of the song has gone by does the shot switch to the boys on the hood of Garth's car, and we realize it's a very terrestrial scene after all.

"Wayne's World" was, of course, a very music-heavy film. The main characters are forever going to concerts or listening to music (as in the famous headbanging scene to Queen's "Bohemian Rhapsody," which occurs in the same car), or else performing it themselves, either by whistling or by playing guitar. Indeed, film scholars Arthur Knight and Pamela Robertson Wojcik, in their book "Soundtrack Available: Essays on Film and Popular Music," go so far as to say that "Wayne's World" "could be seen as a reinvention of the musical."

The film's soundtrack was a massive hit, though Garth's rendition of the "Star Trek" theme didn't make the cut. It was certified double-platinum by the Recording Industry Association of America, selling more than two million units, and hit No. 1 on the Billboard 200 chart.

TLC The Little Couple

When Jen is invited to be a keynote speaker at an event in Scotland, the whole family travels to the U.K. in the season premiere of "The Little Couple," airing Tuesday, Sept. 19, on TLC. Cameras follow the family as they go to a scotch distillery and visit a castle where Will and Zoey feel quite at home.

Fox Gotham

Gordon (Ben McKenzie) is afraid that villain Jonathan Crane (Charlie Tahan) — also known as the Scarecrow — may still be alive and walking the city streets in a new episode of "Gotham," airing Thursday, Sept. 21, on Fox. Elsewhere, a plan backfires on Penguin (Robin Lord Taylor) during the opening of his new Iceberg Lounge.

Cory Michael Smith in "Gotham"
