HEARTSTRINGS: VINTAGE TREASURES, JEWELRY, FURNISHINGS AND MORE

With an air of whimsy and a unique artistic vibe, HeartStrings, located at 10 Main Street in Clinton, features an eclectic mix of jewelry, gifts, women's and children's apparel, vintage items and everything "magical."

In 1976, Carol Beder opened her store on Main Street, which was then called "The Quaker Mouse." She moved three more times, at which point she changed the name of her store to HeartStrings.

In 2003, a fire claimed HeartStrings and two other buildings. Within two months, Carol reopened HeartStrings on East Main Street until the other building was rebuilt. She moved back to Main Street in 2004. The merchants and community rallied around as she started once again, which made her realize how important the business and Clinton was to her.

Carol has been a member of The Clinton Guild since 1976, working with the other merchants to bring numerous festivities to town, which has made Clinton what it is today.

"My journey has been amazing, raising a family, and also building one in Clinton," she said. "There really is nowhere else I would want to have a shop or live. Clinton is a very special place."

Stop by 10 Main Street Clinton and browse HeartStrings' unique treasures or visit them online at www.heartstringslifestyle.net.

HeartStrings is open seven days a week, with later hours on Thursdays. For more information, call (908)735-4020.

CAROL BEDER

38 YEARS OF EXCELLENCE AT LONG HILL AUTO

Long Hill Auto Service Center opened its doors in 1986. While many aspects of the business of repairing and maintaining automobiles has drastically changed over the years, a few things have stayed the same.

"The first thing we try to do is to make it easy for people to get their repairs done. We know that it's not an easy thing to do to drop off your car and be without it," says owner Bob Arlotta. "Our main priority is to make it easy for people to get their repairs done. We try to make it as pain-free as it can be."

Whether it's picking up or dropping off a vehicle at an owner's home, or giving customers a lift to their destination, Arlotta says the shop's success owes much to its longtime commitment to its customers. The shop stays open 12 hours per day, six days a week, in an effort to give customers as much scheduling flexibility as possible.

And great customer service is just the starting point. In the past, the auto repair industry focused mainly on mechanics who were well-versed in mechanical issues, such as brakes and tires. But as automobiles became increasingly reliant on electronics, computers and technology, Long Hill Auto has made a commitment to staying up-to-date on the latest technology and information, with mandatory monthly training sessions for all its employees.

The shop's focus on its surrounding community has also helped to establish its reputation as a friendly and reliable business.

Long Hill Auto sponsors and participates in many community events and activities, including acting as a food collection site for the Shrine of St. Joseph Food Drive and a variety of other Long Hill Chamber of Commerce events and programs. The business is very involved in Millington Downtown Day, donating its facility, electricity, water and parking lot space for the popular annual community gathering.

In the past, the business has also hosted local Girl Scouts working towards earning their Car Care Badges. Shop employees taught the girls how to change a tire, fix a flat, jump start a dead car battery and more.

A free air pump and free car vacuum are available in front of the shop for anyone who needs them. In addition, smart car drivers running low on a charge can pull up and plug in at no cost. "We try to please everybody as much as we can. I think that goes a long way," Arlotta said.

Long Hill Auto Service Center is located at 1905 Long Hill Road, in Millington. Reach them at longhillauto@aol.com or (908) 647-7984 or visit longhillauto.com.

VNA ADDRESSES COMMUNITY HOME CARE NEEDS

The Visiting Nurse Association of Northern NJ's (VNA) mission of caring is more relevant and in demand today than at any other time in its long, storied history.

VNA's work is instrumental in shortening stressful, inconvenient, and costly hospital and rehab center stays for some patients of all ages while also making "aging in place" at home a viable, safe option for the elderly.

In fact, people age 65 and above receive over 83% of all VNA visits and that trend will continue: The U.S. is in the midst of a period dubbed "Peak 65" because record numbers of people on the tail end of the Baby Boomer generation are reaching retirement age. Furthermore, a survey conducted by the AARP found that 78% of adults over 50 would prefer to age in place. Other studies have also confirmed that home care is more cost effective than inpatient and custodial care and results in better quality of life. For example, the elderly who remain at home experience significantly less late-life depression compared to those confined to nursing homes.

Home care needs tend to escalate with advanced age and more than 70% of those who choose to age in place will require professional assistance from VNA or other providers between age 65 and the end of their lives to thrive. Many will also turn to family members for help – one in five adults in the U.S. is already serving as a caregiver for an elderly loved one.

In response to these trends VNA offers services designed specifically to address the physical, emotional, and practical needs of the elderly and family caregivers. VNA also urges those who aren't yet retired to plan ahead for their golden years.

Visit vnannj.org to download a free Guide to Aging at Home. If you're a senior or family caregiver in need of immediate assistance arrange a free, no obligation consultation online or by calling 1-800 WE VISIT.

VNA services improve the lives of home-bound elderly, seriously ill, and disabled area residents and loved ones who serve as their family caregivers.

MADISON MEMORIAL HOME PROVIDES 76 YEARS OF COMPASSIONATE FUNERAL CARE

Established in 1948, Madison Memorial Home has always been family owned and operated.

In January 2017, Doug and Katie Loikith became the new owners of Madison Memorial Home, taking over responsibility from Phil and Mariann Mangiafridda. Building on the reputation of trust and confidence that Madison Memorial Home has established for 76 years, we are proud to serve Madison and surrounding communities by providing the most personalized service.

Since opening its doors, the funeral home has been located at 159 Main Street in Madison and has been deeply rooted in the community. This location was originally chosen for the beauty of the historic home that has sat on the property since 1860 and the potential for a spacious parking area.

More recently, Doug and his family have put their focus into upholding the Madison Memorial Home's reputation while making many changes to enhance the services provided, including updates to the facility and new technology.

The interior of the funeral home recently underwent a major update and is bright, calming, and inviting. Two spacious chapels allow for both large and small gatherings while maintaining a warm, unintimidating feel.

State-of-the-art audio and visual systems integrated throughout the funeral home allow for families to have the most personalized experience and celebrate the life of their loved ones tastefully with photos, videos and various presentations the funeral home staff produce with family photos and heirlooms.

We at Madison Memorial Home understand the gift of being able to give back to the community and have been honored to provide supporting to several local charitable causes, participate in high school programs, and most recently hosting a monthly bereavement group open to all.

We are proud of the history of our town and funeral home and we welcome visitors at any time.

For more information, call (973) 377-2735, email info@madisonmemorialhome.com, or visit www.madisonmemorialhome.com.

Madison Memorial Home joined the Main Street business community a few years after this 1940s photo was taken. The historic home, center, that still houses the funeral home was built in 1860.

THE PERFECT GIFT: 'MADE TO ORDER'

In the late 1960s, the Bacons opened a small leather shop in Quakertown.

They took in deer hides and made leather items. A couple years later Dan and Pam opened the Deer Skin Shop in New Hope, Pa., crafting and selling an expanded leather and sheepskin repertoire. After this, they opened a shop in New Hope's Peddlers Village, where they began making jewelry along with the sheepskin and leather items.

They opened Made To Order at 44 Main Street, Clinton, on May 6, 1978. Made To Order featured jewelry, sheepskin clothing, leather goods along with many gift items and also for a while an art gallery.

A wide selection of distinctive sterling silver, gold and platinum jewelry is the foundation for their continued success. Expertise which has been gained from decades of face-to-face customer relations, as well as jewelry design and a generous jewelry and watch repair service, make for a loyal and reliable patronage.

Today one will find an imaginative selection of jewelry and gifts, including Valina Bridals, Thorsten wedding jewelry, Ed Levin jewelry, E Newton Bracelets, Seiko watches, Spartina handbags, The Queen's Jewels wine glasses, Thymes fragrances, Artpiece Puzzles, Festival Windchimes, Kitras art glass, pottery, sheepskin slippers and Red Mill gifts, to name a few.

Visit the store and together your design can be brought to life, or in other words, Made To Order.

Made To Order is open Tuesday through Sunday. For more information, call (908) 735-4244 or visit www.madetoorder.net.

Celebrates 90th Anniversary

3 Generations, 4 Names, 5 Locations

Metropolitan Window Fashions, NJ Largest Window Covering retailer, is celebrating their 90th anniversary in 2024 with special events, sales and contests.

Metropolitan currently has five locations, with their flagship showroom in Green Brook, sharing space with their sister company - Fabricland. They have additional locations in Paramus, Livingston, Lebanon and Branchville. Metropolitan has gone through several name changes over the years. Third generation owner Bruce Heyman was asked about this recently. “My grandfather was an orphaned immigrant who started this business in 1934. He called the company Chain Decorators for the ‘chain’ of stores he planned to open. Eventually, he had stores in Plainfield, Westfield and Somerville. He changed the name to Highway Mill End in the 1950’s when he moved out to the highway. My father changed the name to Fabricland during the home sewing boom of the 1960’s. I rebranded as Metropolitan Window Fashions in 2004 as our business swung back to our original focus of custom draperies, shades, blinds and reupholstery.”

During the celebration year there have been many special events including visits from the National Federation of Independent Businesses, local politicians and a TV segment on the NJ Morning Show. To promote the anniversary, there are two contests on their website – windowfashions.com. You can enter to win a $9000 Hunter Douglas Gift Certificate or a $900 Customer Longevity contest. In addition, Metropolitan is producing a video series called 90 for 90, where they tell their family business story in 90 short videos on Facebook and Instagram.

Going on now until the end of the year is their big 90th Anniversary Sale with special discounts on custom draperies, reupholstery, Hunter Douglas motorized shades and more. Call for a free in-home decorating consultation at 877-722-1100 or visit windowfashions.com for locations and hours.

FIND YOUR VINTAGE TREASURES AT HAPPINEST

For seven years, HappiNest Antiques has taken its patrons back in time with a treasure trove of porcelains, collector's items, and ornate tchotchkes.

The cozy shop in Whitehouse Station specializes in vintage and antique seasonal gifts and accessories, changing its decor with each season. Halloween, Thanksgiving, Christmas, Easter, spring, summer and fall are each highlighted throughout the year.

After retiring from a career at Johnson & Johnson in 2016, shop owner Maryann McKean decided to "reinvent herself."

It was McKean's mother, Janet, who sparked her love for antiques when she was growing up. She drew upon that passion when she retired and ventured to start her own business.

"I worked for a full year with my daughter Kathryn, locating a brick-and-mortar building and finding the perfect pieces to start my business," McKean said.

HappiNest's shelves are stocked with antique and vintage seasonal and holiday items, antique furniture and accessories, crocks and jugs, pewter, advertising tins, and so much more.

"My mother is one of my best 'pickers' and she and Kathryn continue to help me run the shop and find new merchandise," McKean said. "Kathryn also handles all my marketing and advertising needs. Thank God for family."

Originally, McKean carried more gifts and accessories from local artists and primitive reproducers. Over time, she found that antiques and vintage pieces are more marketable.

The shop has also become tight knit with the local community, supporting the Three Bridges Volunteer Fire Company.

What has stayed the same? HappiNest continues to offer one-of-a-kind, unusual antique and vintage pieces that are hard to come by in other antique shops.

All are invited to come in, say hello and browse the shop. There is always a great selection of antique and vintage pieces at affordable prices, and new items are added daily.

To learn more, visit the shop at 406 Route 22 West, Whitehouse Station; see www.happinestantiques.com; or contact info@happinestantiques.com or (908) 823-4946.

DEEP ROOTS, TRUST KEEP MARK'S AUTO SERVICE MOTORING FOR 35-PLUS YEARS

Spending 35 years in a town is more than enough time to establish some pretty deep roots there, even if you're in the business of helping people stay on the road.

Still, Mark's Auto Service and its owner, Mark Ierubino, have made themselves a part of the community in ways that go above and beyond putting in a good day's work at the shop.

Parents of Long Hill's Little League baseball players know them as a sponsor of the local team for more than 14 years. Mark himself spent decades as a volunteer firefighter at local companies in Stirling and even as the chief of the Basking Ridge department for five years.

All that time in one place has given Mark and his team a good view of how the town, and their customers' needs, have changed. The cars they're working on now are a far cry from what they were 35 years ago, so traveling around the country to get the latest training is a must for them to keep up with the times.

"What's new, what can they show us, the computer controls, pattern failures," says Ierubino. "That helps us. We're dealing with some really smart guys now."

All that continuing education has paid off, earning Mark's Auto Service the distinction of being an ASE (Automotive Service Excellence) Certified business.

Mark and his son, Nicholas, have also been licensed as state approved emissions repair technicians.

"We're setting up a labscope, we watch waveforms, we watch data. It's not going out and playing with a screwdriver," Mark says.

Mark's Auto Service is a great local example of how a business can settle down in one spot while keeping pace with the changes around them.

Mark's Auto Service is located at 834 Valley Road in Gillette and can be reached at (908) 647-7276. For more information or to schedule a service appointment, visit them online at www.Marksauto.com.

IN TOUCH WITH STUDENTS, IN TUNE WITH LEARNING

Professor Kathleen Calderone is living her childhood dream: teaching music!

"It wasn't a choice, it's a calling. This made my life very easy, because I always knew where I was going – never wanted to do anything else," said Calderone of Hanover. Calderone has an extensive background in music and education: She holds degrees and certifications in music education, is pursuing her doctoral degree, and is an adjunct professor at Kean University in Union.

Holistic Learning

In 1975, she opened the Calderone School of Music, which has been located in East Hanover since 1979. Between the East Hanover location and the school's second location in Springfield, the Calderone School of Music serves about 2,000 students of all ages, abilities and musical disciplines.

Because the music school is "strictly an educational institution," with the exception of its child Kindermusik Program, prospective students must first apply to the school and be tested for musical ability before being accepted. When accepting a child, Calderone said she wants to be sure the child is ready for the challenge and wants to study music and is not forced to study music.

"I'm looking for the whole child to be ready, if you think about it, it's holistic learning. Music demands the use of every intelligence and every cognitive ability the human possesses," she said.

One of the truly unique aspects of the Calderone School of Music is that it is comprised of five divisions: Kindermusik, Suzuki Strings, Private Lessons, College Preparatory, and Professional Development (for music teachers).

Through Kindermusik – an international program offered through the Calderone School – music classes are offered to children up to age 7. The Calderone School is considered a "Maestro" Kindermusik school, a level the international music company gives to the top 100 Kindermusik schools in the world.

Suzuki Strings is for violin students who aren't yet ready for private lessons.

Private lessons are offered to accepted students of all ages and abilities, in varied instruments and voice.

The College Preparatory division is more of an intense program, preparing high school students to get accepted into a music college and to earn a music degree.

The Professional Development division is for professional musicians and those who already have a degree in music, to hone their skills in a particular area or to maintain their teaching licenses.

Pedagogy is at the heart of music education at the Calderone School of Music. It's not just about banging on an instrument or taking what Calderone refers to as "entertainment lessons" — it's about that holistic music education Calderone is so committed to. Every student who walks through the doors of the Calderone School of Music receives a core curriculum that includes music theory, music history and ear training, regardless of the instrument being studied.

Calderone said her vision for the school is "to provide students with an excellent, comprehensive music education." Her philosophy is to apply that vision to the individual student and those ideals, she said, are embodied in the school motto: "The professional school that meets the needs of the individual student."

Music Needs Met

The music school's staff is made up of 45 full-time and part-time teachers, all of whom hold degrees in music and many of whom are college music professors.

Divina Arpino, 40, of Boonton Township, has a daughter who graduated Calderone School of Music and has two children enrolled in the school. Arpino, who until recently lived in Florham Park, has a degree in music and used to play the saxophone. Arpino said she likes the flexibility of what the Calderone School offers, as well as the quality of teaching.

"It lends itself well to a whole music picture," Arpino said. "Everything for me and my children has been wonderful...we are all getting our music needs met here – equally wonderful for kids as well as adults."

The Calderone School of Music is located at: 34 Ridgedale Avenue, East Hanover, and can be reached by calling (973) 428-0405; and at 276 Morris Avenue, Springfield, and can be reached by calling (973) 467-4688.

REUTHER MATERIAL BUILDS 97 YEARS OF TRUST

Reuther Material Company was incorporated in 1927 in Edgewater by Andrew Reuther and his two brothers before being passed down to his children, Andrew Reuther and Margaret Diehl.

Today, the longtime North Bergen company is still owned and operated by third- and fourth-generation family members. In April 2021, Reuther opened their second location in the Succasunna section of Roxbury Township after acquiring R.P. Smith & Son.

With nearly a century of experience, Reuther manufactures, blocks, sells and delivers the very best in masonry materials.

Reuther Material has been a mainstay in the building industry for 96 years. This family-owned and operated company has created a legacy brand for its customers, partners, and employees — serving Northern and Central New Jersey as well as the five boroughs of New York City.

The company now has two locations, the original in North Bergen and the new location at 155 Main St.,

Succasunna.

Aside from a wide array of product offerings and great prices, the Reuther team focuses on providing its customers with value-added services, including consultative project management support, value engineering specific to projects, on-time delivery enhanced by their large fleet of trucks, and ongoing education and support.

One way the business has changed over the century is Reuther now works toward selling more sustainable building materials.

What has stayed the same? Reuther has always believed in a hard work ethic and in building relationships with its customers.

Building on its longtime commitment to the community in North Bergen, Reuther now supports local sports teams and churches in the Roxbury area as well.

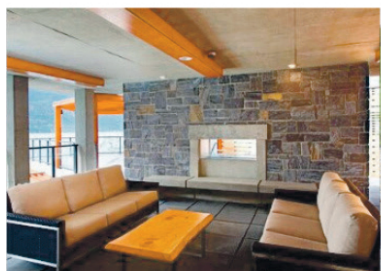

To learn more, stop by the Succasunna or North Bergen locations, visit www.reuthermaterial.com or contact (973) 584-4063 or info@reuthermaterial.com.

Reuther Material still operates out of its nearly century-old home on Tonnelle Avenue in North Bergen, but customers can also find them today on Main Street in Succasunna.
