MORRIS COUNTY'S ONLY PHOTOGRAPHIC SPECIALTY STORE

In the beginning, Madison Photo was nothing more than a studio run by Mr. Leon Hersch after World War II. In 1947, Madison Photo was transformed into a retail photography outlet by Murray Stein and James Abramson. The store became well known as a center for artists and shutterbugs alike.

They opened a second store, the Camera Shop of Summit, in Summit, NJ. During the mid 1950's Mr. Stein passed away, leaving the stores in the charge of Jim and their Summit manager, Art Goldsmith. Jim proceeded to sell the Summit store to Art, and transform Madison Photo into an amateur and professional stock house. Jim continued to own and manage Madison Photo through the late 1960's. During this time, Jim's health began to wane, and the store's day-to-day operations were handled by John Looker and Sid Sacks.

It was at this time that Jerry Harmen, then an undergraduate at nearby Drew University, began to work at Madison Photo. At about the same time, Sid departed the store in order to pursue other aspects of photography. Jim, John, and Jerry worked for the next four years building and improving Madison Photo. Unfortunately, in the fall of 1974, Jim suffered a major health issue and was forced to take an early retirement from the business. Jerry and his wife, Lynne, proceeded to buy the business from the Abramsons. (Some say Jerry was destined to own it, as he was born the same week that Madison Photo opened.)

Jerry, keeping the spirit of the business alive, continued to improve and build the store. In 1984, Jerry and Lynne proceeded to buy the Summit location, updating and improving it. Re-christening it the Photo Summit, it was rejoined with Madison Photo to after almost three decades.

In the summer of 1993, Madison Photo moved from its old location at 48 Main to its new expanded quarters just down the street at 40 Main. As part of the move, Madison Photo Shop ceased to exist, and Madison PhotoPlus was born.

The store is still owned by Jerry and Lynne, and was managed by Rob Broda for about 30 years. It continues to serve as the photographic authority of Madison and the surrounding areas. The store stays fully stocked with all the latest in digital, cameras, printing, lighting, frames, albums, tripods, and film. Combined, the stores now have about 100 years experience and are still going strong, a claim not many businesses can make.

As the retail world changed in the 2010s, the stores had to adapt. Pre-owned and rental gear departments expanded and new products and services came to be. Almost every item in store could be ordered by phone and on the internet, but professional personal service never suffered.

By the late 2010s business conditions in Summit became unfavorable, and Brett (Lynne's & Jerry's eldest son) engineered moving the Photo Summit to Madison, sharing 40 Main Street with Madison PhotoPlus, creating one "superstore" of photography. Fully stocked, yet still as local as ever.

During the pandemic, Madison PhotoPlus continued serving their customers by digitizing and archiving customers photos, movies, and more. With the work being done in house, curbside or computer transactions made it possible. As time goes on, Brett is continuing the customer service oriented atmosphere the store has been known for by decades. The tradition continues ...

REUTHER MATERIAL BUILDS 98 YEARS OF TRUST

Reuther Material Company was incorporated in 1927 in Edgewater by Andrew Reuther and his two brothers before being passed down to his children, Andrew Reuther and Margaret Diehl.

Today, the longtime North Bergen company is still owned and operated by third- and fourth-generation family members. In April 2021, Reuther opened their second location in the Succasunna section of Roxbury Township after acquiring R.P. Smith & Son.

With nearly a century of experience, Reuther manufactures, blocks, sells and delivers the very best in masonry materials.

Reuther Material has been a mainstay in the building industry for 98 years. This family-owned and operated company has created a legacy brand for its customers, partners, and employees — serving Northern and Central New Jersey as well as the five boroughs of New York City.

The company now has two locations, the original in North Bergen and the new location at 155 Main St., Succasunna.

Aside from a wide array of product offerings and great prices, the Reuther team focuses on providing its customers with value-added services, including consultative project management support, value engineering specific to projects, on-time delivery enhanced by their large fleet of trucks, and ongoing education and support.

One way the business has changed over the century is Reuther now works toward selling more sustainable building materials.

What has stayed the same? Reuther has always believed in a hard work ethic and in building relationships with its customers.

Building on its longtime commitment to the community in North Bergen, Reuther now supports local sports teams and churches in the Roxbury area as well.

To learn more, stop by the Succasunna or North Bergen locations, visit www.reuthermaterial.com or contact (973) 584-4063 or info@reuthermaterial.com.

Editor's note: This article was contributed by Reuther Material.

Reuther Material still operates out of its nearly century-old home on Tonnelle Avenue in North Bergen, but customers can also find them today on Main Street in Succasunna.
