

Mary Smith, 2304 Ave. K, holds an armload of clothes salvaged from her tornado-ravaged home in the background. The spray-painted sign on the side of the

A battered vacation Bible school sign, ripped from the Shepherd of the Valley Lutheran Church, 2308 Ave. J, pictured in the background, was wedged between a power pole and telephone junction box about 100 yards from the church. — Photo by Joe Arterburn.
