

2 columns on the 5-column
grid by 5.5 inches tall

Fall back ... AND spring forward?

Legislative Bill 302, introduced this week by Sen. Dave Murman of Glenvil, would abolish daylight saving time's observance in Nebraska if four neighboring states do likewise. But the bill's list of states leaves out Colorado, which if it stuck with DST would set up a possible double time change in an hour's drive – first one way, then the other – in spring, summer and fall for west central Nebraska motorists crossing both the Central-Mountain time zone and the Colorado-Nebraska line.

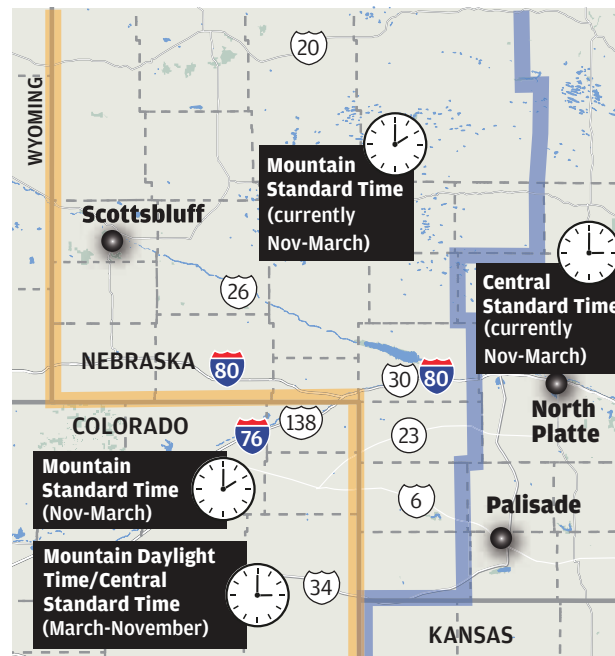

©Mapcreator.io | OSM.org, Lee Enterprises graphic

2 columns on the 6-column
grid by 5 inches tall

Fall back ... AND spring forward?

Legislative Bill 302, introduced this week by Sen. Dave Murman of Glenvil, would abolish daylight saving time's observance in Nebraska if four neighboring states do likewise. But the bill's list of states leaves out Colorado, which if it stuck with DST would set up a possible double time change in an hour's drive – first one way, then the other – in spring, summer and fall for west central Nebraska motorists crossing both the Central-Mountain time zone and the Colorado-Nebraska line.

©Mapcreator.io | OSM.org, Lee Enterprises graphic