Natasha Monaghan

From: Jonathan Mosher
Sent: Monday, May 5, 2025 10:41 AM
To: Tracy Beaulieu
Subject: RE: reply to the incident email

Thanks for sharing, is certainly a question to explore why there wouldn't be a regulation body for a licensed professional similar to Regulated Health Professions in PEI. Would be a fundamental shift, and they would have to pay annual registration fees which may not be well received.

Jonathan

From: Tracy Beaulieu <txbeaulieu@edu.pe.ca>
Sent: Saturday, May 3, 2025 12:20 PM
To: Jonathan Mosher <jhmosher@edu.pe.ca>
Subject: Fw: reply to the incident email

FYI ...

Get Outlook for iOS

From: Daun Lynch <dalynch@edu.pe.ca>
Sent: Saturday, May 3, 2025 10:06:14 AM
To: Tracy Beaulieu <txbeaulieu@edu.pe.ca>
Subject: reply to the incident email

Dear Mrs Beaulieu,

I am a teacher with the board but have taught in a few provinces in the public and private sector of education. I am still currently a member of the Ontario College of Teachers and have always appreciated being a part of the college. One aspect of the college that would be something to consider for PEI is the transparency of cases like that of Matthew Craswell. Not only are incidents like his written up in a quarterly magazine that is sent to all members but also our status and any other notes are made public online about each member. Obviously, there are advantages and probably some disadvantages to this process but I do appreciate the transparency and the ability that incidents like this are not relying solely on newspapers articles to get the word out.

I am sure you are aware of the college but I thought it might be something to take into consideration about this kind of process for how future situations like this can be dealt with.

Thanks for your time and thank you for sending all of us who work for the board your email.

Sincerely,
Daun Lynch