Hello Robin,

Thank you for your response.

The problem is that existing staff have clearly not been hired with strong practices in place.

That means, current staff need to be re-evaluated by using strong practices, right now, in order to ensure the safety of current students.

It's really weird watching this process unfold. Where is the crisis management person who should be able to make government look better than they do right now?

Thanks,

Hello Section 15(1)
Thank you for your inquiry.
If you are asking if the teachers in our school system are going to be revaluated, then the answer is no to that. Additional training will be provided to existing staff, and we will implement stronger hiring as well as reporting practices moving forward.
If your child is aware of other pertinent information in this case, then I would reiterate what Dominique stated. Please report this to the police.
Regarding your second email, these will be addressed through the process of the third party review.
Regards
Robin
