Scripting dinner: Food on TV comedies and dramas

Just as it is often at the center of family or social gatherings, food can also serve as the catalyst for some memorable TV.

Be it a sitcom from long ago or a drama series from the present, food can spur conversation, provoke conflict or be a source of laughter. And keep viewers coming back for seconds, thirds and fourths.

The following are few that we think are noteworthy.

"M*A*S*H" (CBS, 1972-83): Amid all the complaining about Army food in this classic Korean War comedy, there was Hawkeye (Alan Alda) pining for and eventually ordering from Adam's Ribs in Chicago (but forgot to ask for the coleslaw); Klinger (Jamie Farr) waxing on about Tony Packo's hot dogs in his hometown of Toledo, Ohio; and Radar (Gary Burghoff) coming up with a Spam lamb to replace the real one he set free, lest it become the main course at a 4077th Greek festival.

"Alice" (CBS, 1976-85): By default, this sitcom about the misadventures of waitresses

(Linda Lavin, Polly Holliday, Beth Howland) at a Phoenix greasy spoon diner had food built into its premise. Viewers gobbled it up like burgers and fries.

"Seinfeld" (NBC, 1989-98): For a show that was supposed to be about nothing, there certainly was a lot of food talk going on. From the "Soup Nazi" episode where there was "no soup for you!" to the fat-free yogurt that caused Jerry (Jerry Seinfeld) to pack on the pounds to the Kenny Rogers Chicken joint that kept Kramer (Michael Richards) up at night, food certainly had a significant presence — especially when you consider many scenes took place in a diner.

"Gilmore Girls" (WB Network, 2000-07): Rory and Lorelai's (Alexis Bledel, Lauren Graham) obsession with food was downright charming and provided fodder for a lot of laughs. But their diet was a tad unhealthy with marshmallows, frozen pizza and Pop Tarts serving as Gilmore staples.

Christian McCaffrey steps up big for Carolina

BY GEORGE DICKIE

With the Carolina Panthers' season in peril, Christian McCaffrey has come to the rescue.

Indeed, with QB Cam Newton sidelined by a preseason foot injury, the Panthers made their third-year running back the centerpiece of their offense and he has risen to the occasion.

Through the season's first five games, McCaffrey has rushed for 587 yards on 105 attempts (a 5.6 yards-per-carry average) with six touchdowns and another 279 yards through the air on 31 receptions and one TD. That's 866 yards from scrimmage, the second-largest total in NFL history through the season's first five games, behind only Jim Brown's 988 in 1963.

McCaffrey's best game of the year came in Week 5, when he rushed for 179 yards on 19 carries (for a 9.3 ypc average) with two touchdowns and another 61 yards on six receptions and another TD in the Panthers' 34-27 win over the Jacksonville Jaguars.

With McCaffrey racking up the big numbers and drawing the attention of opposing defenses, that has allowed Newton's stand-in Kyle Allen the breathing room to make the mistakes that come with being a young quarterback. The importance of that cannot be overstated, as it has enabled the Panthers to stay in contention in the NFC South while Newton heals.

No surprise, then, that the eighth overall pick out of Stanford has garnered a lot of early MVP buzz.

McCaffrey can be seen in action Sunday, Oct. 27, when the Panthers visit the San Francisco 49ers in a game airing on Fox.

8 p.m. on HBO
Movie: Greta

Isabelle Huppert and Chloe Grace Moretz both shine in Neil Jordan's ("The Crying Game") effective 2018 psychological thriller about a young waitress, Frances (Moretz), who returns an expensive handbag left on a subway train to Greta (Huppert), a French widow who gives piano lessons. Having recently lost her mother to cancer, Frances begins spending time with the older woman to keep her company, but Greta soon becomes disturbingly obsessed with her. Colm Feore, Stephen Rea and Maika Monroe also star.

10 p.m. on TRAV
Destination Fear

Paranormal investigator Dakota Laden ("Ghost Adventures") takes sister Chelsea and best friend Tanner Wiseman along on this new Halloween-friendly travel series, a 10-episode road trip to some of the most reputedly haunted abandoned locations in America. The premiere finds the trio on the road to Brushy State Penitentiary in Petros, Tenn., which was known as the Alcatraz of the South in its heyday. The prison, where Martin Luther King Jr. assassin James Earl Ray was once an inmate, is said to be a hotbed of uncanny activity.

BEST JULIE ANDREWS MOVIES

"Mary Poppins" (1964) The role that brought Andrews from Broadway to the screen also earned her an Oscar, as the Disney incarnation of novelist P.L. Travers' literally high-flying English nanny.

"The Sound of Music" (1965) Well, of course. The Rodgers & Hammerstein classic gave Andrews a milestone movie role as Maria, the novice nun turned novice governess to the Von Trapp children.

"Torn Curtain" (1966) Andrews and Paul Newman certainly delivered star power to Alfred Hitchcock's Cold War thriller about an American scientist's attempt to go behind the Iron Curtain and retrieve a vital formula.

"Hawaii" (1966) Andrews' acting is solid throughout in this epic based on the James A. Michener best-seller, with fellow "Sound of Music" alum Heather Menzies and (very briefly) Bette Midler also in the cast.

"Thoroughly Modern Millie" (1967) The genre's leading lady then, only Andrews – along with co-stars Mary Tyler Moore and Carol Channing – could sell a musical about white slavery in the Roaring '20s, which leads off Turner Classic Movies' full evening of Andrews attractions on Tuesday, Oct. 29.

"Star!" (1968) While this wasn't as successful as other musicals of hers, Andrews gave the role of performer Gertrude Lawrence her all in working again with "The Sound of Music" director Robert Wise.

"10" (1979) In another film she made with husband Blake Edwards, Andrews became the unwitting romantic rival of Bo Derek (who was made a pop-culture icon by the film) for Dudley Moore.

"Victor/Victoria" (1982) Working again with Blake Edwards, Andrews pulled off a tricky role – a struggling performer posing as a female impersonator – though co-star Robert Preston nearly steals the show, right up to the closing sequence.

"The Man Who Loved Women" (1983) Pretty much the emotional ballast of the story, Andrews made a compassionate psychiatrist to a womanizer (Burt Reynolds) in Black Edwards' version of a highly regarded French film.

"The Princess Diaries" (2001) Andrews was in fine, properly regal form in director Garry Marshall's comedy as the royal grandmother of a teen (Anne Hathaway) who didn't suspect her lineage.

"Shrek 2" (2004) The unmistakable sound of Andrews informed the character of Queen Lillian, a voice role she would reprise in two more sequels in the popular animated franchise.

"Despicable Me 3" (2017) Doing animation voiceover work again, Andrews is heard as the mother of not only Gru (voice of Steve Carell), but of his newly resurfaced twin brother Gru.

"Aquaman" (2018) While it isn't really "her" movie, Andrews helps this DC Comics-inspired adventure by lending her unmistakable voice to the rather monstrous character Karathen.

Halloween is quickly approaching, but more than ever before, the Johnson clan can't seem to get close to agreeing on a family costume theme. They're all in accord on one point, however: Jack's (Miles Brown) new friend Raymond (guest star Aiden Lewandowski) is just not working for them, in the new holiday episode "Everybody Blames Raymond." Meanwhile, Junior (Marcus Scribner) becomes obsessed with making sure that kid brother Devante's first trick-or-treat experience goes flawlessly. Anthony Anderson and Tracee Ellis Ross also star.

Movie: Twitches

Twins Tia and Tamera Mowry star as Alex and Camryn in this 2005 fantasy based on the books by H.B. Gilmour and Randi Reisfeld. Born in the magical land of Coventry, they are separated as infants to avoid falling prey to evil. Separately raised by adoptive parents and guarded by protectors (Jennifer Robertson, Pat Kelly), Alex and Camryn meet on their 21st birthday and set out to find their birth mother in this perennial holiday favorite for tween audiences. The 2007 sequel, "Twitches Too," immediately follows.

8 p.m. on 45 CW
Riverdale

In the chilling seasonal episode "Chapter Sixty-One: Halloween," ominous video recordings start turning up on Riverdale doorsteps, sending ripples of apprehension through the community. At Stonewall Prep, Jughead (Cole Sprouse) discovers several students have disappeared from the school, while Archie's (K.J. Apa) Halloween bash — designed to offer a safe space for local kids — is breached by some unwelcome party crashers. Elsewhere, Betty's (Lili Reinhart) past comes back to haunt her. Camila Mendes also stars.

9 p.m. on 10 ABC
Modern Family

Halloween always has been an important holiday to the extended family at the heart of this Emmy-winning sitcom, which currently is playing out its final season. In the new "The Last Halloween," after years of failure, Phil (Ty Burrell) is determined to scare his unflappable wife, Claire (Julie Bowen), but it's Gloria (Sofia Vergara) who's feeling frightened — about her age, when, for the first time, someone correctly assumes she is married to the much-older Jay (Ed O'Neill).
