

For a summer we will never forget, the shore weekend weather from Memorial Day to Labor Day didn't make too many waves, earning a "B" for the season. Still, it was the lowest mark in the three years of grading, due in part to a pair of "D+" grades. "A" grade are given to dry weekends, with sunshine, light winds, high temperatures 75 to 90 degrees and low dew points.

Summer 2018 GPA: 3.1 B

JUNE

Friday, Saturday, Sunday
19th 20th 21st

D+

"Saturday's five hours of sun and summery weather saved this from an F."

B

"Friday and Saturday were sunny and dry, but chilly. Saturday was the winner."

B+

"Friday was stormy,
Saturday was hot,
but not humid and
Sunday was lovely."

B

"Friday was an A++. Could Saturday and Sunday been warmer? Yeah ..."

A

"Our first A! No rain, sunshine and warm temperatures."

JULY

Friday, Saturday, Sunday
24th 25th 26th

B+

"Solid. A little cool on the sand Saturday with some dodging a weekend shower."

B+

"Plenty of cooling beach relief. A few storms Sunday knocked this off an A."

B

"T.S. Fay Friday makes a higher grade tough, but Saturday and Sunday were ideal."

B+

"Dry and sunny, but it was sizzlin' on the sand."

B

"Another weekend where a Friday soaker drags down the grade."

JULY

AUGUST

Friday, Saturday, Sunday
28th 29th 30th

B

"Another A for Saturday and Sunday, but an F for Friday."

"These wet Fridays are bad apples for our grades ..."

D+

"Not much sun, and there was that soggy Sunday."

B+

"Finally, a dry Friday! It could have been a little brighter at times."

B

"Temps were great, but it could have been drier."
